FIRST HONORS FOR PETERBOROUGH

ALD. EDGAR NOW TOSSES HIS HEADGEAR INTO THE MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN

Announces Himself as a Candidate to Succeed Mayor Duncan—Something as to His Record

ALDERMAN EDGAR
Who announces that he will be a Candidate for the Mayoralty

Ald. Edgar authorizes the announcement that he will be a candidate for the position of mayor at the coming municipal election. This adds another to the number of aspirants that are to be found among the members of the Council. What Ald. Taylor proposes to do now under the circumstances remains to be disclosed. He entertained some hope that he could induce Ald. McIntyre to indulge his civic ambitions in another direction so as to have the field to himself so far as aldermanic candidates are concerned. Ald. Edgar's entry into the campaign further complicates matters.

Ald. Edgar, to give every man his just dues, has always been an active and intelligent member of the Council. He may be a reformer so far as municipal affairs are concerned, but he is by no means a faddist. He believes that the commission form of government should at least be given a fair trial. He is a devoted supporter of public ownership and favors the development of the city by linking Peterborough up with outside points by the construction of radial lines.

Ald. Edgar's masterpiece of aldermanic achievement was his success in bringing about a change which compelled the Quaker Oats Company to pay their full share of the school taxes of the city. This move may lose him support in some quarters but will help him in other directions.

Any candidate for alderman these days must prepare himself to run the gauntlet of the Labor men of this city. Ald. Edgar's position on the wage question and the matter of hours when both problems was before the Council last spring, did not rest with the approval of organized Labor and this is likely to be one of the main difficulties which will confront him in his campaign.

Who is the dark horse that the outsiders are supposed to be fitting for the race against the runners of organized Labor and the present members of Council? The retail merchants will meet in a few days to discuss the local situation and there is a chance that they will endorse the candidacy of Ald. Edgar. Another ambitious politician who shed a couple of municipal offices during the past year, did so, it was generally understood, in order that he might run for mayor but the outlook is not auspicious. His one great hope of success was the support of Labor. Labor, however, objects to stepfather paternalism and will have none but the genuine article. The politician who would pull himself to the top of the ladder, step by step, every municipal office that he can acquire being considered a rung, can no longer make stepping stones of the wage-earners by assuming a platonic interest in their cause.

HURRICANE TAKES HEAVY TOLL OF SHIPPING OFF NOVA SCOTIA

Schooners, Yachts and Fishing Boats Driven Helplessly Out to Sea—Extensive Damage Generally.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Halifax, Nov. 7.—A storm that swept over Nova Scotia with hurricane force, last night and today, drove two schooners and five yachts ashore here, tore down telegraph and telephone wires, delayed trains, and caused extensive damage to shipping interests generally. West coast towns reported many wharves under water tonight.

Swept Boats Away.

At Portsmouth 15 fishing boats were swept from their moorings and driven out to sea or tossed on shore, the signal station at Liverpool was blown down, and many small boats and buoys were torn from their anchorage. Yarmouth also suffered considerable damage, seas in the Bay of Fundy ran to great heights.

Driven Ashore.

Six large fishing schooners were driven ashore at Lunenburg. They were the Dorothy Adams, Lauretta Francis, Arcania, Edyth Hill, Carrie L Hurtle and Lucille Smith. Several buildings were razed by the wind in that town. The three-masted schooner Audrey was wrecked on the rocks near Liverpool, but only one life was reported lost. A man who stepped on an electric wire at Woodside was instantly killed.

GOVERNMENT STILL HOPEFUL OF EARLY ENDING OF COAL STRIKE

American Nation Gets Indication of Stress in Store from Protracted Suspension of Mining Operations.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Curtailment of passenger train service, discontinuance of bunkering of foreign-owned vessels at American ports, restrictions in use of public utilities and appeals for coal from various cities as the strike of approximately 425,000 bituminous coal miners today rounded out its first week, gave the nation further indications of the distress in store should there be a protracted suspension of mining operations.

Little Change in Conditions

Other disarrangements of the country's routine were expected today. With little change in the general conditions surrounding the strike itself, Government agents still remained hopeful that developments tomorrow at Indianapolis, when the motion filed by attorneys for the United Mine Workers of America asking dissolution of the restraining order issued last week by Judge Anderson will be argued, might

CITY OF PETERBORO FIRST ONTARIO CITY TO REACH VICTORY LOAN OBJECTIVE

Subscriptions Received by Canvassers Yesterday Reached Magnificent Total of $184,400 and Brought Prince of Wales Flag Here—Total City and County is $1,573,450

THE HONOUR ROLL

City— Prince of Wales Flag.

Royal Bank—Honor card, every member of the staff having subscribed.

J. J. Turner & Sons— Prince of Wales' flag and one crest

Barries Limited — Prince of Wales' banner and one crest

Cressman's Limited—Prince of Wales' Banner and four crests 90 per cent of employees subscribing for a total of 17 1-2 per cent of the annual pay roll.

Hurrah! for Peterborough.

At exactly 9:45 last night the telephone wires carried the message to Victory Loan headquarters at Toronto that the City of Peterborough had reached its objective of $750,000 and had $3,750 to spare. Back came the reply that Peterborough was the first city in Ontario to report having subscribed its quota and then local Victory Loan headquarters became a riot of yells and cheers. It was a glorious finish to a day in which the canvassers were called upon to do some hard work, and now that the Prince of Wales' flag has been won, the salesmen are out to increase the subscriptions and win one or more crests for the flag. For every 25 per cent above the objective a crest is awarded.

In the city yesterday, the canvassers went out and secured subscriptions for a total of $184,400. Magnificent. At 6 o'clock last evening they were $39,000 short of the amount required to place Peterborough at the toy of the ladder. Out they went again, to look up those citizens who had suggested a call some other time. The situation was explained, the money was forthcoming, and with small and large amounts, the salesmen trooped back to headquarters to report. Finally about 9:30 it was announced that the job had been done.

Specials Not Neglected

The business for the day does not include special subscriptions. It was the citizens who did it. But the specials were not neglected, as will be seen by the day's total of $180,000, bringing the grand total for the specials up to $464,000, or 55 per cent above the objective of $300,000. Applications for the city todate number 1939.

About the Flag.

And now as to the flag.

The Prince of Wales Flag—the Honor Flag of the Victory Loan campaign, 1919—was first unfurled by His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, on the flag-pole at the entrance to the Tower of Victory of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa on Labor Day September 1st, immediately after His Royal Highness has laid the corner stone of Canada's new Capitol.

In the presence of the Prime Minister, members of the Cabinet and a huge gathering of loyal Canadians the gallant young heir to Britain's throne, whose manliness and democratic sincerity have won the hearts of Canada's millions, stepped to the flag-pole and shook loose the folds of the historic banner.

There could be no mistaking the sincerity and enthusiasm of his words when he said:

"It is another great privilege accorded to me to be associated with Canada's 1919 Victory Loan and to unfurl what I am proud is to be called the Prince of Wales' Flag. This Loan is the bridge between war and peace. I regard it in a sort of way as finishing off the job. I hope that every city and district will win my flag."

PREMIER-ELECT DRURY APPEALS TO ONTARIO

The purchase of Victory Bonds is not only a patriotic duty, but an investment opportunity of most unusual merit. The bonds constitute the best and safest investment in Canada.

I unqualifiedly commend the Victory Loan to the farmers of Ontario and hope all classes will unite in this patriotic endeavor to make the loan an overwhelming success.

E. C. DRURY.

FINE HORSE KILLED BY FREIGHT TRAIN

MR WM. MEHARRY LOSES VALUABLE ANIMAL THIS MORNING

One of Mr. Wm. Meharry's large horses is dead as the result of an unfortunate accident south of the new Hunter street bridge about eleven o'clock this morning.

Mr. Meharry was driving his team across the railway track with some ties to be used for the new track a little to the south of the one he was crossing. A freight train came along at a rather rapid rate of speed order to make the grade at this point. [illegible] Mr. Meharry was aware that the train was on that track it struck the nearest horse of the team on the side with great force.

The harness was taken off the injured animal, and it got up and walked a few steps. Then it appeared to grow weak, sank to the ground, and died

GRAND TRUNK BILL PASSES SENATE

GETS THROUGH SECOND READING ON NARROW MAJORITY OF FOUR

VOTE TOTALLED 39 TO 35

EIGHT GOVERNMENT SENATORS VOTED AGAINST THE MEASURE—MORE AMENDMENTS

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—In committee today the Senate again tackled the Grand Trunk Bill, in which the second reading was passed by the Senate early this morning, with a narrow majority of four for the Government on a vote of 39 to 35, eight Government Senators having voted against it and one opposition Senator voting with the Government.

Two Amendments.

Senator Lougheed, leader of the Government forces today promised an amendment, making the limit on amount of a ward to be fixed by arbitration, and another providing for all other than debenture stocks

CONVENTION ON A 48-HOUR WEEK

FINAL VOTE, HOWEVER, MAY YET BE SOME TIME DISTANT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—From present indications there seems to be every likelihood that the International Labor Conference will adopt the proposed convention on a 48-hour week.

Some Modifications.

No doubt there will be modifications of the original proposal submitted by the organizing committee. The probability is that discussion on delays will be protracted. The final vote may yet be some time distant, but, generally speaking, it is expected that the convention will secure the necessary two-thirds votes of the delegates present.

GERMAN CODE IS REVEALED TO U. S.

DR. ALFRED ZIMMERMAN CREATES A MILD SENSATION IN ASSEMBLY

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, Nov. 7.—Dr. Alfred Zimmerman, secretary for Foreign Affairs during the war, caused a mild sensation during yesterday's session of the National Assembly Committee investigating the war, when he admitted the German authorities had been suspicious that their code which was known by an American, was betrayed to the United States Government.

LOCAL ENGINEERS DINE OVER A HUNDRED GUESTS LAST NIGHT

Representative Men Enjoy One of the Most Delectable Banquets Ever Served in This City—After-Dinner Speeches Entertaining and Instructive—Charter of Local Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada Presented.

Peterborough now takes a commendably proud place among other progressive Canadian centres in that the local Engineers' Club has been installed as a branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada. This long [illegible] affair was consummated last night at an inaugural dinner in the Empress Hotel, when Lieut.-Col. R. W. Leonard, of St. Catharines, president of the Institute, presented the baby branch with its charter in the presence of over a hundred guests. A number of prominent visiting engineers, all members of this great organization of intellectual men were present, including Mr Walter J. Francis, vice-president, of Montreal, well known and very popular in Peterborough; Mr. Fraser S. Keith, general secretary of the Institute; Mr. J. B. Challies, superintendent of the Dominion Water Powers branch; Mr. A. H. Harkness and Frank Barber, of Toronto; Professor H. E. T. Haultain and Professor Peter Gillespie, of Toronto University; E. R. Gray, city engineer of Hamilton; Mr R. A. Ross of Montreal; Mr. James White, deputy head of Conservation Commission, Ottawa.

A number of telegrams expressing [illegible] inability to attend and extending best wishes and congratulations were received from cities and towns Dominion and Provincial, including Regina, Niagara, Calgary, St. John, N.B., Sault Ste. Marie and from J. R. Fairburn, chief engineer C.P.R., formerly of Peterborough, and C. E. Canfield, hon. president of the new local branch, now in Pittsburg, Mass.

The Dinner.

The dinner served by mine host Chris. Graham was exceedingly delectable and fit for a king, so to speak, the menu including all the delicacies of the season. The tables were temptingly laid and embellished with carnations and arrangements for seating the guests without confusion were perfect.

The Entertainment.

The after dinner speeches were both entertaining and illuminating, and the atmosphere was charged at times with wit and humor. Vocal numbers were also rendered by Mr. John Smith in acceptable baritone, accompanied by Mr. Oscar Freeburn at the piano. Music during the meal itself was furnished by Mr. W. Fair, violinist, and Mr. Oscar Freeburn, pianist, who deserved a vote of thanks for the tuneful numbers rendered.

The city gathering at this unexcelled function included civic, industrial, business and professional representation, in fact the brain and intellect of Peterborough met together with feet beneath the festive board and the verdict of all was "the best yet."

Object of the Institute.

As explained last night the object of this Institute is "to facilitate the acquirement and interchange of professional knowledge among its members, to promote their professional interests, to encourage original research, to develop and maintain high standards in the engineeering profession and to enhance the usefulness of the profession to the public." And all the speakers were earnest in driving home Canada's need that this organization should not only aim to conserve and promote its own interests, but also strive to serve the community.

The King.

Mr. R. B. Rogers made a very capable chairman of the toast list. The King was proposed and drank to with fitting loyalty.

The City.

This toast was proposed by Mr. A. J. Killaly, superintendent of the Trent Canal, and he thought Peterborough one of the best cities in Canada in which to live. This city, he said, has all the resources for a great future.

Mayor Duncan, in responding, extended the city's welcome and freedom to the visitors and referred with warmth to Prof. H. E. T. Haultain, of Toronto, Mr. R. A. Ross and Mr. Walter J. Francis, of Montreal, as old Peterborough boys. He congratulated the Peterborough branch on its inauguration and characterized it as a credit to this city.

The Engineering Institute

In proposing this toast President G. R. Munro, of the local branch, eulogized the assembly as the greatest gathering of engineers ever held

MR. BURNHAM WOULD FLOAT LOAN FOR BENEFIT OF RETURNED MEN

Idea is Approved by Other Members of House—Debate on Veterans' Gratuity Continues.

Ottawa, Nov. 2— Flotaton of a soldiers Victory Loan of two or three hundred million dollars for the purpose of paying further gratuities to disabled and needy veterans and their families was advocated by several Government supporters in the House of Commons during the resumed debate upon the report of the Special Committee on Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The author of the proposition was Mr. J. H. Burnham of West Peterborough, and his plan was warmly supported by W. F. Maclean of Sodth York and W. F. Cockshutt of Brantford.

Promise Not Carried Out.

The Peterborough member said we could have a referendum on whiskey why not one for the returned soldiers? They had been told when they went to war that they would be well looked after upon their return, but when they came back they saw a lot of wealthy people who had made money out of the war and were now living in luxury. The slogan of "The Last Man and the Last Dollar" had been only half carried out. If people could sleep while war veterans were in need they were like Pharaoh of old: their hearts were hardened against reasonable requests.

Approves Mr. Burnham's Idea.

Mr. Maclean of South York advocated the nationalization of the nickel resources of the province for the benefit of the soldiers. In the course of his address he said:

"I was very much impressed by the excellent speech by the hon. member for West Peterboro (Mr. Burnham), and particularly wiht his proposal for a soldier bond loan. I believe the patriotic people of Canada will subscribe to a bond loan for the purpose of discharging our dues to the soldiers and providing for their re-establishment. I believe it would be a most popular appeal to the people to say that we were going to raise money on a soldiers' bond to pay them off.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Williams, formerly of Preston, were killed in Detroit when their automobile was truck by a street car.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1919.

THE SMALL INVESTOR.

IT IS THE SMALL depositors, the men and women who hand their savings to the receiving teller and leave them there undisturbed for years, adding to them at intervals, who form the strength of the banks of the country. It is the small investor who has buttressed every Victory Loan that has been floated in previous years. They were the hope of the promoters of the Loan in 1919.

It is now announced that in this regard the present sale of Victory Bonds has been considerable of a disappointment. People of small means are not investing as they formerly did, and the reason for this hesitation is not apparent. There has been no serious industrial depression to account for the falling off, and the deposits in the savings banks of the country are larger than ever.

Provision, ample and generous, has been made to permit every person in the country to invest in Victory Bonds. The lack of ready money is really no excuse. Bonds can be purchased on easy terms of payment. The banks will carry the loan for this class of investor.

All that is required to purchase a $50 Victory Bond is an initial payment of $5. If the applicant so desires, the payment of the balance can be extended over a period of ten months, less than $5 a month, not a very serious financial obligation. The Victory Loan is not an investment for the rich alone. It is possible for all [illegible] community to have a part in what is really designed as a national movement. The common ownership of these securities will make the whole nation kin.

There is no possibility of loss in this case as there may be in making other purchases on the installment plan. If the investor who purchases bonds on the monthly payment plan becomes financially embarrassed he can dispose of his bonds at par any time and receive back every dollar that he has paid on them. The interest on the bonds is generous, the security gilt-edged, and the way to acquire them has been opened to everybody. Here is an opportunity for Canadians to render their country a service while at the same time improving their own financial standing. The arguments in favor of investing are unanswerable. The conditions are such as to leave no room for criticism.

Then, whether your resources are large or limited help on the work by purchasing Bonds.

THE GRAND TRUNK PURCHASE.

IN THE CLOSING HOURS of an extra session of Parliament, called avowedly for the purpose of ratifying the treaty of peace, the Federal Government has sprung a surprise upon the members of the House and the nation by introducing legislation which practically amounts to the purchase of the Grand Trunk railway. This action, too, is taken by a Government elected under special conditions for a specific purpose, which has been accomplished. There is a popular impression that the Union Government has outlived its usefulness, and now that the war is over an appeal should be made to the people.

There may be a difference of opinion on that point but there appears to be unanimity upon the claim that the electors should be given an opportunity to pass upon a matter of so much public moment as the acquisition of the Grand Trunk railway, a deal which involves millions of dollars. In the brief discussion of the matter held in Parliament it was impossible to get all the conditions of the transaction clearly before either the private members of the House or the electorate at large. Information sought for was not forthcoming. It does appear, however, that the general arrangement of the terms is not such as wolud be tolerated in a private enterprise. It would seem that the Government of Canada is first of all to come to the rescue of a corporation on the financial shoals, and, after it has been rescued, to purchase the holdings at a price double that of the present prevailing figure. No man taking over a mortgaged house would be likely to add another storey to the building at his own expense and then acquire the whole at the value which he had himself enhanced.

There was from the first the hope that if the House did decide to acquire the Grand Trunk on these terms the Senate would defeat this action by throwing out the bill. The bill, however, has passed its second reading before the members of the Upper House, so that it appears useless to look for relief from that quarter.

It is idle to advance the claim that the Government is responsible to the people and that the members of Cabinet or House who support this measure will be held to account later by their constituents. In that event it will be too late. The contract will have been concluded, and the Government that is returned to power, if there is a change, will be bound by the action of its predecessor in office.

ANOTHER BLOW FOR THE AGITATOR.

DURING THOSE strenuous days, when the Military Service Act was being enforced, military officers raided a religious institution in Guelph on the ground that it was sheltering defaulters. The raid was spectacular in every sense. It was conducted during the night, as if to lend color to the theory that the place was conducted in open violation of the special statute which the military officers were charged with enforcing.

It soon became apparent that some one had grievously blundered and that what was intended as legal action was in reality an outrage upon a religious community. The Military Department at Ottawa promptly apologized for the acts of their subordinates, and the Minister of Justice figured prominently in the affair by reason of his official position.

If the affair had been allowed to drop there it would soon have been forgotten. But the religious agitator, that inordinate bane of modern civilization, saw his opportunity and at once became as perniciously active as ever. Ministers of the Gospel in Guelph, men who have apparently never heard of the high estimate placed by the Apostle of old upon the virtue of Christian charity, cried out for an investigation. The pot of denominational rivalry—jealousy, perhaps—was kept boiling.

An ex-Cabinet Minister, in his place in the House, sheltered behind his privilege as a member of Parliament, revived this unfortunate issue, and at his request the matter was investigated by disinterested commissioners, whose integrity and sense of justice is above suspicion. The charges fell flat. It was demonstrated to the satisfaction of the public that the institution in question was of a religious standing entirely, that it was not used as a refuge for defaulters, and that no men capble of military service were inmates of it at the time of the raid. The rather tumultuous visit of the military officers was a mistake. The apology tendered by the Department was warranted. If there was any idea of involving Minister of Justice Doherty in the affair the attempt failed.

Religious agitation, like talking against the Ontario Temperance Act and other firmly established institutions, is rapidly going out of fashion. Every succeeding election these days demonstrates this fact. The fellow who hopes to build himself up by making wreck of the religious faith of another will soon be classed with the blatant anarchist waving the red flag of lawlessness. It will, in time, too, become unpopular for a member of arliament to abuse the privilege of his position by earning for himself a little cheap notoriety by making charges and calling for investigations that reveal nothing so deplorable as the petty malice of the fame-hunter.

THE TARIFF IN AUSTRALIA.

PROTECTION of key industries will be a feature of the new Australian tariff policy, according to Mr. Walter Leitch, director of the newly-created Bureau of Commerce and Industry, who emphasizes the necessity of making the country self-contained industrially. Basing his opinions on a recent speech of the Acting Prime Minister of Australia, Mr. Leitch declares that "the policy of the Australian Government will be a higher protective tariff than exists at present, or, failing the customs tariff, a bonus for Australian manufactured goods to enable the particular industry to get properly established. No doubt satisfactory legislation regarding dumping will also be passed at the same time as the bonus and tariff arrangements." Interviewed in London, England, by a representative of the Christian Science Monitor, Mr. Leitch boldly declares his position on nationalization of industry: "I do not believe that industries could be so well handled by a government department as by private individuals, but I do think that greater economy could be effected and greater efficiency obtained by co-operation amongst manufacturers, with a view to standardizing their products, and arranging for mass production on co-operative lines, also selling through central organizations, somewhat on the lines of the German cartels, more particularly as regards the export trade. Economical administration of this kind would tend to cheapen cost of production, and might bring about greater co-operation between the employer and the employe, so that each would secure an adequate return for his labor.

"The report of the committee on industrial control in which Lord Balfour of Burleigh advocates this policy, is one which I heartily endorse."

Lebanon's Cedars are Destroyed by the Turks

The cedar forests of Lebanon, which were historic when the armies of Sennacherib laid them in waste in 508 B.C. as recorded in the Bible and which are beautifully mentioned in the Psalms of David, have now been ravaged as a war necessity by the Turks to feed their locomotives.

This destruction was made imperative by the severance of all outside supplies of coal. The conquerors of the Turks continued the practice. It became a common sight to see long lines of automobile trucks of the invaders make their way to the "goodly mountains" for a load of wood.

The wholesale destruction of wonderful works of art during the war brought forth groans that were heard around the world, but the woodchopper, without a murmur being heard in the world outside, has destroyed this living thing that for centuries has been used as a symbol of physical strength by nations forgotten except in the pages of history.

These beautiful giants thrived best in their native home in the mountains of Lebanon in Palestine just south of Bairut, their wood is so durable that Pliny, the Roman histrian, said it was everlasting. For this reason the ancients made of it their gods. The Arabs regarded the trees as endowed with the principle of continual existence, and when the great age of some individual specimens is considered they had very good reason for holding this belief. They also credited the trees wth reasoning powers.

Timbers unearthed by excavators in the ruins of the ancient Assyrian cities were found to be practically unchanged after passing through 2,000 years of various vicissitudes.

The great size of individual treees produced a profound impression upon the beholder. The trunk often reached the girth of forty-two feet, which is not beggarly even when compared with the giants of our California forests. A height of ninety feet was common and with this is to be considered the fact that the spread of the tree's branches exceeded this. Four city lots might be covered by one single specimn.

NEW YORK NEWSPAPER SAYS DRY LAW HAS BLIGHTED BUSINESS IN HOTELS

Many Rooms Are Vacant and Landlords Are Threatened With Bankruptcy—Food Trade is Cut in Two—Bootleggers Are Active.

New York, Nov. 7.— Restaurants and hotels have been hit hard by the war time prohibition enforcement act. Figures obtained by The Sun indicate the restaurant patronage has fallen off from 65 to 50 per cent. in the popular places, where folk were accustomed to seek gayety and a little drop of something while absorbing solid nourishment. Moreover, the demand for rooms in the big hotels has decreased measurably in the last week. These conditions have brought the worry wrinkles to the brows of proprietors, who are trying to adjust their business to meet the new situation.

Manager Tack of the Hotel Imperial said yesterday that his restaurant trade shows a decrease of 50 per cent. The dinner patronage of the Prince George has dropped similarly, while the tearoom patronage has about disappeared. In the last week Mouqin's uptown restaurant at Sixth avenue and Twenty-eighth street has noted a distinct shrinkage, due largely to the fact that Mouqin's was famous not only for the quality of food served by its French chefs, but also for the excellence of its light wines. The experience of these well known restaurants is typical of the blight which has settled generally over the business. Reisenweber's finds that its receipts have dropped about 60 per cent. because of prohibition. The Care de Paris, formerly Rector's, has been forced to close its big ballroom.

Restaurants in Quandary.

The fact widely noted by restaurant interests is that thousands of persons who were willing daily to buy expensive food, provided they could get a cocktail, light wine or even beer with their meals, are no longer willing to patronize expensive places for food alone. They are staying home, if they have homes, or they are going to cheaper restaurants. Efforts made to interest people in beverage substitutes have been dismal failures so far as the hotels and restaurants are concerned. The situation has already got to a point where men with large capital invested in restaurants and hotels are wondering how long they can keep going.

A representative of the Society of Restaurateurs estimated yesterday the business of the members of that association has dropped from $1,900,000 to $1,500,000 a week, with further losses in sight. Figures are now being prepared for the Executive committee which will show accurately the loss of business due to prohibition. The prediction was made that many places will have to quit, inevitably.

Hotel men were complaining yesterday that the first week of the Volstead act has hurt their room business materially. A week ago it was a difficult matter to obtain a room in a New York hotel of the better sort unless one had secured a reservation days ahead. Yesterday it was not hard to find rooms anywhere. Many of the best known hotels admitted that they were carrying vacant rooms. Some of the hotels had increased their rates for rooms in order to make up some of the loss in receipts due to prohibition, but the rates may have to come down to keep business going at any sort of profitable scale. The answer to this is, according to officials of the city Hotel Men's Association, that New York is now losing weekly thousands of visitors attracted to the metropolis by the prospect of a good time which always included some indulgence in alcoholic drinks. Thousands of others formerly accustomed to remain here from three or four days to a week to accomplish their business are cutting their stay to a day or two. This was the situation foreseen a long time ago by the late George C. Boldt of the Waldorf-Astoria and by Thomas D. Green, president of the City association of hotel men, in case prohibition was clapped upon the city.

Test of Volstead Act.

Election Day in New York was a pretty good test of the Volstead Act and on the whole it was remarkably dry. The revenue oficers were out in force all over Manhattan and Brooklyn. They found new saloons attempting to evade the law, but they came across many traces of bootlegging. On the East Side and lower West Side and in the uptown districts there was a good deal of booze carried upon hip by persona there was a lot of surreptitious nipping in telephone booths, back rooms and alleyways, the revenue agents found.

Another discovery that interested the booze hunters was the ability of brokers and their customers to obtain hard liquor without straying too far from the general vicinity of Broad and Wall streets. A number of mysterious fountains are still gushing merrily in that district, according to the Internal Revenue agents who were at work on the problem yesterday, but without success.

Up in The Bronx the revenue men found a still with fifty gallons of new rye spirits on the second floor of an apartment house in East 135th street. This flat was rented two weeks ago by two Italians of whom little has been seen by their neighbors. But through the house, and getting stronger day by day, flitted the odor of booze, and finally somebody interested in seeing that the law was enforced telephoned to Chief Mager's office in the Custom House P. E. Benson, one of the supervising agents, was sent to The Bronx with several of his agents and quickly located the origin of the pungent smell. In the apartment from which it proceeded they found a still and a quantity of raw spirits together with flavoring extracts and coloring chemicals. About the only other furniture in the house was a bed. The enterprising distillers had skipped.

Missouri Rises to the Defence

Pawpaws and persimmons. What real Missourian does not have pleasant recollections of his boyhood days at this time of year? There is a great diversity of opinion as to the value of the pawpaw from an edible point of view, but there are some that like them. It is an acquired taste for any one not a native of Missouri both pathways and persimmons, but thing is true. Probably all boys likes both pawpaws and persoimmons, but then a boy likes almost anything, this is the time of the year to gather them, and the pleasure is in the gathering rather than the eating anyway.

"Female" Destroyers the Deadlier.
Admiral Sims in the World's Work.

Strangely enough, although the American destroyers carried greater fuel supplies than the British, they were rather more dainty and graceful in their lines—a fact that inspired a famous retort which rapidly passed through the ranks of both navies.

"You know," remarked a British officer to an American, "I like the British destroyers better than the American. They look so much sturdier. Yours seem to me rather feminine in appearance."

"Yes," replied the American, "that's so, but you must remember what Kipling says, "The female of the species is more deadly than the male."

Grand Trunk Souvenir Of the Prince's Trip

The Grand Trunk Railway system has supplied for the use of the Prince of Wales and his staff on their tour through Eastern Canada, over the lines of that railway, a specially designed descriptive itinerray. This book is bound in real leather, is magnificently illustrated, and a notable production in every way. On the olive green leather of the cover is die-stamped, in gold, the arms of His Royal Highness with crest, badges and supporters, while in the corners are the emblems of England, Ireland Scotland, Wales and Canada. The frontispiece is a copper etching of Niagara Falls, signed by the artist. The other illustrations are printed in sepia on heavy suede finished coated stock and show the features of the territory which His Royal Highness will visit during his tour of Ontario and Quebec; also the striking developments in motive power and bridge building. The letterpress is printed on the finest of hand made loft dried stock and is descriptive of the points of interest between [illegible] Niagara Falls and Brantford, Guelph Stratford and Woodstock, Chatham, London and Windsor, and Toronto, Kingston, Brockville and Montreal. Maps of the Grand Trunk system are mounted in silk in specially provided pockets. The "edition de luxe" is limited to one hundred copies, all numbered, and these are enclosed in handsome boxes with the arms of His Royal Highness stamped on them. In the foreword to this beautiful book reference is made to the important part played by the Grand Trunk in the development of Canada.

"The building of the railway linking up the widely separated centres of population and activity, has been described," says this foreword, "as the most important forward step in the period immediately preceding confederation. Without the means of communication provided by the creation of railway lines, the Union of British North America would have been a union in name only. It was one of the fathers of confederation, Sir George Etienne Cartier, K.G.M.G. who presented to the Canadian Legislature the act to incorporate the Grand Trunk Railway Company and that distinguished statesman regarded with pride the prominent part he had taken in the establishment of the railway. 'I had charge of the act which created the Grand Trunk' said Sir George in one of his Parliamentary utterances, 'and I am prouder of that than any other action of my life. The line has been the greatest benefit that has ever been conferred upon the country.'"

That's plain talk, but it's true.

That's something for the young man of Canada to think over. If you are not saving money—you are not getting anywhere.

You are lifting your feet and putting them down on the same spot day after day, marking time.

No man ever succeeded that way.

Take a grip on yourself and cut out those careless, useless expenditures you make day after day.

Victory Bonds are your opportunity.

Buy a "big block" of Victory Bonds.

Grit your teeth—and pay for them! You can do it.

And think what this money saved may mean to you later in life. It may mean an interest in some business; it may mean the making of a home. It will mean that you can avail yourself of some investment opportunity that will ensure your financial or business success. George Cadbury Has Been Ideal Employer of Labor Has Never Had a Strike

"NOT for the glory of God but the benefit of the shareholders," was the blatantly cynical business slogan of a now famous witness before the Cost of Living Commission when charged with making undue profits.

But subsequent witnesses put him completely in the shade. His profits were admittedly small compared with those of the firms they directed.

In such times it is refreshing to recall the business career and policy of Mr. George Cadbury, chairman of directors of Cadbury Bros., Ltd., of Bournville, England, the world renowned cocoa and chocolate manufacturers. Certain it is that if all big businesses were conducted on his lines the present strained relations and even bitter antagonism between labor and capital would not be manifest. George Cadbury is now eighty years of age. It is sixty-five years since he entered his father's business. At that time it was steadily losing money owing to the father's zeal for public service to the neglect of his business. At the age of nineteen, in company with his brother Richard, four years his senior, George Cadbury took over the management of the concern, at that time employing twelve workpeople. At the present time it has a pay roll of 3,500. I went to school in the old building which formerly housed the concern, but which had been converted into an improvised technical school. It has long since been superseded by a modern palatial structure with up-to-date equipment. Over thirty years ago Mr. Cadbury's humanitarian spirit led him to transfer his business to Bournville, a pretty suburb of Birmingham.

He felt that healthier conditions could be provided for his staff, though the move was strongly discouraged by his friends. Visitors to the place have seen the beautiful cricket ground, two football fields, open-air swimming baths, recreation rooms and institutes for lads and girls. Competition for employment with such a concern is very keen and strikes are unknown.

Years ago Mr. Richard Cadbury died while on a visit to Jerusalem, so that the sole direction has long been in the hands of George Cadbury. A five-minutes religious service, usually conducted by the head of the firm begins each day, and is attended alternately by men and women employes. Religiously, Mr. Cadbury belongs to "the Friends," more popularly known as Quakers. For over half a century he has been the moving spirit in the Adult School movement, personally attending every Sunday morning at 7.30 and conducting the proceedings of one of the principal branches in Birmingham. To do this he cycles several miles from his home at Northfield.

For years Mr. Cadbury has been honorary treasurer of the National Free Church Council of Britain. He is an ardent temperance worker, and radical social reformer. When, in the dark days of the Boer War, the London Daily News, famous for Charles Dickens' one-time connection as editor, fell on evil times, George Cadbury, under extreme pressure, was induced to take a large controlling interest. His connection has long since ceased, but that does not prevent occasional references by opponents to the so-called "Cocoa Press."

It is an open secret that at the time of the crisis over the House of Lord, when Mr. Asquith secured King George's consent to the creation, if necessary, of sufficient peers to ensure the passing of the Parliament Act, George Cadbury was one of those to be so "honored." It is quite certain, too, that only such an extreme necessity would have induced him to accept.

George Cadbury will live in history as the founder of the Bournville Village Trust. Eighteen years ago, with the consent of the members of his family affected, Mr. Cadbury handed over to the Trust the bulk of his property, outside his business. It was valued at $900,000, with a rent roll originally of $25,000 a year, with which the trustees started. The profits were to be devoted to the development of the estate, and purchasing more ground in other parts of the country. The estate is in the hands of the Charity Commissioners, and Mr. Cadbury estimated at the time of handing over to them, that, with capable management, in 150 years the income ought to approach five million dollars a year.

Bournville is visited by social reformers from all over the world. Its artistically designed dwellings are keenly competed for by would-be tenants, their economic rents being an additional attraction. Every house is detached and has garden back and front. There is a village green, and hall with recreation grounds for old and young. Every Sunday evening the chiming of well-known hymn tunes by the village bells create a pleasing effect. The single-storey almshouses with every convenience for the aged carefully planned are a continual attraction to the philanthropically minded. To these King George and Queen Mary paid a visit when in Birmingham recently, and with obvious interest.

Don't Trust Bull.

Do not trust the bull, however quiet he may appear, but take the same precaution with the apparently quiet one that you would with one known to be unreliable. It may prevent an accident.

MAGISTRATE MRS. NORRIS ADDS MUCH GRACE AND DIGNITY TO THE COURT

New York, Nov. 6.—"His-er-er Her Honor, the Judge of the Court," announced Captain William Donegan as the new woman Magistrate assumed the duties of her office for the first time, and Mayor Hylan's appointee, Mrs. Jean Norris, heard her first case in the Woman's Court.

Even the police inspectors occasionally slipped. Captain Dongan addressed "Her Honor" once or twice as "Ma'am" quite naturally, probably because despite her crisp and sombre black silk robe the face above it looked sweet and womanly and the eyes were always interested and alert to catch the expression of a witness.

Out of the grist that came to the judical mill were cases of shoplifting and incorrigibility. Magistrate Norris was neither lenient nor severe, visitors agreed, and certainly she brought a dignity and feminine charm into the courtroom.

When she placed two girls of barely seventeen on probation for having been found by private detectives in a questionable place, the sentence had been arrived at from her having talked over the case with the mothers of the girls. In fact, the mothers and the magistrate had luncheon together and discussed the best course to follow to protect the girls from further temptation and harm. It isn't usual for a Magistrate to have luncheon with the family of the defendent, but Magistrate Norris found is a natural thing to do.

The story was of the first slip of one of the girls and the alleged bad influence of the other, who is the same age, but much more sophisticated. The detectives' testimony introduced ginger ale bottles, whiskey, layer cake, and the sudden escape of a man in pyjamas by leaping out of a window.

Both girls were put on the stand and Magistrate Norris listened attentively to their testimony. It was spoken so low at times that she had to lean forward to catch the words. She did not ask them to raise their voices, for she knew it was their first time in court and she understood their fear and embarrassment.

But when their lawyer shouted his questions in the cross-examination of the police detective Magistrate Norris' eyes flashed indignantly as she halted the torrent of words, as she shook her finger emphatically, saying:—"The hearing of everybody in this court is acute and it is absolutely unnecessary for you to raise your voice."

Half a dozen police detectives were called to the stand during the session. They looked a little abashed when they were asked questions dealing with life of the underworld about which women of Magistrate Norris' sphere do not talk publicly, except professionally. In deference to her sex they tried to save her some embarrassment by speaking in tones so low that those outside the railing could not hear.

"Your Honor," they said, generally when addressing her. It was Thomas A. Smith, who forgot for a moment that she was a Justice and thought of her only as a woman when he answered a question with, "No, ma'am, I didn't ask his name." Magistrate Norris realized the perfectly natural slip and a faint smile flickered in her eyes.

The clerk of the court was most solicitious about her comfort. Once the sun shone briefly and he lowered the shade to shield her eyes.

The probation officers expressed pleasure in having a woman sit on the bench. "We like her," the trio chorused.

She made short work of four defendants brought together, dismissing three in a few minutes. The fourth was held for trial.

A negro girl shoplifter, who persisted in chewing gum while the preliminaries of her case were being presented, was held for a later hearing. She was accused of taking three pairs of silk stockings and several purses from a shop.

A box of flowers arrived for Magistrate Norris and the uniformed attendant with an important air carried it into the ante-room.

Delegations of women representing political, civic and legal organizations, were on hand at the opening of court to express their congratulations to Magistrate Norris.

HOW STREET CAR MANAGER HELD FEES TO FIVE CENTS AND RAISED WAGES

Philadelphia Man Explains His Methods—Has Increased Business by Prevailing on Employes to Give Better Service to the Public and Boost Company.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 6—Thomas E. Mitten, author of the Philadelphia plan for collective bargaining and co-operative welfare for traction employes, was asked to answer the question: "How can a street car company keep down fares?" Mr. Mitten was formerly president of the Chicago City Railway (the old south side) company, and there conceived the ideas underlying the system of co-operation between company and its employes, which he has applied as president of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company, and which has as its basic principle the idea that co-operation must include the public.

Philadelphia still has a 5 cent fare. This is possible because of a greater volume of business and elimination of contention brought about by educating employes, especially motor men and conductors, in the art of salesmanship. They are brought to realize that the better pleased the public is with the service, the greater the business, and the greater the business the higher the returns to employes under the profit sharing system on which the co-operative plan is founded.

Big Increase in Wages

When Mr. Mitten took hold of the Philadelphia company in 1911 he promised the men that 22 cents of every dollar received by the company in fares would be set aside as a fund to be used in paying motormen and conductors. Since that time the wages of train men have increased 151.1 per cent. from 25 cents an hour to 57.65 cents an hour, and the number of passengers carried per train man (this is the unit used in calculating traction production) has increased 120.7 per cent. Under the plan as amended in 1918, with collective bargaining provisions, the company agrees to pay $10,000 a month to the employes' fund for sick and death benefits, to which members of the corporation welfare association are eligible. Lately Mr. Mitten announced that if the association membership should reach 95 per cent of the eligible employes, the contribution would be increased to $20,000 a month for 1920.

Membership Gives Insurance.

Membership in the association entitles employes to $1,000 insurance under a blanket policy arrangement with one of the large insurance companies. Employes are not compelled to join the association nor is there any barrier to affiliation with any other association or union. The representatives, elected committees, meet representatives of the managers to adjust differences, and a comprehensive arbitration arrangement is provided in the event of failure to effect a settlement "in the family."

Mr. Mitten urges his men to become savings bank depositors, with the result that 75 per cent of the employes have bank books. Eight out of every ten will have savings accounts by Jan. 1, it is predicted. [illegible] doing with its effect in spurring on the activities of the men, has been most useful in accruing co-operation as between men, management and car riders, said Mr. Mitten.

Letters in Folder Form.

"Letter issued in folder form to all employes urging salesmanship and increased patronage to overcome increased cost, represent a high note in this endeavor," he declared. "The bulkhead showing 'high fares make riders walk, low fares make walkers ride, more fares make low fares,' represents the top notch in keeping the attention of the car rider on what we are trying to do, creating a desire on his part to co-operate in making it an accomplished fact.

"But," Mr. Mitten said: "Philadelphia's plan is not offered as a cure all for other cities. Every situation has its own peculiar difficulties to overcome, but in the light of this experience it is our plain duty to decry the thought that there is any cure for the present trouble except that which lies in honest dealing, efficient management and effective workers."

That is as near as he would go to answering the question as to how Chicago might hope to retain the 5-cent fare.

COBALT WETS SEND WARNING TO BORDEN

TELLS PREMIER TO REMEMBER FATE OF THE HEARST GOVERNMENT

Cobalt, Nov. 6.—Informing the premier of Canada that the citizens are neither "Siwash Indians nor nigger slaves,' but members of the glorious Anglo-Saxon race whose forefathers died for liberty, and requesting him not to "forget the fate of the Hearst Government," the local Citizens' Liberty League has sent a telegram to Sir Robert Borden protesting against the "reported prohibition legislation" by the parliament of the Dominion. The league members, states the telegram, pledge themselves to oppose any Government which would enact such fanatical legislation and declare that as originators of the league, they will more fully organize the country and unfurl "the flag of liberty" in all its corners.

The reefrendum ballots in Ontario is declared to have been a trick ballot, "dishonest and unworthy the tradition of honourable men," and a proof sheet is being sent every member of parliament both federal and provincial and also the senators, showing the working of the ballot, as the league sees it.

(The league claims that 70 per cent of the people of Ontario voted against prohibition but were beaten by the ballot. The telegram adds that there are very few rights and pleasures left to Canadians, and that citizens are tired of the "sin hounds overrunning Canada."

After-war conditions, and the telephone No. 10

Prompt Answering is Most Helpful

WHEN you call a number and get no answer, you come to one of two conclusions: either

The party you want is not within sound of his telephone bell; or

The fact sometimes is that your party has heard the bell, but has been so slow in answering that you grow tired of waiting and hang up. Later he may tell you quite truthfully that he was not beyond the sound of his telephone bell all day. You are satisfied that "Central" was at fault.

Prompt answering when the telephone bell rings is a great aid to the service. The person calling is pleased when you answer promptly and will likely show it in the pleasant way he speaks. You in turn are cheered by his pleasant voice, and the ensuing conversation is helpful to both.

WOMEN WHO KILL.

A Few of Them Have Been Real Mercenary.

Do women commit cold-blooded murder? That there have been thousands of women killers within a generation we know. But are their slayings not always either what the French call crimes passionnels, or killings of revenge, or homicides founded on morbid sensuality, or occasions due to pathological conditions—insanity, neurosis, hysteria or epilepsy? In a word, do women kill, as countless men in every age and clime have killed, for exclusively mercenary motives and with calm premeditation?

These old but ever fresh questions are revived by the confession and life-long sentence of Mrs. Amy E. Archer Gilligan in Connecticut. A few days since, this mature woman herself brought to an end a three years' fight against charges of the state which inferentially involved the deaths of perhaps 40 human beings

This woman was not emotionally or erotically concerned with any of her victims. At no point was any hatred or passion against any one shown. She tried to plead insanity, but repeated examining boards of physicians found her all too sane. She had simply murdered a number, and perhaps a very large number, of old men and women to profit a few hundred dollars extra on each trucidation.

But if Lucretia Borgia's record, true or fabulous, in no way compares to this story, there are other women along the backwaters of history, old and new, whose doings will add evidence to support the truth that woman may kill and does kill as calmly and consciously as man.

The celebrated Marie d'Aubray, Marquise de Brinvilliers, 1630-76, is one of the best examples from olden times. Having exhausted her husband's fortune and disposed of him, she poisoned her mother, father and other relatives in startling succession, to possess herself of their money. She finally poisoned her lover by mistake, was caught and decapitated. The only crime of her many in which any emotional elements were at play was her last, and it was more accident than crime.

France has had a number of other examples. Marie Bompard, that abysmal child of crime, will be example sufficient. In 1889 this young girl formed a plot with her lover, one Eyraud, to lure Gouffe, a rich notary, into an apartment and there strangle him. She went from Paris to London with Eyraud, to lure Gouffe, a rich notary, into an apartment and there strangle him. She went from Paris to London with Eyraud, and there bought the paraphernalia of her crime — a large trunk and a strong colored cord to match a dressing gown. With this equipment she and her lover returned and then she led the smitten Gouffe ino her room and sat in his lap in a chair. She slipped the strong cord of her gowns about his neck and remarked what a lovely necktie it would make. That was the signal. Eyraud, hidden behind a drapery, tugged at the cord. In a few minutes Gouffe was dead. His body was hidden in the trunk and she sat beside it all night. She and her paramour were caught after prolonged search. Indeed, she brazenly walked in the prefect's office and said she had heard he was looking for her, hoping to shift the blame to Eyraud. Both finally were convicted. The girl had done her crime only to get money.

Mongolia and the League of Nations.

Although the world at large gives little thought to Mongolia, report from the East indicates that Mongolia highly approves of the League of Nations, and hopes that it will be adopted as soon as possible and will begin to look after Mongolia immediately afterward. Mongolia, in short, is very much worried about the future, for China is preparing to cross the Gobi desert, where only the other day the failure of a badly organized effort to transport troops by motor postponed the advance, and although the nominal purpose of China is to protect her own frontier from Bolshevist invasion, Mongolia suspects an intention of resuming her former dominance over the Mongolian people. Before the Chinese revolution Mongolia was controlled by China; but with the downfall of the Manchu dynasty, and with the help and protection of Russia, the country became independent. Now in turn the Russian revolution has destroyed its protection by one powerful neighbor, and Mongolia anticipates, unless the League of Nations comes to the rescue, that she will again come under the political control of the other. Apparently as a self-governing nation Mongolia did better than many students of oriental affairs expected, and quite as well as was necessary for her own comfort. The Government is patriarchal, embracing a number of tribes, each of which governs itself, and with so few governmental expenses for police, roads, administration, or other elements of a more complex civilization, that it has liquidated a debt of $2,000,000 borrowed from Russia and spent largely, it is said, for 10,000 brass images of Buddha. The Hutukhtu rules ecclesiastically in Mongolia much as the Dalai Lama rules in Tibet.

The Agile Rhinoceros.

The rhinoceros, notwithstanding its unwieldly shape and short legs, is one of the most agile of beasts. A horseman can scarcely manage to overtake it, and in strength it is perhaps unsurpassed by any animal in the forest. In a single combat no animal but the elephant can stand up against it. To kill a rhinoceros a rifle ball must strike it just behind the shoulder.

X-ray for Concrete Ships.

Justice Harsh to Brave Youth

A BRIEF despatch appeared in Canadian papers a few days days ago stating that Clinton Taylor, a young Toronto boy who had been sentenced to imprisonment for life by a military court-martial, had been pardoned; and would return immediately from overseas. This case is one of the most interesting incidents of the latter days of the war, and the story of Clinton Taylor is worth repeating for the benefit of his fellow-countrymen.

Clinton M. Taylor enlisted for overseas service on August 14, 1914, when only seventeen years of age, though he declared his age to the military authorities to be 19 years. He left Canada for France in February, 1915, and all through the war and up to the time of the armistice served faithfully in the Canadian Engineers. Early in September, 1918, while with the 9th Field Company, Canadian Engineers, he won the military medal for devotion to duty while in the line. During his whole service up to the time of the armistice he had a clean conduct sheet, except for one paltry offence, for which he was sentenced to fourteen days' field punishment, No. 1. In connection with this offence he was defended by his company commander, and a member of his battalion, Noel Robinson, has written regarding the same as follows: "He had to undergo fourteen days field punishment, No. 1, most unjustly, in France."

From the files of the Department of Militia you will be able to learn that during the month following the signing of the armistice there was very grave dissatisfaction among the whole Third Canadian Division on account of the poor rations, and also on account of the men having to carry their full packs during the march into Germany. The men of the 9th Canadian Company of Engineers, among others, refused to carry their packs. We quote herewith from the letter of Sapper Taylor to his mother dealing with this incident:—

"On the 14th of December, 1918, my division were marching on the road to Germany, and when we got just beyond Brussels there was a mutiny throughout the entire division. Divisional headquarters asked for delegates to come and they would talk to them. Eight of us were picked as the men to represent them, I myself representing a brigade of engineers. The complaints of the men were that the food was bad, and that they were not going to carry their packs any longer. Well, mother, through us eight being straight to the thousands that we represented, they turned the division around to come home to Canada, but on the first day of march they arrested the eight of us as ring-leaders of a mutiny. The seven of the eight they gave five years' and to me two years' hard labor."

This story has been confirmed in practically every detail by Pte. Noel Robinson and Lieut. Hanes, of Vancouver, both of whom were in the same battalion at the time of the mutiny.

Sapper Taylor was sentenced on January 28, by F.G.C.M., to two years' hard labor on the following charges: (1) Joining in a mutiny, and (2) being present and not doing his utmost to suppress a mutiny.

He was once again defended by his own company commander, and in passing the sentence of two years, the court recommended him to mercy. He was confined in No. 7 Military Prison, France. While serving this term his sentence was increased from two years' hard labor to life imprisonment, but on April 3, 1919, he made his escape.

From a letter written from the Minister's office, Department of Militia, Ottawa, on September 23, to Mrs. Jean A. Taylor, Toronto, we quote as follows:

"You are in error in supposing that the sentence of life imprisonment imposed on Sapper Taylor was imposed by reason of his escape. Sapper Taylor escaped on April 3. The sentence was imposed upon him on March 24, ten days previously. From information received from the overseas authorities it is believed that the increased sentence was awarded on account of the part he played in a mutiny which occurred at the Imperial Prison, Calais."

Sapper Taylor retained his freedom until the early part of July, when, on his father's advice, he gave himself up. The father advised him to do so, because of a letter he received from Mr. Hocken, M.P., on June 25, as follows:

"I have a letter to-day from Gen. Turner from Argyle House, London, England, in which he informs me that your son escaped from No. 7 Military Prison, and that it is impossible to reconsider his case while he is still at large. He promises that if he should be apprehended the case will be inquired into fully. The general informs us that it is unfortunate that he escaped, because, his offence being of a purely military character, he would have been released within a comparatively short time had he not absented himself."

It was on account of the generous tone of Gen. Turner's letter, and also because he was in entire ignorance of his son's sentence to life imprisonment, that Mr. Taylor advised his son to give himself up to the authorities. It will be noted that Gen. Turner, though aware of Taylor's escape from prison, seemed ignorant of the increase of his sentence to life imprisonment, though the latter took place ten days before the escape.

GOSPEL OF WRECKING.

The Aims of Bolshevism Clearly Defined.

Defined briefly, a Bolshevist is a person who believes in the immediate overthrow by force of all existing social, political, and economic institutions. Thus writes John A. Embry in Leslie's.

If we ignore the writings of the parlor Bolsheviki which only serve the purpose for which they were written, i.e., to cloud the whole issue, and the writings and public statements of such men as Nikolai Lenine, Leon Trotsky, and Eugene V. Debs, it is not at all difficult to get at the substance of the Bolshevist platform. According to these leaders, the tenets of Bolshevism are as follows:—

(1) The immediate abolition of the institution of private property by means of force. All private ownership of houses, land, and all means of production must be immediately abolished. The owners of these things, because of their exploitation of the proletariat, shall receive no compensation for their loss.

(2) There shall be no wages, in the sense of one man working for another. The only wages will be those paid by the state for productive labor. There will be no rents, no profits, no interest.

(3) Nationalization of all industries. The workingmen shall have full control of the industries which shall by nationalization become the property of the whole people. The distribution of the products shall be attended to by the state. "From every man according to his ability, to every man according to his needs."

(4) The consumers' goods now in existence, houses, clothing, food, etc., shall be divided up among the working class which produced them. The former owners of these things shall receive a proportionate share only in case they join in good faith the cause of the social revolution.

(5) All who oppose Bolshevism or the social revolution whether members of the propertied class or not, shall have no rights a Bolshevist is bound to respect. Under no circumstances shall they be allowed freedom of press or association. Those who resist the new social order by force must be put down by the most violent means possible in order to strike terror to the hearts of others who otherwise might be led to follow their example.

(6) The social revolution is at hand. It is worldwide. To succeed for long anywhere it must succeed everywhere. The revolution means war to the death with the property-holding classes. The slogan of "Proletarians of all lands unite" must be changed to the battle cry of "Proletarians of all lands to arms."

(7) Family life and family ties must be weakened in every way possible, because the family is the greatest bulwark of that iniquity of iniquities, the institution of private property. This is to be accomplished by extremely lax marriage and divorce laws, public sanction of "free love," or, if, the population can be induced to stand for it, the nationalization of women."

When the Bolsheviki overthrew the Kerensky government in November, 1917, and Lenine declared the dictatorship of the proletariat, Russia entered upon a social experiment, the aim of which is embraced in the political, social and economic planks of the Bolshevist platform I have just outlined. Since that time many Americans have returned from Russia and told of the utter economic ruin that has overtaken the country, the orgy of bloodshed and terror that the leaders of the revolution have instituted, and the indescribable suffering that have been inflicted upon all members of the propertied class in Russia.

OLD PARTIES BARRED FROM NEW CABINET

ONLY U. F. O. AND LABOR MEN TO BE RECOGNIZED BY DRURY.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—E. C. Drury's efforts in cabinet-making continue to interest politicians of every stripe, Conservative, Liberal, U.F.O., Labor, Soldier and Independent. They also interest some newspapers that appear determined to break in upon the privacy of the premier-elect and force inquisitive attention upon him.

Mr. Drury has a private office down town until he takes possession of the beautiful suite of rooms with the southern aspect now occupied in Queen's Park by Sir William Hearst. There he sits and holds converse with his friends and prospective associates in the cabinet he is selecting.

It is said that an uplifting and enterprising journal had a scout corps trailing certain friends of Mr. Drury's yesterday, and that the office was by [illegible] there is a telephone, but it [illegible] silent number while in its present temporary use.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Drury makes no secret of his whereabouts to any one with the ordinary ideas about respect for personal right. He has held conversations with those who will be included in his cabinet and some who will not. Yesterday he saw Col. Carmichael of Owen Sound and Manning Doherty. Col. Carmichael has not heretofore been named among the cabinet possibilities.

It was said last night that th[illegible]inet is not complete, and at least one name not guessed so far is under consideration.

Nothing for Grits or Tories.

Some information came out which appears to be authentic. In the first place no Conservative or Liberal elected to the next legislature will find a place in the U.F.O.-Labor cabinet. Conservatives or Liberals who have represented the people in the past, but not numbered among the contestants in the late election are not barred. A few of Mr. Dewart's followers who were in the city with an ear to the ground are returning to their homes. If any Conservatives felt the same call of agriculture they carefully concealed their feelings. But all are watchfully waiting to see what former party man may be invited to the new political standard.

H. H. Dewart was asked last evening whether he had anything to say upon the situation and replied most cheerfully that he might give expression to his opinion within a day or two.

HOW RUGBY PLAYERS ARE TRAINED THE KICKS OF THE AMERICAN GAME

Many games have been won by the place kick for goal after a touchdown. It sometimes happens that a team has no one on it who can drop-kick well. Then the coach starts training a place-kicker. With a reliable place-kicker, when within striking distance of the opponents' goal, if their time is holding too tight for progress, the signal is given for the men to hold fast, and a place-kick is tried at the goal. It may also be tried after a fair catch.

For a place-kick from scrimmage the center must pass the ball back accurately to the man who is to hold it. The holder receives the ball while resting on one knee. He shifts it quickly to get the lacing toward the goal, then places it on the wround at a spot previously agreed upon with the kicker, carefully withdrawing his lower hand as the ball touches the ground—as in the drop kick, the ball should be placed so as to lean slightly toward the kicker, who stands no more than two steps behind. The kicker must measure his distance by striding while he is learning to kick, or by the eye during the game. The force put behnid the kick depends upon the distance the ball is expeceted to travel to the goal. The kicker must keep his toe pointed straight at the goal for accuracy.

The place kick should be practiced over and over, because it requires the co-operation of three men. The center must pass accurately, the holder must receive the ball and place it on its spot with all the speed and exactness possible. The holder's part in this kick is more important than the kick, therefore he cannot get too much practice. The kicker must master the principles of judging distance, line range and angle and also what to allow for a strong wind when [illegible] the most important of all must be his timing, so that his step and kick immediately follow the placing of the ball so it will not be blocked.

The place kick resembles the try at goal after a touchdown except that goal kicking is done without the assistance of the center. Goal kicking is important, often determining the difference between victory and defeat when both teams have an equal number of touchdowns. Goal kicking is usually done by one of the heavy line men, because it requires more cool calculation than speed, and, the line men being steadier and less high strung can be more easily relied upon for this kick.

When a touchdown has been made directly behind the center of the goal, the distance from which the kick shall be done is determined by the kicker. Unless the kicker is sure of himself at lifting the ball over the cross bar he should not try from a spot too close to the goal. The fifteen yard line is preferable to the ten yard one.

Whether the goal kick is to be tried from a spot selected by the kicker, or at a spot determined by the fair catch after the punt out, it is the kicker's duty to direct the holder of the ball by such words as "top in," or "top out," "top forward" or "top back." Having plenty of time at his command the kicker should determine every detail to his satisfaction before kicking.

The holder of the ball in the goal kick usually lies, down instead of kneeling on one knee as in the place kick from scrimmage. When he gets word from the kicker to set the ball down he should carefully release his fingers from under the ball and hold the top until the kicker's foot comes in contact with the ball. The kickoff to start the game is also important. All likely candidates are tried out for this kick also. When one has been finally selected he is made to practice the kick a great deal. The first thing to do is to build a mound three or four inches high and then the ball is placed in one of two ways first so it is kicked on the point, at a twenty to thirty degrees angle, in which case the long axis of the ball is with the top slanted toward the opponents' goal. This kick requires great accuracy to kick the ball on the point and is only used by sure kickers. The other way is to have the ball a little straighter up with the top leaning back toward the kicker. This requires less expert control and is more generally used.

The aim of the kickoff is to make the ball cross the goal line if possible because this means that the scrimmage must begin at the twenty yard line. If the kicker cannot reach the opponents' goal line, it is best to kick high and far as possible to give his men time to get down with the ball.

Gordon Taylor, Tilbury, aged 23, died as the result of a fall on a sharp piece of iron in his father's blacksmith shop.

Other British Railway Strikes

ONCE before there was a general railway strike in Britain. That was in 1911, and was precipitated by the inability of the unions to get increases in wages or recognition and also by the successful strikes of seamen and transport workers in that year. At that time the National Union of Railroad Workers was not in existence, but four unions acted in unison.

The strike began on August 5 by an unauthorized local walk-out in Liverpool involving only about 1,000 men, who could not get their grievances dealt with by the Conciliation Board then in existence. Also without authorization this move was followed by strikes in many other cities and the call for a nation-wide strike became urgent. The executives of the four unions concerned met in joint session and issued an ultimatum expiring in twenty-four hours. The strike was called on August 17. It was not universal, but disorganized the service and brought many factories to a standstill. As a result of a conference between representatives of the companies and the unions held at the Board of Trade a settlement was reached and work was resumed after four days on August 21.

In 1907 there had been a threatened general strike, and it was on this occasion that Mr. Lloyd George, then president of the Board of Trade, reaped great glory by negotiating what is generally referred to as a famous settlement. To understand the attitude of labor toward Lloyd George particularly in the present crisis it is necessary to understand that labor's viewpoint of the Lloyd George settlement of 1907 is that it was anything but a famous settlement for the men. On the contrary, they were inclined to the belief that they were hoodwinked on that occasion, that the settlement gave them nothing of real value. Its main feature was an elaborate system of Conciliation Boards, which the men said got them nowhere, and the breakdown of [illegible] strike of 1911.

[illegible]ation and strike came the organization of the National Union of Railwaymen, commonly known as the N. U. R., which absorbed practically all the other unions in England, Wales and Scotland, with the exception of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen. The N. U. R. includes all grades of railway workers, while the A. S. L. E. and F. is sectional, as its name implies. There has been much rivalry between the two organizations, and the N. U. R. claims to have more drivers and firemen than the sectional union itself, but there is affiliation between the two organizations, and in the present strike, as in most other disputes in the past, they make common cause.

Other strikes have been of a local character, but some of them are historic. There was, for example, the famous strike which is known as the strike for the "Right to get drunk." The circumstances were interesting. Driver Knox of the Northeastern Railway was convicted in court of being drunk and disorderly. The company thereupon reduced him to a lower grade. Without authorization the Northeastern Railway employes spontaneously ceased work and the system was practically tied up. On the face of it the men seemed to have a bad case, though perhaps not as bad in England as it would be regarded in this country. It was contended, however, that not only was Driver Knox off duty at the time of the offence which resulted in his conviction, but that as it was Saturday night, he would not be on duty for twenty-four hours, that even if he was drunk he would have time to sober up before Monday, and further it was claimed that he had not been drunk at all, and that the conviction by the magistrate had been a miscarriage of justice. At all events the Government sent a special commissioner who re-tried the case, quashed the previous sentence and Knox was reinstated by the company. The men, however, who went on strike on his behalf were subjected to deductions from their pay.

There were serious disturbances in the railway services during the famous Dublin dispute of 1913. In various parts of Great Britain sympathetic strikes broke out, where men believed they were being compelled to handle "tainted goods" from Dublin. While these were unauthorised by the union executives, who felt that they could not distinguish between goods "tainted" by a railroad strike and those "tainted" by a strike in any other industry, they nevertheless caused considerable dislocation of traffic.

During the war there was almost continuous unrest, but threats to strike were never allowed to materialise.

Nothing approaching the latest struggle in seriousness has taken place in British railway service or perhaps in British industry.

Studying Far-off Nyanza.

Rev. John Roscoe, for many years a missionary in Uganda and author of two standard works on the people of that region, left England last April to conduct an expedition into the territory west of Victoria Nyanza, for the purpose especially of studying the various pastoral tribes that occupy the elevated grasslands between Victoria Nyanza and the western Rift Valley. The cannibal tribes about Mt. Elgon may also be visited. The expedition is expected to be in the field for two years. Its work will be supervised by a committee of the Royal Society. Sir James G. Frazer, the eminent anthropologist and folklorist, has been the leading spirit in launching this undertaking.

Shakespeare's Will.

We are indebted to an English publication for a copy of the last will and testament of the late William Shakespeare, says the Thrift Magazine. In the course of this document, we observe the following sentence: "I gyve ontô my wief my second best bed with the furniture."

We have no desire to find fault with the successful poet and dramatist of Stratford for this apparent discrimination against the Widow Shakespeare. What disposition he made of his first best bed is a matter that is not revealed by the copy of the will of the versatile author whose last testament is reported in the columns of our alert London contemporary. However, we don't think Mr. S. showed just the right spirit in gyveing onto his wief his second best bed. O, why did he not gyve unto her his first bed, or his tee potte or his punche bole with the gilt butter dyes, or his favorytte wigge, or his safety rasor, or fountain penne, or bicycle—anything, in fact, but his second best bed.

No doubt Mr. Shakespeare had gone to bed with his boots on many a Saturday night in that very second best bed and yet, hallowed as it was by such memories, one cannot but feel that the widow was treated unfairly. Perhaps Will's folks influenced him. As a co-writer we have only the highest regard and esteem for him. But we don't think he acted right about friend wief.

London-Paris Air "Express."

Those who think there is any pause in the great work of conquering the air simply because transoceanic flights and projected flights no longer supply columns of "copy" to the daily papers are greatly mistaken. With a celerity and a silence wholly appropriate, the airplane and the airships are steadily making good their position in the great transportation service of the world. There is, for instance, a decided air of "settlement," in the recent almost routine account which appeared in the London Times of the air service between London and Paris. Three flying "expresses" instead of the normal two, declared the Times, were required on a certain day to deal with the loads presented for despatch by the London-Paris air service. One carrying two passengers and a quantity of parcels left London at 12.30 p.m. and reached Paris at 2.55 p.m. From Paris the ordinary scheduled machine left at 12.30 p.m. and a relief machine at 12.40 p.m., each carrying passengers and parcels—the latter including an urgent consignment of millinery from a Paris costumier to a leading West End shop. Both these "expresses" ran through [illegible] has already, it would seem, almost reached the point where it is taken for granted.

The Government of Nauru.

Nauru has declared overwhelmingly by ballot for British rule. The importance of the decision does not rest on the size of this former German possession—it is about six miles long by two and a half miles wide. Nor is the population so dense as to deserve attention, there being 1,250 Nauruans and 300 Kanakas. Nauru, moreover, does not offer climatic attractions, as it is a few degrees south of the equator and is subject to terrific heat. The secret of Nauru is its immense deposits of phosphates which lie upon a rough coral floor, and are so absorbent that ten inches of rain will vanish almost instantly, making the distillation of sea water necessary. Fortunately for Nauru's hopes, the Peace Conference has decided that Britain, Australia and New Zealand shall administer it by mandate.

IN MISERY FOR YEARS

Mrs. Courtney Tells How She Was Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Oskaloosa, Iowa.—"For years I was simply in misery from a weakness and awful pains—and nothing seemed to do me any good. A friend advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and got relief right away. I can certainly recommend this valuable medicine to other women who suffer, for it has done such good work for me and I know it will help others if they will give it a fair trial."—Mrs. LIZZIE COURTNEY, 108 8th Ave., West, Oskaloosa, Iowa.

Why will women drag along from day to day, year in and year out, suffering such misery as did Mrs. Courtney, when such letters as this are continually being published. Every woman who suffers from displacements, irregularities, inflammation, ulceration, backache, nervousness, or who is passing through the Change of Life should give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. For special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of its long experience is at your service.

HIGH COST OF LIVING

Boots and shoes have gone up in price from sixty to ninety per cent. since 1914.

Women's dress material has advanced over a hundred per cent in most lines since 1914.

Sugar has been selling lately at twelve cents a pound. It was half that price in 1914.

Steel rails at twenty-eight dollars a ton in 1914. The war brought them up to over seventy dollars a ton, and other steel products advanced in like proportion.

These advances are accepted as necessary and inevitable, as is probably or possibly, the case.

Farmers are receiving advanced prices also; for their wheat a hundred per cent more; for their butter forty or fifty per cent more; for meats, fifty to seventy-five per cent more than in 1914.

But it appears to be taken for granted in some quarters, that advances which are quite correct for other manufacturers, are all wrong for the farmers.

High cost of labor, dearer shoes, clothing, groceries, hardware and tools, touch him just as intimately as other people. The actual cost of production, as a matter of simple fact, has advanced at least as greatly for farm produces as for other products.

Is the farmer alone to have no profit from his labor and management?

It is not the farmer, but the trading and other conditions of our times—and the ex-Kaiser—which make up the present high cost of livnig!

NOT FOR SECOND HUSBAND.

So Board of Control Vetoes Soldier's Insurance.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—The exceptional case in soldier's insurance paid by the city occurred at the City Hall in regard to the insurance of the late George Matthews. Mrs. Matthews who was receiving the usual $30 a month payment, married again, leaving an infant child when she died suddenly in September and her second husband named beneficiary by her first. "He never intended it to be handed over to a second husband," said Controller Robbins, as the board veoed the recommendation of the committee that he should receive the balance of $160.

KEEP OLD AGE AT BAY.

Well Known Physician and Writer Preaches Diet.

London, Nov. 7.—Dr. Josiah Oldfield, known internationally as a physician and a writer, has published a prescription for keeping old age at bay.

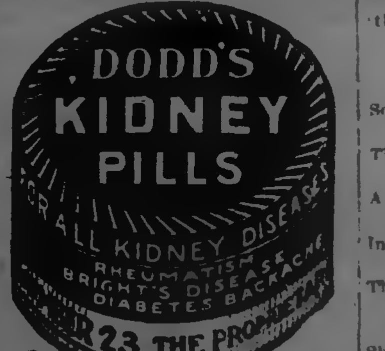
Slick Business

Pickpocket (visiting friend in prison): "I engaged a lawyer to speak for you this morning, Slim, but had to hand him my watch as a guarantee."

Prisoner: "And did he keep it?"

Pickpocket: "He thinks he did."

Gordon Utley, Kitchener, fell 40 feet from a steel girder in the Ames Holden building and got up and started to work again.



ONE ELECTION ONLY FOR PREMIER DRURY

WILL NOT HAVE TO FORCE ELECTORS TWICE, EXPERTS SAY

Toronto, Nov. 7.—A question has been raised within the last few days whether E. C. Drury will have to submit himself twice to the electors of Centre Simcoe; the first time to obtain a seat in the House and the second to qualify as Premier. Such is not the case, however, as Mr. Drury can be sworn in and can take office as Premier without holding a seat in the Legislature, his continuing in office depending, of course, on his being returned at a bye-election held within the time appointed. The same applies to Cabinet Ministers who may be chosen by Mr. Drury from outside the present House.

When a member of the Legislature accepts a Government portfolio his seat at once becomes vacant, but that procedure of course, is nullifieed in the case where an outsider who has no seat in the House is called into the Cabinet. It will be impossible according to present indications, for Mr. Drury to obtain a seat before Christmas, and, although he may become Premier next week, it will probably be early in 1920 before he is formally elected a member of the Legislature.

U. F. O. ARE GREEN BUT WILL GO STRAIGHT

CANDID OPINION OF BARBER WHO SHAVES PREMIER DRURY

Toronto, Nov. 7.—Immediately after the Farmer Premier had finished his breakfast and was on his way to see the tonsorial artist, he was interviewed regarding the progress he is making in the formation of his Cabinet.

"Now, don't ask me any questions that are going to embarrass me," pleaded Mr. Drury. "It is difficult enough to form a Cabinet without any statements appearing in the press to hamper us in our negotiations."

"Has Gordon Waldron been chosen for Attorney-General?"

"You may state definately for me that he has not," replied Mr. Drury. "I may tell you that, at a late hour, I was talking to another lawyer to see if he would accept."

"Was he a Toronto lawyer?"

"I won't tell you that."

Not Yet Decided.

"Have you selected a Minister of Education?"

"Not yet, and I can't give you any idea who it will be."

"What about Manning Doherty as Minister of Agriculture?"

"He stands out pre-eminently as the one man in the province for the position," said Mr. Drury, "but the difficulty there is finding a seat for him."

A Candid Opinion.

Mr. Drury is "telling one" on himself. Dropping into a barber shop while on the way to see the Prince at Massey Hall, the attendant, in blissful ignorance of the identity of his patron, referred—as barbers will—to current topics, and passed this opinion as to the U.F.O. members: "They're green, all right, but I guess they'll be straight."

The Day After.

(New York Sun.)

Some candidates have won out,
While others are but "ex-es."
The lucky find the sun out.
The shadow others vexes.
A pardox—the loss is
To those who muster few
In November heavy crosses.
They take the count anew.
There's laughter and there's gnashing
Of teeth, but ducks now lame
Should cheer up and start splashing.
The world wags quite the same.

Sir Robert Horne Makes Reputation in England As Minister of Labor

In the session of the British Parliament just ended two members have created big reputations for themselves. They stand out head and shoulders above their fellows.

One is Sir Robert Horne, the Labor Minister, who has stepped without any apparent effort into the very front rank of parliamentarians, and whose abilities as an administrator are second to none in the Government.

He gave up £8,000 a year at the Scottish Bar to become a member of the Government at £2,000 a year. He first wooed and then won the confidence of Labor in hundreds of conferences and personal interviews, and lately has been responsible for the firm handling of the Labor situation by the Government, and has won the well-deserved nickname of "Hail, Smiling Horne."

The other success of the session is an old member in a new coat—Lord Robert Cecil, who since his return from the Paris Conference has added daily to his reputation.

He is the mystery man of Parliament. Once looked on as the type of Tory aristocrat in politics, he now seems ready to out-do the democrats in democracy. He has a large band of enthusiastic young Unionist followers. The Labor men hail him as one after their own heart. Which way will he turn? What party will he lead? No one but himself knows. His mind plans some destiny while men are wondering.

Two other figures have marched with some degree of distinction across the Parliamentary page. Sir Donald Maclean, the leader of the lone band of Independent Liberals, is the Admirable Crichton of politics, compelled by the scarcity of his followers to speak on every subject. And he does it at times so brilliantly that he has given a full heart of hope to a party that no longer desires the return of Mr. Asquith to lead it.

Mr. Clynes has achieved distinction as a Labor member. He is easily the best of that party. Honorable mention must be made also of Sir L. Worthington Evans for his work at the Pensions Ministry; of Sir Tudor Walters and Sir Kingsley Wood for their work on housing; of Mr. J. S. Holmes for his able exhortations on finance and economy; of Mr. Kennedy Jones for his work on London traffic and other matters; of Mr. Godfrey Locker Lampson for his grapple with income tax problems; of Mr. McCurdy for knowing something about food control; and of the Geddes brothers for knowing all about everything.

Finally, after diligent search, there may be discovered on the back benches two modest new members out of all the hundreds arriving full of hope last January who deserve encouragement, namely, Capt. Elliot, a doctor who has dissected politics with considerable skill, and Sir Park Goff the most accomplished traveler in the British House of Commons, who told his fellow members that most of them were uncertain whether Budapest was an Indian god or a new plague.—London Daily Mail.

An Indian Motor Road.

Although the 69-mile road which climbs from the plains of India to the summer resort at Shillong, some 5,000 feet above sea level, is as hard a road for automobiles as one would be likely anywhere to encounter, precautions have been taken that make it probably as safe a road for motorists as any in the world. The road is one of many a twist and turn, steadily climbing at a steep gradient, and with many a blind curve. To make it safe for traffic has required unusual precautions both in making road rules and in securing their proper observance. A schedule has been arranged for up and down cars, and gates which bar the road when not lifted are placed at intervals, while roadside admonitions, impressively worded so that those who ride may read, are a frequent part of the landscape. During the day the road is used chiefly for automobile traffic, an indication, by the way, of how rapidly motor cars are taking the place of the old-fashioned bullock and camel carts and the one or two-horse tonga which not long ago were the only means of transportation on the Indian highways. A picturesque feature of the road, for that matter, is the sight of the bullock carts which have halted at the sidings and are waiting for the coming of night to continue their journey.

First League of Nations

The Book of Books is what the name of "Bible" implies. In it can be found anything. But who would have surmised that in it is the fundamental and historical idea of a league of nations? And we wonder how such an deal can be clumsily, yet nevertheless perfectly, expressed. Our wonder is only as great as our intelligence of Biblical language is limited, which is to say that we are hesitant to read when the reading is prosaic. This were a flimsy obstacle, however, for the person who likes to dig and see what cometh forth.

"And it came to pass, when all the kings which were on this side Jordan, in the hills, and in the valleys, and in all the coast of the great sea over against Lebanon, the Hittite, and the Amorite, the Canaanite, the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite, heard thereof, that they gathered themselves together to fight with Joshua and with Israel, with one accord. And when the inhabitants of Gibeon heard what Joshua had done unto Jericho and to Ai, they did work wilily, and went and made as if they had been ambassadors, and took old sacks upon their asses, and wine bottles, old and rent, and bound up, and old shoes and clouted upon their feet, and old garments upon them; and all the bread of their provision was dry and mouldy, and went to Joshua unto the camp at Gilgal, and said unto men of Israel, We be come from a far country: now therefore make ye a league with us.

"And the men of Israel said unto the Hivites, Peradventure ye dwell among us; and how shall we make a league with you? and they said unto Joshua, We are thy servants. And Joshua said unto them, Who are ye, and from whence come ye?

"And they said unto him, From a very far country thy servants are come because of, the name of the Lord thy God, for we have heard the fame of him, and all that he did in Egypt, and all that he did to the two kings of the Amorites, that were beyond Jordan, to Sihon king of Heshbon, and to Og, king of Bashan, which was at Ashtaroth. Wherefore our elders and all the inhabitants of our country spake to us, saying, Take your victuals with you for the journey, and go to meet them, and say unto them, We are your servants; and therefore now make ye a league with us. This is our bread we took hot for our provision out of our houses on the day we came forth to go unto you; but now, behold, it is dry, and it is mouldy: And these bottles of wine, which we filled, were new; and behold, they be rent; and these our garments and our shoes are become old by reason of the very long journey.

"And the men took of their victuals and asked not counsel at the mouth of the Lord. And Joshua made peace with them, and made a league with them, to let them live, and the princes of the congregation sware unto them. And it came to pass at the end of three days after they had made a league with them, that they heard that they were their neighbors, and that they dwelt among them, and the children of Israel journeyed, and came unto their cities on the third day. Now their cities were Gibeon and Chephirah, and Beeroth, and Kirjath-jearim. And the children of Israel smote them not, because the princes of the congregation had sworn unto them by the Lord God of Israel. And all the congregation murmured against the princes.

"But all the princes said unto all the congregation, We have sworn unto them by the Lord God of Israel; now therefore we may not touch them. This we will do to them, we will even let them live, lest wrath be upon us, because of the oath which we sware unto them. And the princes said unto them, Let them live; but let them be hewers of wood and drawers of water unto all of the congregation; as the princes had promised them. And Joshua called for them, and spake unto them saying: Wherefore have you beguiled us, saying, We are very far from you; when you dwell among us? Now therefore you are cursed and shall there none of you be freed from being bondsmen and the hewers of wood and the drawers of water for the house of my God.

"And they answered Joshua, and said, Because it was certainly told thy servants, how the Lord thy God commanded his servant Moses to give you all the land, and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land from before you, therefore we were sore afraid of our lives because of you, and have done this thing. And now, behold, we are in thine hand; as it seemeth good and right unto thee to do unto us, do. And so did he unto them, and delivered them out of the hand of the children of Israel, that they slew them not. And Joshua made them that day hewers of wood and drawers of water for the congregation, and for the altar of the Lord, even unto this day, in the place which he should choose."

Big Dredging Scheme.

The legislature of the state of Bahia, Brazil, recently approved a project for the dredging of the River Grande, an affluent of the River San Francisco, for the purpose of making possible a line of river boats to serve a district with no railroad facilities.

Breakfast Food.

"What kind of breakfast food have you?" the dyspeptic traveling salesman asked the rural waitress. "We've got all the reg'lar kinds," said she, "ham and eggs, fried steak, fried bacon, griddle cakes, doughnuts an' apple pie. What'll it be?"

Rev. Father Murtagh was presented with an address and a purse on the occasion of his silver jubilee as pastor of Marmora Parish.

The Shah Travels.

The Shah of Persia is on his travels. London will see him and keep him, apparently, for some little time. Europe has memories of the peregrinations of other shahs. They are quaint memories, some of them. There was Nasr-ed-Din, in 1873, and there was Ahmed Mirza, many years later. There would have been a visit, in 1894, on the part of Nasr-ed-Din, but for a Brussels journalist. It happened that, on the Shah's traveling program becoming known, a Brussels daily published an article which seemed to prognosticate a cool welcome in Belgium. The Minister of Justice of the period thought fit to give the article the publicity of judicial proceedings. The writer was summoned before a Brabant tribunal, but he was exonerated. But the verdict had the immediate effect of keeping Nasr-ed-Din at home in Teheran.

Bulls.

A correspondent of an English paper recently indulged in this bull: "Lest a whisper of the hidden hand be heard—." Was it an English clergyman who said to his congregation, "Brethren, the muddy pool of politics was the rock on which I split"?

Knew Nearly Everybody.

An Erie man took his nine-year-old daughter along with him to K. C. the other day. Arriving at the Union Station they started uptown and, when two blocks from the depot, this Erie man said to his daughter:

They walked past three more buildings and again it was, "Hold my suitcase, dear, there's a man in here I know." And then they walked on to the corner and dad once more said:

"Hold my suitcase, dear, there's a man in here I know." When he came from the building this time the nine-year-old Erie girl looked up in her father's face and said:

"Dad, you must know nearly everybody in Kansas City."

SOLE ANTIDOTE FOR HIGH COST OF LIVING

The high cost of living is the greatest material problem of our day.

The phenomenal rise in prices since 1914 is due to the scarcity of goods brought about by the suspension of production during the war. We have also wasted untold quantities of material for war purposes.

This shortage and this waste must be made good before the world can be again as prosperous as in 1914. Until they are made good, it is useless to expect that prices will materially decline or even remain stationary.

Recognizing this fact, many people propose that we get over the difficulty by increasing wages, salaries and profits in the same ratio as the advance in prices. If this were possible, the effect would be the same as reducing prices to prewar levels. Ultimately, this may take place, but certainly not soon.

The "day-light savers" realized that they could not get the public to perform every act of the day one hour earlier than usual, so they innocently deluded us by advancing the clock. It worked, because there was no fundamental law against it. But we cannot cheat ourselves over the cost of living in the same maner. Increasing wages without augmenting production sends up prices and leaves real wages unimproved.

What does the higher cost of living really mean? Sweeping aside the camouflage of prices expressed in currency, it means this: That we must now put forth greater effort and work harder to obtain the same satisfactions. There is no cure for it but economy and increased production.

It is not in the nature of the average human being to economize in what is lightly come by, nor to work any harder than is necessary to obtain a comfortable living.

Therefore, the high cost of living is not natural, but necessary at the present time. Let us face this blunt truth bravely and apply ourselves patiently to work and to save—the only remedy.

Well Known Physician and Writer Preaches Diet.

London, Nov. 7.—Dr. Josiah Oldfield, known internationally as a physician and a writer, has published a prescription for keeping old age at bay.

According to him it is not a question of an operation, but a daily diet, which includes dandelion leaves, fowl's eggs, grapes, lettuce, cow's milk, watercress, honey and salads (uncooked).

Cause of Old Age

"Old age," he says, "is largely caused by deposit in the blood vessels and cells of the body of waste matter. So by adopting a part fruitarian diet a man however old, may become young again, because every cell in the body will be replaced by new young cells."

Dr. Oldfield considers that a normal person rightly fed should live from 90 to 105 years of age.

PASTOR BOUGHT FARM BELEIVING IT HELD TREASURE HIDDEN BY PIRATE

Six Months' Digging Failed to Reveal Anything of the Kind and He Refused to Pay For Land—Suit in Court Results

Paterson, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Sophie Sautter and Mrs. Marie Blumer, both members of the Market Street Spiritual Church of Paterson, will assume the witness stand in the Passaic Circuit Court to-day, and testify for the defence in the case of Balsinger against Loehrs, an action on a promissory note.

In those temples of learning where law is inculcated by the case system instructors will find this one invaluable as embodying the principle that a note of hand is not "a courier without luggage" where there has been no indorsement to a third person, and as having inherent in it that quality of human interest calculated to keep the nose of the student in his book.

The defendant, Fred Loehrs, is a clergyman in orders; the plaintiff, Daniel Balsinger, a farmer if Oakland, N. J. In 1913 the plaintiff sold his farm to the Rev. Mr. Loehrs, taking in payment therefor a cash deposit of $20 and a note for $5,000, and arranging that Mr. Loehrs assume a $1,300 mortgage which was fastened to the land. To the action on the note, which had its first day in the Passaic court on Monday, Pastor Loehrs presents the following defence:

That in 1913 he became the directing head of three spiritualist congregations and came to know Mr. Balsinger as a parishioner. That Mr. Balsinger confided to him presently that he had been visited by a disembodied spirit who confided to him that the late Capt. Kidd had buried an enormous body of treasure on the Balsinger farm, which, however, would elude the spade of any ordinary digger and give only to that of an individual whom the spirit described, the description fitting Mr. Loehrs to the tips of his clerical tie.

Now Mr. Loehrs counts himself no colossus of learning. He is a little weak on philology for instance and does not—or did not—know who first put the kid in Kidd. But as a geographer and geologist he was able to tell Mr. Balsinger that he was not aware that Willam Kidd had ever worked as far inland as Oakland. Mr. Balsinger sighed at this, raising his eyebrows and inquiring if Mr. Loehrs did not know that Delaware River at one time coursed through Oakland. Or so at least Mr. Loehrs testified in court.

He testified also that he outlined a plan for the raising of the treasure to his church board, that the board agreed to finance it, and the farm was bought. He and two women who will take the stand to-day did all the delving and digging, Mr. Balsinger inspiring them with his presence and counsel from day to day, although personally he never touched a spade. They toiled for six weeks without turning up anything that rang like money, but upon the strength of all the boulders they digged free Pastor Loehrs was able to say in open court that there is now in all New Jersey no finer stretch of arable land than that comprised within the Balsinger farm at Oakland.

He protests that he has been the victim of an inhuman hoax rendered all the more inhuman from the fact that the treasure, if retreived, was to go to humanity, not to Mr. Loehrs. The plaintiff, however, contends that Mr. Loehrs purchased the farm on its obvious merits, and that since it is now cleared of its last stump and stone Mr. Loehrs has only to plough and seed it down to discover that it is constructively a gold mine if not a gold mine in fact.

WHEN THE VOTERS SPOKE TO TAMMANY HALL

(New York Sun)

The head of the Republican ticket, Major La Guardia, seems to have carried the Greater City—the city which gave a plurality of 258,000 to the Democrat Smith only a year ago.

The voters of the First Judicay district have rebuked Murphy in the most telling way by giving the most votes to Newburger, who was put aside by the Tammany boss, and the fewest to Untermyeer, Murphy's personal candidate. Not only does Newburger remain on the bench but Major McCook, his colleague on the Republican ticket, is also elected a Justice of the Supreme Court.

Tammany Hall seemed to have saved from the wreck two of its favorites With James Foley in the Surrogates' Court and Edward F. Boyle President of the Borough of Manhattan all of Murphy's cup is not vinegar. These were candidates whose professional qualifications for the offices they sought were not denied. The Democratic voters picked and chose; no Untermyer for them. Brooklyn has repudiated the Democratic party almost entirely. In that borough Boss McCooey had no Governor Smith to inject new life into the ticket. Murphy very adroitly took advantage of the Governor's dramatic assault on Hearst and by making a popular Democrat a part of the local campaign he perhaps saved Foley and Boyle.

The analyst can read in the election figures for Manhattan and The Bronx the revolt of an intelligent electorate against an attempt to play with the courts. In Brooklyn, and in the city at large, he can read various signs of dissatisfaction, not only with the methods of the local Democratic party but with general conditions under Democratic mismanagement and extravagance.

When a Republican on a straight Republican ticket carries a city which normally is so Democratic that it gave a plurality of 157,000 to John F. Hylan it makes food for thought in Washington. And in some parts of the capital no lips will be smacked over it.

It would have been a day of honor for this town if nothing more had been accomplished than the election of Newburger and the defeat of Untermyer. But the people went further and covered themselves with glory. They did things which no Boss will forget.

MEAT PACKERS INVEST IN VICTORY BONDS

RUN DOWN BY LADY CANVASSERS IN OTTAWA AND SPENT $25,000

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—A party of five innocent looking packers who appeared before the Board of Commerce were surrounded in the Chateau Laurier by a number of Ottawa ladies who had charge of the Victory Loan booth in the hotel.

A few minutes' conversation resulted in the packers being inveigled into signing bonds for $5,000 each, a total of $25,000. The ladies who proved their salesmanship and ability were Mrs. Arthur Meighen, wife of the Minister of the Interior; Mrs Pierre Blondin, wife of the Postmaster-General; Mrs. C. E. Mongenais Mrs. Mayne Davies and Mrs. Redmond Quain. The gentlemen were E. C. Fox of the Wm. Davies Co., Ltd., W. O. Waller of Swift Canadian; J. S. McLean of the Harris Thattoir Co., R. J. Dobler of the Canadian Packer, and Brig.-Gen. J. A. Gunn, of Gunns, Ltd.

An amusing feature of the matter is that Gen. Gunn is chairman of the publicity committee for Toronto and will be forced upon returning to Toronto to square himself with the citizens of the Queen City.

RECTORS TO DECIDE QUESTION

Holding Dances in Church Building a Matter of Conscience

There was a dance and euchre party held by one of the classes in the Sunday School building of Holy Trinity Church, rec[illegible]t wasn't the first time such a[illegible] has been held there. In fa[illegible]cording to the curate, Mr. Hur[illegible] Holy Trinity Church has sa[illegible]ned such affairs, held under the auspices of its various clubs and classes for more than a year.

"Of course it is all right; there is no harm in it whatever," said Mr. Hurson, who asked if it was not better to have dances and parties under proper chaperonage properly organized, than to have the young people "well, I should scarcely say on the streets," he concluded. Parties of this character were held in the Sunday School building as often as three times a month. "The Sunday School building is not consecrated [illegible]."

There was a meeting of the Rural Deanery of Toronto on Monday last, and the question of entertaining young people came up, and with it, naturally the subjects of cards and dancing. It was thought that the matter was one which could be safely left to the conscience of the rectors of the individual parishes.

"It is an experiment," said Rev. C. J. James, Rural Dean, and also stated that the Bishop of Toronto could not either veto or sanction such things, the rectors of the various parishes being an authority and could do as they chose, without consulting the Bishop.

DOCTORS OPPOSED TO CIVIC VACCINATION

MEDICAL MEN IN TORONTO OBJECT TO COMPULSION IN THE MATTER.

Toronto, Nov. 7.—"It is a controversial matter and it should be left to the medical men to fight out. There should be no compulsion about the matter at all," said Dr. Henry Becker in leading an anti-vaccination deputation before the Board of Control. He claimed they represented probably 80 per cent. of the city's population. "Since the abolition of the by-law compelling our school children to be vaccinated before admission to school, we have had the healthiest alcohool population Toronto has ever had and probably the healthiest school population of any city in Canada," he asserted.

"A hundred years ago we were told that vaccination would put an end to smallpox once and for all, but we are having smallpox perenially," said Dr. Beecker, who said that in Ontario, 1912-1916 there were 2,620 cases of smallpox with twelve deaths.

Last year Ontario had one death from smallpox, 17 from scarlet fever, 131 from diptheria, 23 from measles, 130 from whooping cough and 122 from typhoid. "These figures show conclusively what a mild disease smallpox is," he commented "We do not to-day know what the basis of vaccine is."

Dr. Becker said that with the few cases mentioned no attention should be paid to the outbreak. If ten per cent. of the population were down it might be called an epidemic. Publicity now was scaring people. He would treat a smallpox patient by isolation. "There are more deaths from vaccination than from smallpox." he said.

Patients Enquiring.

Dr. L. H. Wilkes declared that a lot of people were phoning their doctors anxiously enquiring what they were to do. Tuberculosis and other [illegible] had been produced by vaccine. "I have three children and do you think I am going to see their bodies putrified by this vile stuff?" he asked.

Dr. John B. Fraser favored giving any man who wanted it vaccine every week. "But," he said, "I am strongly opposed to compulsory vaccination."

Despite the abolition in 1905 of compulsory vaccination for school children, the number of deaths from smallpox had not increased in Toronto. In all, there have been but three deaths. Compulsory vaccination now would cause unrest, and "worry and unrest are as bad as disease."

Father Was Jailed.

Another anti-vaccinator said he was the son of a man who went to jail forty years ago on this selfsame question.

RAISE WHEAT PRICES TO LOWER MEAT COST

W. F. CONNOR HAS NEW PLAN TO CUT COST OF LIVING

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—The Board of Commerce will shortly issue a written judgment on the appeal of the packing interest against an order of the board fixing the price of pork products as at March tenth last. In the meantime, Mr. S. E. Todd, formerly secretary of the Canadian Food Board, and now secretary of the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers will make a written reply to three questions put to him by W. F. O'Connor, vice-chairman of the Board of Commerce.

In framing the questions, Mr. O'Connor explained that the object was to get useful information in the immediate direction of the discussion which would probably have a far reaching effect.

Reading between the lines of the questions, it might be suggested that their underlying principle is that if the price of wheat were increased, which would naturally result in the increased price of bread, it might have the effect of reducing the cost of by-products such as shorts and bran, thereby providing cheaper cattle feed, and consequently cheaper meat.

The CRESSMAN Company Limited

in Peterborough, which city, he said, had reason for pride in its former residents, Haultain, Fairburn Ross and Francis. For years, he said, Peterborough had been a centre of engineering on account of its industries, including the largest electrical concern in Canada, the C.G.E. and the Trent Canal. He reviewed the history of the Peterborough Engineers' Club from its inception in 1917 till today when it is at last associated with the Engineering Institute of Canada.

Lieut.-Col. R. W. Leonard, in reply, praised Peterborough as the city beautiful, and congratulated its engineers on their present organization, from which he could foresee much benefit in the near future. He here went back thirty-three years in history, when the engineers organized as a Canadian National Association, composed of a very select membership. In 1914, he explained that association enlarged its slate to embrace all branches of engineers in the present organization known as the Engineering Institute of Canada. And now that great body is a success, having a membership of close on 4,000 with associate branches from Scotia to British Columbia—13 in all, together with Provincial organizations. He attributed labor unrest and the high cost of labor to causes incident to the war, which causes, however, are gradually being deminished. All are interested in present-day troubles, the colonel opined, whether laboring manually or with the head, and there is no organization to come between capital and labor unless it be the engineers, who are neither laborers or capitalists, but salaried men. Engineers, in every day touch with labor, know its problems and ideas, and also in touch with capital are naturally connecting links between the two factions, and they should be the best arbitrators to harmonize differences; and that harmonizing influence of the engineer can be enhanced by a greater number of affiliates with their association. The institute has now, he said, a membership approaching 4,000, and he looked forward to the time when with 10,000 members from coast to coast, the association will be exercising an influence for the good of Canada as a whole, and not confining its activities to self-interest alone.

Prof. H. E. T. Haultain bore witness to the enormous amount of work entailed in bringing the institute up to its present condition of efficiency and membership, and concluded that the association's prosperity is due entirely to the untiring energy of its men in Montreal sitting week after week in council. To assure succer Peterborough branch must be prepared to work.

Mr. R. A. Ross, in referring to the progress of electrical engineering on this continent, declared Peterborough the headquarters for electrical engineering in Canada. The beginning of this city's industrial development, he contended, to have been when the Edison Co., now known as the C.G.E., located here 25 years ago. The speaker here indulged in a little humor, in the course of which he asserted that the business of the world is run more or less on bunk. Seriously, he advised Peterborough engineers to form a brotherhood which would be potential for the good of the whole community. Such a society would be influential so long as its members did not everlastingly "talk shop." ingly "talk shop."

Mr. James White, deputy head of the Conservation Commission at Ottawa, presented the new Peterborough branch of the institute with photographs of Col. W. P. Anderson, Mr. T. C. Keefer, C.M.G., and Mr. G. A. Mountain, all past presidents of the Canadian National Association of Engineers, from which the present broader institution has sprung. The photos are in one frame. He contended that too much capital is locked up in unprofitable engineering work, and that one duty of the Engineering Institute is to prevent the prosecution of unnecessary and unremunerative projects in this country.

Prof. Peter Gillespie, head of civil engineering in the University of Toronto, talked on the history of the Trent Canal, plans for which originated before the north-west rebellion, and he carried Peterborough men back in memory to the year 1903, when Mr. Francis presented a Masonic Lodge in this city with a gavel made out of an oak timber sixty-five years submerged in the waters of this route. It was fitting, he said, that a branch of the institute should be located here where engineering is so splendidly exemplified in the lift lock, and electric power from a river shortly to be spanned by the longest concrete arch in Canada. This new local branch of the institute, he advised, to work more or less on broad lines, advocating a sound policy on all questions of local and public interest, which will include such projects as town planning, memorials, beautifying public lands, etc. In this way the local organization can enhance its usefulness in the interests of the public generally. The professor, as he took his seat, was treated to his college cry.

Mr. Fraser S. Keith, in his reply, contended that all great world achievements had been based on engineering knowledge—in Greece, Rome, Egypt and finally within the British Empire. He said the Engineering Institute of Canada had adopted the principles of the civil engineers of Great Britain whose ideals include a reaching out in broad and unselfish lines to keep in touch with the life of communities. Engineers in the States, he asserted, realizing that the Canadian Institute had attained the ideal of association, had adopted that ideal.

Branches of the Institute.

This toast was proposed by Mr. C. E. Sisson in a few fitting words.

Mr. W. J. Francis, an old-time friend of many Peterborough citizens, and now of Montreal, made the first response. Mr. Francis was associated with Mr. R. B. Rogers in the engineering work of the lift lock. Incidentally he referred to the patriotism during the war of Canadian engineers, fully one-third of the institute's members having served at the front. Every man he said, was at least non-commissioned or better, one attained the rank of general and some came back with Victoria Crosses. And, he added feelingly, we bow our heads reverently to those who can never return. Following an irresistible chat in the lighter vein, for which Mr. Francis is noted, he referred to the efficiency of Canadian engineers, against whom but few serious mistakes can be laid. In the Montreal waterworks muddle, he pointed out, Canadian engineers had stepped in and saved the city six, eight or ten million dollars. This resulted in the Premier of Quebec interviewing and taking all civic administration for Montreal out of the mayor and council's hands, and appointing an administrative commission, of which Mr. R. A. Ross, then with the gathering, is a member. He thought engineering should be up beside law and medicine in the public eye, where it properly belongs.

Mr. A. H. Harkness also replied to this toast in an entertaining manner.

Mr. J. B. Challies, chairman of the Provincial Division, complimented Peterborough on its lift lock and the new high level bridge under construction. He rejoiced in the character of this inaugural banquet, and was sure the institute's 4,000 members would be enthused on hearing of this gathering and other branches incited to bigger and better efforts. The three essentials for an engineer, he said, are: First, he must be a cultured gentleman; secondly, he must take part in Dominion, provincial and civic affairs, and thirdly, he must be a technologist. There are great movements in Canada, behind which are its engineers, such as conservation, research and re-construction, and what makes for national and individual success is co-operation in the country's interests.

Mr. Frank Barber, superintending engineer of the new high-level bridge, indulged in a humorous after-dinner talk.

The Sister Professions.

Mr. W. Sangster proposed this toast, and Dr. Morgan, in responding for the medical profession, concluded that in saving life and preventing disease the late world struggle had been a medical war as much as one of engineering. In referring to the local medical association, he said one hundred per cent of the city's physicians are members and all were exceedingly optimistic for the future. Dr. Morgan is vice-president of the city's medical association.

In replying for the legal profession, also organized, President F. D. Kerr said engineers should be proud of their connection with so great an organization as the Engineering Institute of Canada, which calls for ability of the very highest order. He also asked the engineers to gaze with some respect on the small army of judges and lawyers whose laws of justice and truth have enabled the British Empire to raise a superstructure such as the world had never before seen. Mr. Kerr's speech was necessarily curtailed owing to the lateness of the hour, but for all that it was one of the best efforts of the evening.

Auld Lang Syne.

JIGGS AND REST OF MAHONEY CLAN

SEEN IN "BRINGING UP FATHER" AT THE GRAND TOMORROW

In creating "Bringing Up Father" George McManus established a reputation for himself as one of the cleverest and withal most original cartoonists now before the public. The comics are so characteristic and true to life that their popularity was assured from the moment they made their appearance in the pages of the dailies. Today "Jiggs" Mahoney, "Mother" and the rest of the favorites are probably the most talked about personages in the country and at the same time helping to reap an enormous income for Mr. McManus. It was not so long ago that Manager Gus Hill conceived the idea of placing Jiggs and the rest of the Mahoney clan upon the stage until today the coming of "Father" is conceded to be something of an event. At the Grand, Saturday matinee and evening "Bringing Up Father in Society,' a three act musical comedy based on the famous cartoons will be in line for public approval and endorsement. It is described as a play replete with everything that is brand new, novel witty, entertaining and mirth-provoking, besides disseminating and providing an irresistible fund of wholesome fun and laughter. That in itself is sufficient unto the day thereof.

Based on Famous Cartoons

A typical Gus Hill musical comedy in three acts "Bringing Up Rather In Society" and based on the famous George McManus cartoons will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre, Saturday matinee and evening. To dwell at length upon an entertainment that has already become an American institution would be taking up too much valuable space. Suffice to say that this latest version of the popular comics, and likewise brand new in every respect is said to eclipse its predecessors in every way. It is described as an avalanche of melodyed fun, a riot of mirth, song, music, cachinnation, happiness, joy, gladness, charm and novelty. "Father" naturally is against upsetting conventions. On the other hand, "Mother" is for it. Consequently when there is an opposition of set ideas an upheaval is sure to ensue. And it does with hilarity results.

Harry Carey, Universal's Western star, rode and fought his way to happiness in six reels of sensational photodrama at the Empire Theatre last night in "The Ace of the Saddle," written for him by Frederick J. Jackson and directed by Jack Ford, known of yore as the guiding hand behind former Carey successes.

The story concerns the difficulties of a western cattle man who lived on the dividing line between Yucca and Pinkerton Counties. Yucca County was afflicted with a crooked sheriff who lead a band of cattle rustling white-cappers operating under the guise of the Yucca County Cattle Dealers' Association, and Cheyenne Harry Henderson's cattle was stolen nightly. The sheriff merely sneered at Cheyenne's plea for protection.

Cheyenne visited the sheriff of the adjacent county of Pinkerton, but learned that Sheriff Faukner's authority ended at the county line and for that reason he could offer no aid. But Sheriff Faulkner had a pretty daughter, as both Cheyenne and the crooked sheriff of Yucca learned. Rivalry between the two men grew to hatred and matters looked pretty gloomy for Cheyenne, when Madeline Faulkner, the Pinkerton sheriff's daughter, asked Cheyenne to forego for her sake the wearing of fire-arms.

Although Cheyenne knew his six-shooter was the best friend he had, especially at that time, he consented to become a man of peace. How he fought the raiding bands and the sheriff, unarmed, until there came the crowning outrage that caused him to "bust loose from peace" is the basis of the gripping picture.

Peggy Pearce, a favorite with motion picture devotees, plays opposite Carey, and her work is practically critic-proof, as is that of the supporting cast, which includes King-Fisher Jones, Joe Harris, Duke R. Lee, little Zoe Rae and Howard Enstedt, Jack Walters, Vesta Pegg, William Cartwright, and the famous Harry Carey flying squadron of cowboys.

Of Two Evils.

Wife: "Richard, I wish you would take care of baby for an hour or two I am going to have a tooth pulled."

Husband: "Look here, dear, you mind the baby, and I'll go and get a couple of teeth pulled.'

CITY OF PETERBOROUGH

The flag is made in two sizes—4 ft. 6 ins. x 9 ft. for cities and districts or less than 10,000 population; and 7 ft. x 13 ft. 6 ins. for those of over 10,000 population. For each 25 per cent. excess of the quota, one Princeof Wales' crest will be awarded for placing on the flag.

Otonabee Twins Buy.

The county is coming along fairly well and it looks like Lakefield and Douro to get the first flag. Messrs. Sherin and Braden, who have this distict are confident that their objective will be reached tomorrow Otonabee's total has been boosted by two curly hair boy twins, 14 months old, each of whom bought a $150 bond, throug hJ. J. Moore, of Keene The twins certainly intend that Otonabee shall win that Prince of Wales' flag.

Congratulations.

Congratulations for the good work accomplished are due Organizers Dry and Blackadar and W. H. Bradburn, county chairman. The two organizers are very popular within their ranks of the local organization and they have not spared themselves in promoting the Victory Loan campaign in the city and county. The following telegrams were received at headquarters this morning:

Toronto, Nov. 6, 1919.
Victory Loan,
Peterborough, Ont.

Congratulations Fry and Blackadar upon your unit being first to win city flag in whole Province, also for splendid return of today from your unit. This is fine work.

G. H. WOOD, Chairman

Toronto, Nov. 7, 1919.
W. H. Bradburn, Chairman Victory Loan 1919 Committee, Peterborough County, Peterborough, Ont

Congratulations on exceeding your special subscriptions objective so magnificently with campaign about half over. This puts the whole Trent Valley division over. This makes eight divisions over their special subscriptions objective in the Province of Ontario. I am looking for the remainder to go over today or tomorrow.

Chairman Dominion Special Subscriptions.

RETAILERS NOT PROFITEERS

Say New Prices are Regulated by Law of Supply and Demand

Ottawa, Nov. 7.— Representatives of the Retail Merchants' Association of Canada, who met the Board of Commerce yesterday, held that there was no profiteering among the retailers; that they were prepared to do all in their power to assist the board in their effort to relieve present conditions, and that in their opinion the lowering of prices arbitratily would not help but make matters worse.

E. M. Trowern, secretary of the Dominion executive of retail merchants, said the retailers no longer wanted to be branded as thieves and scoundrels. It was no good, he insisted, on fooling the public longer about a reduction in the cost of living. Prices would not only come down in the natural order. The retailers had been trying to get the Board of Commerce to allay that great unrest in the public mind. He held that ninety per cent of the people did not know what they were talking about when they insisted that proces should be arbitrarily lowered.

Supply and Demand

The two vital things affecting the cost of living were supply and demand. The Board of Commerce could not pull down prices; they would have to come down in the natural order. He considered it the duty of the board, and also of the merchants to protect the public from camouflage of this kind.

Judge Robson assured the deputation that they would be consulted on any points affecting their business.

"What, Fanny Jones engaged? Well, I've always said that no matter how homely a girl may be, theres' always some fool ready to marry her. Whos the poor simp?"

ARE THE SPOTTERS GRAFTING?

Commission Investigating Detectives Who Might Be Taking Bribes

Toronto, Nov. 7.— Efforts are being made to "spot" liquor spotters. Whether spotters will a set to spot the spotters of the other spotters remains to be learned. The new spotters are not employed, as might be suspected, by the elusive 'blind tigers' but are working for the Ontario License Commission Chairman Flavelle admitted that rumors to the effect that some of the Government detectives are accepting hush money are being investigated, but that up to the present time no success has been achieved in 'getting anything on them.'

Chairman Flavelle was asked to make a definite statement as to whether the Commission is or is not inquiring into the matter. He stated that it is.

"We haven't enough evidence to hang a cat on up to the present," he said.

"Are you satisfied that spotters are not taking bribes?"

"I am," he replied. "But we are making injuiries into the rumors that they are."

It is understood that cases have been investigated, but in each one the Government employe has emerged with a clean record. Inspector Wallace of the Detective Department denied that any of the city police are being used in the investigation."

No Coal For Ships.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Instituting the first general curtailment in transportation as a coal conservation measure the railroad administration's central coal committee tonight ordered discontinued the bunking of foreign-owned ships in American ports.

American-owned ships and vessels flying the American flag will continue to receive fuel supplies, but "for the time being," it was said, all other vessels will be compelled to await the end of the bituminous miners' strike.

Press For Injunction.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—The strike of bituminous coal miners in particular and the industrial situation in general were discussed by the Cabinet today at a special meeting called by Secretary Lansing of the State Department. Officers said that the Government's offer to arbitrate the controversy as soon as the strike order was withdrawn still was open, and that unless it was accepted and the strike ended there was no course for the Government except to press the injunction suit.

PRESIDENT WILSON THE REAL ISSUE IN ELECTION OF TUESDAY

New York Herald Says That Result Was Direct Rebuke to Democratic Institution and Shows People Are Opposed to Accepting Peace Treaty in its Present Form.

"While issues of a local nature to some extent entered into the elections in most of the States on Tuesday, it is clear that underlying the broad results was a deep popular revolt against the Democratic party as controlled by the present national administration. The disgust of a majority of Americans over the amateurish manhandling of this country's interests at the peace conference furnished the foundation of the upheaval that spells rebuke for President Wilson and his party.

"In Kentucky the issue was clean-est cut. There the present Democratic Governor, [illegible] ministration platform of an undotted "i" and uncrossed "t" peace treaty, with the result that his Republican opponent was triumphantly elected—by his victory lifting his State bodily from that archaic political entity known as the Democratic "solid South." In Masschusetts the Republican landslide, which is bound to bring Governor Coolidge to the fore as a figure to be reckoned with in 1920 forecasts, was the result not only of admiration for the Governor's strong stand in behalf of supremacy of the law, but also of popular opposition to the peace treaty as it stands. Reports frtom Ohio and other States of the Middle West tell of Republican gains. So it is practically all along the line. Here in New York we are presented with the spectacle of a city traditionally Democratic electing a Republican without any fusion camouflage. If President Wilson is able to extract any comfort from the result in New Jersey—where the issues were prohibition and the bone system of transportation fare—it must be of a purely partisan nature, since there is nothing in the New Jersey result to indicate Democratic [illegible] in the realms of international politics. Had the President been able to deliver in New Jersey one of his pro-treaty "expoundings," it is practically certain that his State, forgetting all about prohibition, would have joined the rest of the country in the Republican column.

"If Mr. Will H. Hays and other party leaders indulge in rejoicings over what they term a "Republican year," who can blame them? The evidence is furnished by the election results. However, Mr. Hays and his associates will make a great mistake if they take unto themselves credit for what has happened. The credit belongs to the Republicans in the Senate of the United States who—unmindful of the fact that the easiest way was that of acquiescence, and contrary to the advice of some of the most noted "pussy-footers" in their party—have stood out for an American treaty and a Americanized covenant. In face of the fact that they were told that popular sentiment was overwhelm- [illegible] self told them so—those Republican Senators, with the assistance of a few of the braver of their Democratic colleagues, have stood boldly for what they believe to be the right thing for their country.

"The results of Tuesday's elections, taking them in the broad, show conclusively that the people of the country stand with the "reservation" Senators, not with the President."

THOMAS ADAMS TALKS ON HOUSING

HOME CONDITIONS IMPORTANT FACTOR IN INCREASING INDUSTRY AND WEALTH

At a large attended luncheon of the Board of Trade at the Empress Hotel today, Mr. Thomas Adams delivered a very forceful address, edaling with the importance of acceptable housing conditions of labor for a satisfactory increase of industry.

Mr. Adams stated in opening his adrress that we take great credit for the beauties of our cities. But most of these beauties were given to man not created by him. The rivers, trees and hills are the greatest beauties and what man has added to these is not very wonderful. Here, in Peterborough, he said, ou have a district that has peculiar advantages for exploiting your water power. "You have no doubt visualized them but I not know that you have developed them to their proper extent," he continued.

In regard to the matter of labor and housing conditions, h esaid that we must have both more wealth and a more equitable distribution of wealth. He illustrated his point as follows. Labor desires an equitable distriution of wealth. But what is more important is to have more wealth. And by strikes, labor unrests, etc., workingmen are destroying the wealth of the country, and in this way injuring themselves.

And capital is also to blame for not bringing more wealth to the country. hey sanction poor housing conditions that hamper efficient ndustry and thus destrop the wealth of the nation. And the people who lead are to blame [illegible] as to advance their own personal interests and not for the general good of the country.

A neglect of the underlying principles of producing wealth is the cause of the lack of efficient industrial activity. And all that is necessary for greater production is destroyed by bad housing conditions.

The fact must be faced, he said, that the same housing conditions prevail in Peterborough as were in the large cities when they were the size of Peterborough. Peterborough shold take such precautions as it grows to the proportions of larger cities, so as to assure that conditions should not be lowered from those of present day important centres.

There are three important factors in the programme of industry today. First, skilled and competent labor; secnodly, cheap and plentiful power, and third, in ever increasing importance comes the matter of houisng conditions for labor.

He considers that offering bonuses and financial inducemet to idustries is a sign of weakness. A city should offer advantages that induce industries to locate in it rather than pay them to come. A great steel corporation threw down all the ofers of financial assistance made to it by many cities, and built up its won community in a county distret. Why? Because the cities did not provide sufficient natural inducements for the advancement of industry.

The tendency of manufacturers now is to spread out from congested districts provided they can obtain transportation facilities, power, etc.

There is still a condition of strikes, slums, labor unrest, poor transportation, vacant lots, high taxes and many other drawbacks to progress. These all go to show that cities are not planneo with the same care as are industries. The future rests with small cities that will grow great, but the only way they can grow great is by planning for future greatness.

A necessity of a growing city is transportation facilities. It is not the distance a man lives from his work that is important, but rather how long it takes him to go to his work. The thing that should be avoided in a city is congestion.

And if Peterborough wants to become great, it must prepare to be great. It must build its streets to fill the demands of that street. It must afford ample and efficient transportation facilities for its workers, and it must be a city of homes. The cities of the future must avoid the terrble housing conditions of the large cities today. And the only way to tvoid this is by preparing to become large; take the same interest in your city as in your own private industry, and protect the nervous energy of your labor by guaranteeing proper, comfortable housing conditions.

BURNHAM'S CARDS AND FEATHERS AMENDMENT

MEMBER FROM WEST PETERBOROUGH WITHDRAWS MO- [illegible]

Ottawa, Nov. 7.—J. H. Burnham, M.P., has decided not to press his "cards and feathers" amendment to Government prohibition legislation.

Speaking to the Canadian Press today the member for West Peterborough stated that the Minister of Justice, who is in charge of the legislation, had said that he was prepared to recognize the principle of provincial referendum with Federal enablement where necessary, but with the usual reservations.

[illegible] this was the objection of [illegible] 'cards and feathers' amendment to the Government's liquor enablement bill," said Mr. Burnham, "that amendment will now be withdrawn."

CANADIAN PACIFIC INVESTS IN BONDS

TWENTY MILLION IN LOAN AND RECOMMEND OTHERS TO PURCHASE

Despite the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is opposed to the nationalization of the Grand Trunk Railway, it has been announced through Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, chairman of the board of directors, that it will support the Victory Loan to the extent of a subscription for $20,000,000 as agains $17,000,000 last year.

The attitude of the C.P.R. on the Victory Loan is clearly stated by Mr E. W. Beatty, the president. He quotes the statement of the minister of finance regarding the uses to which the money derived from the loan will be put, which gives assurance that it is for the purpose of repaying money which is owed, paying just debts to the soldiers, supporting Canada's credits and furthering the trade and commercial expansion of the dominion. The still further assurance that none of the money from the Victory Loan will be used for the acquisition of the G.T.R. or the payment of any indebtedness incurred thereby adds to Mr. Beatty's reasons for believing that the Victory Loan should be heartily supported. He states as follows:

"I have embraced, with a great deal of pleasure, the opportunity of speaking on this Loan, especially in view of the fact that elements have entered into it which render a frank discussion advisable even though my own position in it may be regarded as somewhat delicate and even invidious.

"I have read the comprehensive statement made by the Minister of Finance as to the objects of the Loan, and the reasons why it should receive the support of all Canadians who have the welfare of the country at heart and regard the sustaining of its credit as of vital consequence."

The tobacco growers of the Leamington district have received over $7,000,000 for this season's crop.

ARMISTICE TUESDAY DAY TO BE OBSERVED

Ottawa, Nov. 7.— Armistice Day is to be observed through the British Empire at the request of His Majesty King George. At hte eleveinth hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month all normal activities will stop for a period of two minutes. It is arranged that even ships on the seas will stop their engines for that time.

Sir George Foster, Acting Premier, read in the House the folowing cable from Lord Milner, Secrtary of State for the Colonies, to His Excellency the Governor-General:

King George's Message

"I am commanded by His Majesty the King, toseud you for immediate publication the following message, which is addressed to all the peoples of the Empire beginning:

"To all my people: Tuesday next, November 11th, is the first anniversary of the armistice which stayed the world-wide carnage of the four preceedng years, and marged the victory of right and freedom. I believe that my people in every part of the Empire fervently wish to perpetuate the memory of that great deliverance, and of those who laid down their lives to achieve it.

"To afford an opportunity for the universal expression of this feeling, it a my desire and hope that at the hour when the armistice came into force, the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month, there may be, for the breif space o two minuteen, a complete suspension of all our normal activities. Durnig that time, except in the rare cases where this might be impracticable, all work, all sound and all locomotion should cease, so that in perfect stillness the thoughts of everyone may be concentrated on reverent remembrance of the glorious dead.

"No elaborate organization appears to be necessary. At a given signal which can easily be arranged to suit the circumstances [illegible] I believe that we shall al gladly interrupt our business and pleasure, whatever it may be, and unite in this simple service of silence and remembrance.

GEORGE, R. I.

BUY VICTORY BONDS FOR THE CHILDREN

MAKE EXCELLENT GIFTS FOR CHRISTMAS ONLY A FEW WEEKS AWAY.

Christmas is just—how many short weeks distant? Not so many, that the thought of Christmas presents for every member of the family has not begun to sound a warning note to the average pocketbook.

What is the good Saint of Childhood to have in his pack this year for your young sons and daughters?

In the average family the tendency has been, as a child grew old enough to appreciate attractive personal belongings, and to realize that these could not always be forthcoming for the mere asking, to give for Christmas something combining necessity and desire. If your little daughter longs for furs or a new party frock, instead of getting them immediately she is probably told to "ask Santa Clause," though the Saint has faded to a memory of very little girl days.

If the young son needs a desk for his room, a set of tools for his workshop, even a pair of hockey boots the advice is "wait until Christmas."

The child is thus taught to value more highly the things provided for them. It is a matter of leading the hi[illegible] mind to an appreciation of his blessings.

This year, what are your plans? What would you think of a Victory Bond as a Christmas gift to your son and another to your daughter?"

You acknowledge the value of the lesson taught in giving a useful present. You are moulding your child's character even by such things as Christmas gifts.

Why not follow the same plan by making this year's present a Victory Bond? You, as a parent, must inculcate in your hildren's minds, the importance of thrift and economy. This is achieved by leading the child to an understanding of the advantages and the blessings of a bank account. One father who could be mentioned has done this, by telling his child that for every dollar she saved he would add another dollar and the two would go into her bank account.

"As the twig is bent, the tree's inclined," and the very fact that you gave—as a great privilege to the child—a Victory Bond to the girl or boy for Christmas might be the first seed planted towards developing that very essential characteristic towards success.

A faint heart is more apt to win the fair lady than a faint bank account.

CANADA INSISTS ON SUGAR SHIPMENTS

SIX THOUSAND TONS IN TRANSIT ARE HELD UP BY AMERICANS

New York, Nov. 7.—Canada sees an implied threat in the recent developments which led Arthur Williams, Federal Food Administrator, to disclose the fact that some 6,000 tons of raw sugar are stored on board vessels in this harbor consigned to a Canadian refinery, according to a telegram Mr. Williams made public yesterday. The message was signed by Rhys Fairbairn, of the Canadian Trade Commission, of Ottawa, and stated that Canada would protest if the United States stopped any sugar on its way to her refineries.

The message came a few hours after C. H. McLean, secretary and treasurer of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refineries in Canada, had left Mr. Williams' office, at No. 130 East Fifteenth street. Mr. McLean came especially from Canada to explain the situation to which Mr. Fairbairn's telegram referred. He told Mr. Williams that his firm was willing to release from 1,000 to 1,500 tons of the 6,000 for domestic use in the United States at a price to be set by the Sugar Equalization Board. Some time ago he made this offer through his New York agent, the price asked being eleven and one-half cents a pound. When he was informed that he could not sell sugar at that price here he put it down to eleven cents, and found that that was still in excess of the established price.

The sugar in question has been here two or three weeks on its way from Puerto Rico. Mr. Williams and Mr. McLean will confer about its disposition.

ALLEGED U. S. RADICALS PLOTTED VIOLENT SOVIET DISTURBANCES

Would Commemorate Second Anniversary of Establishment of Russian Red Government---Hundreds Arrested in Large American Centres--Swift Raids in Fourteen Cities---Many to be Deported.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 8.--More than three hundred and fifty alleged radicals, who are said to have plotted violent demonstrations throughout the United States today in commemoration of the second anniversary of the establishment of the Russian Soviet Government, were in the hands of the Federal authorities this morning awaiting deportation or such other action as may be ordered taken against them.

DISTRICT MEETING OF METHODISTS

THREE SESSIONS HELD YESTERDAY IN THE GEORGE ST. CHURCH

INSPIRATIONAL SERVICES

PEOPLE URGED TO REALIZE NEED AND HELP BY PRAYER

The Peterborough district of the Methodist Church held meetings all day yesterday in connection with the great National Forward Movement.

The morning session was chiefly a business meeting, to which the public were not invited.

The afternoon session was open to the public and consisted largely of devotional exercises. Different members of the attendance lead in prayer and singing, and the service was made very inspirational.

Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker delivered a inspiring address, in which he impressed upon the people the great need of a Christian revival in the church of Canada today. And he urged the people to see that they are the ones that are benefiting by the great movement as well as the church itself.

He pointed out that if the people throughout the whole country will just have faith in the movement a great Christian revival will be felt. The main need of today is faith in the power of the Lord.

At the evening session Dr. Baker

INSURANCE EDUCATIONAL CONGRESS ENDS WITH ENJOYABLE BANQUET

Mr. E. J. McIver Delivers Wonderful Address on Good Fellowship Among Insurance Men at the Closing Meeting---All Voted the Cognress Was Helpful and Instructive

The Insurance Educational Congress came to a close early last evening after a series of very successful, interesting and useful meetings.

At the opening session Mr. W. Lyle Reid, of Ottawa, vice-president of the Life Underwriters' Association, dwelt upon the very important part the insurance men of today play in bettering the conditions of the people. "It is second only to the Christian ministry," he declared.

"Yesterday morning Mr. E. J. L. Espesance of Montreal, gave a very forceful address on salesmanship for insurance men. His talk was of especial benefit to young men who are beginning the work. He dealt chiefly with the way an insurance man should approach his prospective customers. He explained, largely by incidents, how the insurance seller could startle the customer into becoming interested and how he could appeal to his sentiments in showing him the real value of carrying an insurance policy.

Yesterday afternoon sessions opened with the question box which afforded much interest as well as a great deal of useful knowledge to the insurance men.

Mr J. C. Kavanagh, of New York, delivered a very instructive address on field work. He very clearly explained the value of this phase of the insurance business.

He was followed by Mr. A. N. Mitchell, of Toronto, who spoke of the head office and field co-operation. He explained how the individual agent could use these sources for information and general value in his work.

The Banquet.

The climax of the Congress was the large banquet at the Empress Hotel last evening. The air of sociability and good fellowship that prevailed here speaks well for the future co-operative work of insurance men.

Mr. E. J. McIver, of New Jersey, supervisor of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, delivered an address that will be remembered by those present for a long time.

The subject of his address was "Good Fellowship Among Life Insurance Men." He opened by stating that he considered that the Congress then closing would be practically useless if this spirit of good fellowship was not greatly increased. The concrete arguments for salesmanship and other ways of increasing business were important, but the spirit of good fellowship was even more so. Fellowship is possible with a common cause, but good fellowship is possible with a common good cause.

He pointed out that in all business, money came second and service first. From a common corner grocery store no one can make money unless he renders service. Service is the primary object of the business man.

He drew attention to and emphasized the fact that for a man to be a good life insurance man he must be a good citizen. That fact was never so true as at the present time.

This is an age in which people are indulging in orgies of spending money foolishly. Any man who takes money from foolish people who would spend it foolishly and puts it in the savings bank, Victory Bonds, life insurance or any other safe resort is rendering a service to mankind that ranks among the highest today.

Social Time.

At this banquet Mr. E. J. L'Espesance again came into prominence this time as a story-teller. He told a couple of the funniest stories every told at a men's banquet in such a humorous way, all his own, that he sent the hard-working insurance men into peals of laughter time after time.

Solos by Mr. George Roy were also greatly appreciated.

STRIKES CHARACTERIZED BY SENATE COMMITTEE AS INDUSTRIAL BARBARISM

No Place in Country for Either Industrial or Labor Despotism Public Has Right to Demand That Capital Shall Not Have Right to Determine Industrial Questions in Its Own Self Interested Way.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 8.—Characterizing all strikes as "industrial barberism" and declaring that "thre is no place in this country either for industrial despotism or labor despotism," the Senate Committee, authorized to investigate the steel strike, presented a report today covering its hearings both in Washington and in Pittsburg, and criticising both the workers and employers in the controversy which resulted in at least a partial disrupton of the steel nudustry.

Up to Congress

The committee's main conclusion, concurred in by all members, was expressed in the statement that "the public has a right to demand that capital shall not arrogate to itself the right to determine in its own way those industrial questions, and it is the same as to labor. The duty of Congress is to provide some way of adjusting these difficulties."

Treating of the causes of the strike, Committee in its report expressed the opinion that the walkout was precipitated by determination of the American Federation of Labor to organize the steel industry. Wages are not a factor in the strike, committee held, being high enough to give no reason for dissatisfaction. The hours of workers, however, Senators believed are too long. "We believe that a large majority of men are actually working in mill work 10 and 12 hours a day," the report said. Further, behind the strike, the committee found, was massed a considerable element of revolutionary radicalism, of which it is said there is no question but that Wm. Z. Foster, secretary of the general strike committee, was leader.

That Injunction

Washington, Nov. 8,—The scenes of action in the soft coal strike controversy was shifted today to Indianapolis, where the Government and Miners' representatives will meet in the federal court to fight out their issues on the temporary injuction, returnable at 10 o'clock this morning, restraining strike leaders from further activity. It was belived probable that Samuel Gompers, would seek another conference today with Attorney General Palmer, in an effort to settle the strike prior to the opening of injunction proceedings in Indianapolis.

Coal Economy

The material side of the strike as shown by available reports was not altered noticeably, both sides claiming gains. The Government continued its campaign for coal economy, but announced it had not been contemplated to reinforce such wartime measures as "light less nights" and heatless Mondays."

RED COMMITTEE MUST DISSOLVE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 8.—Gustav Noske, secretary for Military affairs, has ordered the dissolution of the Red Committee, which attempted to engineer a general strike.

Three members of the committee have been arrested. The police are actively suppressing incipient demonstrations of Sparacus in connection with the celebration of the anniversary of the revolution in Germany.

At police court this morning Hobart Dunford, the baggage transfer man, was fined $5 and $3.10 costs for driving an automobile with the tail light not lit.

OFFER FOR AMBULANCE

DAN SPENCE AMBULANCE GROWN OUT OF DATE FOR THIS CITY

Mr. Comstock reports that he has received an offer for the Dan Spence memorial ambulance, which has grown out of date for use in a city of this size. The offer was conveyed to the Council last night, but the members took no action, some of them expressin gthemselves as being loathe to sell the embulance.

This memorial was purchased in honor of the late Dan Spence, who was killed while serving with the Canadian forces in South Africa. A citizens' sommittee solicited subscriptions for the purchase of the ambulance, as a useful token of the appreciation of Dan Spence's noble sacrifice.

Now that this rig has become too old-fashioned for present-day needs, the question confronting the Council is, would it be proper to sell it to some municipality where it could be put to use.

WILL REMIT POLL TAX OF SOLDIERS

STANDS GOOD FOR THIS YEAR IN PETERBOROUGH. EXEMPTION ON PROPERTY?

The poll tax on all single men who served overseas with the military or naval forces will be remitted this year and a by-law authorizing same prepared.

This was the decision of the City Council last evening, on motion of Ald. Crowe and Phelan.

Assessment Commissioner Henry pressed for action in this conection one way and the other for guidance.

Ald. Edgar wondered how the foregoing would affect married soldiers. Single returned men, he thought, were certainly better able to pay the poll tax than married men to meet their taxes on property assessment. There are many phases of this exemption to soldiers question, which council will have to face, he said, one of which is, perhaps, equitable consideration for widows of soldiers killed in the war. There are not many returned soldiers owning their own homes today, he pointed out, but should the housing scheme be adopted and partial exemption allowed returned soldiers, the number taking advantage of such conditions might be considered as a hardship on other ratepayers. On the other hand, the housing project and exemption would result in increased revenue for schools and local improvements, for exemption from those taxes are not permissable by statute. He left these thoughts with council, and advised the question of exemption on soldiers' homes going to the committee of the whole for fuller discussion.

His worship said the widow of a man who had made the supreme sacrifice should receive consideration, were exemption of soldiers' property allowed. Then no thought for married returned soldiers living as tenants seems to have arisen. Having served three, four and five years overseas, they get nothing under this proposition because they do not own their own homes.

Ald. Gainey.—"Yes they do; they are given the privilege of paying more rent."

"This whole question will be reconsidered in committee of the whole.

PRESS FOR INJUNCTION

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 8.—Injunction proceedings against officials of the United Mine Workers of America will be pressed at Indianapolis today, Attorney-General Palmer announced. Jno. L. Lewis, acting president of the Miners' Union, refused to accede to the Government's demand that the strike order be recalled, pending mediation of the controversy.

DECISIVE BATTLES AGAINST SOVIETS

MUST CLEAR ST. OMSK OF ALL ELEMENTS USELESS IN DEFENCE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 8.—Full evacuation of the region between Ishim and Irtish, is ordered. These towns, it is expected, will soon become the theatre of decisive battles against the Bolsheviki, according to advices received here from Omsk, dated Nov. 1. Omsk, as a military base, must soon be cleared of all useless element and serve in the defensive against the Reds, according to advices but the supreme governor and the Government, as represented by the Council of Ministers, will remain.

John B. Dunton, of Brattleboro, Vt., accused of whipping his grown-up daughter, settled the suit by paying her $2,000.

PRINCE OF WALES' HONOR FLAG FLIES FROM CITY HALL TO-DAY

Presented to Mayor and Aldermen, for Peterborough Citizens Last Night---Every Hope That Another Crest or Two Will be Added---Congratulatory Addresses.

The Prince of Wales Victory Loan honor flag was presented to the city last night in the Council chamber, Mayor Duncan and his Council being the recipients for Peterborough's citizens, who went over the top of their Loan objective of $750,000 at 9:30 Thursday evening.

The only ceremonies in this connection were speeches of congratulations and complimentary references to workers for the Loan and subscribers thereto.

The flag shows a long white field with Union Jack in staff corner, and is edged with [illegible] red band and embellished with the Royal coat-of-arms. Early this morning this striking emblem was flying to the breeze from the flag staff of the City Hall.

There were present at the presentation the Mayor and Aldermen Phelan, Edgar, Crowe, Morrison, Gainey and Hamilton City Assessor Henry, ex-Mayor W. H. Bradburn, Loan chairman of the county and city of Peterborough; F. H. Blackadar, district organizer; Vincent Eastwood, chairman of the local Loan committee, and Mr. Frank Whitehouse who is canvassing the factories.

Ex-Mayor Bradburn in making the presentation, said he and his colleagues were happy in the privilege of formally announcing to Peterborough citizens, through their Council representatives that this city enjoyed the proud distinction of being the first city in Ontario to win His Royal Highness' honor flag having gone over the top of its $750,000 objective at 9:30 Thursday night. He congratulated Peterborough on the honor thus attained through the generosity of its citizens all of whom who have contributed to Canada's need can point to the Prince of Wales' emblem flying proudly to the breeze and say "I helped to win that flag and in doing so have done my duty."

Mr. Bradburn had extreme satisfaction in reporting that at 5:30 last evening the employes of the Crossman Co. Limited had been presented with an honor flag, 90 per cent of them having bought Victory Bonds to an amount representing 17½ per cent. of the company's annual pay roll. And the great showing of these employes is emphasized by the fact that 75 per cent of them are girls.

Production and More of It.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood coupled with his congratulations the wish that every city in Canada may win a Prince of Wales honor flag. He talked of the proud position won in the world by Canada during the war, and drew attention to the need of efficiency and production for future prosperity. He urged the elimination of differences and conditions which have a tendency to lead to civil strife, and a concentration upon production and more of it. All are "laborers," he said, who are producers, either manually or by the exercise of brain power, and he hoped for harmonious unity in the furtherance of efficiency and production. In conclusion, he contended that by loaning to the Government during the existing campaign the objective asked, a return next year for a further loan will be avoided. He congratulated Chairman Bradburn, Organizer Blackadar and Mr. Frank Whitehouse for judgment displayed in their executive operations, and he was especially appreciative of the latter's splendid work in his canvass of the factories.

More Crests Due.

Mr. F. N. Blackadar was optimistic of another crest or two being aded to Peterborough's flag; an additional crest is awarded for each 25 per cent. excess of the objective.

Last year, he pointed out, Peterborough city contributed to the Loan $1,674,100, the county $895,000 or $2,569,150 in all. Up to last night Peterborough city and county combined had taken in bonds $1,573,450, representing 2,439 applicants. Last year during the same period in the city and county of Peterborough 3,057 applicants had contributed $1,307,500. He was confident that the final returns this year would show a substantial excess over those of 1918.

Splendid Co-operation.

Mr. Frank Whitehouse extended warm congratulations to the city and its citizens on their splendid showing in this Victory Loan campaign. He was proud of his residence among a people who had by their generosity placed Peterborough in the lead of Ontario cities in winning the Prince of Wales' flag. Mr. Whitehouse spoke of the readiness with which factory employes had and are buying bonds and of the splendid co-operation and assistance he was meeting with from the heads of factories. The reason Peterborough is securing new industries he attributed to the exceptional quality of its citizens, whom he was sure it must be a pleasure for the Mayor and aldermen to serve.

Credit to Workers.

His Worship Mayor Duncan paid warm tribute to the energy of Peterborough's Victory Loan workers, and did not think a better executive could be found than that composed of ex-Mayor Bradburn, Mr. F. N. Blackadar and Mr. Whitehouse. It was one of the proudest moments of his life, he continued, to receive the Prince of Wales flag on behalf of the citizens of the first Ontario city to win it and he only regretted that its donor could not visit Peterborough, one of the best cities of its size in the Dominion. The Council and he had left no stone unturned to secure a visit from His Royal Highness but to no avail. The Mayor was quite unstinted in his appreciation of the Loan's committee organization, of all who had invested in the Loan, and of the honor conferred on his home city in the presentation just made.

Labor's Part.

All the aldermen present spoke to the occasion in fitting terms.

Alderman Morrison and Crowe, on behalf of Labor, heartily endorsed the loan, the former outlining the readiness with which Labor is subscribing and the interest workingmen are taking in the loan generally.

Ald. Gainey elicited demonstrative acknowledgment when he told of a meeting of the hall trustees of the Trades and Labor Council, at which he had, on suggesting that a hundred or two dollars on hand might be invested in the Loan, found no dissenting voice. At a meeting on Monday he fully expected that what cash the hall trustees had to spare would be loaned the Government. Labor, he concluded, is behind the Loan, and it must be a success.

Ex-Mayor Bradburn here contended that credit for winning the honor flag is due subscribers to the Victory Loan, and he regretted that Mr. Fry, city organizer, could not be present, having been called to Toronto yesterday morning. Mr. Bradburn also was happy to say that at 5 o'clock last evening he learned that the Vermont Marble Co. had subscribed $40,000.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Hamilton a vote of thanks from the Council on behalf of the citizens was extended the Prince of Wales for his honor flag.

GREAT LUCK OF THE HARVEY WINDOVER PARTY

Mr. J. Percy Bond and Mr. F. L. Roy have returned from a few days' hunt at Harvey Windover's, Long Lake, with their two deer. They report hunting good and lots of deer. Four deer were bagged in the first two days of the hunt.

FIRE ON ROGER STREET

A fire broke out in the home of Mr Edmison, 367 Roger street, early last evening. It started in a spare room used for stroing furniture and the cause is still unknown. A couple of pails of water thrown on the fire prevented it from spreading, so that it was easily extinguished by the firemen on their arrival. The damage was very slight.

GETTING INTO POLITICS.

WHY SHOULD the members of any organization formed for the mutual advantage of those who identify themselves with it, urge that everything like political action be avoided? Why should there be anything in the calm discussion of public questions that would have a tendency to disrupt any society What real good can be attained in this world except through the agency of political action? What moral, social or industrial reform was ever attained otherwise? So long as politics is regarded as the exclusive field of the professional in that science, so long will the people be denied their own.

The farmers of Canada, as a class, remained out of politics for years, dividing their allegiance between the two old parties, and content to regale themselves on the crumbs that fell from the political table. Within the past two years the farmers changed their policy of political inactivity and got into the game. Today they hold the plurality lead in the Legislature of Ontario and one of their members has been entrusted with the onerous task of forming a provincial government. If in the past the farmers have been ignored or even neglected by the old parties, irrespective of which was in power for the time, theirs is now the opportunity to come into their own. If it is now theirs to work out their temporal salvation, they have secured the opportunity simply through concerted political action.

Organized Labor for years fought shy of politics as men would a pestilence, and Organized Labor, too, for years ate the crumbs and the sops that were tossed to them by those in the seats of the mighty. They were wheedled into a false sense of security by the men who used them as so many pawns in their own game. Then Labor within the past two years formed its own political party, throwing the wily and oleaginous professional overboard. And now today Labor holds the balance of power in the Legislature with a prospect of representation in the Cabinet.

The G. W. V. A. started out with the same delusion as to the advisability of political action. It was held that anything of the kind would disrupt their organization. They were to employ the gentle arts of moral suasion in seeking their own. A high ideal beyond all question, but one that is likely to fall of realization in a world where selfish interests are still paramount There is likely to be a change here. The veterans of the war will from the present outlook follow the example of the farmers and the workingmen. A union of the three elements in the population would be unconquerable, and such a union is not impossible. No one can deny, either, that it would contain the best in the citizenship of Canada.

Perhaps these recent political movements savor of class legislation. If so, it is unquestionably the fact that one condition has begotten another, that class legislation of one kind simply forced the creation of a new one purely as a matter of self-defence.

PRESIDENT WILSON ON TRIAL.

IT WAS REALLY President Wilson who was on trial in the United States the other day, the President personally rather than the Democratic party which he leads, the prohibition problem, or any other public question. And everywhere that the people were given the opportunity to speak they did not fail to register a protest against President Wilson and his personal policy, in which everything in the way of national tradition or precedent has been shattered. The American people still rule and are as jealous as ever of their prerogative. The whole tendency of the age is against autocracy or one man dictation. This tendency is noticeable not only in the United States, but in Canada and in Europe as well. It is the principle that was insisted upon to the point of death and untold sacrifice during four years of the greatest war in the history of the world.

But President Wilson usurped not only the prerogatives of his own people, but sought to institute himself the dictator of the entire civilised world. Before the United States became an active party in the war against Germany Mr. Wilson set out to establish a new military code for the combatants. When the Armistice was signed he came to the front again with terms of peace which he endeavored to force upon the Allies. He assumed the right while in Europe to speak for the entire American people, arrogating to himself the further right of making a treaty, a power which from the beginning of the American Republic has always remained in the hands of the Senate. That right the Senate is now prepared to vindicate, and the action of the Senate was endorsed by the voters of every State in which an election was held last Tuesday. What, then, is likely to be the verdict when the forty-eight States of the Union are heard from in the Presidential election next year?

Since the days of George Washington the American people have been satisfied to work out their own destiny. The boasts of the marauders of Europe had, for them no concern. They have for over a century been a nation that stood for peace. The military bogey often raised its head among them only to be crushed. They were drawn into the late war only because the Germans carried that war to the door of the United States and made the American nation one of the powers against which the conflict was waged.

President Wilson would break down the custom of ages. He aspires to make the United States a world power, while all the people ask is the opportunity to continue to follow the pathway they have trod since the beginning, to devote themselves to the arts of peace and to live in harmony with their neighbors and with the world at large.

THE C. P. R. AND VICTORY BONDS.

THE CANADIAN Pacific Railway will always remain as a thorn in the flesh of those faddists who hold that there can be nothing of justice and square dealing with the public, little of real prosperity, except in the case of utilities that are under State ownership. The C. P. R. refutes this argument in toto. It is the greatest railway corporation in the world, and as such one of Canada's best advertising assets. It carries out every agreement in spirit and to the letter. It serves the public with mutual advantage. It is really under State control if not ownership, and as such is a standing demonstration of the ideal system under which public utilities should be operated. The men who are entrusted with the management of this gigantic enterprise have worked their way up from the ranks. Theirs has been the reward of faithful service, not the prize of political preferment.

Is there a single department of the Government of Canada that can show the progress and efficiency that has been displayed by the C. P. R. since its inception? The company was granted certain concessions at the outset of its career and has made the most of its opportunities. Every condition has been faithfully observed on its part. As it grew, so did the country as a whole. The interests of both were identical.

One year ago the C. P. R. was able to invest $17,000,000 in Victory Bonds. This year the investment has been increased to $20,000,000. Some cite these facts as arguments in favor of the State control of the railways. If there is profit in the business, why should not that profit go to the people as a whole rather than to the shareholders in a private corporation.

But what is the record? Where in all the history of commercial enterprise is there a State-owned institution, interlaced as so many of them are with sectional favoritism and political intrigue, that can make such a showing as that registered year after year by the directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway, while at the same time the question of their rates, the real source of income of any railway is a matter regulated by the Government? It is not State so much as efficient management that is required to make a success of any venture. No government can aspire to the management of any colossal enterprise until it has shown something like business ability in the direction of its own comparatively lesser departments, or at least ordinary commercial acumen in acquiring private property that has been forced into financial difficulties.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

Mr. Drury, the new coalition leader, declares that under his regime there will be no class legislation. It was well to start off that way, but it is easier to say there will be no class legislation than it is to see how a government selected from and supported by class representatives can avoid class legislation.

THE DAY OF THE FARMER

(Journal of Commerce.)

It is the day of the Farmers. Not only in the political revolution in Provincial politics of Ontario, but in the arena of Dominion politics as well, the Farmer has come to the front suddenly. In the by-elections for the House of Commons held a few days ago the United Farmers put up candidates in Glengarry-Stormont (Ontario) against a Conservative; Assiniboia (Saskatchewan), against a Liberal; and Carleton-Victoria (New Brunswick) against a Conservative, and in all three the Farmers won by majorities that were astonishingly large. This manifestation of independent action by the Farmers in three widely separated communities is evidence of a powerful movement for the breaking down of old party lines. It is more than probable that a general election for the House of Commons at this time would result in the return of a large number of Farmer members, not attached to either of the old parties, possibly a number large enough to produce the condition that appears today in the affairs of Ontario, where these independents are the strongest body, but not strong enough to form a majority of the Legislature.

There is nothing alarming in this Farmers' movement. The worst that can be said of it is that for a time it may be productive of political confusion. The Farmers evidently feel that their own class should be more largely represented in Parliament and Legislatures than in the past. Their desire apparently has been to have a larger representation and to exercise the utmost freedom in criticism. But they have not aimed at immediate power. The responsibility that has unexpectedly come to them in Ontario will have a sobering effect and perhaps they will be better able to realize in future the difficulties and burden of those who are called upon to govern.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has addressed the following queries to Parliament:

Where manufactories have by reason of war work and increased revenue therefrom laid by or accumulated money or its equivalent above that of the normal years immediately preceding the war, is it the intention of the Government to appropriate the same for public purposes as is being done in Great Britain?

Is the Government aware that clause six of the Proprietary or Patent Medicine Act, passed last session, wipes out all the old family remedies for coughs, colds, cholera, dysentery, etc., of which opium is necessarily the base?

Keep the Cobwebs away

YOU know that times are good to-day.

You know that business is humming, that your pay envelope comes regularly and is well filled.

But do you know why this is so?

Canada is prosperous—and you are prosperous — because the Victory Loan 1918 was successful, enabling Canada to give credit to Great Britain and other countries who, as a result, were enabled to place orders in Canada for the goods YOU make.

But the proceeds of the Victory Loan 1918 are exhausted.

Great Britain and her allies have more orders to place—but they are not yet in a position to pay cash.

If Canada is to get these further orders, she must extend credit

The Victory Loan 1919 will provide the necessary money to establish these credits.

Every workingman wants prosperity to continue. Therefore every workingman will buy Victory Bonds.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSK
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their sale people and business men and women in general.

Advertising School Clothes in a New Way

Lansburgh and Bro., in Washington, D. C., wanted to do something unusual this year to hammer home the fact that they had laid in a very large supply of clothing suitable for school children. It wasn't so much a matter of using large space, for that is a Lansburgh policy. The difficulty lay in making the announcement striking and distinctive.

The solution finally hit upon was the use of a "slate," covering five full newspaper columns and containing crudely drawn cuts illustrative of childish writing which described the goods. "Little Susan's slate of School Needs" was the headline which appeared across the top of this unusual advertisement, followed by such display lines as "My Brother Looks Best in L. & B. Clothes," "Oh! What Pretty School Hats," "School Needs for Girls" and the like. A prize contest offering $20 for the best reproduction of any of the drawings on the page completed the advertisement—on which the name plate of the firm was the only line of type.

In reply to the question, "Will such an advertisement bring business?" Ernest C. Hastings, advertising manager of Lansburgh's replied:

"I'm sure it will. In fact, it has already produced extremely satisfactory results. I have often said that if you could by some trick or fair means, cause the folks of your city to think of your store in connection with their every want, there would be little need for screaming headlines and 72-point prices in order to bring shoppers to your store.

"A startling ad of this kind isn't easily forgotten. It will stick in the back of one's head long after regular store news has faded away. It will cause women to connect your store with children's school needs for weeks and months after the date of publication. It would be foolish to even geuss at the cumulative value of such an announcement, or the length of time it will influence the buying of children's apparel.

"Spend the time and energy necessary to produce, occasionally, advertisements that touch the cords of memory or the heart-strings of your readers. I know you will be repaid many times in satisfaction, and I would be willing to wager a new pair of shoes that the financial returns will exceed your keenest expectations."

Bank Sends "Bills" to Slow Depositors

Russell Richardson, advertising manager of the Sacramento Bank and the Fort Sutter National Bank, of Sacramento, believes in wide-awake, progressive bank advertising and is proving that it pays.

One of his advertising stunts that make regular depositors of those that used to save "once in a while," or that would plan to "save next month," was to get them by advertising both in newspapers and through the mails to sign a card agreeing to deposit a certain specified sum each month. Monthly statements and bills were rendered to those who were behind in their "bill," and depositors grew to feel that their saving bill should be paid as promptly as their grocery or meat bills.

Believing that helping people to save would result in new accounts, a folder was distributed which described an efficient and simple method of keeping personal and household accounts and records. The folder was widely advertised and resulted in a number of new accounts.

A feature of the Fort Sutter Bank advertising was that it advertised not the bank's business but its customers' success. One quarter page advertisement gave facts about a large bakery, another was about a garage and only about one-tenth of the advertising space was devoted to facts about the bank. But according to Mr. Richardson, the results were exceptionally gratifying.

"No Meat Shop Smell" Butcher Advertises

What is the most advertisable virtue a butcher shop can have? Quality of meat? Courtesy? Prompt service? Location? Number of years in business at a certain stand?

The Quality Shop of Mobile discarded all these as being too obvious, too shopworn.

For one day an exacting lady customer came into the shop and, in speaking to the proprietor, she dropped this remark:

"This is the one meat shop in Mobile that doesn't smell like one. It always disgusts me and is repugnant when I enter a meat store. The odor of the meats affects most people that way, I imagine. Your place seems to have found the solution of the problem."

The Quality Shop saw merchandising value in that blunt statement. Ever since it has carried trade mark line in quotes at the top of all its advertising in newspapers and other mediums. "The Meat Shop That Doesn't Smell Like One."

The phrase is now the talk of the town.

Prices too High, so "Peanut Jake" Quits

"Peanut Jake" has quit, the latest victim of the H. C. of L. His name is Jacob Fritz, but every one in Lansdale, Pa., knew him as "Peanut Jake." For many years he peddled peanuts and kept a stand in bad weather when he could not take his cart over the town.

Recent raises in the high price of peanuts made it impossible for Fritz to hand out a few peanuts to every kiddie he met. They would come at [illegible] the same for their honoraria, but Fritz felt he would go broke if he gave away his profits. Before the high prices went on he could do so and still make money.

Sooner than meet the disappointed faces of the kiddies he has quit to become a watchman.

Sells Hats Either By Shade or Price

Arranging all hats in two ways by shades and by prices—is a stunt worked in a Scranton, Pa., department store by Mrs. Von Bergen, manager of the millinery department that is moving goods rapidly and giving general satisfaction.

The woman looking for a $5 hat in black or blue or whatever she fancies will go best with her dress, can get it in a jiffy, and the ones who fancy the $25 or $50 headgear are just as quickly accommodated.

Mrs. Von Bergen has the unique distinction of being able to look well in any hat in the store and will put on the headgear that any woman may select and show it off to advantage. She says she is sure to sell the hat she dons if the pocketbook of the patron will stand the strain.

The Regeneration of West Africa

SOME years ago, an Englishman expressed in writing a very prevalent opinion of his countrymen—that Britons were in the habit of making the peoples of the new countries which they annexed give up their normal ways of life, and yet took no real pains to teach those natives better ways. That was doubtless true of a generation ago; but it cannot fairly be alleged against the present one. No better illustration of the change is to be adduced than West Africa, although similar conditions exist throughout the entire African continent, in British India, and elsewhere, the variations in local circumstances being duly considered.

West Africa is a territory so great in area, and is so well populated, as to rival many, if not most, of the European states. Since Great Britain and France are working together in amicable harmony all through this great region, it seems as if one might safely include in a brief study of the material, industrial, social, and educational development a large part of the western Sahara, all of the Gold Coast, and continue downward to the southern boundary of the Kameruns. By the terms of the recent convention between Great Britain and France, endorsed by the allies, France is the mandatory for Togoland and the whole of the Kameruns.

The exact area, in square miles, is not important; nor is the precise population (even if it were possible to give it), for we are primarily interested in the manner of education and the ways followed in training the natives to appreciate the advantages of the systems presented by the European governors and commercialists in social and domestic devices. How they, the natives, savages but a short time ago, can without sacrificing their own dignity and independence—co-operate with the British, French, and Belgians in bearing the burdens entailed by progress, is a matter worthy of study.

It was the custom in former times to hide from the natives, as much as possible, the true value of their own produce, and to enhance in questionable way the actual worth of the articles which strangers offered in exchange. By such methods, the process of bartering [illegible] all the advantage for the foreign trader and little or no commensurate benefit for the native.

During the early days and continuing on into the transition period of perhaps two or three decades ago, even these questionable methods can hardly be said to have entailed serious hardship upon the natives, because the fabrics and gewgaws which were offered them in barter for things which had cost practically no labor did have, in their uneducated opinion, values that were not at all measured by intrinsic worth.

But in the matter of education, there was a most unfair attitude taken by the first officials and merchants. Too often, these classes openly opposed all efforts of missionaries and lay instructors; or, if this statement seems too hard, it was true that an overwhelming percentage of officials and traders did contend that the religious teachers should restrict their efforts because practical knowledge must inevitably make for diminution of trade profits.

A great change has come over the whole of West Africa, including Liberia and the Belgian Congo. The change began with a broadening of the scope of education. At first this was noticeable in the efforts made by missionaries, with the grudging consent of their home societies and their meagre financial assistance, as against the hot disapproval of government officials and merchants, who still contended that general education would "spoil trade." But the effort was persisted in to devise alphabets with which to fix the legends of the natives in a permanent form, and also to permit religious books as well as secular literature being placed in the hands of the natives so that rudimentary and advanced education might be passed to a stage beyond that of oral and mere memorizing work.

The change of heart as to education with foreign officials, merchants, This is in happy contrast with the opposition displayed a decade or so ago. Native schools of the primary, middle, and higher grades are scattered all over the various colonies, while even a university for advanced students is not lacking. Competent natives are, too, sent to Europe for special education — mainly in theology for ordination to the clergy — and in some cases for consecration as bishops, for numerous dioceses are in charge of bishops either of the Anglican or the Roman Catholic church. Natives on boards of civil administration are made welcome as soon as they display ability, and African schoolmasters and lawyers are frequently in demand.

The general consequence is that West Africa, from Cape Verde into the very heart of "The Dark Continent," holds promise — and, indeed more than promise—of becoming a group of self-governing provinces, allied with the powerful states of Europe.

Vessels for England.

Since the Germans surrendered their merchant ships to the allies, at least one hundred of these steamers have arrived at Firth of Forth ports and have been distributed to various British firms at London, Plymouth, Cardiff and Barry, for management. These vessels represent approximately 200,000 registered tons.

The smallest known race is that of the Bushmen of southern Africa, the men's height being 4 feet 3½ inches.

"I thought so."

DURING the last few years people have had to be content with many lines of goods that were inferior in quality to those procurable before the war.

To-day, people are demanding the better grades again. Those who from a mistaken idea of economy tried to be satisfied with common teas are coming back to Red Rose Tea. They realize that they cannot be satisfied with anything less than Red Rose Quality.

And Red Rose probably will cost them no more than common tea, because Red Rose not only tastes better—it goes farther.

Consisting chiefly of Assam teas—the richest and strongest grown—three teaspoonfuls of Red Rose goes as far as five of ordinary tea. A brewing will prove it.

STEEL STRIKERS ARE DISORDERLY

STATE POLICE KEPT BUSY TODAY ROUNDING UP RIOTING MINERS

CHARGED WITH DYNAMITING

BLEW UP HOUSE AND ATTEMPTED DESTRUCTION OF STREET CAR

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 7.—Disorders in the Donora-Monessen region, along the Monongahela River, where numbers of steel workers are still on strike, kept the county authorities and the state police busy today. Four men arrested by troopers were held for trial on charge of feloniously dynamiting a house with intent to committ murder, and three men were arrested today for alleged complicity in an attempt to dynamite a street car.

Round Up Leaders.

Police patrols have been increased and every possible effort was being made today to round up the leaders of the outrages. At strike headquarters here, officials were busy with the task of caring for striking workers and their families.

Steel companies made no statement other than that the mills were operating as on other days of the week.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste is not eliminated d ayby day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the alimentary canal before eating more food.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside bath-

ROWLAND'S SLAYER NOT YET CAPTURED

REWARD WILL LIKELY BE OFFERED FOR ARREST OF THE MURDERER

Toronto, Nov. 7.—The untiring efforts of Detectives Levitt and Mulholland, and the county and Provincial police in the direction of apprehending the murderer of John G. Rowland, the taxi-cab driver, being unavailing, it is understood that a reward will be offered by the police for information which may lead to the arrest of the fugitive. Local detectives, and the county and Provincial men have searched railway construction camps and various places around Agincourt and Leaside for the murderer, but without result

One of the taxi drivers at the Union Station stand remembers seeing a foreigner in the act of engaging Rowland to drive him at 11.30 on Monday evening last. But at the time he had paid scant attention to the alien fare, and could not describe him. The taxicab drivers throughout the city have offered every assistance to the police in their search for the murderer of their comrade.

Several of the chauffeurs at the Toronto Street and Union Station stands declare emphatically that they will refuse to convey persons who desire to go out of the city late at night. One driver said that he refused two country runs last night.

As far as can be learned there were no witnesses of the alleged struggle between Rowland and his assailant last Tuesday morning at Bayview Avenue and Merton Street, where the crime was committed. In view of Rowland's high character, the theory that the murderer asked Rowland to convey whiskey from Leaside and was refused, is gaining credence. It is believed that the crime was caused by Rowland's refusal to be a party to this desired misdemeanor.

RADIAL SYSTEM FOR WESTERN ONTARIO

SIR ADAM BECK ANNOUNCES PLAN TO COST OVER SIX MILLIONS

Galt, Nov. 7.—Plans for an elaborate system of Hydro radials for Western Ontario were outlined here when Sir Adam Beck, chairman, and Chief Engineer Gaby of the Hydro Commission, addressed a meeting of civic officials representing all municipalities from Hamilton to as far north as Elmira. The meeting also developed another great evidence of confidence in the Hydro champion, the council chamber of the city hall being packed to the doors.

Engineer Gaby in a detailed report outlined the proposed system which will start at Hamilton, comencing at a point on the Toronto-Hamilton-Niagara line about three quarters of a mile west of the terminal, then running westerly along the south side of marsh and through Dundas valley to Capetown crossing G.T.R. near that point and continuing in direct line to south of Galt, entering this city along the Grand River, which it will follow, and Schenider's Creek, into Kitchener. From Kitchener the line will extend in practically a direct line through Waterloo to Elmira, off this main line it is proposed to run a branch from the junction on the Galt-Kitchener section through Preston and Hespeller along the Speed River into the centre of Guelph. The connection much desired by Guelph as well as Galt, Preston and Hespeler with Puslinch Lake will be provided by a branch line

Cost Will Be $6,530,000.

It is estimated that capital cost, including right-of-way track construction, buildings, overhead construction, sub-stations and rolling stock, will be $6,530,000, while annual operating revenue from both passenger and freight services is figured at $971,247. The construction of the line will be of the most modern type and 1200 volt system of power supply is to be used. The equipment will be similar to that of the London and Port Stanley Railway Hoully service will be given over all portions of the line, with limited and local cars.

Seventeen municipalities interested will vote on this question Jan. 1.

BALLET COSTUMES SHOCK CLERGYMAN

PASTOR REFUSES TO ACT AS PATRON OF PARADE OF GIRLS

Port Chester, N. Y., Nov. 7.—A sensation was caused in society and religious circles here when the Rev. Harry B. Heald, rector of St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, announced that because of the abbreviated skirts and diaphanous draperies to be worn by young women in a "parade," or pageant of dancing and singing, he has withdrawn his name and that of Mrs. Heald from the list of patrons and patronesses. The "parada" is to be given for the benefit of the Woman's Club Tuberculosis Fund.

The Rev. Mr. Heald and Mrs. Heald were chaperons at a dance last Monday night in a gymnasium of the high school in which the "parada" is being given. While passing through the high school the rector said he saw some of the members of the caste passing from the dressing room to the stage.

"I was both amazed and grieved," he said, "to think that the costumes worn by many of the girls were acceptable to people whose standards of morals and conduct I know to be high."

Among the patrons and patronesses are officials of the Rev. Mr. Heald's church and many other persons prominent in Port Chester.

Seamless low cut costumes, skirts worn only to the knees and the showing of knees in the costumes of sixteen girls in a Scottish drill are said to have caused the rector's action.

FARMERS TAKE LEAD OUT IN MANITOBA

W. G. WILLIS CHOSEN IS CONSERVATIVE LEADER AT PARTY CONVENTION

Winnipeg, Nov. 7.—At a well-attended convention of the Manitoba Conservative party, W. G. Willis, farmer, of Boissevain, was unanimously chosen Provincial leader. The Organization Committee report adopted this morning contained several platform planks, most important of which are:

"There is no doubt," said Mr. Willis, interviewed on the subject, "that Manitoba's next Legislature will comprise a great many more farmers than it does at present. There are only seven at present, and I confidently expect that this number will be more than doubled." Mr. Willis would not predict what the political color of these farmers would be in the majority. "They may be Conservative, Liberal or Independent Farmers," he declared, "but they will be farmers first of all."

Sutherland, 331 Sherbourne street, who were returning from a party shortly before 2 a.m. heard moans proceeding from the lane, and on investigating, discovered the constable, who was lying on his face, his tunic being soaked in blood. Clymer telephoned police headquarters and Sergeants-Detectives Taylor and Young were assigend to the case.

When found Policeman Milton had his bation in his right hand, indicating that he had been engaged in a struggle with a burglar. A revolver containing two discharged cartridges was found near the wounded man, but the constable's pistol was missing. A coat and a pair of woollen mittens, evidently the property of the burglar and which had been torn off him in the struggle, were also found.

The wounded policeman was removed to St. Michael's Hospital in an unconscious condition and but little hope is entertained of his recovery. The burglar has not yet been located.

Mr. W Wasserman, who resides next door to the lane in which the shooting took place, distinctly heard two shots fired.

The Victim's Story.

In his ante-mortem statement, taken at 2:30 this morning, P. C. Milton said he heard a crash of glass at the rear of v68 Yonge st., and when he went behind he saw a man in the building with a light. He called upon him to come out. This he failed to do and Milton entered the building. A struggle ensued. The burglar broke loose, and drawing a revolver, fired two shots and ran to the lane. Milton attempted to follow but fell to the ground from weakuess.

CHICAGO'S MURDER RECORD.

Had One Such Crime Every Day During 1918.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—In addressing the Chicago Association of Commerce Edwin W. Sims, president of the Chicago Crime Commission, and former United States District Attorney, declared that Chicago, with its population of three millions has more murders in a year than England, Scotland and Wales, with their forty millions of people. He said that last year the murders in Chicago averaged one a day. "Crime in this city is as highly organized as a mail order business," said Mr. Sims. "There is not a police captain in the city today who, backed up by the prosecuting authorities and the courts, cannot reduce crime in his precinct 50 per cent. in thirty days if he wants to. Crime conditions in Chicago are appalling."

Economy of Ford Service

WEAR is unavoidable even in the best car, but certain parts wear out more quickly than others. There is no need of scrapping your car because the piston rings have seen their day, because the platinum points of the vibrators are worn out. Probably the rest of the car is as good as new.

Medical men agree that the human body is renewed, cell by cell, every seven years. You can do the same with your Ford Car and prolong its life at minimum cost by replacing worn parts from time to time.

Ford service has been the means of doubling the lives of hundreds of Ford Cars, and cutting down the cost of motoring. The fact that a Ford Touring Car, which costs $690, f.o.b. Ford, Ont., can be purchased part by part separately for $917 is ample proof of the economy of driving a Ford Car.

It will pay you to have your car overhauled during the winter months. 700 Canadian Dealers and over 2,000 Service Garages supply genuine Ford parts and prompt repair service.

When buying, choose a Ford, and take advantage of the economy of Ford service.

hursday's sessions were featured n address by John R. r. Mott said that at no time in history of Christianity were na- s and classes of people more re- ive to Christianity. "In this r of world crisis and suffering hour of Christian opportunity has arrived," he said. "Today we see the leaders of all the nations of the world throwing up their hands, unable to solve the great industrial and social problems. It is an encouraging sign that there is not one prominent leader in any nation who does not give the impression of being more teachable than ever before.

"The plastic moment must not be allowed to pass by. Every race, nation and other grouping of people is accessible to Christianity now as never before. The Christian moulds must be formed. We will have lost the war if there is not a marvelous expansion of true Christianity in the near future."

William Hiram Foulks of the New Era movement of the Presbyterian Church, explained the purposes of the Inter-Church World Movement, emphasizing the fact that it was not an attempt to create a "super church" but was simply a means for co-operative efforts and unity of action on the part of Protestant bodies. It would not in the least impair the autonomy or independence of any denomination. "If the Inter-Church World Movement should fail," he concluded, "we will have failed God."

All aspects of the Church in its relation to industry, society and economics will be discussed at the "school," the "teachers" being authorities in their particular fields.

Lady Arabella Stuart.

The history of Lady Arabella Stuart was a succession of romantic incidents and disasters. She was the daughter of Charles Stuart, Earl of Lennox, and being in the line of succession to the throne, was the object of jealous care by Queen Elizabeth, who attempted to marry her off to some European prince, some of whom believed that the line of succession to the throne, says an exchange. When she was 33 she married William Seymour, son of Lord Beauchamp. Her marriage had been secret, and when Elizabeth heard of it she had Seymour committed to the tower, while Arabella was detained as a prisoner in the house of Sir Thomas Parry. Both lovers escaped, but poor Arabella was caught and brought back and placed in the tower, where she remained until her death in 1615.

Moving Silhouettes.

A new pleasure impends for the patrons of the motion picture theatre, and, for all one knows, a new form of entertainment which may develop a wider scope than one might at first imagine. Everybody is more or less acquainted with the amusing quality of pictured silhouettes, those comic shadows which are almost invariably decorative as well as entertaining; and now that the way has been found to impart movement to them on the picture screen, the results can hardly fail to give pleasure to large numbers of people. As the thing is done mechanically, the actors perform in front of a brightly illuminated screen, and the motion picture camera takes them as silhouettes. By combining silhouettes that have been drawn by hand with those made by the actors the field of shadow drama is opened to all sorts of fantastic effects. Here one may foresee "movies" for children to which no critic can object.

GENERAL DEBILITY FOLLOWING INFLUENZA

STRENGTH CAN ONLY BE REGAINED BY ENRICHING THE BLOOD.

Following a wide spread epidemic of influenza, general debility is on the increase, and its effects may be noticed in the worn listless appearance of so many of the men and women you meet. Influenza always leaves behind it impaired vitality, and with the modern conditions of life that use up nerve force so rapidly, general debility becomes one of the most common maladies. The symptoms of debility vary, but weakness is always present. There is poor digestion, langour, weak, aching back, wakefulness at night, often distressing headaches and a feeling of fatigue. These symptoms indicate impure and impoverished blood. It is significant of nearly every attack of influenza that it is followed by anaemia and debility.

For all such run-down conditions, new blood is the most reliable cure, sufferers should at once begin to make thin blood rich and red with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Under a fair treatment with this medicine they will realize more and more the health-restoring influence of good rich blood, and how this new blood brings a feeling of new strength and increased vitality. Proof is given in the case of Mrs. G. Robertson, Wingham, Ont., who says:—"When the Spanish influenza spread over our town I happened to be one of the first attacked, and the attack was a very severe one, and worse still the after effects of the trouble left me in continuous misery. I had severe pains in my side, felt low-spirited, and with no ambition whatever. My head ached almost continually, my eyes felt heavy, and pimples broke out on my face. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking them for a time I felt like my old self able to do my housework, and feeling well and strong. I can strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for the serious after-effects of influenza as I am sure they will restore all sufferers to good health."

You can get these Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The A. O. N. G. Club met at the home of Mrs. Dave Charlton on Tuesday evening. About fifteen members were present. Progressive euchre was the chief amusement of the evening at which Mrs. J. Twist scored the highest number of points. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. W. J. Charlton's.

The Chancel Guild of St. John's Church held an afternoon tea and sale of home-made cooking, candy, vegetables, etc., in the Sunday school room on Thursday afternoon. The sum of $48.25 was realized. Mrs. G. B. Hilliard and Mrs. O. A. Langley were the saleladies for the home made cooking and candy. The fancy work booth was under the management of Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald, while Mrs. Marling, Mrs. W. Webster and Miss Graham served tea.

The anniversary services will be held in the Lakefield Presbyterian Church on Armistice Sunday, Nov 9th, when Rev. (Capt.) James Rollins, B.A., of St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, will speak at the 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. services. The choir will provide special music and a special thank offering will be taken up in aid of the church funds. Monday evening, Nov. 10th, a thanksgiving dinner and concert will be given. Supper will be served from 5:30 to 8 o'clock, after which a first-class program will be rendered, consisting of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, etc.

Very Few Deserters.

The Canadian Press is officially informed that the total number of desertions in the Canadian forces since August, 1914, and not accounted for, is 1,733.

When it is remembered that over 420,000 troops went overseas from Canada, this is considered below the average. It must also be borne in mind that included in this number are those who deserted from the first contingent of about 33,000 men, a high proportion of whom were men born in the British Isles.

Many of these had served in the home forces. Shortly after the arrival of the first continent in England, a considerable number of these deserted, and in many cases, it is understood, they re-enlisted in their old British regiment. Thus, at the beginning of the war, in 1914, there was a much higher proportion of desertions than in any year since.

On an average about 14 deserters a month are being accounted for, so that number is likely to be considerably reduced.

The total number of missing in battle casualties and not accounted for since the beginning of the war is 161.

CHANGING THEIR NAMES.

New Fad Has Developed In England In Recent Years.

A name to Englishmen had so little in it that until the outbreak of the war a man could call himself anything he liked without consulting the law. A privilege which enabled him to indulge his fancy for a resounding name or to get rid of an ugly patronymic like Buggs, which it is recorded was exchanged by a saloon-keeper for a combination of the old English names Norfolk-Howard.

During the last four years alone the following names have been abandoned: Baggs, Buggy, Gotobed, Onions, Outlaw, Pickles, Scragg and Tart.

When the war broke out there was a rush among people who bore German names to change them, but in 1914 the Defence of the Realm Act stopped enemy aliens from doing so, but British subjects were still permitted to make a change, and they have done so ever since, and continue to do so. Up to date over 2,000 changes of enemy surnames have taken place since the war broke out.

The first foreign surname changed after the war broke out was that of a Liverpool man, who changed his Rosenheim to Rose on August 11, 1914, and by the end of the month 64 similar names were changed. The sinking of the Lusitania was followed by an increase in changes to 118 and 132 in May and June, 1915. After this the figures dropped until January, 1919, when the number rose to 80, which has been the average figure for this year.

A list issued by the British Empire Union gives a number of the changes, and it is not difficult to trace the different principles on which the changes have been effected. In many cases there have been direct translations, such as Konig into King, Muller into Miller, Schloss into Castle and Schneidner into Taylor. Sometimes the translation has been indirect, such as Steinthal into Petrie, through "petros," the Greek word for Stone, and Leinenweber into Webster, which is the Scots for weaver.

A very popular form of change has been the adoption of the initial letter, especially Gee, Kay and Kaye, for unpronounceable polysyllables. Thus we can understand that Mr. Gunzenhauser may have been known by his friends for years as Mr. Gee, and Mr. Kronenberger as Mr. Kay. In other cases the first syllable has been adopted, such as Hittbrecht into Hill, or it has been the last syllable, such as Hansmann into Mann.

In the process of change a great many famous Teutonic names have disappeared, notably those of Bach, Handel, Hindenburg, Koch, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Schumann and Wagner. A number of celebrated British names have been utilized, such as Burns, Gainsborough, Raeburn, Scott, Shelly, Sheridan and Wallace. Among the notable titles adopted as surnames are those of Airlie, Beresford, Burnham, Soventry, Curzon, French, Milner, Ruthven, Rutland, Sheffield and Wentworth.

A very curious aspect of the question is in the fact that different members of the same family, living sometimes in the same house, have changed their names at different periods during the war. Still more curious is the change of the same name by people of the same address into different names. In one case a Mr. Meissenheim became Mason and another Homer.

BIRTH OF A POEM.

"In Flanders Fields" Born of Fire and Blood."

"In Flanders Fields," to quote the words of Maj.-Gen. Morrison, who commanded the brigade to which Lieut.-Col. McCrae was attached, "was literally born of fire and blood during the hottest phase of the second battle of Ypres.

"My headquarters were in a trench on the top of the bank of the Ypres Canal; and John had his dressing station in a hole dug in the foot of the bank. During periods of the battle men who were shot actually rolled down the bank into his dressing station. Along from us a few hundred yards was the headquarters of a regiment, and many times during the sixteen days of the battle, he and I watched them burying their dead whenever there was a lull. Thus the crosses, row on row, grew into a good-sized cemetery.

"Just as he describes, we often heard the larks singing high in the air, between the the crash of the shell and the reports of the guns in the battery just beside us. I have a letter from him in which he mentions having written the poem to pass away the time between the arrival of batches of wounded, and partly as an experiment with several varieties of poetic meter."

The unit with which McCrae served was the most advanced of all the Allies' guns by a good deal, except one French battery, which stayed in a position yet more advanced for two days, and then had to be taken out.

Heroic Work of Canadian Doctors.

The faithful labors of the Canadian Army Medical Corps are drawing to a close. At the date of the armistice 1,000 sick and wounded soldiers lay in France and 38,000 in England. At the end of September there were only 164 Canadian soldiers on the roster, of whom seven were wounded men, twenty-four blind and the rest sick.

The work of the corps is enshrined in 64 boxes of records which are awaiting despatch to Canada.

Maj.-Gen. G. L. Foster, C.B., Director-General of Medical Service, claims that a detailed record of the injuries and treatment of every man who passed through his hands may be found in those 64 boxes to prove, if necessary, to every wife and mother in Canada that no man of hers ever failed to receive proper consideration.

He finds no words of praise too high for the medical men who left their practices in Canada and came overseas to work and suffer with the troops either under fire, where their casualties were on a level with the infantry, or in the drudgery of administration.

"I am intensely proud to belong to such a service," said Gen. Foster, "and consider it a splendid privilege to have lived in an age which produced this war, for, as the horrors were very great, the heroism which faced them was infinitely greater. The Canadian and Imperial medical services worked together like brothers, and close association helped us to grow, until the C.A.M.C. became as large as the whole of the British R.A.M.C. at the time of the South African war."

Finland and Australia.

Finland has discovered Australia, and it is hoped that the Commonwealth will soon recognize commercially the enterprising new republic. Trade relations with Australia are being sought, and Finland will be glad to exchange cream separators and safety matches, paper pulp and timber for a little of Australia's surplus meat and wheat. The consul of the new republic has established his headquarters in Sydney, New South Wales, and has already obtained excellent publicity in the shape of press interviews. Finland must surely have been studying American methods of production.

LINDSAY HEBREW BREWED HIS WINE

MADE NO CONCEALMENT OF FACT—WAS FOR RELIGIOUS PURPOSES

A Lindsay barrister for the defendant, H. Applebaum, in the case of the Crown v. Applebaum, thought it strange that the first case the Ontario License Board against a Hebrew for having home-made wine in his possession should be tried in this town. Applebaum, who runs a junk shop, has his dwelling in connection therewith, and when a spotter from the Department walked in and found a barrel which was not hidden from view and which the defendant admitted contained home-made wine, he said it was for religious purposes. Rabbi Jacob Gordon, of Toronto, gave evidence to show that according to the law of Moses, which was the Jewish law, good Hebrews had to have "old pure" wine for sanctification purposes on Saturdays and Sundays, and particularly during the Passover. This was the belief of the good Jew. He admitted that in Toronto wine for such purposes was as old as seven years, and consequently over 35 per cent. alcohol; also that for the last Passover he had secured an order from Chairman Flavelle to use "pure" wine. If a Jew was poor, and could not buy wine, he must even sell his garment to secure the wine. There should be no substitute, not even watered wine, unless th "old pure" wine could not be secured.

The prosecuting lawyer admitted that, in his opinion, Applebaum was innocent of any intent to break the law.

The defendant's lawyer said Applebaum was simply living up to his Jewish belief and could not see why he had been singled out for prosecution any more than any other religious denomination partaking of sacrament, which he said was over 2½ per cent., and Magistrate Bradford said his sympathy was entirely with Applebaum, who was simply living up to his religious belief, but the Act was explicit and he could not do otherwise than fine him the minimum fine of $200 and costs, intimating that the defendant might put in an appeal to the Ontario License Board for a remission of the fine.

OUR GUNS IN FRANCE

SOME FIGURES CONCERNING CANADIAN ARTILLERY.

During the Entire War, Our Army at the Front Lost Only Two Cannon in the Battle of Sanctuary Wood and They Were Recaptured Inside of a Few Hours When the Troops Advanced.

GEN. SIR EDWARD MORRISON, who was in command of the Canadian artillery in the war, addressed the Canadian Club at Hamilton the other day—in which city he was at one time a newspaper editor—and gave some information about the work of the Canadian guns in the war which the people of this country will be proud to learn.

He repeated the statement of Gen. Currie that in the war the Canadians never lost a gun, although the artillery fought in something like twenty-three pitched battles. A newspaper report appeared on one occasion saying that the Canadians had lost a battery, but the facts in that case were that two 18-pounders had been placed close to the front-line trenches for special purposes and were overrun by the enemy, but the Canadian artillery screened the position with fire, the enemy could not remove the guns, and our troops recaptured them with the gun crews lying about them just as they had fallen. The general himself was the first artillery officer to reach these guns after they had been retaken; they were as they had been at the last moment of the fighting; the sights of both guns and the breech of one had been smashed by their crews so that they would be useless to the enemy; one gun had a live shell in the bore and the dead gunner lay across the trail with the lanyard in his hand." This gallant exploit of our artillery was one of the incidents of Sanctuary Woods.

The first achievement of the Canadian heavy artillery was to knock down, with two rounds, the dominating tower of the church at Fromelles, a German observation point which had been previously shot at for weeks without result. This notable feat resulted in the Canadian heavy battery being taken over by the first army; and, as the general puts it, "we did not see it again for nearly two years." And, by the way, this serves to remind us that our guns, sometimes, as well as those of the enemy, fired on churches.

The first Canadian Division went to France equipped with nine batteries of 18 pounders and one battery of 6-inch guns, a total of 40 in all. In France a brigade of modern 4.5 howitzers was loaned by the British, until a Canadian brigade arrived after the second battle of Ypres. By the time the armistice was signed the Canadians had 266 field guns and 18 batteries of heavy artillery. On October 1, 1918, the Canadian guns fired 7,000 tons of ammunition in the course of the day, while the Canadian corps fought thirteen German divisions. In a month, at Passchendaele, the Canadian artillery fired nearly two million shells, which, if loaded on railway trucks, would make a train 17½ miles long. In about twelve days at Amiens and after, the ammunition expended, if loaded on motor lorries end to end, would stretch 37 miles. During the famous hundred days, less the battle of Amiens, the Canadian artillery fired 45,180 tons of ammunition, or a total of 2,737,039 shells.

These figures give some idea of the work done by the Canadian artillery and it is a matter of common report that Gen. Morrison deserves great credit for the skill and enterprise that characterized his command. It is said that at the ending of the war fifty heavy guns of the Canadian corps' artillery were the only heavy guns that kept pace with the march of the infantry, and were deployed on the banks of the Rhine to cover the crossings at Cologne and Bonn on the morning of December 13, 1918. On the previous day these heavy guns had made the unprecedented march of forty-two miles.

FOUR MILLION FOR WORKERS

That Amount to be Paid Out Under Workmen's Compensation Act.

The tremendous value of the Workmen's Compensation Act to the workers of the Province is indicated in a statement issued by the board yesterday showing the payment of $2,859,448 in compensation for the first ten months of the year, an amount that exceeded that for the corresponding period of last year, though accidents during 1919 were fewer in number. The increase is accounted for by the general upward trend in wages and the increase in widows' and children's allowances in accidents happening after April 24. The total for the year is expected to be well over that of 1918, which was $3,514,648, exclusive of $369,346 paid for medical aid.

An interesting feature of the statement is the record of accidents for October, which reflects an important increase in industrial activity since midsummer. The number of accidents reported was 4,329 compared with a monthly average since the beginning of the year of 3,897. The boom in the building trades is contributing largely to the total of accidents.

NO MAN NEEDED.

This Lighthouse Can Be Worked From the Distant Shore.

Of recent years we have had automatic lights, and even automatic lightships, but the first unattended lighthouse with a powerful fog signal is the recently completed Platte Fourgere lighthouse, marking the entrance to Russell Channel, leading to St. Peter's Part, Guernsey, a spot which figures in Victor Hugo's romance, "The Toilers of the Sea."

This tower, built of ferro-concrete on a wave-washed rock, is of irregular octagonal shape, eighty feet high, says the New York Times. The room below the gallery contains many ingenious electrical devices, the invention of the late engineer-in-chief, E. A. Catford, controlled from the shore by a submarine cable nearly a mile and a half long. This cable is of great strength, being eleven inches in circumference and weighing forty-five tons to the nautical mile. By its aid the foghorn and siren are regularly blown—they have been heard thirty miles away on the French coast—while the current it carries also controls the light in the lantern. For illuminating expenses of coastline where the erection of an ordinary tower would be prohibitive on account of its cost, this type of lighthouse has certaintly much to commend it. The Platte Fourgere installation involved an expenditure of only $50,000.

It is proposed to use this type of automatic lighthouse for illuminating Hudson Bay and Hudson Straits in connection with the opening of these waters and the carriage of wheat by the new railway to Fort Churchill. A proposal to establish similar lights on the more exposed and barren coasts of South America has also been considered.

A Frontier College.

The Reading Camp Association, which was started nineteen years ago by Mr. Alfred Fitzpatrick, a graduate of Queen's, to provide daily newspapers and other attractive reading matter for lumber, mining, and construction camps, has grown to such an extent that it was incorporated recently under the name of the "Frontier College" in order that more attention may be paid to the educational side of the work. It has already brought to 300 more or less permanent camps and works at least some portion of primary, secondary, and college education, and Mr. Fitzpatrick hopes to extend its good work in the future.

The staff of the "Frontier College" is as unique as the organization itself, being chosen from college graduates or under-graduates who must understand the point of view of the men and who consequently share with them their daily labor. It is only during the evening that the instructor does his real work in the camps, and he is now required to sign an agreement to teach a minimum of ten hours a weeks, Saturday night being set aside for entertainment, and, if possible, Sunday being occupied with reading and writing letters. Dr. J. D. Macdougall, in his book, "Building the North," pays a high tribute to the success of the "Frontier College." The organization receives small grants from the Governments of the different provinces, but the financial burden is carried chiefly by a few public-spirited citizens who appreciate the excellent results which flow from it.

No Trace of Treasures.

It is regrettable that we know so little about King Hiram—from whose seaport of Tyre, 100 miles north of Jerusalem, most of the material was shipped for building the famous temple. Probably, like Solomon, he had great stores of jewels, but none of them has been preserved, and, as for Carthage (called Tarshish in the Bible) it was destroyed so utterly by the Romans that no identifiable relics of the kind have survived.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Secret of Happiness.

The happiness of life is made up of minute fractions—the little charities, a kiss, a smile, a kind look or word, a heartfelt compliment in the disguise of a joke, and the countless other essentials to peace of mind which are few, simple and always close at hand. If we would cultivate the habit of making a note of these things, we would get more pleasure out of the common experiences of everyday life and should soon master the secret of happiness.

ADVERTISE IN THE REVIEW

King George Was Trained Like Any Other Midshipman Who Enters British Navy

THE navy had advanced a good deal since King George began his nautical experiences, thirty years earlier. King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, showed his practical appreciation of the value of a sea training when he decided to put both his sons into the navy. Possibly he was influenced in this decision by a recollection of what he himself had missed. It is true that among the most popular pictures of King Edward as a small boy were those showing him in a sailor dress, and even something approaching the dress of a midshipman, but as a matter of fact he never served in the navy or received any other nautical instruction than that he derived from the sailors when on board the royal yacht.

In 1878, when the time came for King Edward's sons, Prince Albert and Prince George, to join the navy, the training of cadets was entirely carried out on board the old hulk Britannia, moored off Dartmouth. After nearly two years there, the princes embarked in the Bacchente, Captain Lord Charles Scott, which made prolonged cruises for three years, including a voyage around the world. After their return Prince Albert, who was not intended to follow the naval career, left the service for Cambridge University, but his younger brother was appointed a midshipman of the Canada, corvette, in which he visited Canada in 1883. In the following year he became a sub-lieutenant and underwent courses of instruction at Greenwich and Portsmouth, and, having passed the usual examinations with credit, he obtained his lieutenant's commission on October 8, 1885. The greater part of the next two years was spent on the Mediterranean station, first on the Thunderer, a little later on the Dreadnought, and afterward on the Alexandra, which was then the flagship of the late Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, at that time better known as the Duke of Edinburgh. His next appointment was to the Northumberland, in the Channel and then, in 1889, he received his first independent command, torpedo boat No 79.

It was while in command of this boat that Prince George had an opportunity of displaying his professional knowledge and the enthusiasm for which he was noted. While with another torpedo boat reconnoitring off an Irish harbor, during manoeuvres, his consort broke down, and after a vain attempt to get her into harbor because of the tow rope breaking Prince George returned to his base and reported the facts. Other vessels were there and the prince had been up all night, but so keen was his desire to finish the job that he himself obtained a brand new hemp hawser and went back to rescue his friend, which he did, and towed him safely home. A flag officer present said it was a smart piece of seamanship, which would have done credit to an officer with a far wider experience of such work than the prince had then enjoyed.

A further exhibition of his close working knowledge of the navy was afforded when he received command of the gunboat Thrush at the age of twenty-five, and after nearly thirteen years' service. Many stories are told about the King at this period, all of which indicate his professional capacity and his energy and knowledge of handling men. It was after his return home from his cruise in this little gunboat that he was promoted to commander, on August 24, 1891. In the following year he commissioned the new cruiser Melampus of 3,400 tons, for service in the naval manoeuvres. This command, however, lasted for only two months. The death of his elder brother, Prince Albert, Duke of Clarence, had brought him into the direct line of succession to the throne. After his marriage, in 1893, to his cousin, Princess Mary of Teck, he only served once afloat. This was in 1898, when as a captain he commanded the cruiser Crescent for a short period. He has, however, made frequent oversea voyages since that time, the chief of which were in the Ophir, to the British overseas dominions, in 1901; in the Indomitable, to Canada, in 1908, and in the Medina, for the Durbar in India, in 1911-12.

Both in regard to his training and to his promotions King George closely followed the routine of the navy. He was thirty-five years old before he became a rear-admiral, whereas Sir David Beatty for instance was thirty-eight. In the Britannia the King and his brother were treated like all other cadets, and later in the fleet he served in all the grades below flag rank and fulfilled every duty required of the naval officer of his time. It was owing to this judicious policy that the King became so keenly interested in his profession. His comrades were men of his own age and outlook, instead of being older and of another school as would have been the case had his advance been accelerated because of his royal birth. In a way, too, it was especially fortunate that at a time when a great war was being waged in which the struggle at sea was all-important, Britain's King should have been possessed of the ability and experience necessary to understand, from the point of view of a naval officer, the various changes in the situation afloat.

Found Cache of Honey.

As Mervin and John Laycock, of Meaford, Ont., who suffered the loss of their home and all their household effects by fire early in September, were walking along the bank of the river a few days later their attention was arrested by the buzzing of bees in an old elm tree. They at once went to the owner of the property and got his permission to cut down the tree, and, to their great surprise, they found that the hollow of the tree about 15 feet above the ground was thickly coated with combs containing mixed honey, which had been deposited there by a swarm of tame bees. By cutting out eight feet of the tree and smoking the bees, the young men were fortunate in securing 86 pounds of delicious comb honey. It is thought that the bees must have come from a distance, and that they had been in the tree for a long time, as the quantity of honey would seem to indicate.

She Did Her Bit.

Miss Margaret Bell Saunders, the Toronto newspaper woman who did such varied war service abroad, has arrived in Canada on the Scandinavian. Few Canadian women have had a more varied experience this past five years. Sailing for England in the early summer of 1914 for a holiday on the continent with Madame Innis-Taylor, both were in England when the crisis came. As Madame Innis-Taylor had studied in Belgium and knew the language, she joined Mrs. Agar Adamson in her work for the Belgians. Miss Saunders joined her, and for months both worked in a hut at Furnes. Here a bomb injured Miss Saunders so severely that she was removed to the famous hospital at La Panne, where the Belgian Queen paid her a visit.

Not So Eager.

"So you want to be my son-in-law do you?" asked the old man, with as much fierceness as he could assume.

"Well," said the young man, "I don't particularly want to, but I suppose I shall have to be, if I marry your daughter."

Not Daunted.

"I have a surprise for you, dearest," she said just after their engagement, "I can cook just as well as I can play the piano." His face fell. "It doesn't matter, dearest," he said finally; "we can board, you know."

Drum's Place in Music.

The drum is a relic of ancient ages. Music in its crudest form is fundamentally rhythm—later to develop into harmony. The drum, lacking pitch, lacking true musical expression, nevertheless essentially registers rhythm. It represents music in its infancy as devised by primitive peoples.

The Great Art.

There is but one art—to omit! Oh, if I knew how to omit I would ask no other knowledge. A man who knew how to omit would make an "Iliad" of a daily paper.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

If it weren't for the poor little microbes the doctors would have to fix the blame elsewhere.

Salt Used as Money.

The value of salt is recognized in all countries, and in those parts of the world where it is scarce it is used as money. In some parts of Abyssinia bars of salt and rifle cartridges are the only small change in circulation. The bars are ten inches long and two inches in length and breadth. Five or eight "salts" make one dollar, depending on the distance of the source of supply. Three cartridges have the value of one salt.

Seemed Indelicate.

Maggie always liked to talk over the telephone; one morning before she was dressed, aunty called up and after talking to mamma asked to speak to Maggie, but she positively refused to come to the phone, and when mamma asked her why she would not talk to aunty over the phone she said, "I's 'shamed to talk when I isn't dressed."—Chicago Tribune.

FOUND GUILTY OF NEGLECT

THREE YEARS' PUNISHMENT FOR MAN WHO ALLOWED A SERIOUS SITUATION TO DEVELOP.

Failure to take proper precautions has been responsible for many deaths, and is the cause of much suffering and hardship to-day.

Take the case of Wm. Dune, 313 Gerrard St. East, Toronto, Ont. Mr. Dune was a chronic rheumatic sufferer for ten years. Three years of that ten he spent in bed suffering indescribable torture. Picture the joy of this man on finding that Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules were restoring him to normal health again. Here are a few extracts from his letter to us: "During the past ten years I have been laid up with Rheumatism. One attack confined me to my bed for a year, and a second attack left me helpless for over two years. After I had tried almost everything, a friend got me a box of T.R.C.'s, and a few doses convinced me that I had at last found the proper remedy for my trouble. T.R.C.'s improved my condition rapidly, and I find that had it not been for T.R.C.'s I should have been laid up for years." T.R.C.'s are certainly wonder workers. Try them.

Ask your Druggist or write us for our new booklet; it is interesting and costs you nothing (Templetons, 142 King West, Toronto). We mail T.R.C.'s anywhere on receipt of $1.04.

Are You a Spendthrift?

Your earning capacity may be five or ten dollars a day. Yet do you know that you are no better off than the girl who makes two dollars a day, unless you are saving money?

Perhaps through the years of labor your salary has doubled or trebled. How much are you ahead in consequence? Have you saved money?

You have your experience—yes. But if you lose your position and have to spend a couple of months finding another for which you are suited, you will find that experience does not butter your bread, and capability will not even pay your carfare.

If you have not saved, now is the time to begin, and the Victory Bonds place the opportunity right in your hand. Don't be satisfied with one bond, just because you won't miss the money. Get two or three bonds, learn to economize, and the joy of your money saved will be all the sweeter.

And never lose sight of the fact that in thus saving your money and accruing interest, you are serving the country you call home. You are helping Canada to hold her head high among the nations in making adequate provision for her wounded and crippled sons! in giving every man who fought a decent start in life. Is peace worth while? Or are we so selfish that we will not help in the only way that we can?

There is only one answer—the same which Canadian women gave to every appeal during the war. They will do their utmost.

Their Soup and Coffee.

A soldier, in writing home from France, stated that he was unable to mention the name of the river that coursed through his sector because if the missive fell into enemy hands it would furnish valuable information on the source of supply of the soup and coffee.—Chicago Tribune.

Companionship.

If the boy is not a companion to his father it is generally because the father was not a companion to the boy when the boy was a little fellow. Companionship is something which must grow through the years, especially for two people who live under the same roof and share the same fortunes.

Sounded Like That.

Dorothy's mother was getting her to repeat the Lord's prayer, and all went well until near the end. "And deliver us from evil," said her mother. "And deliver us from measles," repeated Dorothy.—Boston Transcript.

Sure Sign.

Said the head barber (all barbers being head ones, strictly speaking), "I can always tell a man who is used to shaving himself by the way he tries to puff out his cheeks in ticklish places."

Have You A Savings Account?

The harvest time suggests the opportunity to all wage-earners of taking advantage of their harvest time (that is their earning period) to lay by a portion of their income for "life's winter," when the earning power decreases and expenses still continue.

CAPTAIN COOKE FEELS FINE, NOW

VETERAN CONDUCTOR PRAISES TANLAC FOR OVERCOMING HIS TROUBLES.

"A few bottles of Tanlac has made me feel just like a new man," was the statement made by Capt. F. M. Cooke, resident at 144 East Winnifred St., St. Paul, Minn., recently. Captain Cooke has been a conductor on the Great Northern Railroad for fifteen years, and is one of the most popular men in the service of the company.

"For years," continued Captain Cooke, "I suffered from stomach trouble and had scarcely any appetite, and what little I ate disagreed with me so that I would become terribly nauseated. Gas would form on my stomach and affect my heart so I could hardly breathe. I had terrible headaches that would last for two or three weeks at a time and nearly drive me wild, and I would become so dizzy at times that I would have to grab hold of something to keep from falling. My nerves got in such bad shape I could sleep very little and I would get up in the morning feeling dull and heavy and all run down.

"Nothing I tried seemed to do me any good, and I kept getting worse all the time. A few weeks ago some one suggested that I try Tanlac and I got a bottle and began taking it, and after taking two bottles I felt a great deal better. I have a fine appetite now, and what I eat agrees with me perfectly. Gas has quit forming in my stomach and I am not troubled with shortness of breath. I never have any more headaches or dizzy spells and can sleep fine, and get up in the morning feeling full of life and energy. I never felt better in my life, and feel at times ten years younger. I am very grateful for what this Tanlac has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co. Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle and Son.

Sea Level.

Sea level in the scientific sense means theoretical mean or average from which elevations or depressions on the earth are calculated. The coast and geodetic survey, which is government authority on such subjects, says: "Mean sea level may be defined as the surface which would be assumed by the water of the oceans at rest if there were no action by the wind or by the tides due to the attraction of the moon and sun. The sea level surface is at all points at right angles to a free-swinging plummet."

Broom Corn in Argentina.

In Argentina the cultivation of broom corn is conducted along simple lines not differing much from that of ordinary corn. The broom corn is frequently sown after the wheat, flax or oats crop on the property has been harvested, and if there is abundant rain and if the frosts are late a good yield may be obtained, thus giving two harvests in the same year from a single piece of ground.

Modern Slavery.

There is no legal and formal slavery now in any Christian country. It survives in a mild form in most Mohammedan countries. The peonage system of Latin American countries is not much different from slavery, but rests upon a different theory. The peon is not supposed to be owned as property; he is supposed to be working to pay a debt which he owes the master.

Herodes' Subnormal Son.

Herodes, to overcome the extraordinary dullness of his son Atticus, educated along with him twenty-four little slaves of his own age. He gave each the name of the letter of the Greek alphabet. His son, in order to play with them, had to learn the alphabet to call their names.

The Fool Hen.

The lad went to the henhouse to gather eggs. He returned with only two eggs and said a hen was on the nest. He was told not to disturb the hen, but wait for a time and maybe he could find another egg. In half an hour he ran excitedly into the house, exclaiming: "That fool hen sat on the nest until the egg was boiling," and he held the egg up as proof.

Species of Fern.

The island of Mauritius, less than one-third the area of Delaware, has 235 native species of ferns; Java, a little larger than New York, has 460, while Brazil contains 387. All Europe furnishes but sixty-seven species, the arctic zone, 28; North America, north of Mexico, has about 175 native species.

Her Ears Open.

A little girl who always has her ears open for the conversation of her elders, heard her grandmother diagnosing a case of the hives. Later this little girl noticed a red spot on her arm. She ran to her grandmother, exclaiming: "Oh, grandma, see, I have the beaves, too."

MARION HOLMES CHATS WITH READERS

"Dear Marion Holmes: I am hesitating about buying fairy tales for my children this Christmas. Some think that stories of ogress and wicked sprites are bad for children to hear, making them nervous and afraid. What should you advise?
UNCERTAIN.

A believer in fairy tales of the right sort, for the reason that the imagination deserves nourishment as well as the other powers of the mind, I have a warm spot in my heart for fairy stories. However, the tale should be woven of gay and glinting material and not made horrible by the introduction of monsters. A book publisher said to me some years ago, "I think children really prefer 'bluggy' stories," and there is no doubt they do enjoy the shivering horror of such fantasies, but thinking of them after being "tucked in" and left alone in the dark is a disturbing experience.

I recall a cook and her two brothers just over from the island of legends and fairy tales who used to entertain a group of children at night by the kitchen fire. The giant who went after Jack in seven league boots had fire coming out of his tusks, which were like those of an elephant. There were dead men, too, who refused to stay dead, but insisted upon talking at their own wakes. All these narratives were lovely and absorbing, but after one had retired and the lights were out there were horrible hands in the air ready to clutch and strangle.

Therefore, in buying fairy tales, which I hope you will do for there are even some of us grownups who like them, look through the books carefully, selecting the merry, cheerful variety.

Dear Marion Holmes: In referring to a number of men and women who came from England is it correct to say, 'there is a group of English' or 'there is a group of Englishmen.' Thanking you. A. B. L.

You could refer to them as a group of English people.

Dear Marion Holmes: Will you please tell me how to make an ash tray of cigar bands? MARY H.

The trays of that sort that have come under my observation were made of a plain glass dish with the cigar papers pasted with transparent glue the right side against the outside of the dish.

Dear Marion Holmes: Do you know any foreign words which mean "events." I am trying to find a name for a club. If you know one will you print it as soon as possible?
ELIZABETH H.

Dear Marion Holmes: I am very unhappy and wonder if you will advise me what to do. I am a married woman with two little girls whom I am supporting, as my husband is very cruel to me. I work for him, I do all my work and keep my home neat and clean. I live next door to his mother, which means that I can have no friends come to the house, not even a woman who has been like a mother to me. My mother wants me to go east and live with her. She will take care of the children while I find something to do. I have forgiven my husband for the last time, as the more I do for him the harder he beats me. I have had him in court and even under peace bonds, but all that does no good. So please advise me; do not throw this letter aside, it means so much to me. I thank you. R. A. D.

Readers will bear witness that this column is not inclined to advise divorce. But if your husband beats you your life is in danger, and perhaps the lives of your children, for the human brute can be as dangerous as the wild beast. Separate yourself from the wretch and go home to your mother, and, poor soul, I hope the remainder of your existence will be peaceful.

Dear Marion Holmes: I have a brass lamp which has spots from having been neglected. Can you tell me how to remove them? I have tried silver polish, but to no avail, although it cleans other metals.
MRS. J. K.

The spots must be rust and I should think could be removed in the same way used for nickel in the same condition. Rub the spots with mutton fat and let remain for a few days then polish with powdered rotten stone and sweet oil.

Dear Marion Holmes: Is it true that carrots are good for the complexion? MILDRED.

At all events carrots are a wholesome vegetable and anything that makes for health should affect the complexion favorably.

There is a tradition about this vegetable which some of our girls may like to know. If inclined to be jealous eat carrots three nights in succession and your lover will be true, obviously in spite of himself.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headache, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

MEXICAN HAS PANACEA FOR OLD AGE

RAW VEGETABLES AND HONEY HE SAYS WILL SET BACK LIFE'S CLOCK.

New York, Nov. 8.— Feeble folk who have been thinking about acquiring renewed youth through transplanted interstitial glands are hereby notified that they may call it off.

Luis Abitia of Mexico city has a substitute that does not require surgical operations. He arrived yesterday from Vera Cruz aboard the Ward liner Mexico and important the prescription for the panacea to all the old and young skippers of Ship news with instructions to publish it to the universe, it being a universal comedy.

He is a disciple of Emilio Drefies, Mexican vegetarian, who hopes to live to be a few hundred years old unless cut down in his centennial adolescence by a Mexican revolution.

Prof. Abitia said: "This remedy for feebleness and promoter of longevity such as the prophets of old attained will not only restore vigor, but will assist you in finding your affinity." The remedy is so simple, the professor said, that many scientists thought it was too good to be true. All that you have to do is to eat raw vegetables and honey.

"The great fault of the people of the world," the Professor went on, "is the eating of cooked vegetables. Raw vegetables with honey, if eaten persistently, will bring one in closer touch with nature and thus enable one to find his or her affinity. I live as men and women used to live when the average lifetime was from 400 to 500 years."

After his tour of the world, which he began when he departed from Vera Cruz last week, the Professor says he and Dreffes will establish a cult in Mexco for the dissemination of their doctrine through the world. He expects that this will inspire Mexicans to make their country the very centre of everything fine in life and attract the best people in the world.

He expects to stop in this city six weeks and acquire in that time, partly through the inspiring diet of honey and raw vegetables, a perfect knowledge of the American language, with which he was unfamiliar yesterday. In two years, he said (in one language only) he will master all the languages on tap and incidently find his affinity.

The older man gets the harder it is for him to feel sorry for a woman whose pet dog has just died.

If all women who look back were turned into salt pillars the streets would be lined with statues.

Contentment is never begotten by regret.

It is easy to walk the tight rope of society if you have a good bank balance.

AN EXCHANGE OF MONEY THAT PAYS

A dollar bill is Canada's promise to pay.

So are Victory Bonds.

But Victory Bonds pay Interest.

Consider the security behind Victory Bonds—
Canada and all that is contained therein.

Consider the good rate of interest—
Victory Bonds pay 5½%—nearly twice as much as Savings Banks.

Consider the saleability of Victory Bonds—
Their use as collateral for a loan.
Their prospective advancement in price.

Consider the purpose for which Canada requires the money:—
Cleaning up our obligations to the army and maintaining the prosperity of the country.

Are not these reasons the best in the world for exchanging one kind of money for another?

Should not every Canadian put all his weight behind this Loan?

Should not he exchange all the money he has for Victory Bonds?—and all the money he can save for the next ten months to come?

Mr. Burnham and Soldiers' Gratuities

The following is a verbatim report part of the speech in Parliament of J. H. Burnham, M.P. on the Soldiers' gratuity question as it appears on Hansard:

The question which we are now discussing is one of very considerable difficulty. As with all questions of ways and means, it is a serious thing to indulge in the expenditure of a vast sum of money unless we are satisfied that it is necessary. With regard to the committee, I do not think there are two opinions. It was a fine committee; the personel was unexceptionable. They devoted their very best energies to the work and have done the best they could. I do not think there is the slightest disposition to feel that these gentlemen are not worthy of every consideration and praise.

This is not a party question. The committee was made up of members from both sides of the House. The whole House is interested in the soldier, and represents an undivided country in that respect. It must be remembered that our army was not a professional army. It was not an army in the old sense that when a soldier accepted the King's shilling he had signed a contract which specified all the terms. The Canadian army was a voluntary army. The men of the Canadian army were actuated by patriotic motives. They were called upon by a most anxious country to rush to the colours and save democracy, to rescue the world from the clutches of the Hun, and when they were asked to do that they were told: It is true that many of you have lucrative positions, that you are well established, that your way in life is more or less assured, but go. As Wellington said at Brussels, "Go not in order, but as if to a fire." Go, he said, because Quatre Bras was in danger. Our country was in danger and we said to our soldiers: "We will look after you and your dependents. We will see that when you come home you are in as good a position, not perhaps as when you left, but in as good a one as we can place you in."

What confronted the returned soldier when he came back? He saw that the people of this country had made vast sums of money while he had lost nearly all he had. I have seen people connected with manufactories who are rolling in wealth notwithstanding the war tax, who have every comfort, and are in a position they never dreamed of before the war. I would suggest that notwithstanding the war tax the Government should take account with them of this increase in wealth. heir business before and after the war should be taken into account, and the whole increase in their receipts should be appropriated for the benefit of the soldier. Those of us who remained at home must expect to divide our assets and the increases which have accrued to us with the men who went to war. It is our duty. It is only fair and right. If therefore, it can be established, and it can be easily, that notwithstanding all the war taxation there remains an immense sum that by all mortal right should be appropriated for the benefit of the soldier, we should proceed to appropriate it. We only need to look at the simple fact that the luxury in this country is unprecedented. It is not due to what has happened since the war, but to what happened during the war. That I say is one cause of the great discontent among the soldiers, and it is a very reasonable discontent. Vast sums of money were given for patriotic purposes and vast efforts were made in every way by those who remained at home, but there still remain such means as I have referred to that we should use for the benefit of the returned soldier and his dependents. He gave all he had. Did we give all we had? We certainly did not. You will find that it is this that has caused the discontent. Let there be fair play. When the soldier comes forward and says: "You have not done all you could for the soldier, and we only ask that you take a basis, for aid the need of the returned soldier." I say the soldier is more humane than we are if we refuse. Surely there is not a man in this House who if he saw a soldier in need would not take him into his house and look after him and see that he was cared for, on the basis of honour, not charity. Surely there is not one of us who would not do that, and feel a just pride in being able to do it.

In the same way the country should feel that if there is a single member of that dauntless army that fought in France for the rescue of the world and for our own safety, if there is one soldier or his dependent in actual need, his position should be made right if it meant the expenditure of our last dollar, the last dollar which we thundered about during the war and the giving of which we now refuse even to think of. If people feel that so much money has been spent that it is difficult to raise a loan, let them try it. Let them proceed to raise a soldiers' loan, and they will find no difficulty in raising it in this country. I venture that opinion unhesitatingly. It is not as though we were borrowing money from outside and were likely to be refused by creditors who might tell us: "You have borrowed as much as we will lend and your credit is exhausted." No Sir, we are borrowing from our own people; we are turning the money over and over and it is simply a question of bookkeeping. The money all remains in the country. The credit of the country is being assured to those people who are loaning the money, and it is the only limit to their loaning. There is no limit to the money. Now the credit of the country is mortgaged only to the extent of $1,740,000,000, as found by the Minister of Finance, up to September, 1919. It does not compare with the indebtedness per capita of any other country except the United States, who, coming late in the war, did not incur the same liabilities as other natons and who, notwithstanding the magnificent effort they made, nevertheless secured more out of the war than all the world beside. The world on account of the war lies mortgaged at the feet of the United States, and they do not deny it. They are patriotic; they are fair; they are brave; and they are frank. Let us be frank also and let us be fair. When we find in this amendment the simple statement that this matter should be referred, practically at the earnest request of those men to whom we owe so much, for further consideration. what harm is there in the suggestion? What harm is there in the soldiers saying: "You have considered the housing problem, the re-establishment problem and others, but we don't think that you have given up as much as you should have given on the basis of need.?" I say again, Mr. Speaker, that on the basis of need we cannot give too much until we have given our last dollar, and I say again that the request embodied in this amendment is reasonable, and the committee should not get huffed abou it, notwithstanding the expression of the chairman yesterday. I know no member of the committee who is not absolutely well disposed in this particular and who is likely to get up on his high horse and say that he has considered the whole question and will not deal with it further, or that if you "Throw the matter back in our teeth, we will resign"! In God's name, have things come to such a pass in this country that when our army returns, the men who were driven to desperation on the field of battle and had to fight as men never fought before, are to find that we cannot have a little patience with them and show them some consideration? Even if they were wrong, what about it? Let us be patient with them. Let us consider and re-reconsider and show them that if we have not the money we have at least the disposition to do all we can for them. Before the committee was formed the disposition on the part of many people was to say "We have done nobly; we have done all we can.' In response to the very agitation which is now under consideration a committee was formed and it was found that all that could have been done had not been done. The committee has brought forward further recommendations that are extensive, but it may be that on further inquiry they might find that there were still other things that could be done. It might be possible that the people of the country would be willing to pledge their credit further for a soldiers' loan, if not for $400,000,000, at any rate for $200,000,000. We can have a referendum for whiskey, but we cannot have a referendum for the soldier. I say let us have a referendum. Do not let the Government resign; do not let them get huffed. Let them say to the people "This is a great question; it is a queston that touches our hearts; it touches us on the raw. It excites our tenderest sentiments. We owe a debt of gratitude which we must pay, and we want to know if you are ready to go further. If you are, we are prepared also to go on." Let the people of the country speak. Let them speak by means of a referendum, and let them say whether or not they want more to be done for the soldiers. Then we shall have done all that we could do for the soldiers and we can rest in peace. But not until then. If there is one soldier or soldiers' dependent who remains in need through our neglect, we ought not to lie in bed at night and sleep. Have we, then. like Pharaoh of old, succeeded in heardening our hearts to the reasonable request of splendid men. I do not doubt that the people of the country have done all they knew how to do. But I do not think they have done all that they can do. I do not think that I have done all I can, and I do not think that the people of the country, when they find that there is such a thing as need on the part of the soldier, will refuse to do more. I acquit the committee of any shortcomings. They have done their best and have endeavoured to conserve the country's resources and protect the public. But I say that the public does not wish to be protected to the detriment of the soldier. I say that we have an opportunity of findng out from the people whether or not they are prepared to go the limit. On the platform I heard orators during the war, time and again say: "The last man and the last dollar." Well, the last man went, but where is the last dollar? Sir, we have now to unbotton our pockets. Many a man feels sore at having to spend money. Nevertheless, if he is a true man, he has to gird himself and do his duty. I am a poor man, but I am willing to increase the tax even if I have to go and work with a pick by the day to pay it; for I hope that I have enough head and enough heart, to realize that if I do not do my duty then I have ceased to be a man. We owe a great debt to the soldiers. Some soldiers may be obstreperous, some may be riotous, and some exacting. But that is nothing to us. We know that the measure of the requirement is the measure of the soldier's need, and if the need exists we must respond to it.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

A REAL NOVELTY AT GRAND TODAY

"BRINGING UP FATHER" A MUSICAL COMEDY IN THREE SCREAMING ACTS

A real novelty, one that is sure to find immediate acclaim in any environment, is underlined to hold the boards at the Grand today. It is a musical comedy in three rip-roaring acts, entitled 'Bringing Up Father in Society," and founded on the popular cartoons of George McManus. Thirty odd people are employed, and this year's version of the irresistible comics which is brand new and apart from any of its predecessors, is described as the best ever. Gus Hill, as formerly, is at the helm of the new production. Special music, costumes, scenic investiture and other features have been provided, making an offering sure to be well received anywhere.

The latest version of the popular comics of George McManus, "Bringing Up Father," is called "Bringing Up Father in Society." The new play which is in three acts and interpreted by forty people, including a beauty chorus of twenty charming, alluring and vivacious young women, will be the attraction at the Grand today, matinee and night. All the old favorites, including "Dinty," "Mother" and the rest of the Mahoney clan, will be on hand to make merry and add to the gayety of the nation. Sixteen new songs, ranging from waltz, syncopated to jazz, have been provided. The entire production is under the direction of Manager Gus Hill. This in itself should be sufficient guarantee that it is more than a good show.

GRAND THEATRE TO SHOW BIG FAIRBANKS FILM

"HIS MAJESTY, THE AMERICAN" MARKS FIRST RELEASE OF "BIG FOUR."

It is doubtful if any motion picture was ever awaited with as much interest and anticipation in Peterborough as Douglas Fairbanks' new picture, "One of the Blood," which will be the attraction at the Grand Theatre, three days only, Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

Something more than mere interest in a motion picture lies back of this anticipation, for "One of the Blood" is Douglas Fairbanks' first independent production, and marks the first release of United Artists Corporation, the so-called "Big Four."

In January of 1919 the entire amusement world was startled by the formation of the United Artists Association. This association was formed by Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith. These artists, conceded throughout the world to be the screen's foremost producers, after having released their pictures for a number of years through various distributing companies, decided that to assure their best work and in order to have full independence for the highest expression of their art, they would, upon the completion of their then-existing contracts, release their own pictures direct to the theatres of the country.

This move for independence by the foremost artists of the screen is the most important and beneficial step that has been taken in the motion picture business since it assumed its leadership in the amusement field.

It means for the motion picture patrons that Mary Pickford, Charlie Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith will hereafter be enabled to produce pictures in their own way.

They will make fewer pictures than they have made before, and this in itself will be an advantage. Heretofore they have been obliged to turn out a certain number of productions within a given period, and, consequently have not always had the time to perfect their work.

The first picture made under these ideal conditions is "One of the Blood." The management of the Grand Theatre feels great pride in having secured this production for its city. The Grand Theatre has always endeavored, to choose its attractions with discrimination and regardless of expense. In the case of "One of the Blood," knowing what a Douglas Fairbanks film will be when the inimitable "Doug" can put his best into it, the theatre management feels, and justly so, that it will offer to its patrons, beginning Thursday next, what should prove to be the very height of screen entertainment.

"THE COMING OF THE LAW"

DRAMATIC STORY OF WEST BASED ON NOTABLE BOOK BY CHARLES ALDEN SELTZER

Tom Mix shows a thrilling picture of the old West in a new William Fox photoplay called "The Coming of the Law," which will be shown at the Empire Theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. This play is taken from the book by Charles Alden Seltzer and was staged by Lynn F. Reynolds. There can be no doubt that Mr. Mix and his director spend a vast amount of time thinking up new Western stunts for their pictures. They have always shown something worth while. And their latest effort, according to reliable report, surpasses all its predecessors.

In "The Coming of the Law" they have many sensational and unexpected moments. This play deals with a gang of rustlers in a town called Dry Bottom in New Mexico. Mix, as Kent Hollis, enters the town where his father long had owned a ranch and a newspaper. He finds that his father is dead. He laso learns that the town is run by rustlers, and that these rustlers have robbed his father of many cattle.

He turns in with a vim to clean up the town and make it a law abiding place. In this he is aided by Judge Graney and pretty Nellie Hazleton - played by Jane Novak. The trio do some cyclonic work, and although they meet with many obstacles, they finally bring the law to Dry Bottom with such a rush that the outlaws are in jail before they can put in motion any plan to thwart the reformers. There is plenty of shooting and much fisticuffs of the swiftest sort; in fact, it is on his good right hand—and his good left as well — that Kent Hollis depends to rout the gunmen. He succeeds in lively fashion.

Tom Mix, who does some horseback stunts calculated to make one sit up with a jump and take notice, is supported by an excellent company.

Last Word in War Vessels.

Superdreadnought is a name given to vessels of the dreadnought type. The displacement is 25,000 tons or more. The speed attained may be twenty-five knots or sea miles (a sea mile is 2,000 yards), and the main battery consists of guns of 13.5 inches caliber or better. A superdreadnought is the last word in naval architecture.

Tight Lacing.

A New York lady while visiting in the West had some experience with a cyclone. While asleep at a friend's, the house was blown down and the lady pinned to the earth by a rafter. It was supposed she was crushed, but when they dug her out she opened her eyes and sleepily murmured: "Jane, I feel a little uncomfortable; unfasten my corsets."

Evolution of a Happy Thought

Mark Twain's favorite example of a man who was busy for keeps was the proverbial one-armed paper hanger with hives. Eureka, we begin to see a light. You've heard about "as busy as a bee." Well, isn't it simple: hives, bee — see? Vodeville stuff.—Indianapolis Star.

Fruit and Insects.

Choice fruits, especially grapes, may often be protected from insect pests by the use of paper bags placed around the bunches and securely fastened by twine to the supporting shoot or cane. Bags may be put in place as soon as the blossoms have fallen.

Drowning the Fly.

A shooting-fish in the East Indies has a hollow cylindrical beak. When it sees a fly on plants that grow in shallow streams it ejects a single drop of water, which knocks the fly into the tide.—Chicago Journal.

Greatest Poetry.

A sunny, cheerful view of life, resting on truth and fact, co-existing with practical aspiration ever to make things, men and self better than they are—this is the true, healthful poetry of existence.—Robertson.

To Wash a Flag.

If you fear that colors will run (which is likely in a cotton flag) wash it in gasoline and soap. Melt soap in a little water, add it to the gasoline and put in the flag. Rinse in clear fluid and hang up to dry without wringing.

A Quick Freeze.

In freezing ice cream remember that time will be saved if you do the freezing in a warm place, as the more rapidly the ice melts the more quickly the ice cream or sherbet will be frozen.

Daily Thought.

DISTRICT MEETING

delivered another address that filled all present with the comforting feeling of Christian benefit. He dwelt upon the great need for Christian revival in this pleasure-loving day.

He also spoke of the need for increased givings. He pictured poor missionaries away out in foreign fields endeavoring to spread the gospel under the handicap strain of economy. They are often laboring without even sufficient food, he declared.

But money is only a secondary need: there must be a spiritual awakening of the people. When this is accomplished money will follow.

And the only way to accomplish these ends is through prayer. People are often laughed at for having prayer in the home, but that is the kind of Christian meeting that leads a great many to Christ. The prayer of a mother or father has often led a son to the work of Christ, in which he has accomplished wonderful results.

He urged the people to pray, to bring prayer into their homes, and then the success of the great National Movement is assured.

Rev. Mr. Dean.

This address was followed by Rev. Mr. Dean, of Toronto. He pointed out that this was the time for a great revival in the church. The terrible sacrifices of war has made the people think differently and prepared their minds for a reception of the spirit. He believed that many men and boys had really just found their souls while facing death in the trenches.

He spoke of similar great movements in the United States. Everywhere they were the cause of a great uplift of the moral condition of the people. And in Canada where such work is now advancing, encouraging success is reported from all sides. In many instances young people have offered their lives and devoted them wholly without restraint to the service of Christ.

The speaker felt confident that this revival would be successful, and prove a considerable factor in raising the spiritual condition of the people of Canada nearer to what it should be.

It is usually th blunt man who says says the sharpest things.

The hardtack issued to soldiers is not as hard as the one you discovered with your bare foot.

Try These SIMPLE TESTS

New York. Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: Many men who smoke, chew or snuff incessantly, and who are seemingly healthy, are suffering from progressive organic ailments. Thousands of them would never have been afflicted had it not been for the use of tobacco, and thousands would soon get well if they would only stop the use of tobacco. The chief habit forming principle of tobacco is nicotine, a deadly poison, which when absorbed by the system slowly affects the nerves, membranes, tissues and vital organs of the body. The harmful effect of tobacco varies and depends on circumstances. One will be afflicted with general debility, others with catarrh of the throat, indigestion, constipation, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, mental confusion, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, bronchial trouble, hardening of the arteries, tuberculosis, blindness, or even cancer or the common affliction known as tobacco heart. If you use tobacco in any form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests: Read aloud one full page from a book. If in the course of reading your voice becomes muffled, hoarse and indistinct, and you must frequently clear your throat, the chances are that your throat is affected by catarrah, and it may be the beginning of more serious trouble. Next, in the morning before taking your usual smoke walk up three flights of stairs at a regular pace, then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, your heart beat is forced, trembling or irregular, you may be a victim of functional or organic heart trouble. If you feel that you must smoke, chew or snuff to quiet your nerves you are a slave to the tobacco habit, and are positively poisoning yourself with the deadly drug, nicotine. In either case you have just two alternatives—keep on with the self-poisoning process, irrespective of the dangers, and suffer the consequences, or give up the habit and escape the dangers. You can overcome the craving and stop the habit in a very short time by using the following inexpensive formula: Go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets, take one tablet after each meal, and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire for tobacco, the craving will have left you. With the nicotine poison out of your system your general health will quickly improve.

Note. When asked about Nicotol tablets one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit; away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol tablets are sold in this city under an iron-clad money back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists. (3)

RUTH THREATENS "TO PULL C. MAYS"

STATES HE WILL HOLD OUT FOR $20,000 NEXT SEASON IN SPITE OF STANDING CONTRACT

Unless the American League makes a satisfactory disposition of the Carl Mays case it is likely to have another one on its hands next season, as Babe Ruth, champion home run hitter of the major leagues, threatens to emulate the pitcher who has stirred up the worst mess the B. B. Johnson circuit has ever had. Ruth at present is in California and from there comes a story that he does not intend to sign with the Boston Red Sox again unless he is given a new contract calling for $20,000 a year, despite the fact that his old agreement has two years to run.

"I want what I think my services are worth, and that is $20,000 a year. If I don't get it I can remain idle until the Boston club sell me to a club that will pay it to me. Mays pulled that and got away with it. Why can't I do it?" Ruth is said to have told a friend, according to the report from the coast.

Has a Three Year Contract.

If that is the attitude and spirit of the high priced ball players these days it appears to be time for the American League, and the National as well, to adopt a rule or resolution among themselves that will prevent a repetition of the Mays affair. Ruth held out last spring and gave Harry Frazee a lot of trouble for several weeks. His demand for a $10,000 contract for three years was met.

President Frazee appreciated Ruth's marvelous feat with the club and when he broke Buck Freeman's home run record by getting twenty-nine, he slipped him a bonus of $5,000, making his salary for the year $15,000. Even that bonus had no effect on the wonderful slugger. Judging from his remarks this fall. He has determined that he is even a greater drawing card than Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker or Walter Johnson and for that reason is bent on getting more money than any of these stars are getting. In his opinion he more than doubles his salary in attracting fans to the park and for that reason alone should be paid what he asks.

Wrote His Own Terms.

Ruth is not blamed for trying to secure all he possibly can get, but business men and the true sportsman believe that he should fulfill his present contract and then if he thinks he is worth more money demand it. Before the 1919 season opened, before he realized what his slugging proclivities amounted to, he was more than willing to accept $10,000. President Frazee offered him a contract for one year at that price, but [illegible] he be given the same terms for a period of three years. Why? He did not figure he was going to have a year that even resembled what he did accomplish, and wanted to get the money while the getting was good. Since he set the baseball world afire with his tremendous slugging he has apparently forgotten that he practically wrote his own terms, and now demands more.

President Johnson of the American League endeavored to make an example out of Mays by suspending him after the New York club had purchased him from Boston. Mays left the Red Sox and refused to rejoin the club. There was nothing left for Frazee to do but sell him. This was done, and Johnson, to prevent steps of a similar nature in the future, suspended Mays, but was enjoined from stopping him in his work. President Rappert of the Yankees taking the matter into the courts. The league president was surprised at this, because he thought he had made a move that in the future would force ball players to live up to the agreements they made with the club owner.

Ruth started out to the coast with the idea of engaging in the moving picture business, but it has been learned that he missed connections and has decided to play winter baseball with the Vernon club at a salary said to be close to $500 a game. He is scheduled to play first base. This has Harry Frazee worried, as Ruth is not as agile as Hal Chase or Stuffy McInnis, and by playing opens himself to possible injury. He cannot be stopped, as there is nothing in his contract that hinders him from joining a winter league.

Dream Has Physical Basis.

[illegible] has a physical basis, for scientists have shown that this form of nightmare invariably occurs during the first few minutes after falling asleep. It is suggested by the general muscular relaxation that takes place when we settle down. A change of position of even a fraction of an inch, or the least little slip of the muscles, is sufficient to convey the idea of a fall to the brain.

Birds Not Man's Enemies.

It is a fact that if it were not for the bird life we would starve to death. The great natural enemy of man is any force that will destroy his foodstuffs. Every field is the home of thousands of insects, and agricultural reports will verify the fact that each year millions of dollars' worth of crops are destroyed by insects. And the birds are the natural enemies of the insect pest.

Carrie was invited to a party. Her mother cautioned her not to begin eating her goodies until all around the table had been helped. Carrie was honored with the first helping to ice cream. In a few moments she said: "Excuse me for eating my ice cream before it melts. I enjoys it best while it is freezed."

The Black Diamond.

Although white diamonds come chiefly from the Transvaal, the black diamond is found in its greatest purity in Brazil and especially in the Province of Bahia. For its finest specimen so far discovered a price of $20,000 was paid—quite insignificant when compared with prices paid for white diamonds.

Is It a Real One?

Here is quite an easy way to tell whether a diamond is a genuine one or not. Make a small dot on a piece of paper with a lead pencil and look at it through the diamond. If it shows only a single dot it is a genuine stone, but if it shows more than one dot you've been "had."

Marion Coming On.

Couldn't Risk It.

A good story is told of General Glascock of Georgia. When the latter was, 70 years ago, elected a representative, a friend asked: "General, may I introduce you to Henry Clay?" "No, sir," was the prompt response; "I am his adversary, and choose not to subject myself to his fascination."

Two Centuries of Spouting.

PRESERVING THE FISH.

One of the Problems of Ontario's Summer Paradise.

On the good ship "Waubic" which plies between Penetang and Parry Sound, five disgruntled cottagers returning to their homes after their summer outing, were discussing in violent terms the condition of the fishing.

"In seventeen years," said a Toronto man, "I never caught so few black bass, pickerel and lunge. Five years ago, I could row around my cottage and hook three or four good black bass. This year, I caught nary a one. I went far afield to lakes and shoals where former years I went for a day's big sport. And I was lucky if I caught one bass this year."

And so the lament passed from one to the other. Each had heard of some fortunate individual who had caught this year all the black bass he wanted. But these cottagers from the Severn to Parry Sound swore that even the prevalent pike was becoming a rarity.

Now, each of these five cottagers also told of his own private reason for the shortage of game fish on the Georgian Bay.

"I found a hoop net in a channel," said one.

"I caught a trap net while trolling out in the open," said another.

"The settlers spear all the big lunge in the spring," said another.

At this point, a man who was leaning against the rail, butted into the conversation.

"Well," said he, "if you ardent sportsmen want to preserve the Georgian Bay from going as barren [illegible] is only one [illegible] to [illegible] reports of yours to the Department of Game and Fisheries."

"Oh, the Government won't do anything to the settlers and poachers," growled one cottager.

"You're wrong there," said the stranger. "Deputy Minister McDonald is a friend of the fish and game, not of the poachers. Last year, nearly ten thousand dollars was levied in fines in Ontario for breach of the fish and game laws. A good part of this concerned the Georgian Bay. And I understand that this year, the amount of fines is doubled. It's a hard job for a few game wardens to guard the innumerable channels, islands and lakes. It is up to you sportsmen to lend a hand, and send in to the Department all information."

"Yes," said a cottager, "and have our summer cottage burned down by the poachers!"

"No. You send your information confidentially and that confidence is strictly kept," replied the stranger.

What is to prevent the Georgian Bay and our northern sportsmen's paradises from being stripped as bare of fish as the Muskoka Lakes?

Netting, hogging, and fishing of bass for sale to the summer hotels largely depleted the Muskoka Lakes years ago. Pollution by saw-mills helped.

Illegal netting certainly goes on in Georgian Bay. Nets are occasionally found by the cottagers. The bass are either sold surreptitiously to hotels and dealers, are given away in the towns, or being killed in the nets are thrown aside to rot.

Convictions of settlers and poachers from the villagers along the shore are made for "jack-light" fishing and spearing. In the spring, when the big lunge are in the shallow bays spawning, the poacher comes along at night with a powerful lantern or torch on the bow of his boat. The big fish, dazzled by the light, do not flee, and are jabbed with a spear. No doubt hundreds of the finest thirty and forty pound kings of fresh water game fish have been thus destroyed at the spawning season.

Fish hogs have had much to do with depleting the Georgian Bay. Fifteen years ago a party of a hundred Americans pitched camp about twenty miles north of Penetang. They had an elaborate big tent camp. Their sport was bass fishing.

They had a daily "pool" for the catcher of most bass. They could not eat all they caught in this sweet, little competition, so they buried the surplus bass in a nearby sand beach.

Great pits full of bass bones remain to-day to testify to the methods of game hogs. These campers were kicked out by indignant cottagers, and they never came back.

Mr. D. McDonald, Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries, states that two boats, a steam launch and a gasoline launch, are continually on patrol along the north shore of the Georgian Bay between Penetang and Manitoulin, to enforce the fish and game laws.

The difficulty is to secure a game warden who knows the territory and yet who is not a resident of the district he patrols. The resident game warden is a weak institution. He pinches the poacher only to have his cattle shot or his house mysteriously set afire.

What Is a "Canadian Citizen"?

All Canadian citizens are British subjects, but all British subjects living in Canada are not Canadian citizens. The Duke of Devonshire for example, is not a Canadian citizen because he is not domiciled here. According to the Immigration Act, the term "Canadian citizen" means: (a) A person born in Canada who has not become an alien; (b) A British subject who has Canadian domicile; or (c) A person naturalized under the laws of Canada who has not subsequently become an alien or lost Canadian domicile." "Domicile" is defined as the "place in which [illegible] turns as his place of permanent abode and not for a mere special or temporary purpose." It takes a residence of three years under these conditions for an immigrant to acquire Canadian domicile.

Safety First Music.

"Why do you prefer jazz to the classics?"

"Because it makes no difference whether it is well performed or not. If you don't like it you can dance and quit listening."

"Pubs" To Be Improved.

Better public houses, an improved tone for saloons, is the newly announced policy of the British liquor trade.

Rear Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, a member of Parliament, who was recently elected to the directorate of one of the leading brewing companies of the kingdom, said that representatives of all sections of the trade had drawn up a bill embodying such principles as promotion of sobriety, restriction of drunkenness, reduction of the number of licenses where they are excessive and enlargement of premises so as to provide greater opportunities for social amenities.

"Recreation, including reading rooms, facilities for writing, music and games, should be provided," Admiral Hall said. The entry into the trade of those who would set up and maintain a high social standard should be encouraged to the exclusion of those who might bring discredit on the industry.

Ancient Jewels.

That women of ancient times were not less fond of jewelry than those of today might reasonably be taken for granted. But the remarkable fact (as recently ascertained by archeologists) is that the jewelry they wore—at a period, let us say, 1,000 years before the birth of Christ—was fully equal in artistic workmanship to the best products of the twentieth century.

To Care for Oilcloth.

To clean oilcloth rub with a flannel dipped in turpentine. Then shave half an ounce of beeswax into a large cup and stand the cup in boiling water. Add a saucerful of turpentine, a little shaved castile soap and a few drops of oil of citronella. Whip until it begins to get stiff. A little of this rubbed into the oilcloth will make it clean.

Cleanliness Necessary.

When our daughter was six years old she was taken to see her first vaudeville performance. One number on the program was a dancer, who wore very little, and Lova's first remark when she saw the dancer was: "Oh, mamma, but she has to wash herself clean, so much of her shows."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Clean Photographs.

Dirty photographs are so unsightly that you will be glad to know there is a way to clean them. Moisten a soft cloth with warm water to which a little ammonia has been added; wring the cloth out well and wipe the photographs very lightly, drying them immediately with a soft dry cloth.

Man Who Wrote Famous Hymn

To be a man of culture and education, to live a lonely and self-sacrificing life, to occupy his time with the most menial tasks, to remain true during his life to his love for a girl who died when she was twenty-three, to write the best known piece of [illegible] unmarked grave is the fate of Joseph Scriven, the author of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," of which millions of copies have been known to be published.

Mr. Scriven was born on September 10, 1819, in the parish of Seapatrick, County of Down, Ireland, and christened Joseph Medlicott, the latter being his mother's maiden name. His father was a captain in the Royal Marines. His early education was entrusted to a Dr. Doncaster, in whose school he remained until he was fifteen years of age. In 1835 he entered Trinity College, Dublin, and after less than two years there he began a [illegible] at the Addiscombe Military [illegible] in Surrey, England. [illegible] because his health did not promise to be equal to a military [illegible] he returned to Trinity and obtained his degree in 1842.

Soon after he came to Canada and spent the remainder of his years at Port Hope and at Rice Lake, ten miles away, on the shores of which lies his unmarked grave. At Port Hope the centenary of his birth was celebrated by a service in the Methodist Church on September 10, after which there was a pilgrimage to the grave at Rice Lake. It is proposed to beautify the site of the grave and build a suitable monument to the devout man who is remembered with so much reverence by the people who knew him. At Port Hope, where is the cottage in which he lived for many years, it has been suggested that a large electric sign be built displaying the words "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" within sight of three railroads, and a main thoroughfare, and that the cottage be purchased as a museum for the many things that are still in existence which were connected with the life of the preacher-poet.

Mr. Scriven went to Port Hope as a tutor for the children of Robert L. Pengelley, a commander in the royal navy, who, for his services had been given land at Rice Lake upon which his son and grandchildren still live. There Scriven fell in love with Eliza Catherine Roche, a niece of Captain Pengelley, and the daughter of Andrew William Roche, R.N., but after an illness of three years, during which time she saw Scriven almost every day, she died of tuberculosis on August 6, 1860, when she was only twenty-three years old. Scriven never married.

Scriven's reason for coming to Canada is not known, but perhaps the depth of his religious beliefs had something to do with it and his attitude toward life cannot be better characterized than a desire to follow to the letter the gospel command to go forth to all the world without script or purse and preach the gospel., for Scriven is still well remembered about Port Hope as the man who threw his hat upon the street on market day and on circus day and thrilled his audience by his message and his oratory, for he was a man of handsome appearance and excellent education. It has been said that Scriven was a Plymouth Brother, but it seems that although he associated with members of that sect, he was a member of no organization, but preached truth as he saw it.

About 1859, the widow with whom he had been living died and Scriven went to live with a family by the name of Sackville, who were Plymouth Brethren, and who lived at Bowdley, a village at the extreme west of Rice LaLke. There he died [illegible] the morbid story that he committed suicide, to say that during his illness, while delirious, he wandered from his room and was found in a few minutes lying with his face in a few inches of the water of Rice Lake, where he had fallen.

At his own request he was buried beside the girl he had loved, in the small, private cemetery on the Pengelley estate on a hill overlooking the lake. On one side is the grave of the girl and on the other, the grave of her uncle, Robert L. Pengelley, commander R.N., who died in 1875.

Besides the poem "What a Friend We Have In Jesus," Scriven wrote other hymns, some of which are well known and several essays on religious subjects which breathe deep piety and the utmost simplicity of life.

"What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

What a Friend we have in Jesus,
All our sins and grief to bear!
What a privilege to carry
Everything to God in prayer!
O what peace we often forfeit,
O what needless pain we bear,
All because we do not carry
Everything to God in prayer.

Have we trials and temptations?
Is there trouble anywhere?
We should never be discouraged;
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
Can we find a friend so faithful,
Who will all our sorrows share?
Jesus knows our every weakness;
Take it to the Lord in prayer.

Are we weak and heavy-laden,
Cumbered with a load of care?
Precious Saviour, still our refuge—
Take it to the Lord in prayer.
Do thy friends despise, forsake thee?
Take it to the Lord in prayer;
In His arms He'll take and shield thee;
Thou wilt find a solace there.

THE A. W. CRESSMAN COMPANY WIN BANNER AND FOUR ADDITIONAL CRESTS

The A. W. Cressman Company and employees are now the proud possessors of a Prince of Wales' Victory Loan banner with four crests. It was presented to them on behalf of the Victory Loan Committee yesterday afternoon by Mr. W. H. Bradburn, chairman of the distrct committee. To gain this flag and crests ninety per cent of the employees subscribed 17 1-2 per cent of the company's annual pay roll.

In presenting the banner to the company, Mr. Bradburn spoke of the great service to the country and the local organization the Cressman Company had rendered by subscribing so liberally to this loan. "Citizens have made the city famous by their generous subscriptions," he declared.

He was very glad to be able to present the emblem to the Cressman Company for he felt that they had won it largely in a spirit of patriotic duty.

Mr. Eastwood.

Here, Mr. Vincent Eastwood, vice chairman of the district, made a brief address. He spoke in glowing terms of the public spirited manner the Cressman Company and staff took hold of prospects that were in the interest of the city. Their public spirit and efficient work is not yet being fully realized by the general public, but he believed that soon the people generally would come to see the efficient institution they have in their midst. Then they will appreciate the opportunity this store affords.

He referred to Mr. A. W. Cressman as one of the pioneers of the city who has done much for its advancement, and he was pleased although not greatly surprised to see that this company had co-operated so generously in this patriotic duty.

Mr. Cressman's Reply

In the absence of the senior member of the firm Mr. Harry Cressman made a very fitting reply. He felt that the splendid commendation of Mr. Bradburn and Mr. Eastwood was deserved because of the splendid showing of all. He spoke of the strenuous efforts put forth by Mr. Wolfe and Mr. Cally of the staff in connection with this campaign.

Mr. Cressman felt that they were all being amply repaid for their money in one of the best investments possible.

TWELVE POTATOES MAKE ONE BUSHEL

OKLAHAMA POLITICIAN DESERTS THE BIG GAME FOR TRUCK FARMING

Wagoner, Ola., Nov. 8.—Big Jim Harris has reformed. If not wholly, he is on the sawdust trail and only a few feet away from the mourner's bench. No longer does he care who votes the Oklahoma ten delegates in the next national convention, for Jim has found a new heart interest. No, this is not the opening announcement that Big Jim has or is going to take unto himself a wife, although his new love is Nancy Hall.

This year from twenty acres Harris Brothers, one of whom is Big Jim, will realize around $8,000. Not only has this firm learned how to raise big crops, but they evolved a system of curing sweet potatoes so that they will keep for months without even killing the fertility of the seed germ.

At the present time the value of the crop on hand will bring about $6,000, but through the process of curing they can keep their supply off the market until after Christmas, and having made a study of the market, Harris Brothers are sure that their crop will net them at least $2 a bushel.

The potatoes in question were raised on a tract of land adjoining Wagoner, land which had been fertilized to some extent, but the secret of the ground lies in the fact that it is well drained. It is thought that better results would obtain from land that had not been fertilized, as the vines run heavier than they should for best results.

Four years ago these gentlemen figured it out that sweet potatoes would produce well on the high rolling praries of Wagoner county. Two acres of potatoes were planted with good results. The next five acres were planted and then came the proposition of curing the crop, and the result was a curing plant which will handle 3,000 bushels at one time. Next year forty acres will be planted.

While the land on which these potatoes were raised could not be bought at any price, yet land in close proximity and just as good as the Harris land was before it was brought up may still be had at less than $100 per acre. The labor cost on raising and caring for the twenty acres will not amount to $1,000, leaving a fine profit and which is much more satisfactory than any emoluments that might come from politics.

Hence, Big Jim has forsaken politics for potatoes. If one questions this, just ask Jim. Anyway, he will talk potatoes, but you can't get even an opinion out of him concerning the Senatorship or the national committeemanship.

A memorial window inscribed with the names of Knox soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice in the great war has been installed in Knox Church and will be unveiled at the service tomorrow morning. THOMAS ADAMS ADDRESSES FIRST OPEN MEETING OF WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB

Town Planning Expert Gives Some Practical Advice on the Subject of Improving Living Conditions in Modern Cities

Mr. Thomas Adams, town planning adviser of the Commission of Conservation, Ottawa, addressed an open meeting under the auspices of the Women's Canadian Club in the green room of the Y.W.C.A. yesterday afternoon. The organisers of this promising association are to be congratulated upon securing the services of such an able and convincing speaker. As a man who has made a deep and exhaustive study of the means to better living conditions in cities and towns, Mr. Adams delivered an enlightening address on the subject, a speech which was thoroughly appreciated by the intelligent audience which had assembled to hear him.

Mrs. James Kendry, who occupied the chair, introduced the speaker, at the same time calling the attention of the gathering to the subject of the address, namely, the bettering of home life among the needy. Illustrating the immediate necessity for energetic interest and practical application along this line, Mrs. Kendry, in the course of her remarks, touched upon existing conditions which she had come in contact with recently conditions where those concerned were patheticaly handicapped in regard to suitable and sanitary environments.

Mrs. J. H. Renwick rendered that beautiful solo, "Home, Sweet Home," in such a touching manner as to immediately enlist the sympathies of the audience with the movement.

In commencing his address Mr. Adams touched upon the unhappy outcome of degenerate living conditions. In the slum life of large cities where whole families grew up under congested and wholly unsanitary housing and surroundings, it was disheartening to note equally degenerate standards of morals and principle which also prevailed. All of which went to prove that such undesirable conditions have a depraving influence, both physically and mentally, on the growing child and even the full grown individual will gradually grade to the level of such influences.

Drawing out in realistic manner a verbal picture of conditions as existing in cities across the Atlantic, and touching on Berlin in particular, the speaker gave a forcible illustration of the purely materialistic calibre of the German intellect. That they possessed no conception whatever of the value of human life, soul and body—that there was absolutely nothing of the spiritual in their ideals or education—was easily apparent by the manner in which the health and convenience of thousands of citizens was sacrificed in order that an artistic design in the layout of buildings might be effected. Such deplorable conditions in this as well as in all the older cities of the eastern hemisphere were beyond redemption—were incurable, for the simple reason that the multitude affected had come to accept such a standard of life as satisfactory. They had ceased to fight against it, and for this reason the the task of elevating the life of such a community was slow and arduous and could only be effected by "uneducating" the people by gradually bringing them to see these things in a new light and by persistently instilling loftier principles of living.

Continuing, Mr. Adams pointed out that conditions in Canadian cities, while not usually so marked as those mentioned above, were in some places not doubt tending toward something similar. But, happily, such menaces here were still at that stage where prevention could work wonders. The high cost of living was largely responsible for such an unpleasant scale of life. The speaker explained that it was not the man employed in manual labor who was most affected by the cost of living problem. It was the salaried man, professional, business man or otherwise, who was struggling to keep up an appearance of respectability. The trying problems which this type of citizen had to grapple with were touchingly sketched.

Complimenting this city on its existing conditions, which tend to nurture first-class citizenship, the speaker went on to say that it was a growing city, and as such precautions should be taken to prevent a possible decline in the standard of life. Mr. Adams also gave some practical suggestions of ways and means toward betterment, and urged the enforcement of certain restrictions as regards property and building location.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Adams was tendered a hearty vote of thanks by his audience.

Help Win FIRST CREST BY TONIGHT

ARMISTICE DAY, TOMORROW, TO BE OBSERVED AS NATIONAL FISH DAY

Everybody is Asked to Help Develope One of the Greatest Resources of the Country by Preparing Special Menu.

Keeping in view the great asset Canada has in her fisheries the action of the Canadian Fisheries Association in setting apart one day in the year to be known as "National Fish Day" is an apparent one.

This year, Tuesday, November 11.—Armistice Day—has been so set apart, and efforts are being made to have fish used and especially featured in every home, hotel, dining car, etc., that day, with the object of drawing special attention to the desirability of the general use of fish as food in this country

One of Canada's greatest natural resources are her fisheries. They are now worth to this country over fifty million dollars annually and they give employment to about one hundred thousand people; but keeping in view that Canada has fisheries that are second to none anywhere, not only in their extensiveness, but in their quality, variety and abundance, there is every reason why fisheries productions should be rapidly expanded.

From a food standpoint fish is equally as nourishing as meat; when it is properly cooked it is quite as palatable and it is much cheaper. There is, therefore, virtue in the slogan of the Association "Eat Fish and Reduce the Cost of Living."

Fish and particularly seafish should always be plentiful and cheap. At the point of production it is very cheap today; but as the demand for it in the interior parts of the country is not yet large enough to enable it, as a general thing, to be shipped in carload lots, the cost of transportation is now at the maximum. Also the retailers as a usual thing, do not handle fish in great volume and so equire a larger margin of profit than would otherwise be the case. Therefore, unlike most foods the greater the demand for fish the cheaper it can be supplied, as fish costs nothing to produce beyond the value of equipment and the labour employed in catching it.

Another piece of sound public advice is not to confine the use of fish to a few well grown varieties such as cod, haddock, halibut, etc. There are several other species such as flounders, locally known as plaice, soles, dabs, etc., skate, the wings of which are excellent food, pollock, hake, cusk, etc., which are plentiful and cheap, because they are not yet in much demand. Such fish find a ready market in the older countries and should in Canada.

It is prefectly feasible to have fish in one form or another continually available in all parts of Canada. Where fresh fish on ice cannot always be delivered in perfect condition, frozen fresh fish, or canned fresh fish, can be, in addition to all kinds of the cured article.

There is an unwarranted prejudice against frozen fish. Investigation has shown beyond question that a fish, firm and fresh from the water, that is properly frozen forthwith, that is shipped frozen in refrigerator cars and never thawed out until it is defrosted slowly in cold water in the kitchen of the consumer is the very next best thing to the same fish when it leaves the fisherman's boat. The general use of frozen fish in this country at all times of the year would, in a large measure, solve transportation problems and would enable fish to reach the consumer always in perfect condition and at loger prices.

Also attention should be given to the excellence of canned fish. The firm fresh fish direct from the cold water, after being thoroughly cleaned and washed are placed in the cans and are hermetically sealed and cooked with absolute thoroughness. In this form they will keep for practically an unlimited period without any deterioration regardless of weather conditions, and in using them there is no waste but the can.

The Fisheries Branch of the Department of the Naval Service which is doing much to promote the general use of fish, strongly endorse "National Fish Day."

VICTORY LOAN OBJECTIVE FOR THE CITY AND COUNTY IS REACHED AND EXCEEDED

ON THE LAST WEEK

Peterborough established another Victory Loan record on Saturday when the combined objective for the city and county was reached and exceeded The joint objective of $1,800,000 was oversubscribed by $5,100, due very largely to the splendid work of the city canvassers, and good reports from the country, and the big total of $504,000 from special subscriptions, the latter being 68 per cent. above the amount alotted to Peterborough.

Saturday's results placed Mr. William Weir, of Otonabee, high man for the county. P. E. Rutherford high man for the city and Herb McCannan's team in first place on the day's returns.

And now for the last week of a campaign that has been the most successful ever conducted in Peterborough. The city has the Prince of Wales' flag, and the next six days will be spent in winning crests. This morning, the city canvassers had $90,950 of the $187,500 required to secure a crest, and all were confident that they could report the balance of $96,550, and thus place the city still higher.

THE PRINCE OF WALES CONGRATULATES CITY

PERSONAL MESSAGE TO CITIZENS ON WINNING HONOUR FLAG

Victory Loan headquarters were enthused this morning by receiving the unexpected honor of a telegram of congratulations from His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales. While the Prince was unable to give Peterborough a personal call, he has taken advantage of the opportunity to congratulate the city upon its fine feat of being the first Ontario city to win his flag. The message from the Prince is for the citizens and reads as follows:

"Ottawa, Nov. 10, 1919.
"Chairman Victory Loan Com.
"Peterborough.

"His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales desires me to ask you to convey to the citizens of Peterborough his congratulations on having gained his flag.

"ADMIRAL HALSEY,
"Chief of Staff."

NO NEGOTIATIONS WITH BOLSHEVIKI

GREAT BRITAIN WILL NOT HOLD OUT OLIVE BRANCH TO LENINE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 10.—Great Britain has no intention of opening peace negotiations with Lenine and Trotzky until the House of Commons has had an opportunity to discuss the subject, Bonar Law declared in the Commons today.

Hopes for Peace.

Bonar Law made this statement in answering a question with reference to Premier Lloyd George's speech at the Guild Hall on Saturday in which he was supposed to have hinted at an attempt to negotiate peace with the Bolsheviki in Russia. He declared the Premier had simply expressed the hope that there would be some method of achieving peace with Russia.

The team members have secured $72,172,500 or 51.15 per cent. of the canvassers' objective.

The special subscription committee have $76,046,350 or 89.75 per cent. of the special objective.

Holland Considers Former Emperor and the Crown Prince of Germany are Beyond Extradition

(Canadian Press Despatch)

The Hague, Nov. 10.—Former Emperor William came to Holland a year ago today. During this time there has been no demand officially or unofficially, for his extradition or delivery to the Allies, nor has Holland at all changed its viewpoint toward him. This is learned from sources that are unquestionable. Holland's viewpoint as regards William Hohenzollern may be stated as follows:

Political Refuge.

The Netherlands, which for centuries has accorded political refuge to all, considers the former emperor and crown prince refugees, not as royalty, but as persons entitled to the same rights as any plain Johann Schmidt who fled to Holland during war. This principle is so strongly held by the government and also by the press of Holland that nothing is likely to change t. hTe Dutch government has made up its mind as to its conduct in the evnet of the surrender of William Hohenzollern being asked for. No official statement has been made in this connection, but it is learned that Holland considers the former emperor beyond extradition, as there is no possible way to hold him legally as a criminal.

A Country Gentleman?

If they desired to insist on privilege both the Hohenzollerns would be free to go where they listed, as they are in no sense prisoners. However, because they feel that they would not embarrass Holland any further, they apparently have agreed to remain where they now are at Amerongen. If at any time the emperor and crown prince desired to return to Germany they would be permitted to go.

While it is possible that Frederick William may return to Germany some day, official circles in hTe Hague are inclined to the belief that William Hohenzollern is content to settle down to the life of a country gentleman at Doorn, where he has been permitted to buy a small estate, because his long stay at Amerongen seemed unfair to Count von Bentinck, whose castle he occupies.

LIQUOR CAN BE MANUFACTURED AND IMPORTED TO PROVINCES

House of Commons Passes Bill to This Effect—Becomes Law When Peace Proclaimed—Provinces May Become Bone Dry by Plebiscite of Its People—Bill to Amend the Temperance Act

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—Any province can have what Hon. C. J. Doherty terms "conditional prohibition" if the Senate does not again take an opposite view to the Commons on this issue. This last prohibition measure was confirmed in the Commons on Sunday morning after the protests of Ernest Lapointe and D. A. Lafortune against the unChristian violation of the Lord's Day. These protests were unheeded by Sir George Foster, especially as both the Canadian and British Commons have encroached several times on Sunday ou less moral legislation. The new legislation is embodied in two Acts. The first permits the manufacture of intoxicating liquor in a prohibition province but only for export or sale for legal purposes within the Dominion. The second Act extends the scope of the Canada Temperance Act to a province. On a plebiscite the electors of any province which has previously enacted provincial prohibition may secure by federal order-in-Council the prohibition of the importation of intoxicating liquor. The plebiscite is secured by the Legislature of a province petitioning for such an election. Not more than three months afterwards the Governor-General, by order-in-Council, will hold a poll in the province desiring it, and a majority of the electors voting will bring into effect the Canada Temperance Act. Severe penalties are provided for violation of either Act. In the case of violating the law by manufacture of liquor for illegal sale, the violator may be tried for the offence either in the province into which the liquor was sent or in the province where the offence was committed.

May Be Bone-Dry.

Under the new legislation it is possible for any province to have bone-dry prohibition if a majority of the voting electors desire. But even bone-dry prohibition does not abolish the manufacture of intoxicating liquor for export or legal sale at home. When peace is proclaimed, a matter of a few days, liquor for personal use can be legally imported into dry provinces, and until a province, taking advantage of the present Act, by a plebiscite asks that the Canada Temperance Act be enforced, and then, except for medicinal, industrial and sacramental purposes, the importation will cease.

PREMIER-ELECT DRURY IS NOW SAID TO HAVE SELECTED CABINET MEMBERS

No Formal Announcement, However, to be Made Until Wednesday—Believed That W. F. Nickle Will Be New Attorney-General.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—It is assumed on all sides that E. C. Drury has completed his cabinet. The premier-elect in his own guard against premature disclosure of the allotment of his portfolios, but the personnel of the cabinet is of necessity knowledge that he must share with others.

A Kingston despatch creates William Folger Nickle, K. C., with the following answer to the question whether he had accepted the attorney-generalship of Ontario: "That it was impossible to discuss the matter at the present time."

Lawyers can be depended upon to discover perfectly safe ways of making admissions, and Mr. Nickel's answer looks like a carefully phrased admission to the soft impeachment.

There is still doubt about the minister of education; but with this doubt in mind, the Toronto World offers the following forecast of the new cabinet:

President of the Council and premier: E. C. Drury.

Attorney-general: William F. Nickle, K. C.

Treasurer of the province: Peter Smith, South Perth.

Provincial Secretary: H. C. Nixon, North Brant.

Minister of agriculture: Manning Doherty.

Minister of labor: W. R. Rollo, Hamilton.

Without portfolio: Lieut.-Col. Carmichael.

Peter Smith of South Perth has had ample experience in municipal finance to qualify him, and has a personality that is in itself an efficiency bond. Mr. Biggs also has satisfactory qualifications and experience to conduct the public works department, and Mr. Grant of Carleton is able to take over either the education department or another. Should education be offered to Mr. Locke, interchange of two other portfolios might follow.

Something like this personnel there would be seven members of the Farmers' party and one Labor man in the cabinet, and two outsiders. After the by-elections that will have to be held the Government and Labor members would have a clear majority of two.

On the almost certainty that Mr. Drury will have a new cabinet formed some time this week, and the Farmers' party undertake the Government of the province, it may be necessary to call an immediate meeting of the legislature in order to make certain amendments to the election act that will enable resignations of seats by members-elect who are willing to make way for the new premier and some of his colleagues and the vacancies thus created be filled. At least three and probably five seats may thus be opened.

Mr. Drury could fairly ask Mr. Hartley Dewart and the Conservatives, who with the Liberal leader's followers constitute the opposition, to consent to such legislation going through at an emergency meeting of the legislature to be called at the earliest possible date. If this legislation is given, the house could then adjourn for thirty days, or whatever time would be necessary to have the elections over, and permit all the members of the new government, as it may be announced this week, to secure seats and prepare a program of legislation to be submitted at an adjourned session early in the new year.

In regard to above forecast of the new cabinet, Mr. Drury said on Saturday that his announcement of the cabinet would likely be made on Wednesday. And he added that he had already asked Mr. Doherty to be minister of agriculture, and Mr. Bowman to head the department of lands, forests and mines, and that both had accepted.

Mr. W. F. Nickel is expected in Toronto today.

ANOTHER BRIGHT ONE.

> Mr. Burnham has withdrawn his anti-cigarette, anti-cards, anti-feathers amendment to the Prohibition bill. It served his author's purpose of ridiculing the Ontario prohibition referendum.—The Examiner.

IS THIS ANOTHER example of a lack of understanding a plain proposition or is it due to innate malice? Mr. Burnham withdrew his amendment after he had been assured by the Government that its provisions would be incorporated in the main bill. Mr. Burnham has told the public that he was serious in this action. It seems at least, that the Government has regarded the amendment in that light.

PLANTING THE PROHIBITION APPLE TREE.

MANY A MAN, public spirited and altruistic still, even if his head is bowed and his step unsteady by advancing age, has planted an apple tree, knowing well that in the natural order of things he cannot hope to live to see the tree bear fruit. Yet he plants it, cultivates it, prunes it, and watches over it with sedulous care. He is working for the good of posterity, not for his own gain. If he is denied the privilege of eating the fruit to be produced by the new tree, his children and their children will enjoy it, and that with him is sufficient.

Think how much human effort is expended not really in the interest of the living but of those who come after. The pioneers planted the tree of civilization and many of them passed away before it even blossomed. But posterity enjoys the fruits none the less.

When the people of Ontario by their votes made permanent the Ontario Temperance Act they planted the apple tree of prohibition, the fruits of which will be enjoyed to the full by those of generations to come. There will be troubles born of the enforcement of the Act. There will be subterfuges to circumvent it. There will be some who will poison themselves with substitutes for alcoholic drinks now barred by law. There will be moonshining and bootlegging.

But all these things will eventually pass away. Men who indulge in such practices are those who are striving to satisfy a depraved appetite, developed under old conditions. The growing youth is not likely to become a toper by dabbling in hair tonics, furniture polish, or the liquor that is distilled in secret places under the light of the moon. He will not establish a distillery in the home kitchen to manufacture something to supply an appetite that has never been created. It is the generations of the future who will enjoy to the full the benefits of prohibition. Posterity will face a world with one danger, one temptation, at least, removed.

Mr. J. H. Burnham says that the adoption of prohibition will tend to increase violations of the law by developing such industries as bootlegging and moonshining. That is to be expected. Prohibitory legislation of any nature has the same tendency. If there was no law against murder the assassin would not work in the dark to take the life of his victim. If larceny was not forbidden, the jails and penitentiaries of the country would house no thieves. It is the embargo put on the liquor traffic that has made violations of the law necessary.

VICTORY BONDS CATECHISM.

IN THE PRESENT Victory Loan the following questions and answers are well worth the attention of the public:

Q—Is 5½ a good rate of interest?

A.—It is. Look at it in this way. If the interest on a Victory Bond were compounded, your original $100 Bond with interest would amount to $200 in 14 years. Hide $100 in gold for 14 years and it is still only the original $100. And remember, $1000 in Victory Bonds would in 14 years amount to $2000.

Q.—Is 5½ interest on a Dominion of Canada bond a higher rate of interest than was paid on money borrowed by Canada before the war?

A.—Very much higher. In normal times Dominion of Canada bonds sold readily at a price to yield the investor about 3½ to 4 per cent. The interest-return on a security as good as Victory Bonds has scarcely been equalled since the Napoleonic wars.

Q.—Patriotism aside, why should a man buy Victory Bonds yielding 5½ per cent. when he can get 7 per cent. on something else?

A.—The something else is not as safe. Remember, the whole of the Dominion of Canada is security for that 5½ per cent. In fact, Canadians are fortunate to get such a high rate. The people of Great Britain, France and the United States do not get as much.

Q.—But suppose I bought a Bond and then found I needed money before those dates?

A.—You could either sell the Bond or borrow money on it.

Q.—How could I sell?

A.—Any bank, trust company, reliable bond dealer or broker will be glad to sell your Bond for you at any time. Merely telephone your banker or broker and say, "I want to sell $1000 Victory Bond, issue of 1919." He will quote you the market price and give you a cheque on receipt of your Bond. Be careful, however, through whom you sell.

Q.—Can I sell them at any time?

A.—Yes. Many millions of dollars worth of Victory Bonds of 1917 and 1918 have been bought and sold, and at times the demand for the Bonds has been greater than the supply.

Q.—How can I tell whether the price offered is a fair one?

A.—Victory Bonds are listed on the Canadian Stock Exchanges. Daily quotations are given in the newspapers.

Q.—But suppose I do not wish to part with my Bond but simply want a loan on it?

A.—There are times when the individual, particularly the business man, wishes to borrow money for some purpose, which he expects to repay in a short time. The holder of Victory Bonds can go to his banker at any time and secure a loan up to 90 per cent. of their market value. Far from injuring an investor's credit, such a transaction rather enhances his standing in the eyes of the lender, who appreciates the evidence of thrift shown by the possession of Victory Bonds.

CAUSE AND EFFECT AT LONDON.

(Financial Post.)

THE PETERBOROUGH Review reprints the following from the London Advertiser:

> "Laments have been heard in some quarters, both in and out of London, for the defeat of Hydro's chief. But there is a sort of diminuendo in these plaints. A feeling probably works through the minds of Sir Adam's own followers that adversity is good medicine for the autocratic tendency, particularly in a free country.
>
> "Despotism, even of the most parental kind, is an anachronism in the twentiteh century. The 'good master' idea is out of date. Democracy, which is government by as well as for the people, is the reasonable modern ideal of intelligent men. We don't want a 'good master' in Ontario. We want good servants in our public life."—London Advertiser.

The Review accepts this as plain talk from "an influential newspaper published in Sir Adam Beck's home field," and an answer to those who, "in circles remote from London," are wondering why Sir Adam Beck was defeated. The Review then goes on to explain some features of the situation with which it is evidently well acquainted:

> "The Advertiser explains when it speaks of autocracy. By the very people who knew him best Sir Adam has been rebuked.
>
> "Really, after all, there is nothing to wonder at in the defeat of a man who took over a bankrupt steam road running from London by way of St. Thomas to Port Stanley, on Lake Erie, rebuilt it and operated it at a loss in opposition to an already established line that was giving satisfactory service. When he had reduced the private line to bankruptcy and had the field to himself he raised the rates on the public line higher than the defunct company had ever charged. Any man almost is able to achieve wonderful business success when he has sufficient resources behind him to crush to death all competitors.
> "Sir Adam bought a park at Port Stanley for a public playground. One of the men interested in that park before it became State property had just completed a pavilion that cost $1700. He had a five-year concession. Sir Adam offered him $800 for his building and concession. When the owner demurred he was told he could take the offer or leave it. When he refused, Sir Adam threatened to build another pavilion close to his own and run it for nothing until the other would be forced to quit. Of course, the man in a corner had no alternative but surrender.
>
> "Public ownership is not, in theory at least, supposed to leave a trail of bankruptcy behind it."

The above opinions are reproduced for the benefit of those "in circles removed from London," and particularly for those who may have been inclined to place any measure of confidence in the claims of the public ownership press that the big corporations wrought Sir Adam's defeat. Every advice from London on this question has been a denial of the report—if such were required.

The London election was a matter entirely in the hands of the people of London. Any move on the part of outside interests to wield influence would have been at once discovered and would have been relished about as much as the well-meant advice of the stranger who interferes in a family row. It would have meant victory for Beck.

Besides, Sir Adam is still chairman of the Hydro, and his position on the Commission was not at stake in the election. Further, it seems altogether likely that his organization of municipalities will have sufficient influence to get him another seat. Therefore, as we have previously pointed out, if the Hydro is facing a new era it is not because of the defeat of Sir Adam Beck in London, but because of the defeat of the Hearst Government in Ontario. It cannot be expected by public ownership supporters that a new government will lend support to schemes involving—in Sir Adam's figures—about $200,000,000 in addition to that now spent, without some practical investigation as to the liability of the Province.

THE POOR IN COURT.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review.)

Are the courts of justice more open to the poor in Canada than they are in the United States? Are the burdens of costs less onerous, and the inconvenience of the law's delay less trying on the temper? Is the defendant in a criminal case less liable to a sentence of imprisonment for poverty because of inability to furnish bail while awaiting trial?

MAKING AMERICAN CITIZENS OF ALIENS

Cogent advice on the methods to be employed to induce a proper spirit of Americanism in aliens was given before the Americanisation session of the recent annual safety congress in Cleveland by Hans Rieg, chief of the foreign language division of the United States treasury.

"To become a citizen of the United States and a full-fledged member of our nation," said Mr. Rieg, "is the fundamental, though often dormant, desire of almost every foreigner in our midst. The thing to do is to arouse and to intensify this desire to such an extent that the individual of his or her own account will seek the opportunities to fulfill this desire.

"Don't drive them — beckon to them and lead them!

"Don't expect them to change habit and character, language and custom, from the day unto the morrow, and bear in mind that he can be a very good and most desirable American who will still retain a heart interest in his native land, his mother tongue, and the interests of his ancestry, relatives, childhood memories and racial dispositions. Americanism is not a mere matter or habit, dress or language, but of sentiment and heart.

"Advocate the possession, through earning power of mental or physical effort, of land or improved property, of a home and the attractions that accompany it. Advocate the partnership, formed by being owners of securities in the United States, be they government or private. The more the foreigner puts into the United States, the more he will soon realize he gets out of it. The longer and the more he applies his energies to his own selfish pursuits the deeper grows his interest, with the result that he becomes naturally subservient to exact and proper suggestions.

"Let him have his church and his club, his mother tongue and the publications printed in it, but see to it that their pastors and priests, their leaders and their publications ever spread the gospel of 'Americans All for America First.'

"Insist upon the teaching of 'the three R's' in either public, private or parochial schools in the language of our land but don't insist upon depriving them forcibly of the use of their own tongue. By all means do not advocate the abolition of their foreign language press, which I consider the most potent factor of Americanization and the most important part of our public institutions. There are 1,394 publications printed in thirty-five different languages, with a circulation of over 14,000,000, within the United States, and more than 8,000,000 individuals read nothing else. It is their only source of information. Information begets education. Take away from them this source and you will create most fertile soil for undesired, detrimental and sinister propaganda. See to it that this source of information is made thoroughly American and clean—this can be done—and you have the desired and necessary medium of national benefit. The invaluable service which the foreign language press rendered to the government during the time that we were at war is a matter of indisputable record. Not only the treasury department, but the state, war and navy departments of the United States, recognize it. Equally as valuable service can these foreign language publications render in time of peace.

"However, there must be a vital and most thorough change in fundamentals and general policy. Let me sum up what I mean by this in these words:

"What we have had have been Italian papers printed in America, Polish papers printed within our country, Bohemian papers printed in our land, German papers published within the United States, and on down the list. And that is wrong. What we must have are American papers printed in Polish, American papers published in Bohemian, American papers published in tongue of Italy, American papers printed in German, etc. Just as the individual who comes to us from foreign shores with the intent to live here and to benefit from the advantages of our land is expected to swear allegiance to the stars and stripes and mean it when becoming a citizen, so must the foreign language press become permeated with undivided allegiance to but one country. It must be the mouth piece of unadulterated American patriotism and its keynote should at all times be full-pledged loyalty without reservation to but one country, the United States of America."

"An Apple A Day Keeps The Doctor Away"

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away;" sang Miss Virginia Lee. She was in a motor truck overflowing with girls and apples. It was near the corner of West Randolph and North Clark streets during the apple day parade in Chicago.

"You can't keep me away!" shouted a sailor. He clambered over the end gate of the truck. A policeman bellowed; the crowd howled. Miss Lee and her show girl companions, Miss Tude Schraede and Miss Babe McIntyre, turned an apple barrage on the bluejacket. He dropped back to the street demoralized.

"An apple a day—" shrilled Miss Lee.

Scramble for Apples.

Chicago was pelted with apples. Girls with cheeks rivaling the pippins themselves staged a baby worlds series atop twenty motor trucks of apples in the loop. They threw apples right and left to the citizenry. The citizenry never missed a catch. Business men on Dearborn street forgot their dignity and scrambled with office boys for the apples. Eddie Cicotte would have swooned with jealousy if he'd seen the girls fling the apples. Such deadly accuracy.

South Water Street commission merchants gave 1,300,000 apples to thirty Chicago institutions housing poverty stricken children. Wounded doughboys at Fort Sheridan were given 180 boxes.

Twenty-five boxes of juicy Jonathans were taken to the army hospital at 47th street and Brexel boulevard. The Marine Hospital got some too. Each wounded soldier will get about ten apples.

Observed Throughout Nation.

"National apple day was observed throughout the nation, as well as in Chicago," said C. A. Kerr, chairman of the fruit dealers' committee which distributed the apples. "We sent apples to orphan asylums, hospitals and homes for the poor. It's all the gift of the South Water street merchants."

Mrs. Josephine Lawrence, assistant superintendent of the social service bureau of Cook County, spent two days finding worthy and poverty stricken families in Chicago and orphan homes where the kiddies were very poor. Then the apple day committee sent apples to these persons.

Fifty chorus girls from "Autumn scandals," the Edelweiss and the Winter Garden aided in passing the fruit."

ARMISTICE DAY EXERCISES

Editor Review,—In carrying out the two-minute silent tribute to our noble dead, may I suggest that immediately before 11 a.m. a verse of "Nearer My God to The" be sung; at 11 a.m., two minutes' silence, followed by a verse of "God Save the King," and the chorus of "O, Canada." This could be easily be carried out in homes, stores and manufacturing plants. The Peoples' Chimes will ring out suitable music from 10.45 to 11 a.m. (town clock time), concluding with the program as outlined above.

Yours truly,

Chimemaster.

Debtor—Do you think I'm going to rent a place on the ground floor just to accommodate my creditors?

Misleading Sound.

The cat settled herself comfortably in front of the farm kitchen range and began to purr. Little Dolly, who was strange to the ways of cats, regarded her with horror.

"Oh, gran'ma, gran'ma!" she cried. "Come here quick. The cat's began to boil."

A Remedy.

"See here, Bridget, the dishes you've put on the table of late have been positively dirty. Something's got to be done about it."

"Thrue for ye, ma'am. If ye only had dark colored ones they wouldn't showthe dirt at all."

"Well, what's the answer?"

"When I get near either I always look out."

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general.

SALESMANSHIP USED TO ATTRACT GOOD EMPLOYES

A real effort to sell jobs, actually to "merchandise" them instead of merely announcing them in the usual want ad style, is being made by a large corset manufacturer of Worcester, Mass.

The advertising this company is using to attract the right kind of workers to its plant falls within the want ad classification only in so far as the copy is run in the want ad section of the daily newspapers. For the rest it fulfills all the functions of a regular merchandising advertisement, with the exception that it is designed to make a prospective worker desire a job rather than to make a prospective customer desire an article of merchandise.

There are a number of related appeals in the copy, all leading up to the final impulse to action.

With the slogan "Greater Production Is a World Necessity" and under the caption, "Every girl or young woman should be engaged in some useful productive occupation," the argument reads:

"The entire world is calling for goods of all kinds—things that are manufactured by machinery in factories. Most everybody is behind in orders. Everybody must catch up!

"One way to accomplish this is for every one who can work to do so. Your time, energy and best effort are needed right now, and you will receive ample remuneration.

"There is no better place to start than in our big, modern, clean factory. By giving us the benefit of your labor here now you can actually help relieve this serious world situation, at the same time earning high wages and a 15 per cent. bonus.

"Experience is not imperative, as we will teach you corset work free in our training school. Ask for Miss Askworth."

There is a subtle and effective but none the less sincere appeal to the prospective employe in this discussion of the world situation and the fact that even the individual worker can be a factor in it. It does two things. it gives the worker an opportunity to take some pride in her work, and it tell her that the company has a personality and that it appreciates her own personality and does not regard labor as a mere commodity, to be trafficked in like wheat or sugar

It lacks the mystery attached to the old-style hackneyed announcement of "Help wanted; good wages; splendid opportunity for ambitious workers," which tells nothing convincing of the kind of employer, the type of plant, the conditions surrounding the work or the manner in which employes really are treated. But this kind of mystery, the company feels, is not the kind of mystery that helps. Rather, it hurts.

NO WONDER HE STUCK TO HIS JOB

In the course of its attempt to secure the re-enlistment of men formerly in the army, the War Department recently wrote to an ex-soldier in St. Louis, detailing the pleasures and pastimes of army life. With a grim smile the former doughboy replied:

"I have a good job in a shoe store here. After what I suffered during the war you can tell the army to go to hell."

About ten days later he was rather startled to open a letter in an official envelope, a communication which informed him that:

"Any suggestions as to movements of troops must be entered on army form, CQ 456-73, a copy of which is inclosed."

INDIANAPOLIS GROCERS TO TELL PUBLIC FACTS

The Indianapolis Retail Grocers' Association has a story to tell, and it is going to tell it in a newspaper advertising campaign to begin in the immediate future. Quarter-page space will be used once a week and the campaign will continue for six months.

The inquiry into the high cost of living has tended to seek a goat and the grocer has been a convenient target for the ammunition of the investigators. Food is so close to the fundamental necessities of every person that those seeking a little inexpensive publicity have fired a few shots at the grocers of the city sure that a general hand-clapping would follow. In short, grocers have been blamed for nearly everything connected with high living costs. So they have decided to explain in paid space.

The copy to be run will begin by setting the public right on a few fundamentals of the grocery business.

Public Misunderstands.

The average retailer dislikes to reveal his business affairs, such as margins, to the public gaze, not because he is profiteering, but because he feels that the public would misunderstand. Average retail selling costs are about 25 per cent., the usual price to the buyer being such as to allow the dealer to make a 25 per cent. margin on the selling figure. Because of the quick turnover the stocks in the grocery business members of that trade are able to make a fair profit on a 25 per cent margin. The grocers have nothing to conceal and a good deal to tell, and they plan to deal in cold facts in their talks to the public.

The campaign will cost about $1500 and will be borne by a $5 assessment on each of the 300 members of the association. The financial arrangements have been completed by M. F. Horn, secretary of the association, and the copy is now being laid out.

WHAT WOULD HUBBY RAISE ON FOUR BOTTLES

The question now arises as to how many chickens her husband would accumulate on an equal quantity of the patent brew.

STRIKERS SIDESTEP CHANCE TO OWN PLANT

Employes of Goldsmith, Stern & Co., one of the largest jewelry manufacturing concerns in the country, were flabbergasted when the owner met their ultimatum of "25 per cent. increase or strike," with an offer to let them buy the business co-operatively, on easy terms, at its appraised valuation, and take all the profits.

He even went so far as to offer them his own services free for a period of six months.

They refused his offer.

TO ATTRACT TRADE TO BASEMENT STORE

An unusual way of calling attention to its bargain basement department is used by the Boston Store, of Chicago. On each of its eleven floors are displayed cases of merchandise placed at elevator doors and at the top of moving stairways. These have done much to switch trade from the upper floors to the lowest section of the store.

BOXERS COME INTO THEIR OWN

PROFESSIONAL PUGILISTS NO LONGER RESENT BEING CALLED GENTLEMEN

London, Nov. 9.—The professional boxer has come into his own with a vengeance. What with mayoral receptions, high social patronage and royal messages of good cheer and congratulation, the day when the pugilist himself used to resent being called a gentleman has gone forever.

When Eugene Criqui, the French boxer, arrived in London for his contest with Walter Ross, English bantam champion, he found a pressing invitation to make his training headquarters at Mlle. Delysia's fine residence, Redeham Hall, Horley.

There in the midst of the most beautiful surroundings, Criqui was installed with two sparring partners, and completed his preparations for the fight.

Every boxer has a mascot nowadays. Criqui's is an orphaned boy, whom he picked up during the fighting on the devastated plain of Arras and is bringing up.

The greatest anxiety Criqui has at present is connected with the passport difficulties in getting this mascot to England.

ENGLISH FOOTBALL TRANSFER OF NOTE

London, Nov. 8.—At a footballers' meeting at Leeds it was decided to seek league sanction for the transfer of Huddersfield town club, with all interests, players and engagements, to Leeds, to take the place of Leeds city, which has been dissolved, and for the creation of a new club with Leeds' name.

Huddersfield officials frankly admitted that their eagerness to arrange the matter was owing to lack of home support.

If the league approves as is expected, the new club will enter the second division next Saturday in the Huddersfield match against Coventry.

LAWN BOWLERS —DEFEAT ROLLERS

Owing to a change of schedule the Lawn Bowlers played Friday night against the Rollers in the "Y" Five Pin League. The Lawn Bowlers captured the three games but not without retaliation from the Rollers as the five from the "Y" were out to win, but not at the pace the Lawn Bowlers set after they passed their first games. All players worked hard to win while McGee was out to hold the top score for the week, but lost out to Elliott in the first game.

FINED FOR BEING DRUNK

Tom Tully Pays $14.10 For One Evening's Enjoyment.

Tom Tully cheerfully paid $14.10 into the city treasury this morning for being under the influence of alcohol on Simcoe street on Saturday.

As this is not Tully's first appearance before Magistrate Dumble on this charge, Crown Attorney Hatton volunteered the suggestion that he get out in the open country before getting drunk. The accused, however, thought it was more fun, even if more expensive, in the city.

"Good bye, Mr. Dumble; I won't be back for a week," he exclaimed, on receiving his change from the fine.

21ST BATTALION TO HOLD BIG BANQUET

ARMISTICE DAY TO BE CELEBRATED BY DINNER IN OTTAWA

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—At a well attended meeting of the 21st. Battalion Club, held in the G. W. V. A. annex, final arrangements were made for the battalion banquet to be held in the Russell Hotel on Armistice Day. Old members of the battalion are coming here for the occasion from all over the province, and the affair will doubtless be one of the biggest military entertainments held this year.

Lieut-Col H. E. Pense, D. S. O. M. C., will bring the largest outside contingent. It is to come from Kingston. Major (Rev.) W. E. Kidd, M.C. Cornwall, will bring in a party from that town, and Leut.-Col. Caldwall, Perth, a well-known ex-member of the 21st., will come with a large party from his town and district. Lieut. P. Geene, and Lieut. A. Johnston, Belleville, will bring the party from there. Other towns will be represented by names of those coming have not yet been definitely secured.

Reports from the various committees working on the preparations were received at last night's meeting, and an exceptionally encouraging one was submitted by the banquet committee. A large number of tickets were reported sold, but more are still available, and ex-members of the battalion are advised to communicate with either Mr. A. Trippitt, 813 York street, or Capt. F. H. Westbeare, 290 Lyon street, to obtain them. Comrade C. O'Keefe presided.

Portland, Ind.—"I had a displacement and suffered so badly from it that at times I could not be on my feet at all. I was all run down and so weak I could not do my housework, was nervous and could not lie down at night. I took treatments from a physician but they did not help me. My Aunt recommended Lydia E. TWO TEMAS IN CITY BASKETBALL LEAGUE

BELMONTS AND QUAKER OATS THE WINNERS

In the City Basketball League games played in the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium floor, Saturday night, the Belmonts defeated the C. G. E. team by 35 to 23., the Cubs went down to defeat at the hands of the Quaker Oats by 25 to 29.

This is the opening of this league and the games were very hard fought interesting and displayed some very clever playing. It looks like, during the basketball season, now the best of the players have returned from overseas, some good playing will be seen.

ST. PAUL WOMAN AFTER SUFFERING 32 YEARS GAINS 14 POUNDS TAKING TANLAC.

"I have taken only two bottles of Tanlac, but they have entirely stopped my thirty-two years of suffering and almost made a new woman out of me," said Mrs. Julius Hoanhouse, of 469 Clinton Ave., St. Paul, Minn., recently.

"For thirty-two years I suffered from stomach trouble and chronic indigestion," she continued, "and at times even the pressure of my clothes against my stomach would hurt me. I had to be very careful about what I ate and even then it was hard for me to retain anything on my stomach and sometimes I was so nauseated I would have to give up and go to bed before I could get relief. I suffered no end of misery from gas, and many and many a night slept hardly a wink because of the pains in my stomach. For months at a time I was of in weight as much as ten pounds and if I gained it back I didn't gain in strength, but felt as week and draggy as ever, if not more so. I spent hundreds of dollars and used all kinds of medicine but got no relief, and was beginning to think I would have to go on through life and never get rid of my old troubles.

"But a good friend of mine who new what I had gone through heard about Tanlac and suggested that I try it, and to-day I feel thankful to that friend and even more thankful to Tanlac for I can honestly say it is the best medicine I have ever taken. My stomach is in fine condition and now and no matter what I eat it digests and I don't suffer any more after eating. I'm gaining in weight and strength right along. In fact I've gained fourteen pounds already and weigh more than I ever did in my life. I sleep fine every night and I've gone back to doing all my housework by myself and I don't feel a bit overtired after I get through either. Since I've taken Tanlac and it has helped me so wonderfully I understand why so many people are coming out and saying it is the finest thing they have ever seen."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in West [illegible] Pringle and Son.

BAD FIRE AT HOME OF LINDSAY TOWN CLERK

WOODSHED AND KITCHEN DESTROYED EARLY SATURDAY MORNING

Lindsay, Nov. 10.—Mr. Duncan Ray Town Clerk, suffered a heavy loss from fire at an early hour Saturday morning, when a woodshed and summer kitchen were almost completely destroyed by fire, while some of the contents in the main part of the house were slightly damaged by water.

The origin of the fire, which broke out about 2:30 o'clock, is unknown. In fact the fire was not discovered until it had completely destroyed the woodshed and was licking up the kitchen, which is also a frame structure. The worthy Town Clerk had been attending a function in the Masonic Hall, retiring about 12 o'clock. About 2:30 Mr. and Mrs. Ray were awakened by Mrs. Lownsboro, who informed them that the house was on fire. It was evident that the fire started at the extreme north end of the shed, and worked its way through the brick wall on the main dwelling.

The firemen responded and soon had a stream of water playing on the flames, also managing to get the flames under control.

Mr. Ray's loss will be considerable.

LUNCHEON CASHIER HELD UP AND SHOT

DARING ATTEMPT AT ROBBERY IN MONTREAL RESTAURANT —ASSAILANT ESCAPES

Montreal, Nov. 8.—Held up in his cage at Walton's uptown luncheon St. Catharine and Peel streets, at 1.15 o'clock this morning, and ordered to hand over the money, the cashier, Joe Ginsberg, refused, and was shot through the breast above the heart by a man who made his escape in the commotion which followed.

Ginsberg, who is 32, was taken to the Montreal General Hospital, where the doctors stated he was in no immediate danger. The bullet penetrated the breast and came out through the shoulder at the back.

According to an eye-witness a man wearing a returned soldier's button entered the St. Catharine street entrance of the restaurant and went up to the wicket and addressed a few words o the cashier inside. Ginsberg spoke back and the man pulled out a revolver, fired one shot through the opening in the class screen, and then walked from the building.

Acton ratepayers passed a bylaw to spend $40,000 on their waterworks.

BANKS WILL GRANT EMPLOYERS CREDIT

TO ASSIST THE WORKING CLASSES IN THE PURCHASE OF VICTORY BONDS

In order that working men and women may have every opportunity to become owners of Victory bonds the chartered banks have decided to make loans to employers of labor covering the subscriptions of their employees.

By this arrangement the rate of interest charged by the banks will be the same as the yield of the bonds the loans to be made for ninety per cent of the amount subscribed, and to be paid off in monthly instalments. The banks have further unanimously agreed that these loans will not be considered as imparing the amount of credits for other purposes.

Employers must realize the urgency of swelling the Victory Loan to the largests possible proportion and it is their duty to themselves, their employees and the Nation to do all in their power to encourage the workers to invest liberally in the bonds.

Every dollar of the Victory Loan 1919 will be spent in Canada. The money will be put into circulation for the good of all classes but none will derive more direct benefit than the workers whose continuance of steady employment at good wages hinges largely upon the success of this Victory Loan.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM DAWSON

William Dawson was born in the township of South Monaghan on Nov. 25, 1846 and as a son of one of the pioneers of the township, assisted very materially in the development of the moral and spiritual welfare of the community. As a life partner Mary [illegible] was chosen and together from March 29th, 1871, they laid the foundations of a happy and godly home. The success attending his efforts is manifest not only in his popularity but also in the improvements upon the property upon which he laboured. A few years ago he retired from the farm and built a well-furnished home in Bailieboro. For eighteen years he was recording steward of the Quarterly Official Board of South Monaghan circuit and was an efficient officer in the Methodist Church at both of the appointments, Bensfort and Bailieboro. On Thursday morning last, after some years of suffering from asthma, he suddenly passed into the Great Beyond. In addition to his sorrowing wife, two sons, T. Edgar and Ira, both of Bailieboro, six grand-children, six brothers, Nichol, Peter, George, Thomas, Harry and Welford, all of South Monaghan, and two sisters, Mrs. Dr. Marshall and Mrs. P. E. Rutherford, both of Peterborough, cherish the memory of his life.

The funeral service was conducted on Saturday afternoon, November 8, at his home in Bailieboro by his pastor, Rev. M. W. Leigh, B.A., who paid tribute to his careful and efficient work as recording steward and as treasurer of the trustee board. Six nephews were pall-bearers, viz, Hilliard Dawson, Charles Dawson, Albert Dawson, Edmund Dawson, William C. Dawson and John Bosnell. Interment took place in the family plot in the Dawson cemetery, South Monaghan, where lie the remains of an infant son and daughter.

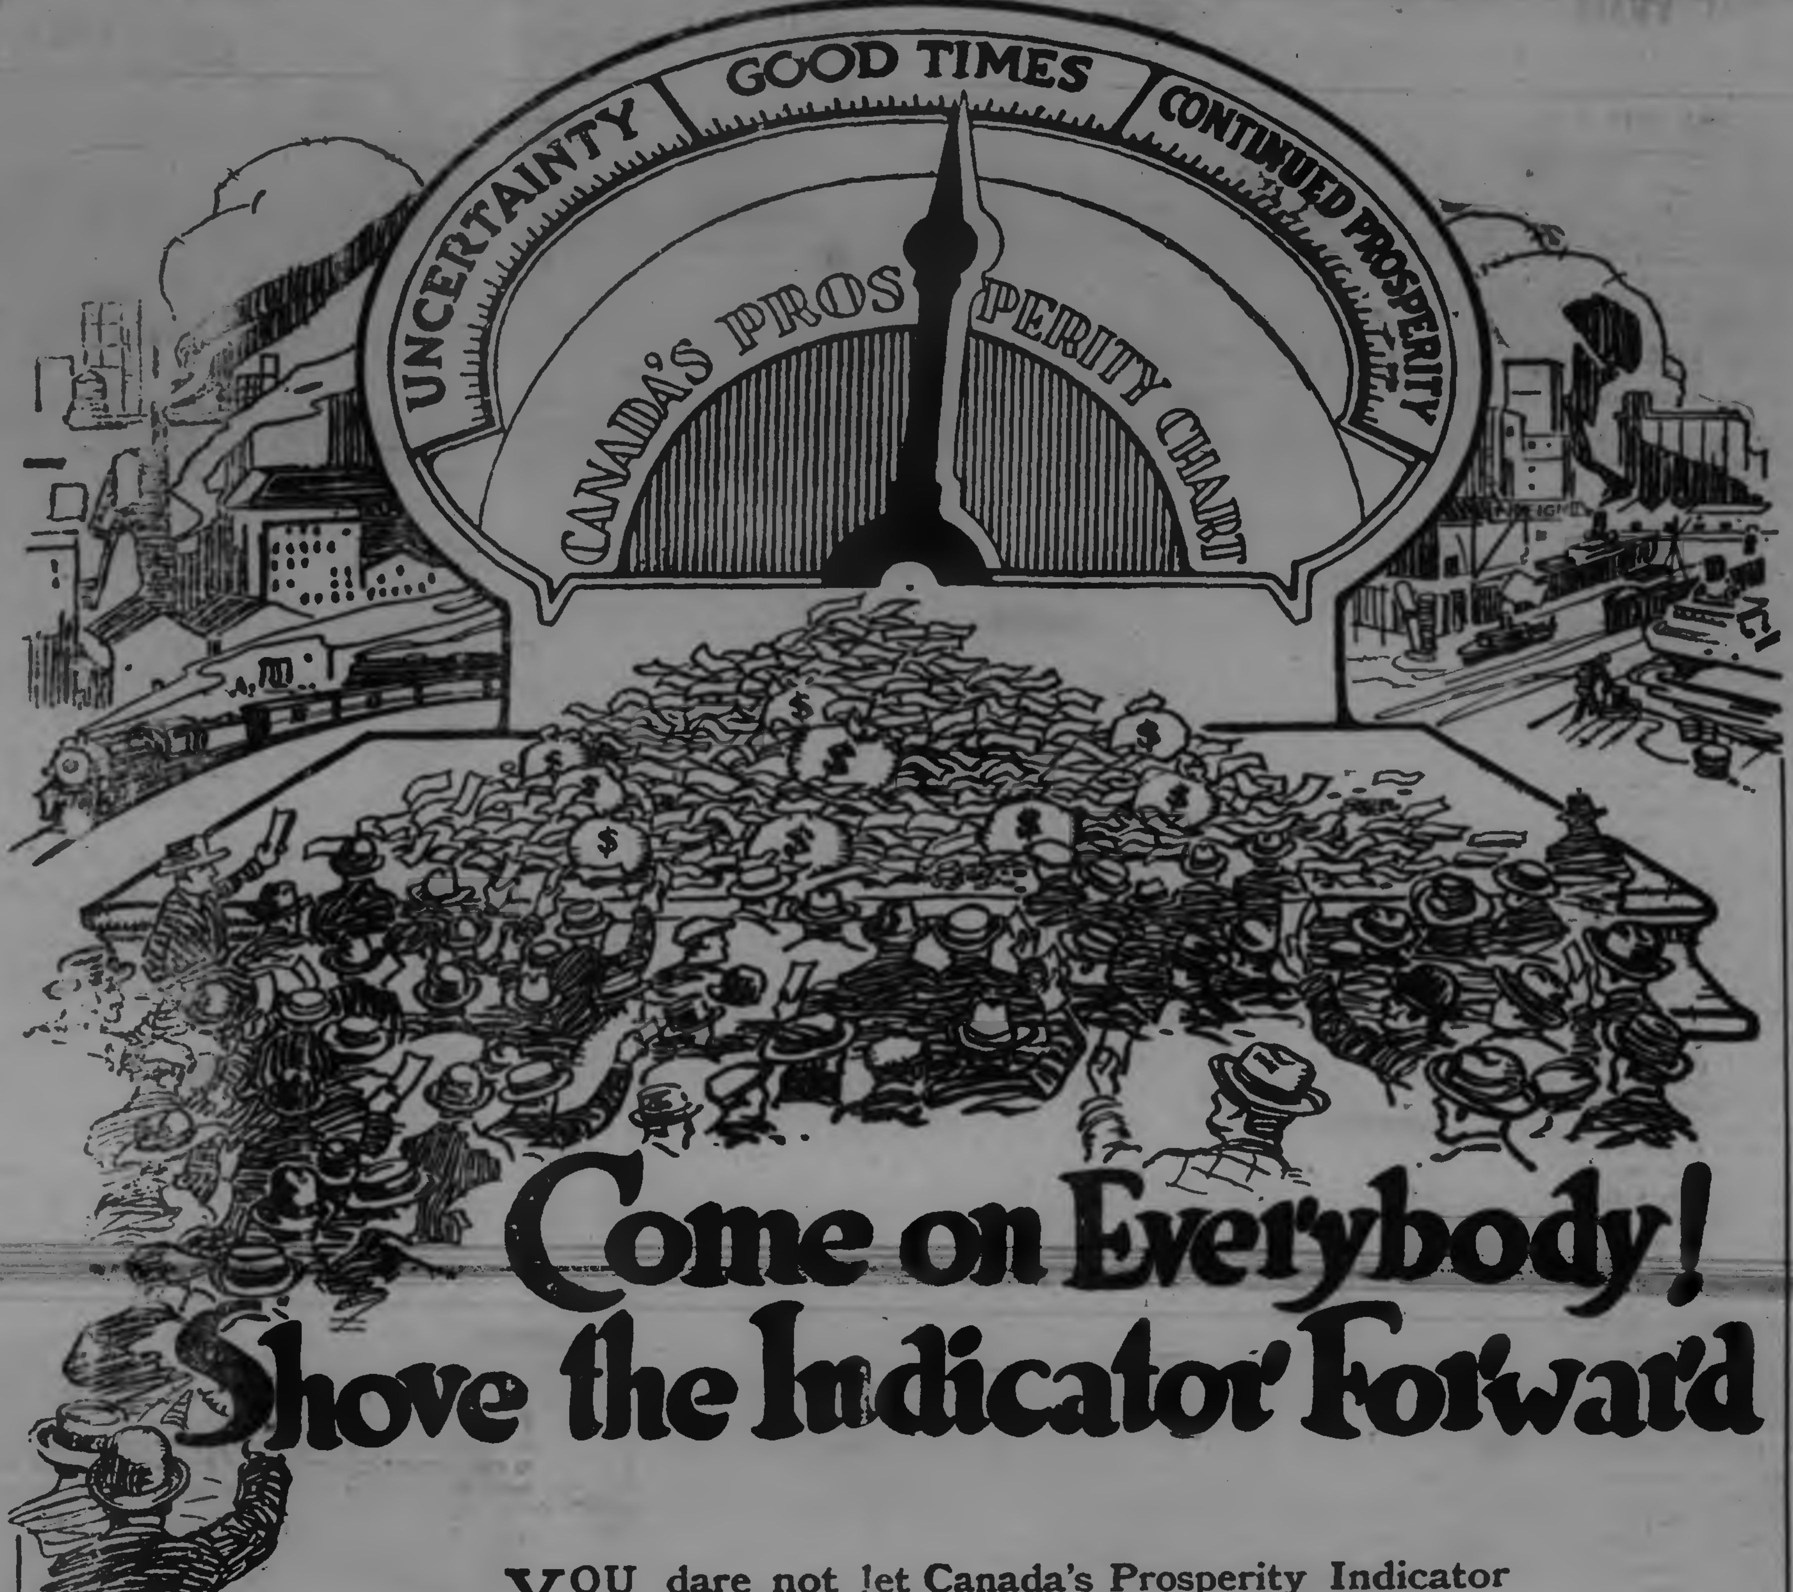
ALLEGED DUMMER "STILL" IS OPERATING

OFFICERS OF THE LAW ARE SEARCHING FOR ITS WHEREABOUTS

The rumored Dummer illicit distillery is said to have resumed operations, but only for a short time because two of its alleged chief shareholders, Messrs. Charles and Mat. Lytle were caught by officials of the law with a large "crock" of home brew in their possession last night.

A charge was laid against these men at the police court this morning for illegally manufacturing intoxicating beverages. Four policemen were out all night searching for the still but Messrs. Lytle say "Let them look because there isn't any." The police, however, are of the opinion that a still is in the neighborhood and are determined to find it.

The prisoners were remanded for a week and Mr. Gordon who appeared for the accused did not press his claim for bail, to allow the police a couple of days search for the still without interference. Mr. Gordon jokingly remarked that he thought the jug of home brew might be considered sufficient bail, but if bail were set it is estimated the Magistrate would not consider even this enough to guarantee the return of the prisoners.



YOU dare not let Canada's Prosperity Indicator slip back; you must keep shoving it forward. Every dollar added shoves it over that much nearer to Continued Prosperity.

Great Britain is prepared to place large orders in Canada, but she is temporarily unable to pay cash for them.

Canada can get these orders if she gives Great Britain credit. Canada can give this credit if you provide the money to pay the workers on these orders.

You will provide the money through your purchase of Victory Bonds.

Therefore the more Victory Bonds you buy the more orders Canada will get—the more money there will be to distribute among our workers—the more money there will be put in circulation for the benefit of all.

Canada's Prosperity will be in proportion to Canada's purchase of Victory Bonds.

There are only five more days.

Shove the indicator over into Continued Prosperity.

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210480) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

HOW FOOTBALL MEN ARE TRAINED

There is an effective trick play that can occasionally be tried at the kickoff. The ball is placed on a mound at least six inches high and kicked from under so as to make it rise as high as possible, giving the kicker's own men time to get under and capture the ball. All men are on side at the kickoff, so that this is permissible. This play is sometimes used in an effort to get possession of the ball in the opponents' territory. If successful, it has the effect of unsteadying the opponents.

Another trick play that can be tried at the kickoff is to send the ball toward the side line ten to twelve yards, and give a fast, open field runner a chance to get a start down the field. The most effective way to play this trick is to have the regular kickoff man stand back as for the regular kick, and, after the usual preliminaries he starts on the run toward the ball, but just as he approaches it he veers off or stops and another of his team mates, who is standing back a step or two from the ball, gives the ball a short kick toward the sidelines, where it is caught or picked up by an end or back and carried as far as possible. This trick, if successful, is one of the quickest methods of shaking the confidence of the opposing team.

Catching the ball from kickoff or after a punt may well be taken up together. The old way, which was to catch the ball against the chest, is ill advised, because it is so much more easy for it to get away on a rebound from the solid ribs if not securely caught. The way most favored by eastern players is to form a sort of pocket with the arms, one thigh and the body. This may be effective if the ball is judged perfectly and the player is all set. But it is a slower position to get under way from. The best way to catch a punt is to form a pocket of the hands and forearms and the soft part of the body. This catch more nearly resembles the hold in carrying the ball and it allows the catcher to get under way more quickly.

Speaking of the importance of catching the ball from the kickoff and the punt and the seriousness of fumbling emphasizes a point that applies to all kinds of occasians during a closely fought game, namely, the value of falling on the ball. The player should learn to dive recklessly and wrap himself around it, hugging it tightly with his arms or with his arms and knees if need be. Unless there is a good chance of scooping the fumbled ball and getting away the runner should take a dive and wrap himself about it. It is well also to practice diving on to the ball and wrapping the arms around it and continue in one roll on to the feet again to gain ground if possible.

In scooping up a fumbled ball on the run the most important point for the player to remember is to place the forward foot alongside of the ball. If the forward foot is placed in front of it the runner's own momentum may cause him to boot it and lose his chance for a gain, or lose the ball itself, which is worse.

The most important modern development of the game is the forward pass. If executed perfectly this is one of the most graceful and spectacular of open plays. The spectators particularly like the forward pass because they can all see it from the beginning to the end and grasp its meaning and importance, even [illegible] perfectly.

In the forward pass the ball is received by the quarterback, and, for best results, thrown from the hand without gripping it tightly. The ball is laid in the hand with the fingers resting against the lacing and thrown from the shoulder and not up above the head. The fingers cause it to spin as it leaves the hand. For short passes the ball is thrown on a line. For long passes it is lifted so as to get distance. The ball is passed with a snap of the forearm rather than with a full arm movement. The forward pass is often an immense ground gainer and is frequently the deciding factor of a game.

Next to passing successfully, catching the forward pass is most important. Much time is spent in practising catching the ball with the hands and at all angles and positions. In short, snappy passes of about ten yards or so the body and arms are employed, but often in plays of this kind it is necessary to use the hands alone. Therefore it is advisable for the players to put in much time practising catching the football with the hands.

CANADA MUST ADOPT COAL RESTRICTIONS

IN ORDER TO OBTAIN MORE COAL THAN NEEDED FOR EMERGENCIES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 10.—In order to obtain more American coal than is needed for emergencies, Canada must adopt restrictions on the use of coal similar to those in effect in United States.

Alberta Suffers.

This statement was made today by the Railroad Administration's central coal committee after members had read a complaint in the Canadian House of Commons by Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways, that citizens of Alberta were suffering from lack of fuel.

Send Cars Home.

Replying to Mr. Reid's statement that nearly 45,000 Canadian railway cars were held on this side of the boundary against 23,000 American cars in Canada, the Railway Administration officials said the movement of cars was as free and unrestricted as before the strike began. Many of these cars were sent from Canadian roads to coal producing districts of this country before the strike began, it was stated, and they will be returned to their home roads as rapidly as traffic conditions will permit.

SOME ELECTION HELP STILL WAIT FOR MONEY

LINDSAY RETURNING OFFICERS ETC., COMPLAINING.

Lindsay, Nov. 10.—Many people of Lindsay and South Victoria are wishing with all their might that the U. F. O. would hurry up and get into the saddle for a very particular reason..

They are the returning officers, the deputies, the poll clerks the constables, the owners o fhomes where polls were held and all the other cogs in the election machinery. For the said machinery has not been oiled since its performance on October 20. In other words, nobody has been paid.

The returning officers throughout the Province sent their bills to Queens Park. The bills necessitated an order-in-council, as the law is not very clear as to what should be paid in connection with the referendum. The officials at the Parliament buildings looked thoughtful, shifted a little and apparently bethought themselves of the safety first campaign. At any rate, they ever so politely suggested that the returning officers would do well not to bother the moribund government with these bills. The moribund government was of like opinion; it decidedly did not wish to be disturbed. So you can just present your accounts to the U. F. O. when they take charge. So the returning officers wait and their deputies wait, and so on down the line, all waiting, and not for any small amount, either.

LABOR'S REPLY TO W. ROLLO

Say McBride Was Justified in Bolting Recent Coference.

Brantford, Nov. 10.—The executive of the Brantford I. L. P. have issued a statement replying to the charges of W. Rollo, leader of the Ontario I. L. P. They declare that Mr. Rollo labored under a false impression.

Contradictory Statements.

Their attitude was based on statements issued by Drury, Rollo and Simpson, which, they claim, contradict each other. Drury claims the choice, Simpson declared exactly the opposite, and Rollo said that Labor was heart and soul in with the U. F. O.

"McBride Was Right."

After pointing out that three members of the Brantford I. L. P. executive were at Hamilton, where co-operation and not coalition was decided upon, the statement declares that "There is abundant evidence in the interview with Mr. Rollo, Mr. Drury and Mr. Simpson to satisfy us that Mr. McBride was absolutely right in leaving the conference, as the terms of the pact were being violated by Mr. Drury's declaration.

Labor Not Thought Of.

"We have since observed that Mr. Drury is going ahead picking and choosing farmer representation for his Cabinet, and Labor has not even been thought of as having anything to say as to the personnel of the Cabinet. In view of this we cannot understand why the Labor party should be content to permit a farmer leader to have the final say as to the Labor representatives in the Cabinet.

The Leavings.

"Surely the I. L. P. is to be met with the spirit of co-operation by the farmers. They will not be asked to take the leavings after the whole U. F. O. membership has been considered."

LIQUOR CAN BE

Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King described the measure as "humbug," being neither provincial nor federal. A better designation would have been "hybrid." It is a combination of provincial and federal action, and a shelving of responsibility of both federal and provincial administrations back to the people, but in the end prohibiton of the dryest kind can be secured by any province that desires it. For a time it removes the prohibition issue from the Federal House, to the deep regret of the professional political prohibitionsts.

Pass Prohibition Bill.

Hon. C. J. Doherty's amendment to the Act in aid of provincial legislation prohibiting the sale or use of intoxicating liquors was given the second reading. The bill prohibits the manufacture of intoxicating liquor when it is known or intended that such liquor will be used in violation of the law of the province in which it is manufactured. There was no opposition to the second reading and the House went into committee on the bill.

Mr. D. D. McKenzie protested that the amendment placed the burden of proof on the accused, and that it was a departure from the British principle of a man being innocent until he is proven guilty. Mr. Doherty replied that the onus of proof was only in regard to the man knowing the purpose for which the liquor was to be used. hTe bill was reported and given third reading.

Amend Temperance Act.

The bill to amend the Canada Temperance Act was then taken up for second reading. Hon. C. J. Doherty explained that the proposed amendment made the importation of liquor unlawful in any province in which the electors had voted in favor of the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors. When the people in any province decided by plebiscite to abolish the sale of liquor, this bill prohibited the importation. The manufacture of liquor for illegal purposes in any province was prevented by Bill No. 27, passed earlier in the day.

Mr. Doherty explained that the bill did not affect the manufacture of liquor in any province for export from the Dominion, and emphasized that importation into a province would be prohibited only after that province had decided to prohibit the sale of liquor.

The barn with all its contents, belonging to W. Hinge of North Oxford, was destroyed by fire, and the loss is estimated at $3000.

SEE TOM MIX AT THE EMPIRE

Don't fail to see Tom Mix in his great play of a tenderfoot, "The Coming of the Law," at the Empire to-night, Tuesday and Wednesday. This picture is a heart-stirring story of the west where outlaws ruled and contains enough thrills to fill a week, and then some. Tom Mix needs no introduction to Peterborough movie fans—his pictures are to be seen at the Empire often—but it is safe to say that this, his latest, will far out-class anything he has yet done. The production is of the wild and woolly west and all lovers of this kind of picture drama should see "The Coming of the Law."

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—Hon. Doherty, acting leader of the Government, stated in Commons this morning that the Governor-General would attend at four-thirty this afternoon for the purpose of proroguing Parliament. Mr. Doherty also stated that while the date had not been fixed, Parliament would meet again early in 1920.

Acting Leader Doherty also told Hon. Mckenzie King that so far as he knew Sir Robert Borden was recovering strength, but he could not say when the Premier would return to Ottawa.

ITALIAN TROOPS CLASH WITH POET'S

NOTHING OFFICIAL FROM FIUME

REPORTS SAY THAT TRUCE WAS BROKEN AND ITALIANS ATTACKED

Belgrade, Nov. 10.—There has been a clash between forces of the Italian Government and Gabriele d'Annunzio's troops, in which casualties were suffered by both sides, according to a statement issued by the Serbian official press bureau today. The statement follows:

"In a sanguinary skirmihs between Italian troops and Gabriele d-Annunzio's forces; the Government troops suffered considerable losses, including one captain. D'Annunzio's troops lost one man killed and several wounded.

"A telegram received from Tagrod says there is much dissatisfaction among d'Annunzio's soldiers because of scant food, and that there is little military discipline."

Quarrel in Streets.

Fiume, Nov. 10.—Disorders between d'Annunzio's trops and Italian regulars have been reported, but details are withheld. According to the report a street fight occurred with regular troops who were on their way to Sussak with supplies for the regulars stationed there.

By special permission of d'Annunzio they were allowed to pass through Fiume. A quarrel started along the road and guns were used. The report says two men were killed and one was wounded. The following reference is made to a published account of the visit of the Duchess of Acosta to Fiume:

"The duchess visited the military hospital, [illegible] the body of Private Luigi Sivero, who died in the incident along the line of the Fiume frontier."

BURIED ALIVE FOR TEN LONG MINUTES

SUCH WAS HE EXPERIENCE OF JOHN SULLIVAN SATURDAY AFERNOON

John Sullivan, 128 James street, received some severe bruises on the side and back when he was buried under a pile of earth and quicksand at the Vermont Marble Works, East City, about 2:45 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

He was working at a sewer leading into the marble works when the embankment, composed largely of quicksand, gave way and completely buried him.

The pulmotor was summoned, but not required, as what was needed was the attendance of a physician. Chief Grange sent for Dr. Amys, who quickly arrived on the scene and announced that the man's injuries were not of a dangerous character.

Mr. Sullivan is still sore and bruised, but is able to walk about. It is not pleasant to be buried alive for ten minutes, and he is very fortunate to get off with the slight injuries he escaped wth.

"Our Patrons Are Our Advertisers"

COST OF PRODUCING MILK IS INCREASING

THIS IS LARGELY DUE TO HIGH COST OF FEED AND MILCH COWS

A largely attended meeting of the milk producers of Peterborough was held in the Board of Trade rooms on Saturday evening to consider the question of a fair-price for milk under existing conditions.

It was unamiously agreed that milk cannot be produced at a less cost than $3.60 per hundred pounds, approximately 9 cents per quart.

The high cost of feed and the rising price of milck cows are responsible for the increased cost of production of milk. The price in Toronto, which the milk producers have decided to sell at during the winter months is $3.35 for an eight-gallon can or [illegible] cents per quart wholesale. The retail price in Kingston and Toronto and many other places is 16 cents per quart and many other towns are considering the question of raising the price of milk to that figure.

"There is no justice in this court" remarked James Brodsky, a former policeman, when fined $10 in New York Traffic Court. Whereupon the magistrate added three days in jail.

MONTREAL GRABBED CHAMPIONSHIP FROM AMBITIOUS HAMILTON TIGERS

Tigers Trimmed in Deciding Game of Big-Four Union Score Twelve to Six Big Crowd of Fans.

Hamilton Athletic Grounds, Nov. 8.—Having come from behind in the Big Four race to a splendid position to grab the championship, emerging O.K. in the protest lodged against them by Argos, and having staged a sensational last-minute rally in the famous game with the Toronto oarsmen, the Hamilton Tigers were out to settle the Big Four battle in stirrin gstyle today. The largest crowd of loyal supporters witnessed on a local athletic field since pre-war days was present. The team was in splendid fettle, and it was generally anticipated that Montreal would have to be unusually good to win today's game, and with the game the Big Four championship. It was quite evident that a hard game was expected, just as it was evident that Montreal players and supporters figured they stood a splendid chance to beard the Tigers in the den and carry away their first victory on a local field in 12 years. Montreal was at top strength and supremely confident. Their supporters had money and wagered it more freely than has been witnessed at any other games this year. This confidence only strengthened the general belief that a hard battle would be witnessed. The weather was a vast improvement upon that prevailing for the previous two fixtures, while the field was in fair condition. Tigers were making one or two changes to their line-up, in the belief that they were putting out their strongest line-up. If beaten, they would have no excuses. The teams:

Referee—Silver Quilty, Ottawa.

Umpire—W. A. Hewitt, Toronto.

Even money prevailed before the game, with considerable Montreal money in sight. The Tigers had a large rooters' club and a rube band on the job and they livened proceedings before the game. Umpire W. A. Hewitt was not on the job when the game commenced and Ben. Simpson was pressed into service. A strong wind blew across the field from the northeast.

First Quarter.

Tigers kicked off into the wind. Fickley passed to Montreal player by mistake for the first down, 25 yards out. Montreal was offside and lost the ball. Tigers got 10 yards on an offside. Montreal fumbled and Tigers got the ball at the half-way line.

McGill broke through for a 40-yard run. Montreal trick plays were working well. McKelvey took a punt behind the line and made a nice run, saving a sure point. Craig hit the line for yards. An offside gave the ball to Montreal, but Brophy kicked into his own scrimmage.

Tigers hit the line three times in succession for their yards. A bad pass lost ground for them, but they made a gain in an exchange of punts. Tigers ripped the visiting line to pieces in three successive down. McKelvey was sent around [illegible] 30-yard dash and a touchdown. Score: Tigers 5, Monteal 0.

Gatenby failed to convert.

Quarter-time came with Tigers in possession 40 yards out. Score 5 to 0.

Second Quarter.

With the wind to help, Tigers adopted a kicking game. Montreal's trick plays were pretty, but were not so effective as early in the game. Brophy punted over, and Crocker and Leadley made a mess of the play, Montreal getting a try, which they converted. Score: Montreal 6, Tigers 5.

A 40-yard gain on an onside kick and a punt by McKelvey gave the Tigers a point on a touch in goal. Montreal 6, Tigers 6.

Montreal forced the play to Tigers' line by reason of fumbles by Tigers' backs. Montreal kicked over for a point. Montreal 7, Tigers 6.

Half-time score: Montreal 7, Tigers 6.

Third Quarter.

Crocker was hurt and McFarlane replaced him. Play was hard and Tigers were kept on the defensive. On an exchange of punts Brophy kicked over for a point. Score: Montreal 8, Tigers 6.

Jacques kicked to the dead line for a point. Score: Montreal 9, Tigers6.

Three-quarter time found play at midfield with the score 9 to 6 in favor of Montreal.

Fourth Quarter.

Montreal got the ball on a forward pass by Tigers and kicked over for a rouge. Score: Montreal 10, Tigers 6

Brophy kicked over for a rouge, forcing Tigers to rouge. Montreal 11, Tigers 6.

Montreal forced another rouge.

Final score: Montreal 12, Tigers 6.

ARGONAUTS WIN FROM OTTAWA

ROUGH RIDERS SWAMPED BY TORONTO TEAM IN SCORE OF 31 TO 1

Toronto, Nov. 10—Argo II. defeated Beaches in an intermediate O. R. F. U. game here Saturday afternoon by a score of 23 to 3. The game was put on as a curtain raiser to the interprovincial fixture between Argo and Ottawa. The Beaches turned up with only nine men, and the game was no more than a workout for the Argos. The all-round work of Fier featured. The teams:

Argos II. — Flying wing, Fier; halves, Young, Stone, Pearce; quarter, Reid; scrimmage, Boyd, Rock, Pringle; inside, Kelly; middle, Nisbitt, Miller; outside, Park, Hirst and Cronk.

Referee, Len Smith. Umpire, Cromar, Jr.

Argos and Ottawa Rough Riders stages the local final in the Interprovincial Rugby Union here Saturday afternoon. This game is merely the finishing out of the schedule and has no bearing on the championship. The Big Four executive, by disallowing the Argos' protest against Hamilton, put both Ottawa and the Double Blue organizations out of the running, and Saturday's game in Hamilton between the Tigers and Montreal decided the championship. In spite of the fact that nothing depended on the game here, about two thousand fans were in the stands. The weather was cloudy and the field in a rather slippery condition. Argos lined up minus Garrett, their kicking half, who was injured in Hamilton last week. His place is being taken by Duke McCurry, who is now entirely recovered from his early injuries. The teams.

Score: Argos 31, Ottawa 1.

MEMORIAL SHIELD UNVIELED IN THE HONOR OF HEROES OF TRINITY S. S.

Inspiring Services Yesterday at Which Rev. Hiram Hu'l of Toronto Spoke.

A shield was unveiled at Trinity Church Sunday school yesterday afternoon in memory of the eighteen members of this school who made the supreme sacrifice in the great war. They are: Flight.-Lieuts. Frederick Arthur Huycke, Fred C. Creasman, Percy L. Brown; Corp. R. Heaslip; Lance-Corps. Carl Noftall, Horace W. Stanley; Signaller John McLeod, and Privates Fred Stanley, Norman Hartshorn, George Minorgan, John Lightfoot, A. H. Martin, Bert Targett, Bruce Edwards, James H. English, J. D. H. Wiskin, Joshua Blaker and Hiram Stewart.

The shield itself is made of fumed oak, and the names are engraved on maple leaves of oxidized silver arranged in an oval shape. There are three curved rows of these leaves with five names in each, and a shorter row at the bottom containing three names. It is a very handsome memorial and a fitting emblem of the great esteem the members of the Sunday school of Trinity Church feel toward their fallen heroes. At the bottom of the shield are inscribed the words, "In memory of our men who gave their lives in the world war—1914-1918. Memorial building erected in Methodist mission fields."

And the manner in which the Sunday school obtained the shield is worthy of explanation. A year ago an appeal was made for the Methodist Sunday schools to buy Victory Bonds and devote them to the purpose of erecting memorial buildings, such as hospitals and schools, in the foreign mission schools. Each school that contributed was to receive a memorial shield to be placed in its own school room in honor of its own heroes. The Trinity school generously contributed a $500 Victory bond to the cause, and the shield they received was the one unveiled yesterday.

At the afternoon service Rev. Mr. Malott read the names of the men on the shield and told the date of their enlisting, of their death, and referred to the families from whom they had gone. Rev. Wm. Neville, superintendent of the school, unveiled the shield, and Rev. Hiram Hall, B.A., of Toronto, principal of the National Training School, gave a talk to the children.

Rev. Mr. Hall also spoke at the morning service. His addresses wer both inspirational and interesting and greatly enjoyed by the large congregations.

The music of the day was of an exceptionaly high order. At the evening service, "The 23rd Psalm" was rendered by Mrs. King. A violin selection was wonderfully rendered by Prof. Adamain of the Conservatory orchestra. The choir sang the anthem, "Lead, Kindly Light," unaccompanied.

The services of the whole day were wonderfully inspirational and helpful, and the day of the unveiling of the shield in memory of the fallen heroes of Trinity Sunday school will long remain in the memory of those who attended the services.

BEAUTIFUL WINDOWS UNVEILED IN MEMORY OF FALLEN HEROES

Congregation of Knox Presbyterian Church Establish Memorial Window For 14 Members Who Valiantly and Nobly Paid the Supreme Sacrifice.

A beautiful, large memorial window was unveiled yesterday morning at the Knox Presbyterian Church, in memory of the members of that church who lost their lives in the great war. This window, which was donated by the members of the congregation, is a wonderful piece of art, and a more suitable way of commemorating the heroes who fell could not be found. On the window appears in beautiful colors a picture of the Savior and a crusader in arms. Beneath the picture is inscribed the names of all those who have fallen. They are Alfred Black, Leroy Chambers, Herbert Cunningham, Gordon Carter, William Griggs, Leslie Howden, Horace Hill, Percy Mann, John McGregor, James Newhall, Edgar Smith, Robert Thompson, Willie S. Toms and Richard Wedlock.

Mr. Andrew McKenzie, who read the names to the congregation, explained how the members of the church, after careful consideration, came to the conclusion that a memorial window would be the most fitting way, for the congregation, not to repay these men for their service, but to keep the memory ever fresh of their noble sacrifice. Some of the men had returned, but some had not, because the Great Commander had called them and he believed they were still carrying on in His service.

At the conclusion of this brief but fitting address the congregation arose and remained standing while the window was unveiled by Mrs. W. Roger and the last post was sounded on the bugle.

The pastor chose for his text part of the 9th verse of the 22nd chapter of the gospel according to St. Luke, which reads: "And He took bread, and gave thanks, and break it, and gave unto them saying, this is My body which is given for you; this do in remembrance of Me." The pastor stated that he was going to deal chiefly with the two words, "a remembrance."

The story of this supper is beautifully told. Christ wished it to be carried out through the ages that all generations might remember His sacrifice for them. Our Savior, understanding human nature as He did, and as no one else did, established this custom that His service and sacrifice might be remembered for all time.

The memory is a great gift which the Lord has bestowed upon His people. It unites the past with the present. It gives us the opportunity of learning about previous ages, of previous great men and great women. If it were not for memory one day would be isolated from all others. Owing to the wonderful gift of God, there is not a man who cannot look back with pleasure upon the days of boyhood. God has been tremendously good that through the agency of memory we can benefit by the experiences of the past.

And it is the same with a race as with an individual. No human race would be great if it were not for the memory of those that have gone.

It is because we want to pay tribute to the memory of the men who went from our shores, our homes and from the parents that loved them that we establish these memorials.

We do not hear their voices but we believe that God has called them and that they are glorifying with Him.

We all have persons near us who are kind to us and whom we regard as friends. But we take them in a matter of fact way. Then they are taken away and we miss them and their companionship. It is their memory that reveals how noble and how true they were and what an influence they had on our lives.

When in the heat of activities, insults, imagined insults, or offence at the conjunction of affairs we are apt to forget what memory would teach us. And looking back through the sense of memory, often dimmed by tears, we pray for forgiveness for the lack of appreciation.

And the memory of one day is felt by everyone. That day when in all appearances an ordinary carpenter was carrying an ordinary wooden cross over an ordinary dusty road before an ordinary crowd of people to the scene of his punishment. But looking back through the sense of memory we see through all the filth the wonderful love of God. The noblest kind of character and sacrifice is rendered where mortal eye is dim to it. But through memory we see as in a mirror, face to face. Our Lord asked us to remember His sacrifice to the end of time when we will drink from the cup of God.

Grief there is. It would not be in accordance with the character of the human brain if we did not feel great stirrings of grief. But we do it in the spirit of hope. We trust in the memory of our Savior's promise when He said: "In My Father's house are many mansions." Because it is sublimely true that He said: "I go to prepare a place for you."

O, how the memory of our Lord fills us with true hope that His promises will be fulfilled! Memory inspires to hope and service.

It is true men have thousands of discouragements. But our Lord has poured out His sacrifice that they might benefit by that memory and be inspired to carry on their duties. Let us see to it that our service to our Savior is fitting of faith.

"And now we are paying tribute to the memory of those noble men whose names appear on the window," declared Mr. McKenzie. "May the morning light ever brighten them as though they live, that the memory of their sacrifice and their service may live in our hearts in the form of hope and passion for service in our Father's Kingdom."

The Music

The music throughout the service was of the highest order and did credit to the efficient organist and choirleader, Mr. F. E. Walden.

The large congregation which filled the church to capacity entered into the spirit of the hymns with a zest and enthusiasm that was wonderful to hear. The anthem "Crossing the Bar," by the whole choir, unaccompanied, was beautiful and appropriate for the service. The male quatette which sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," added to the service. Rev. Mr. McKenzie descended from the pulpit and Mr. Walden left the organ to assist in this number. The voices of the four men blended nicely and that wonderful selection was rendered with spirit.

Great War Veterans

Before the sermon Rev. Mr. McKenzie extended a hearty welcome to the Great War Veterans' Association who attended in full strength accompanied by their band.

In every way this was a memorable service for the unveiling of a beautiful memorial window that will remain in its place reminding the people of the tremendous sacrifice and the excellent service those members of the congregation made in their behalf during the great struggle for freedom.

THE PIANO OF LOUIS XV.

The days of Louis XV. were days of luxury shown in all the appointments of the home, as well as in other ways. The piano known as Style Louis XV. Grand, made by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited, George and Hunter streets, Peterborough, comes to us as a suggestion of these days. This piano reflects in very perfect manner the period of this famed ruler of the 17th Century. The case is most artistic, the lines, scrolls and other details being of the most artistic character. In matter of tone and touch this is one of the most perfect pianos manufactured by this well-known Canadian firm.

ADVANCE IN Y. W. C. A. OF CANADA

It is six years since a national convention of the Young Women's Christian Associations in Canada has been held. This year it is to be held in Hamilton from November 13th to 18th. These six years have been marked by growth and development. Local associations have grown in number, and the work in each local association has increased in scope and diversity. The association took a large part in war work. Hostess houses were among the most useful agencies working among the soldiers. The agricultural camps played an important part in increasing Canadian production, and allowing women to take their part on the farm. Hostels for munition workers enabled the Government to rely on a steady supply of workers in communities where labor was short. If the association was useful in war time, a still bigger service lies before it in this day of reconstruction. And it is this reconstruction in all its phases which is to be the thought of the convention.

The first day is to be given to a consideration of the whole purpose of the association. Mr. Bishop, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and Miss [illegible] Saunders, general secretary of the Y.W.C.A., will set forth the subject. Miss Mabel Jamieson, general secretary, Montreal, will speak on "To-day's Challenge to the Association."

Realizing that industry presents one of our largest reconstruction problems, another day is to be given to the consideration of Christ's spirit in industry. Miss Friedman of the National Board, U.S.A., and Dr. Pidgeon, of Toronto, will speak and lead discussion on this subject.

Internationalism, world-fellowship is not only an ideal, but one of the practical issues of the day, therefore a day is set apart for the consideration of the association's world programme. Miss Caroline Macdonald, of Japan, and Mrs. Plumptie and Miss Beatty, national secretary, of Toronto, will lead the discussion and thought on this world idea. Miss Margaret Slattery, whose books on girls' work are so well known, will hold a meeting for girls on Sunday evening and will lead the forum on leadership on Monday morning. Lady Falconer, president of the Dominion Council, will take the chair at the morning and afternoon meetings, while it is hoped that at the evening meetings Dr. Sparling and Mr. Wilson, of Hamilton, the Bishop of Niagara, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Mr. Wardrope and the Mayor of Hamilton will take the chair.

Besides the full quota of members from all the Ontario associations, it is expected that Mrs. Leckie from Vancouver, Mrs. Mader and Miss Palmer from Halifax, Mrs. McAvity from St. John, Mrs. Darlington, Miss McIntyre and others from Quebec, Miss Bradshaw from Edmonton, Miss Sutcliffe, Miss McElheran, and others from Winnipeg, will be present. Miss Scott, president of the local association, and Miss Layton, the general secretary, hope to attend.

MEMORIAL SHIELD UNVIELED IN THE HONOR OF HEROES OF TRINITY S. S.

Inspiring Services Yesterday at Which Rev. Hiram Hull of Toronto Spoke.

A shield was unveiled at Trinity Church Sunday school yesterday afternoon in memory of the eighteen members of this school who made the supreme sacrifice in the great war. They are: Flight.-Lieuts. Frederick Arthur Huycke, Fred C. Cressman, Percy L. Brown; Corp. R. Heaslip; Lance-Corps. Carl Noftall, Horace W. Stanley; Signaller John McLeod, and Privates Fred Stanley, Norman Hartshorn, George Minorgan, John Lightfoot, A. H. Martin, Bert Targett, Bruce Edwards, James H. English, J. D. H. Wiskin, Joshua Blaker and Hiram Stewart.

The shield itself is made of fumed oak, and the names are engraved on maple leaves of oxidised silver arranged in an oval shape. There are three curved rows of these leaves with five names in each, and a shorter row at the bottom containing three names. It is a very handsome memorial and a fitting emblem of the great esteem the members of the Sunday school of Trinity Church feel toward their fallen heroes. At the bottom of the shield are inscribed the words, "In memory of our men who gave their lives in the world war—1914-1918. Memorial building erected in Methodist mission fields."

And the manner in which the Sunday school obtained the shield is worthy of explanation. A year ago an appeal was made for the Methodist Sunday schools to buy Victory Bonds and devote them to the purpose of erecting memorial buildings, such as hospitals and schools, in the foreign mission schools. Each school that contributed was to receive a memorial shield to be placed in its own school room in honor of its own heroes. The Trinity school generously contributed a $500 Victory bond to the cause, and the shield they received was the one unvelled yesterday.

At the afternoon service Rev. Mr. Malott read the names of the men on the shield and told the date of their enlisting, of their death, and referred to the families from whom they had gone. Rev. Wm. Neville, superintendent of the school, unveiled the shield, and Rev. Hiram Hall, B.A., of Toronto, principal of the National Training School, gave a talk to the children.

Rev. Mr. Hall also spoke at the morning service. His addresses wer both inspirational and interesting and greatly enjoyed by the large congregations.

The music of the day was of an exceptionaly high order. At the evening service, "The 23rd Psalm" was rendered by Mrs. King. A violin selection was wonderfully rendered by Prof. Adamkin of the Conservatory orchestra. The choir sang the anthem, "Lead, Kindly Light," unaccompanied.

The services of the whole day were wonderfully inspirational and helpful, and the day of the unveiling of the shield in memory of the fallen heroes of Trinity Sunday school will long remain in the memory of those who attended the services.

A beautiful, large memorial window was unveiled yesterday morning at the Knox Presbyterian Church, in memory of the members of that church who lost their lives in the great war. This window, which was donated by the members of the congregation, is a wonderful piece of art, and a more suitable way of commemorating the heroes who fell could not be found. On the window appears in beautiful colors a picture of the Savior and a crusader in arms. Beneath the picture is inscribed the names of all those who have fallen. They are Alfred Black, Leroy Chambers, Herbert Cunningham, Gordon Carter, William Griggs, Leslie Howden, Horace Hill, Percy Mann, John McGregor, James Newhall, Edgar Smith, Robert Thompson, Willie S. Toms and Richard Wedlock.

Mr. Andrew McKenzie, who read the names to the congregation, explained how the members of the church, after careful consideration, came to the conclusion that a memorial window would be the most fitting way, for the congregation, not to repay these men for their service, but to keep the memory ever fresh of their noble sacrifice. Some of the men had returned, but some had not, because the Great Commander had called them and he believed they were still carrying on in His service.

At the conclusion of this brief but fitting address the congregation arose and remained standing while the window was unvelled by Mrs. W. Roger and the last post was sounded on the bugle.

The pastor chose for his text part of the 9th verse of the 22nd chapter of the gospel according to St. Luke, which reads: "And He took bread, and gave thanks, and break it, and gave unto them saying, this is My body which is given for you; this do in remembrance of Me." The pastor stated that he was going to deal chiefly with the two words, "in remembrance."

The story of this supper is beautifully told. Christ wished it to be carried out through the ages that all generations might remember His sacrifice for them. Our Savior understanding human nature as He did, and as no one else did, established this custom that His service and sacrifice might be remembered for all time.

The memory is a great gift which the Lord has bestowed upon His people. It unites the past with the present. It gives us the opportunity of learning about previous ages, of previous great men and great women. If it were not for memory one day would be isolated from all others. Owing to the wonderful gift of God, there is not a man who cannot look back with pleasure upon the days of boyhood. God has been tremendously good that through the agency of memory we can benefit by the experiences of the past.

And it is the same with a race as with an individual. No human race would be great if it were not for the memory of those that have gone.

It is because we want to pay tribute to the memory of the men who went from our shores, our homes and from the parents that loved them that we establish these memorials.

We do not hear their voices but we believe that God has called them and that they are glorifying with Him.

We all have persons near us who are kind to us and whom we regard as friends. But we take them in a matter of fact way. Then they are taken away and we miss them and their companionship. It is their memory that reveals how noble and how true they were and what an influence they had on our lives.

When in the heat of activities, insults, imagined insults, or offence at the conjunction of affairs we are apt to forget what memory would teach us. And looking back through the sense of memory, often dimmed by tears, we pray for forgiveness for the lack of appreciation.

And the memory of one day is felt by everyone. That day when in all appearances an ordinary carpenter was carrying an ordinary wooden cross over an ordinary dusty road before an ordinary crowd of people to the scene of his punishment. But looking back through the sense of memory we see through all the filth the wonderful love of God. The noblest kind of character and sacrifice is rendered where mortal eye is dim to it. But through memory we see as in a mirror, face to face. Our Lord asked us to remember His sacrifice to the end of time when we will drink from the cup of God.

Grief there is. It would not be in accordance with the character of the human brain if we did not feel great stirrings of grief. But we do it in the spirit of hope. We trust in the memory of our Savior's promise when He said: "In My Father's house are many mansions." Because it is sublimely true that He said: "I go to prepare a place for you."

O, how the memory of our Lord fills us with true hope that His promises will be fulfilled! Memory inspires to hope and service.

It is true men have thousands of discouragements. But our Lord has poured out His sacrifice that they might benefit by that memory and be inspired to carry on their duties. Let us see to it that our service to our Savior is fitting of faith.

"And now we are paying tribute to the memory of those noble men whose names appear on the window," declared Mr. McKenzie. "May the morning light ever brighten them as though they live, that the memory of their sacrifice and their service may live in our hearts in the form of hope and passion for service in our Father's Kingdom."

The Music

The music throughout the service was of the highest order and did credit to the efficient organist and choirleader, Mr. F. E. Walden.

The large congregation which filled the church to capacity entered into the spirit of the hymns with a zest and enthusiasm that was wonderful to hear. The anthem "Crossing the Bar," by the whole choir, unaccompanied, was beautiful and appropriate for the service. The male quatette which sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere," added to the service Rev. Mr. McKenzie descended from the pulpit and Mr. Walden left the organ to assist in this number. The voices of the four men blended nicely and that wonderful selection was rendered with spirit.

Great War Veterans

Before the sermon Rev. Mr. McKenzie extended a hearty welcome to the Great War Veterans' Association who attended in full strength accompanied by their band.

In every way this was a memorable service for the unveiling of a beautiful memorial window that will remain in its place reminding the people of the tremendous sacrifice and the excellent service those members of the congregation made in their behalf during the great struggle for freedom.

THE PIANO OF LOUIS XV.

The days of Louis XV. were days of luxury shown in all the appointments of the home, as well as in other ways. The piano known as Style Louis XV. Grand, made by Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited, George and Hunter streets, Peterborough, comes to us as a suggestion of these days. This piano reflects in very perfect manner the period of this famed ruler of the 17th Century. The case is most artistic, the lines, scrolls and other details being of the most artistic character. In matter of tone and touch this is one of the most perfect pianos manufactured by this well-known Canadian firm.

ADVANCE IN Y. W. C. A. OF CANADA

It is six years since a national convention of the Young Women's Christian Associations in Canada has been held. This year it is to be held in Hamilton from November 13th to 18th. These six years have been marked by growth and development. Local associations have grown in number, and the work in each local association has increased in scope and diversity. The association took a large part in war work. Hostess houses were among the most useful agencies working among the soldiers. The agricultural camps played an important part in increasing Canadian production, and allowing women to take their part on the farm. Hostels for munition workers enabled the Government to rely on a steady supply of workers in communities where labor was short. If the association was useful in war time, a still bigger service lies before it in this day of reconstruction. And it is this reconstruction in all its phases which is to be the thought of the convention.

The first day is to be given to a consideration of the [illegible] of the association. Mr. Bishop, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and Miss Anna M. Saunders, general secretary of the Y.W.C.A., will set forth the subject. Miss Mabel Jamieson, general secretary, Montreal, will speak on "To-day's Challenge to the Association."

Realizing that industry presents one of our largest reconstruction problems, another day is to be given to the consideration of Christ's spirit in industry. Miss Friedman of the National Board, U.S.A., and Dr. Pidgeon, of Toronto, will speak and lead discussion on this subject.

Internationalism, world-fellowship is not only an ideal, but one of the practical issues of the day, therefore a day is set apart for the consideration of the association's world programme. Miss Caroline Macdonald, of Japan, and Mrs. Plumptie and Miss Beatty, national secretary, of Toronto, will lead the discussion and thought on this world idea. Miss Margaret Slattery, whose books on girls' work are so well known, will hold a meeting for girls on Sunday evening and will lead the forum on leadership on Monday morning. Lady Falconer, president of the Dominion Council, will take the chair at the morning and afternoon meetings, while it is hoped that at the evening meetings Dr. Sparling and Mr. Wilson, of Hamilton, the Bishop of Niagara, His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Mr. Wardrope and the Mayor of Hamilton will take the chair.

Besides the full quota of members from all the Ontario associations, it is expected that Mrs. Leckie from Vancouver, Mrs. Mader and Miss Palmer from Halifax, Mrs. McAvity from St. John, Mrs. Darlington, Miss McIntyre and others from Quebec, Miss Bradshaw from Edmonton, Miss Sutcliffe, Miss McElheran, and others from Winnipeg, will be present. Miss Scott, president of the local association, and Miss Layton, the general secretary, hope to attend.

Hamilton is throwing open its doors to the delegates. The ministers of the different churches are lending their churches and giving their own time and inspiration to the meetings. The Eastern Canadian Passenger Association are giving special convention rates, so there is every reason to expect a large and enthusiastic gathering.

UNITED MINE WORKERS OF AMERICA OBEY MANDATE AND CALL OFF STRIKE

Acting President John Lewis Advises Strikers That as They are Americans They Cannot Fight Their Government Men Were Demanding Six Hour Day and Five Day Week, 60 Percent Increase and Time and a Half on Holidays, and on Sunday's

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Indianapolis, Nov. 11.—The United Mine Workers of America, through its general committee, decided early today to obey the mandate of United States District Judge A. Anderson, which means a recall of the order for the strike of 425,000 bituminous coal miners.

Decision This Morning.

This decision was reached at 3:10 this morning after more than seventeen hours discussion. The conference then adjourned until two o'clock this afternoon. Acting President John Lewis of the Mine Workers, made the following statement:

"Gentlemen you will comply with the mandate of the court. We do so under protest. But we are Americans and we cannot fight our Government. That is all."

Original Demands

(The original demands of the United Mine Workers of America, which brought about the strike of approximately 425,000 bituminous coal miners of the United States were drafted by the coal committee of the Cleveland Convention of organization, held last September. The main points of the miners' demands included sixty per cent increase in wages, a six hour day from bank to bank, a five day week, and time and half for overtime and on Sundays and legal holidays.

Solemn Warning.

Washington, Nov. 11. — Solemn warning was given the United Mine Workers of America tonight by Attorney-General Palmer that resolutions of conventions and orders of officers of organizations are not above the law.

Peremptory Order

Formal and final declaration of the Government's policy on dealing with the coal strike was announced by the Attorney-General, while officers of the miners' organization at Indianapolis were struggling with the question how to answer the court's blunt and peremptory command to rescind the strike order.

Describing the strike as a plain violation of a federal statute, Mr. Palmer, speaking with full authority of the Government, announced that all the power of the United States would be exerted to enforce the mandate of the court.

Although no reference was made in the Attorney-General's statement to the pronouncement of organized labor, supporting the miners and demanding withdrawal of injunction proceedings, it was evident that Mr. Palmer had that document in mind and official Washington accepted his declaration to mean that refusal of the miners to cancel their strike order would mean a fight to the bitter end.

There was on attempt in official or labor circles tonight to conceal the feeling that the situation was extremely grave, and getting beyond the question of a coal strike. This was due to the belief that the miners apparently were not of one mind on the question of making quick reply to the court

NEW HUNTER ST. BRIDGE HAS COST TO NOVEMBER 10TH $116,618.53

This Includes $13,540.78 For Purchase of Property on Corner of Burnham and Hunter Streets—A Night of By-Laws With the City Council—Taxed Both Here and in Kingston.

Cost Accountant Alex Elliott submitted to the City Council last night the total expenditure on the new bridge to November 10th, as $103,077.75. To this is added $13,540.78 for purchase of the Dickson Property, corner of Burnham and Hunter streets, making a grand total of $116,618.53.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and McIntyre, the city will take out an associate membership in the Good Roads Association—the fee is $10.

Neal F. Porter wrote for the Park Street Baptist Church, asking that the plot of land, corner of Park and Lake streets beflooded for an open air skating rink. This went to the Board of Works.

Secretary Fraser of the Board of Trade wrote, inviting the Mayor and Aldermen to be present at the presentation of war memorial certificates to the next of kin of Peterborough men who made the supreme sacrifice in the war, such presentation to be made by General Williams at the Armouries today at 2:30.

On motion of Ald. Edgar and Taylor, the City Engineer will be instructed to report on sewer connection with the new memorial school, and as soon as said report is to hand the city will give notice of its intention to construct such sewer under the local Improvement Act.

To Prevent Flooding.

A bylaw to force owners lessees or occupants of land through which any creek or stream runs to clear such waterway of any blockage of its course, passed its several readings. Should said owners, lessees or occupants fail to clear such waterways under due notice from the Council, then the city shall do the necessary work and charge cost of same against the property.

The temporary pile bridge over the river will be completed Saturday night, and on motion of Ald. Phelan and McIntyre, the motion to light the old bridge was rescinded, — lights will be placed on the new temporary bridge.

Taxed Both Places

Gordon & O'Brien wrote that their client Rutherford Drafin, had moved here from Kingston May first last, and finds himself taxed for income also assessed for polltax in this city both at Kingston and in Peterborough. Gordon & O'Brien suggested that Drafin be assessed in Peterborough for income payable in 1920. Drafin paid tax-collector Green his income tax for Peterborough August first last under protest. This was sent to the Court of Revision.

Skating Rink.

The Property Committee's report in section two recommended that no action be taken on the request of the Alert Bible Class of St. James' Church for the use of part of King Edward Park for a skating rink, and this clause was sent to the Board of Works. Aldermen Edgar, McIntyre and Phelan all thought this request should be reported on by the City Engineer to the Board of Works, to which committee the question properly belongs.

By-Laws

By-laws were passed authorizing the execution of agreements with A. B. Cunn[illegible] for carpenter work at the Nashua Paper Company's building, (old Cordage Works) at a price of $2.119; and with J. J. Gross for whitewashing and painting in the same premises at $1,985.

A by-law to authorize the exemption of statute labor for 1919 from all men and officers who have served in the war with the military or naval forces of Great Britain or her Allies passed its three readings.

On motion of Ald. Phelan and Crowe all returned men who have al-

MAN SUICIDES AT THE WALDORF

CAUSE FOR ACT NOT KNOWN

MARRIED LESS THAN YEAR — EXPECTED TO RETURN TO SWEDEN SOON.

New York, Nov. 11.— Cary R. Miller, American Vice Consul at Stockholm, Sweden, committed suicide yesterday in his apartment in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel while his wife, to whom he had been married less than a year ago, was absent with some friends. No note was left be to discovering the motive for his act. On him, however, was found a recently issued passport, indicating that he was expected to return soon to Sweden.

He had been at the Waldorf since last January, it was recalled there He appeared to be about fifty years old and his wife seemed to be younger Bullet in Temple.

They lived together in a large double room on the fourth floor, apparently in great harmony. He had made the hotel his headquarters ever since January, except for a week or two in the summer, when they went to the country.

Mrs. Miller was so overcome by the shock of her husband's act that she could not be seen at the room last night.. A hotel attache explained that she had gone out just after dinner with some friends, leaving her husband behind in apparently the best of spirits.

When she returned late in the afternoon she found him prostrate on the floor, a bullet hole through his right temple and a revolver laying near by. Her screams brought the maid stationed in the hallway near the room, who in turn summoned the house physician. Seeing the man was dead he notified the police.

Dr. Gonzales, assistant medical examiner, was summoned, and after a careful investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death he pronounced it suicide. His investigations into the man's personal belongings and what he wore at the time failed to disclose anything that might suggest a motive for his self-destruction.

A Quiet Couple.

The Millers were an unobtrusive couple and little was known about them round the hotel. Few persons called to see them. Mr. Miller, upon his arrival, had registered only as "C. R. Miller," and gave Stockholm as his address. He mentioned to some one that the woman with him was his second wife. At another time he remarked that hi shome town was the village of Millerburg, Ind., a hamlet in Elkhart County that was named after his grandfather.

Mr. Miller was appointed Vice Consul to Sweden on June 13. 1918 and, it is believed, returned to this country on official business some time after the armistice was signed.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Inquiries received here indicate that confusion exists in the popular mind as to the status of inter-provincial liquor shipments.

Act Explained.

The belief seems to be held that war-time prohibition orders were made effective for twelve months after the declaration of peace, but legislation with that purpose was never passed, and therefore, as soon as peace has been proclaimed the importation of liquor for private persons will be permissable until such time as a provincial plebiscite, held by the Dominion Government upon the request of provincial legislatures declares against such importation, and the Dominion Government thereupon issues a proclamation forbidding it.

ALIAS KERTESTON LOSES LIFE IN ACCIDENT AT QUAKER OATS PLANT.

WM. McDOUGALL INJURED

IS SUFFERING SEVERELY, BUT HIS RECOVERY IS LOOKED FOR.

One man lost his life and another was seriously injured about six o'clock last evening in the Quaker Oats Company's mills, when the main elevator belt gave way.

At the time of the accident several people were preparing to step on the huge endless belt that revolves continually and provides a means for the employees to reach one floor from another. Two men were on the elevator, namely, Wm. McDougal and Alias Kerteston. The belt parted at the top, and one man fell from the seventh to third floor and the other fell from the sixth to the second floor.

Drs. Cameron and McNulty were immediately summoned, and the unfortunate victims were taken to St. Joseph's Hospital.

It was found impossible to save the life of Kerteston and he passed away early this morning. McDougall is suffering from two or three broken ribs, and some internal injuries as well as a very severe shaking up, but it is hoped that he will recover in a few weeks.

A JOURNAL FOR THE TRANSFUSION OF VICTORY LOAN PEP.

Editorial.

We have it on good authority from no less a person than V. J. Mac. that H. J. Mac received a very cordial telegram of congratulations that H. R. H. for his bumper showing in the Victory Loan campaign. Keep it up Mac. More power to your short but sturdy pedals.

We believe in a fifty-fifty deal. Would it not be a step in the right direction for the Board of Education for 1920, whose personnel we are led to believe will include several ladies, to meet alternately at the present quarters and at Bob Fair's millinery parlors?

While Mr. Drury is selecting his surroundings, we fail to notice any mention of Mr. G. A. Gillespie and Mr. R. J. Soden. Mr. G. N. Gordon, also is excluded from the scenery. Mr. U.F.O. Rogers should see to it that the city, at least, gets honorable mention.

The Prince did not visit us, but His Royal Highness sent his congratulations by telegram. Sounded fine and was less expensive.

We were always under the impression that it was ever mid-night at Lindsay. Now we are sure, since the Scugogville Press has informed the world that even the locomotive whistles fail to arouse them.

RUSSIAN COMMUNISTS PLOT TO WIPE OUT NATION THROUGH GENERAL STRIKE

American Federal Raids Reveal Documents of Most Inflammatory Nature—A Program of Destruction and Death to Achieve Plotters' Ends—Anarchist Manifesto Declares That Miners Are Victims of Autocratic Rule.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Plans of the Union of Russian Workers to bring about an overthrow of the United States Government through a general strike is revealed in documents seized in the nationwide raids of federal authorities Friday and Saturday night and made public tonight by Assistant Attorney-General Garvan.

With the Government overthrown and everything "wiped from the earth that is a reminder of the right to private ownership of property," the Russian Workers, according to their manifesto, looked forward to "the magnificent, beautiful form of man without a God, without a master and free of authority."

The documents and publications obtained in the raids, officials said today, are of the most inflammatory nature and make no effort to conceal the union's programme of destruction and death to achieve its ends. Much of the material made public tonight is of such a nature as to cause ordinarily any newspaper reprinting it to be barred from the mails.

Included among the documents seized, all of which are printed in Russian, is "Novomirsky—Manifesto of Anarchists—Communists." This publication, the most recent put out by the union, was said by Mr Garvan to be the most dangerous piece of propaganda ever disseminated by any radical organization in the United States.

Destruction Is the Chief Aim.

The manifesto outlines the purpose of the movement inaugurated by the union as "complete destruction of private control of natural resources and capital and complete destruction of power of rule and the institutions vested with powers to enforce rule of one man over another."

Under the caption of "What should be our means of carrying on the fight?" the manifesto says:

"What must we do, the vanguard of the proletariat? We must consciously hasten the elementary movement of the struggle of the working class, we must convert small strikes into general ones and convert the latter into armed revolt.

"At the time of this revolt we must at the first favorable opportunity proceed to an immediate seizure of all means of production and all articles of consumption and make the working classes the masters in fact of all general wealth. At the same time we must mercilessly destroy all remains of governmental authority and class domination, liberating the prisoners, demolish prisons and police offices, destroy all legal papers pertaining to private ownership of property, all field fences and boundaries and burn all certificates of indebtpdness—in a word we must take care that everything is wiped from the earth that is a reminder of the right to private ownership of property, to blow up barracks, gendarme and police administration, shoot the most prominent military and police officers, must be the important concern of the revolting working people. In the work of destruction we must be merciless, for the slightest weakness on our part may afterward cost the working classes a whole sea of needless blood."

After "Capital and State" are destroyed the manifesto says, the first duty of the union is to start production on a new foundation. Existing labor organizations should be extended and production should be given over entirely to them, it argues. Then each "village commune" should unify with all other communes and the "one grand federation" follows the manifesto advocates as its programme.

Bars Religion and Authority.

Recognizing no religion, no authority, no power other than its own, the manifesto says, alternatively, its members are athiests, communists, anarchists. It continues:

"We go tranquilly, cheerfully, not because it is painful to us eternally to be calling to bloody combat—no, but because there, far beyond the corpses of heroes, beyond the blood covered barricades, beyond all terrors of civil war, there already shines for us the magnificent beautiful form of man without a god without a master and free of authority.

"We hate religion because it lulls the spirit with lying tales, takes away the courage and faith in the power of man faith in the triumph of justice here on the real earth and not in a chimerical heaven. Religion covers everything with fog, real evil becomes visionary, and visionary good a reality. It has always sanctified slavery, grief and tears. And we declare war upon all gods and religious fables. We are atheists."

Mr. Garvan called particular attention to statements in the manifesto having a bearing on the Government's activities in connection with recent strikes. The Government's attempts to put down riots were attacked as nothing short of murder where such attempts to end trouble had resulted in death for anybody.

In its discussion of war the manifesto indicts the American people for honoring Gen. Pershing as Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe.

"Murder is always murder and the man who kills is always a murderer," the manifesto asserts.

"The only service of this man has been in the fact that, being a professional of his craft, he came to be by simple chance at the head of the American Armies which fought in Europe. There, obedient to the commands of those who sent him, he with ability and brains led the work of murder of men by men. For this they praise him to the skies and honor him in every way. All this is done only because we are in an age of progress and civilization, in an age of altruism and humanitarian ideas."

INVEST IN OUR OWN BUSINESS.

THE VICTORY LOAN investment is, of course, the best and most remunerative form of saving, but it is a good deal more than that; it is an investment in your own business, whatever your calling in life may be. In a country where nearly every man and woman is a worker, no one can afford to ignore its possibilities. The failure to pile up a generous over-subscription to the present Loan, and by this means keep the wheels of trade and industry moving at their present speed, will affect every man as a business reverse.

How quickly the farmer would feel the loss of the present overseas market, if through lack of working capital Canada were obliged to curtail credits to European countries, can easily be realised. But the "hard times" that would ensue would also be felt by every manufacture, merchant, wage-earner and professional man from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The professional man is dependent on the floating wealth of the community for his rewards. The merchant and wage-earner are dependent on the purchasing power of the people who ordinarily buy their wares. The farmer, above all, has to face the prospect of selling his surplus product at a loss if the loan does not provide Canada with a capital sufficient to maintain her trade. Thus, leaving out of consideration altogether every man's patriotic duty to assist Canada in financing the problems of the [illegible] soldier and reconstruction, the future of everyone's business is at stake. There is now no time to waste if every one is to make good.

COMMUNITY MEMORIAL HALL.

LITTLE HAS BEEN HEARD of late in St. Thomas about the proposed memorial community hall, although the Local Council of Women at their last meeting included it among their special objects, says the St Thomas Times-Journal, referring to a subject that has been discussed in this city. In the United States the idea of community buildings as war memorials, originally mooted by Harold B. Buttenheim, editor of the American City, has spread rapidly, and up to the present time over three hundred communities have definitely decided upon some form or other of memorial building about half selecting typical community houses, providing for the whole range of civic, social and recreational activities for the average city or town of the smaller sort. Of the latter, perhaps the most remarkable example is Hackanum, Connecticut, where $10,000 was raised by popular subscription—the population doing this numbering just two hundred and fifty. In another town of the Middle West the citizens are already at work on a memorial building that takes the unusual form of a church and theatre combined, the pulpit being ingeniously placed at one end and the stage at the other.

In a recent statement, the manager of the Bureau of Memorial Buildings, an organization that serves as a clearing house of information and service regarding war memorial buildings, laid stress on the point that each building must be fitted to the community, must meet local needs, and not be based on what some other community has done, however successful that may have been. As one of the most interesting, he instanced the Wayne County Memorial at Goldsboro, N. C., which makes special provision for farmers' grange meetings and also meets the need of country women who come to town to do their shopping. The Goldsboro building also will have an auditorium seating 870 persons, with a regular modern stage, this auditorium having been specially desired because the town happens to have no hall of that kind. Room is also made for various town organizations, and smaller assembly halls are available for society and club meetings. The Goldsboro building is described as a very fine example of a community memorial building, suitable for a town falling in the ten or thirty thousand population class. Many of the buildings under course of erection or projected have removable seats in assembly rooms with floors that can be inclined as an auditorium or remain level for dancing or receptions. Some have kitchens offering conveniences for demonstrations and dietary studies.

PRODUCTION AND WORK.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS' comment on what shall constitute a day's work is interesting. What is a day's work? that paper inquires. In a recent issue of an agricultural journal there is an attempt to determine a standardized day's work for a middle west farmer in certain tasks, with the aid of his farm machinery. The total of reaping, planting or plowing runs up into acres and seems large to the city reader. In Washington they are discussing the question from the point of view of the industrial worker. At Indiapapolis the mine workers' leaders are insisting on a day of six hours. Wherever there is work to be done, the question, "What constitutes a day's work?" is constantly arising.

Many factors enter into the determination of what a day's work should be. There is the question of production—not to be neglected, since its neglect means not too much but too little work for workers. There is the aspect of the effect on the worker—certainly supremely important, since the right to health is not questioned today by intelligent human beings. There is the question of industry, since the day's work may naturally vary with the character or intensity of the labor. There is the question even of nationality, since it is admitted at the outset that what would be a good day's work for an American or a British worker, for example, would wreck the industries of less industrially developed nations.

The question is far from settlement in terms of a formula immediately and universally applicable. On this vital question there will continue to be need for reason and the spirit of justice and conciliation. But on one point, at least, there is not and cannot be the slightest divergence of opinion. A day's work must be a day's work—with the emphasis on the work—or the industrial arrangements that are made on that basis will be worthless.

FRUIT CONFERENCE.

THE SUGGESTION comes from the West that the time is about ripe for the holding of another Dominion Fruit Conference. At one of the conferences held some years ago a tentative Dominion organization was created, which for various reasons has never assumed substantial form, says the Canadian Horticulturist. There appears to be a desire now that this body shall be reconstructed and used as a means for promoting the fruit interests of the Dominion as a whole.

A year ago the dairy interests organized the National Dairy Council. A meeting of this body was held recently in Ottawa, at which representatives were present from all the provinces except Manitoba. The Council outlined a comprehensive plan of work and adopted a financial program which, if it is successfully carried out, will produce a revenue of from sixty to seventy thousand dollars. It is the intention of the National Dairy Council to be independent of financial assistance from the Government. Through its solicitor it will watch all legislation inimical to the dairy industry, and will lead in campaigns to promote and increase home consumption of dairy products.

The fruit interests of Canada are not as extensive or as well organized as are the dairy interests. Nevertheless it should be possible for executive officers representing the various provincial fruit growers' associations and commercial companies to keep in closer touch with one another than has been attempted up to the present. Except for the holding at irregular intervals of an occasional Dominion fruit conference, under the direction of the Dominion Government, there is practically no co-operation between those engaged in the fruit industry in the different provinces. While it is not long since the last conference was held in Ottawa, now that the war is over the holding of another conference might well be considered. Should one be held, the formation and financing of a National Fruit Council should be set down as one of the chief subjects to be considered.

CLASS POLITICS.

THE SIGNS OF THE TIMES point to large sections of the electors aligning themselves politically according to class interests.

What is brought home to the student of political evolution—and is not, perhaps, so clearly apprehended by those immersed in the actual conduct of public affairs—is the growing urgency of reform of the machinery of representation, says the Manitoba Free Press. There must be some automatic check upon the tendency of one or two classes or interests to dominate the rest and to exploit them for their own benefit. The various classes must be represented in the democratic parliaments by groups numerically proportioned to their strength in the country. Coalitions and compromise will doubtless be the necessary accompaniments of political progress. But if minorities, instead of being virtually disfranchised, are secured in effective representation, these conditions will result in well-balanced legislation and impartial administration of the public services. Legislatures will be, as they should be, reflections of the electorate, bringing to bear upon public questions all the varied viewpoints and special knowledge which belong to the different classes respectively.

The means by which adequate representation of all classes and interests can be obtained has been repeatedly brought to public attention. Some system of proportional representation must be invoked to minimize the disadvantages of class activity and to give all parties their hearings. The single transferable vote applied in multi-member constituencies is, by general agreement, the form of P. R. best adapted to British and Canadian institutions. In Manitoba a trial of this method is to be made in the near future. Meantime the politicians who are concerned about the danger of class politics would be better employed in explaining the need for proportional representation in the new conditions than in resisting a development which arises logically and inevitably out of past conditions and the experience gained in the trying years of warfare.

WHEN A CHILD IS LOST.

(Cleveland Press.)

The heart of a sympathizing world beats quicker when grief-stricken parents hunt for a lost child, and the best wishes of every honest soul go to the father and mother in their search. The child-stealer merits—and receives the contempt of every decent man and woman, and should receive—what he too often escapes—the severest punishment allotted the criminal. Feeling that way about the kidnapping of babies, it is only human that we—each of us—should be happier when a parent finds his child again; especially so when this comes after years of search and years of heart-breaking sorrow.

A $6000 OFFICE "BOY."

(New York Correspondent.)

I happened to be in one of the huge buildings that dot the heavens in the financial district the other day. The man at the gate—the point of contact for the visitor—was near sixty. He seemed above an office boy's job, yet there was something skilful about his handling of the visitor. He was the soul of courtesy and the impression one gained of the establishment that employed him was pleasant. But he looked more like a prosperous retired business man.

The truth was that at one time he was one of New York's most successful merchants. He failed, and this job was the first thing presented to him. But he made such an important job of it that he is paid $6000 a year.

More business is lost in New York through the impertinence of young office boys than will ever be realized.

ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Helen Wetherall writing in The Chicago Daily News, said:

The present problem of housewife and houseworker is dealt with in an interesting manner by Mrs. Herman Frank, who under the following summary after attending a meeting of the Housewives' League:

"The tendency to eliminate home life must be overcome. The home, as an institution, is fundamental to our nation. The home must be maintained in spite of all obstacles. Five years before the war 5,000,000 immigrants came to this country; five years during the war, 500,000, and during the first six months of 1919 the emigrants exceeded the immigrants. This lack of immigration is one of the factors contributing to a scarcity of servants. A second factor is created by attractive offers to women in the industrial world.

"The Young Women's Christian Association of New York has standardized two scales of wages, one for resident and one for non-resident workers, and will shortly make its campaign a national one. A name coined for the visiting worker is 'accommodator,' who can give specialized service. The one element which must be revolutionised is the lack of standardization. The complaint of most servants is that they are trained to a certain standard before entering a home and must change their methods to suit each householder.

Lack of Social Life.

"The next factor of employment is the lack of social life of the average servant. She is not at all interested in the life about her, yet in most cases, for lack of time and place, she is unable to acquire friends of her own.

"Education seems the third important factor in the future relations of employer and employee—an education for both. The Housewives' League recommended the following:

"The up-lifting of the position of houseworker, as that of the nurse was lifted by Florence Nightingale.

"The compensating of all work in the home according to the effort of the worker.

"Eventually simplifying the housewives' mode of living.

"Making a study of conditions with a view to advance, as men have advanced, in the industrial relations between employer and employee.

"Educating present and future generations of housekeepers in household chemistry, physics and marketing, and through such education, overcoming the near-helplessness of the average daughter.

"An eight-hour day for the average worker seems to be impractical—even the unions concede this.

"In concluding this summary I would urge more business-like methods in home management; more consideration, not so much to lessen labor as to consider the human side of things. Our brothers are doing this in the industrial world through the social service bureaus that operate in connection with their businesses."

Princess Tells of Russia.

The first session of the study class of the art and science department of the Chicago Woman's Club, held Monday afternoon, had a most interesting speaker in the Princess Michael Cantacuzene (Miss Julia Dent Grant), who was with her husband in Petrograd during the revolution and after her return to this country went to Sarasota, where she joined her mother, Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, and her aunt, the late Mrs. Potter Palmer.

That the princess deeply loves Russia and sincerely admires the character of the educated Russian was seen as soon as she mentioned her arrival there as a bride. Her voice took on a tender inflection whenever she spoke of the national life as seen in peace and war. She emphasized her belief that the democratic ideals of Russia were bound to prevail, and laid the greatest part of the cruelty and disturbance to outsiders who have assumed Russian names so that they might get a better hold on what would bring them material gain. Many native Russians fighting with the Bolsheviki are compelled to do so to save their families and homes from destruction, the princess stated in [illegible]

A BARD'S TRIBUTE TO THE "MISSING"

(By Rev. G. E Rss, Pastor of Mark Street Methodist Church.)

When rang the clear, reverberating call
Of midnight bugle, to the measured roll
Of myriad drums, that stirred a nation's life,
And martial thousands mustered for the strife;
When hoary-headed sire with eyes aflame,
And by him she who shared his noble name,
Gazed proudly in the glowing eyes of youth,
And buckled on his thigh the sword of Truth,
And sent him in his country's cause to bleed—
He was not "Missing" in that hour of need.

When "Ready" rang along the lines of steel,
And twice ten thousand youthful hearts the thrill
Of battle stirred, and sent the life-blood through Bounding pulse, and every soldier drew
His trusty blade from out its bloodless sheath;
Mid-roar of conflict and the sigh of death,
And, listening for the magic order, "Go!"
Leapt the shell-torn trench to meet the foe;
I marked his valor with abated breath—
He was not "Missing" in that surge of death.

When clear above the battle-thunders' roar
The wailing bugles sound the "Charge" from far,
And cheering, rushing thousands onward reel,
While foemen feel the weight of British steel,
Till backward rolls the tide of tyranny
As breakers rock-rent melt into the sea,
And writhe away to silence and to rest,
While victory's written on the rocky crest—
I stood beside him on the blood-soaked heath,
Nor was he "Missing" in the race with death.

The storm has rolled in fury o'er the field,
Night holds above the slain her mystic shield;
Your soldier speeds the trail for Lysian Plains,
Where crimson tide of battle never stains
The spotless emerald of the Fields of Light,
Where law is love's delight and right is might.
So, while in bloody trench they call the roll,
Unanswered by the men who paid the toll,
When laurel wreath the living brow is tracing,
Your brave, true-hearted warrior lad is "Missing."

He's "striking" where his country's foes assail,
He's "Missing" where his Monarch's praises fail
On those returning from the jaws of death.
His brave heart bosom'd on the bloody heath,
Calm vigil keep we by the warrior's side;
'Twas for a bleeding Belgian maid he died,
To hurl the bloody tyrant from his prey
And guard her glorious crown of chastity;
On yonder temple wall of endless fame
The King will write your "Missing" soldier's name.

The King whose temples bore the crown of thorns,
Where now a diadem of glory burns,
And light ineffable, and matchless grace
Illume eternally his glorious face,
Shall rise in might and call the honor roll;
Then he who, 'mid war's thunder, paid the toll,
Shall hear and answer, proud and strong and grand:
"I'm here, my Captain, here, and in my hand
Hold true the Spirit's Sword of matchless worth,
And clasp Thy hand, though 'Missing on the earth'."

THE FARMERS' CHANCE

(Guelph Mercury)

The farmers have at last learned the benefits of being united. But, if they want to win some real plaudits from the whole province, let them just unite against the high cost of living. They know how to legislate it out, and the people are hoping for great things.

His Death Expected

New Brunswick Man Saved

Mr. Isidore Thomas, of Tilley's Road, Gloucester County, N.B., while expecting death, availed himself of help that was offered at random. Here is part of a letter he wrote to us:—

"I beg you to publish my letter, so that people may know what Gin Pills did for me. My case was very serious. I was so sick everybody expected my death any day. Finally, on advice from friends, I tried Gin Pills, and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 20 pounds."

Kidney and bladder troubles, very often, work in secret ways. A bad condition may exist, with only a backache to indicate it. That is why the slightest pains in back or sides should be investigated. These pains, along with sciatic neuralgia, rheumatism, dizziness, constipation, lassitude, lumbago, highly-colored urine, headache, floating specks before the eyes, gravel, indicate kidney trouble. A course of Gin Pills, taken at once, will give relief, and prevent the progress of the disease, enabling the organs to right themselves and restore good health. Gin Pills are the sure, safe, quick remedy. Get a box from your druggist or dealer—50c. Money refunded if no relief found. Send for free sample.

MUST NOT FORGET A SACRED PROMISE

AN ANNIVERSARY WHICH CALLS UPON ALL TRUE CANADIANS TO MEDITATE

One year ago today there was rejoicing such as had never been known before, throughout the whole civilised world. The news of the Armistice lifted an enormous load from the minds of all good people. The war was over as far as the fighting was concerned. Think to-day of the heartfelt joy you experienced just one year ago and think too of the promises made of the last man and the last dollar if necessary to bring about a victorious peace.

The glorious dead who lie "In Flanders Fields" gave all for a greater and more glorious Canada. Their spirit still lives and the country for which they died must ever keep them in memory. That promise of "the last dollar if necessary" was not an idle one. Canadians must remember it to-day. Their money is needed now by the nation they desired it to be, to advance trade, production and prosperity.

There is no risk in lending money to Canada, in fact a most profitable investment is afforded, but the obligation to the men who died must be remembered in all it implies and Canadians must respond to the Victory Loan call to the limit of their ability.

YUDENITCH WILL CONTINUE FIGHT

Cold Weather Harder on Bolsheviki Than on Opponents

Reval, Nov. 5.—One of the refugees who escaped from Gatchina when it was evacuated and joined Yudenitch took the offensive against Petrograd the Soviets decided that it was impossible to hold the entire city, and intended to evacuate the southern half and hold the northern bank of the Neva.

Barricades were erected in the streets and the bridges were mined. Women were not mobilized by soldiers, but were made to perform all manner of work. Some of the Soviet commissioners committed suicide, and the Bolshevik soldiers were disaffected for a time. Later, however, discipline prevailed, and they fought well.

General Yudenitch informed the Associated Press correspondent that after the retreat his troops lacked food and munitions. The General, however, did not think the operations would be stopped owing to the cold weather, which he considered would afect the Bolsheviki more than his own troops. He said the foreigners attached to the White army had fought splendidly.

Staff officers predict that General Yudenitch will resume operations the coming week.

BLACK SEA FREE TO ALL PEOPLE

SETTLEMENT OF ADRIATIC AND TURKISH QUESTIONS HOPED FOR BY LLOYD GEORGE

London, Nov. 10.—Premier Lloyd George speaking at the Lord Mayor's banquet, Saturday night, and referring to the Supreme Council's effort at Russian peace early this year, said.

"I hope the time is not distant when the powers will be able to renew that attempt with better prospects of success."

"Apart from Russia, the outlook is good."

He spoke optimistically of the settlement of the Adriatic and Turkish question which with Russia, he said, constituted the world's chief problems. He recalled that exactly a year ago, at the same board, he announced the abdication of the German Emperor. He did not believe that the few well-informed then expected that the ensuing year would bring such progress toward a settlement as had been made.

"The Adriatic question has gathered about it a deep passion, but I am confident a settlement will be found compatible with the interests and honour of our gallant allies. On the other hand, I am certain that justice will be done the nations emancipated from the Austrian yoke.

The Premier declared that there was complete agreement between the allies that Turkish domination of the Greeks, Arabs and Armenians should end, and that the Black Sea should be free to all nations.

Russian Outlook Unpleasant

"The outlook in Russia is unpleasant," he continued. "A few weeks ago there was a promising prospect of early issue, but today indications point to a more prolonged and sanguinary struggle. I do not believe that the Bolsheviki armies are going to conquer the whole of Russia, but I dread an interminable series of swaying campaigns, devasting the country and the prosperity of the world.

"The allies gave an opportunity to the Russian people to decide their form of Government, but unfortunately, no section was ready. We have given real proof of our sympathy to the men of Russia who helped the allied cause by sending one hundred million sterling worth of material, and support of every from."

He did not regret the cost, but asserted that England could not continue intervention in a dangerous civil war.

CART GOES OVER RAILING

D Florence's Horse Fails to Mak The Grade of Temporary Roadway

D. Florence's cart of rags, etc., went over the railing of the roadway leading up to the east end of Hunter street bridge, Saturday afternoon. He was driving up the roadway, but just as the horse reach the top it was unable to go any farther. The cart ran backwards, smashed the railing and dumped its contents out on the grass. No one was injured, and the wagon was not very seriously damaged.

WOUNDED CHUM WITH SHOTGUN

Italian Youth, Aged 13 Sent Buckshot in Pal's Shoulder

Tornto. Nov. 10.—Assar Tuuli. aged 15, an Italian of 14 Milan St., is in the General Hospital with a scattering of buckshot in his shoulder and lungs as the result of being fired at by Weitto Reitainen. aged 13, a chum, of 15 Milan street, yesterday afternoon. Reitainen is in the custody of the police of East Dundas street station on a charge of wounding.

At the time of the accident it appears that the two boys were in a room at 15 Milan street. From a stock of rifles and other small arms belonging to his father the Reitainen boy picked a shotgun and, holding it in his hands to show Tuuli how it worked, discharged the miscellaneous contents into the shoulder of the Tuuli boy. Tuuli fell to the floor of the room, groaning. A doctor was called and had the unfortunate boy removed to the General Hospital. His condition is regarded as serious. Examination of the boy's wound showed that some of the small shot had entered the lungs.

Reitainen was taken into custody by the police. Search of his home revealed two rifles and two old revolvers all of which the police confiscated.

EVENTS OF TO-DAY

Observance of Martinmas.

Armistice Day, the first anniversary of the ending of hostilities in the great war.

King Victor Emmanuel III., who led Italy to victory in the world war, celebrated his fiftieth birthday today.

By legislative act or gubernatorial proclamation more than half the United States will observe Armistice Day as a holiday.

In Canada, Armistice Day is to be widely celebrated under the auspices of the G.W.V.A.

Armistice Day was celebrated in France by a military pilgrimage, over which the Archbishop of Rheims will preside.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws is to be conferred on General Sir Arthur Currie by the University of Toronto at a special convocation today.

When Harry T. Essex, town clerk of Orangetown, N. Y., was prevented by illness from continuing his duties, his wife became a candidate for the office and was elected.

Orange blossoms were adopted for bridal wreath because the orange branch bears fruit and flowers at the same time—a sign of plenty.

NO INTERFERENCE WITH ELECTIONS

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS IN GERMANY DOES NOT AFFECT INTERESTS OF ALLIES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris. Nov. 10. The Supreme Council has decided not to interfere with German municipal elections now being held in areas where plebiscites are to be taken under the peace treaty.

It has decided, however, that such elections will be in no way binding upon the Allies, which will disregard them whenever necessary when a final settlement of affairs in the districts in question is affected.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Nov. 10. Although today had been set as date for a meeting between representatives of the Germans and delegates of Great Britain France and Italy, to discuss a proposed proctocal to the German peace treaty, in which the Germans are expected to bind themselves to live up to armistice conditions, the discussion did not take place. The Italian delegation, it developed, was not ready for the conference.

Half-Holiday Asked

Secretary Whatley, of the G. W. V. A. asked Council whether it would be possible to proclaim a public half holiday today, the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice, November 11th, 1918. General Williams will be here, he pointed out, to present war memorial certificates from the Board of Trade to the next of kin of Peterborough men who mad the supreme sacrifice in the war. and it would be appreciated, were opportunity given citizens in general to be present. However, he realized that time was short for proclaiming a holiday, and suggested that the schools at least have a half-day.

His Worship did not thing it would be fair to merchants and other employees at this season of the year to proclaim a holiday. Work on the bridge is being rushed, business generally is active, and the city had been surfeited with holidays the past twelve months. The King himself has only called for two minutes cessation of activities on Armistice Day. He (the mayor) would not mind the school children having a half day.

Council in general held the same views as His Worship.

Ald. McIntyre and Phelan moved that the School Board be recommended to give the school children a half holiday. This carried.

The McDonald Question.

Assessor Henry valuated that portion of Crescent street which runs through the Alfred McDonald Mill property, and which estate is anxious to secure a deed for expansion purposes at $500.

Ald. McIntyre said the Company considers this valuation too high and he has reason to believe they are contemplating moving elsewhere. This industry, he characterized as too valuable for this city to lose, and he contended some concession should be allowed to encourage them in expansion. Perhaps Council would be willing to offer the company a fixed assessment.

Ald. Edgar pointed out that Manager Dick had agreed to abide by an independant valuation of that portion of Crescent street his company wishes to secure, or to pay the cost of advertising the transferring of [illegible]

Ald. Turner thought Council should refrain from further action until Mr. Dick has been conferred with.

This question went to the Manufacturers' Committee.

On motion of Ald. McIntyre and Edgar, Ald. Gainey will act as chairman of the Manufacturers' Committee during Ald. McIntyre's three weeks' absence.

Who Were There.

There were present Mayor Duncan Aldermen Edgar, Phelan, McIntyre, Garside, J. J. Turner, Morrison, Crowe, Taylor and Gainey.

THE GLORIOUS DEAD

"Lest We Forget"

Whoever you may be, go into your room to-day and sit quietly for a few minutes. Canada asks you for these minutes in Meditation upon Her Immortals.

Their spirit, the spirit of devotion to duty, of love of Canada and of home that illuminated their lives and made glorious their death, still lives. May it live in you and in me. May we be so inspired that from now onward, constrained by the love of Canada, we may ever advance her interests, ever work for a greater and more glorious Canada.

To-day is a day of memory, of thanksgiving, and to-day Canada has indeed the right to require from you a thanks offering. But no such demand is made. Canada simply asks you to the fullest extent of your capacity to advance her trade, production, and prosperity, and by so doing help yourself, protect your family, increase your income and all without risk.

TORONTO TEACHERS WILL NOW INFLICT CORPORAL PUNISHMENT BY NEW RULE

Men Teachers Must Not Punish Girl Pupils and Pulling of Ears is Forbidden—Children of Tender Years to be Dealt With Lightly.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—"Catch-as-catch-can" methods of thrashing Public school pupils are to be barred if the suggested draft of new regulations to govern corporal punishment is approved by the Toronto authorities.

Radical changes are embodied in the draft which is to be considered. Only female teachers are to punish girls. Rubber straps are not to be used on girls or boys under twelve. Pointers and private straps are positively barred. In fact, everything possible is done to cut down corporal punishment. The teacher is told that frequent use of the strap will be regarded as a sign of his or her own inefficiency.

Try Other Means First.

Principals are to use every endeavor to reduce all forms of punishment to the minimum compatible with the welfare of the pupils and the school, and are not in any case to inflict or to allow to be inflicted corporal punishment until other methods have been tried sufficiently and have failed.

Principals are held responsible for all corporal or other punishment, but they are allowed where they think it necessary to delegate during pleasure the power to inflict slight punishment.

Two straps, a rubber strap and a leather strap, provided by the Department of Supplies, and authorized by the board, shall be used for the purpose of inflicting corporal punishment. The rubber strap shall not be used in the case of any boy under twelve years of age, or in the case of any girl.

When an assistant entrusted with the power of inflicting corporal punishment has need for exercising that power the assistant must obtain from the principal the appropriate strap and the discipline register.

After inflicting the punishment the assistant shall enter the details and shall sign the record. The strap and the discipline register must then be returned to the principal, who will initial the entry. If the punishment is inflicted by the principal the details of the case must be entered in the discipline register and the entry signed by the principal.

All punishment shall be inflicted in the presence of one other member of the staff who shall also sign the record as witness.

Only on the Hands.

No punishment shall be inflicted on any other parts of the body than the face of the open hands. The infliction of any cruel or excessive punishment or any irregular punishment, including blows by the hand, boxing or pulling the ear, striking any part of the head or any part of the body other than specified, shaking, forcibly laying hold of pupils, striking with a pointer, or other irregular means of corporal punishment, or the keeping of a private strap or any other implement of punishment is absolutely prohibited.

The principal must secure that throughout the school corporal punishment shall as far as possible be avoided in respect of delicate or nervous pupils.

In the event of any person breaking any of the regulations in regard to the infliction of corporal punishment the principal is required to report the circumstances immediately in writing to the chief inspector. Any breach of the regulations shall be regarded as a most serious offence.

Reduction of 32 Per Cent.

A recent report by Chief Inspector Cowley showed that in the past five years there had been a reduction of 32 per cent. in the cases of corporal punishment. In a period of eight months, in the last school year, there were 5,28[illegible] cases out of a roll of 67,000 pupils, while for a similar period five years ago out of 52,000 pupils there was 5,968 cases. The classification of the past year's lickings showed that 19¼ per cent. of them were administered to kiddies under eight years of age, 37 per cent. to pupils between nine and eleven, and 40 per cent. to youngsters between eleven and fourteen.

H. BAY RY. TO COST $1,750,000

For Steel From Kettle Rapids to Port Nelson.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—In the Commons in answer to a question by Mr. J. A. Campbell Hon. C. J. Doherty, who was leading the House, stated that it was estimated it would cost approximately $1,750,000 for laying steel on the Hudson Bay Railway from Kettle Rapids to Port Nelson. The Government did not propose to purchase the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway at the present time, he said.

Parents Get Telephone Appeal to Come to Her in Washington.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 11.—Margaret Dickey, whose mysterious disappearance two years ago, at the age of 14, caused search in every large city without success, has been found. Her parents were overjoyed last night when the girl called them by telephone from Washington and appealed to them to come to her at once. Mr. and Mrs. Dickey left today for the capital. The message was the first word received from the girl since she disappeared.

G.W.V.A. Keeps Quiet Regarding Costello's Decoration.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Through the intervention of the Great War Veterans' Association newspaper articles attacking the morale and morals of British officers in Siberia, and Written by Harry Costello, Detroit, were banned. It is now reported that the writer is to be decorated by the Prince of Wales with a British medal for gallantry on the Archangel front! Remembering these anti-British columns, the border cities command of the G.W.V.A. would have the ceremony cancelled, but referred the matter to the higher Ontario office. Both President C. E. Jeakins and Secretary W. B. Turley take the ground that "a soldier's military honor cannot suffer for a civilian indiscretion," and think it unwise to interfere.

Tobacco Habit Dangerous

says Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital. Thousands of men suffering from fatal diseases would be in perfect health to-day were it not for the deadly drug, Nicotine. Stop the habit now before it's too late. It's a simple process to rid yourself of the tobacco habit in any form. Just go to any up-to-date drug store and get some Nicotol tablets; take them as directed, and lo! the pernicious habit quickly vanishes. Druggists refund the money if they fail. Be sure to read large and interesting announcement by Doctor Connor soon to appear in this paper. It tells of the danger of nicotine poisoning, and how to avoid it. In the meantime try Nicotol tablets; you will be surprised at the result.

THEDA BARA AT THE GRAND

Theda Bara in "Under Two Flags" was the attraction at the Grand last night. As a screen drama of wide possibilities this picture affords the capable star ample opportunity for a certain picturesque and unrestrained style of acting and one which will appeal strongly to those who look for originality first. Undoubtedly not intellectual, type of beauty, she is gifted in a great many different ways. Possessed of an alluring, if not intellectual, type of beauty. She is also gifted with more than physical charm. Theda Bara is keen as a breeze from the sea—her interpretation of the leading character is graced with all the glorious abandon—all the rollicking joyousness of a happy elf. One of the most intensely interesting stars of the screen, here is an arresting personality of big and conflicting emotions. Sympathy, anger, love and hate, each in turn hold sway. That is a tragic moment—a scene filled with big thoughts when her sympathy goes out to the woman in distress and again when she depicts on her expressive countenance the spasms of anger and hate. Perhaps there is not much that would appeal to the aesthetic mind about "Cigarette" but still she is so, fascinating and possessed of such fine ideals that there is also much to admire about her. "Under Two Flags" is a strikingly vivid picture and some of the scenes are flicked, with the light, of a golden humor.

LIFE IN OLD WEST DIVIDED BETWEEN QUICK AND DEAD

"Please do not shoot the piano player He is doing the best he can."

"Here lies the body of Piute Pete. He was second on the draw."

Brave days, those of the old West. Then was the time when the length of one's life was measured in exact ratio to the quickness of one's trigger-finger and the clearness of one's eyesight. Gentlemen were not hampered then by such newfangled ideas as concealed-weapon laws, or murder trials, or blue-coated policemen. It was a man-to-man life, when the population was sharply divided between the quick and the dead.

As is picturesquely shown in the great Western photoplay, "The Coming of the Law," in which Tom Mix is starring at the Empire Theatre, Tuesday, Wednesday, life in the old days of the West was full of uncertainty. It was here-today-and-gone-tomorrow stuff, and the only farewell that many a sombreroed soldier of fortune overheard was the sharp bark of the Derringer or Colt.

The cause for this easy disregard for human life lay, of course, in the absence of the forces of law and order. Every man had to be his own policeman and the only sort of moral suasion that was effective was the persuasion of the business end of a revolver. Naturally, the mortality rate, especially as applied to those deaths that were sudden, was consistently high; for if a miner of a cowboy or a gambler sought to preserve the peace as it pertained to him, said preservation depended entirely on the sureness of his aim. If his aim was sure he was never more troubled by his enemy; if it was not sure, his peace was not only profound, but eternal. It was a simple code, but it kept the population down.

Gradually, however, the more respectable and law-abiding men in the West brought real law and order into the lives of their communities. The old regime died hard, for men whose whim was their law could ill brook interference. The conflict between law and lawlessness proved one of the most interesting phases of the development of the old West, and in "The Coming of the Law" Tom Mix in the role of a young and fearless editor, gives a picture which is a most interesting cross section of life as it then was lived.

EVERYTHING DEAD FOR TWO MINUTES

CESSATION OF ALL LOCAL ACTIVITIES IN MEMORY OF ARMISTICE.

In acordance with the proclamation of the King, every industry of this city ceased work for two minutes at 11 o'clock sharp this morning to commemorate the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice, which virtually ended the world war one year ago today.

Every tool was laid aside, every street car stopped in its track and all activities in this city ceased for exactly two minutes, while the people's chimes played "Nearer My God to Thee" "God Save the King" and "O Canada." The town clock sounded the warning for an observance which was short but impressive.

Children in the schools ceased work, and in some instances assembled in one body and remained perfectly still while the two minutes passed, after which their principal made a short speech, impressing upon them the greatness of the hour, and then announced a holiday for this afternoon as requested by the Mayor.

It was a short commemoration, but one that will be remembered by everyone in Peterborough for a long time, on account of its impressiveness.

SUFFERED IF SHE WALKED A BLOCK

MRS. SMITH WAS IN A RUN DOWN NERVOUS CONDITION BEFORE SHE TOOK TANLAC.

The list of testimonials in behalf of the merits of Tanlac grows daily as new tests of its powers are made. Mrs. A. F. Smith, of 614 South 8th St. East, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, in relating her experience with the medicine, recently said:

"For the last three years I have suffered from indigestion, gas on my stomach, nervousness and constipation and, as I had used many different kinds of medicines and kept getting worse, I was beginning to think there was no help for me. I had gotten in such a run down, weak and nervous condition that I could not walk a block without suffering intense pain and was in no shape to do anything.

"But I am feeling altogether different now and I want to tell the people that it's all because of what Tanlac has done for me. It has helped me just like those whose statements I read in the paper said it helped them. I had not finished my first bottle until I was feeling better in every way. I have used four bottles now and my stomach is in condition to where I can eat just anything without an uncomfortable feeling afterwards. My nerves are in better shape than they have been in years. Before taking Tanlac I could not rest well at night, but now I can sleep like a child and that tired, worn out feeling has left me. Tanlac certainly is a grand medicine and I never lose an opportunity to recommend it to my friends and neighbors."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle and Son

TO TRAIN ALL MEN FOR WAR

NATIONAL SCHEME FOR MILITARY TRAINING FROM 12 TO 16 YEARS.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—Tentative plans toward national military service were placed before those interested in the move in Toronto by Brigadier-General W. A. Griesbach, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.P., for West Edmonton, Alberta, when he was in the city.

The draft memorandum of the scheme is being furthered by what will be known as the Universal Military Service League of Canada, with the object of securing the adoption of the following principles:

(a) That all Canadian men are liable to serve in wartime.

(b) That they be trained for war in peace time.

(c) That these principles be inserted into Canadian law and policy, and that local, provincial and Dominion executives compose the organisation.

Training of Cadets.

It is planned to have junior cadets from 12 to 14 receive instruction in physical drill and military exercises subject to medical sanction. It is further proposed to establish fully equipped training depots for giving four three-months courses in each year. When the cadet reaches 19 years he passes into the senior class, and takes up a personally selected three-months course at a depot, and is drafted into a selected unit in the active army.

At twenty he will do one month's training each year until twenty-two. Each year from the ages of 23 to 30 he will fire a musketry course. From 31 to 45 he will be in the Second Reserve, and from 46 to 60 in the Third Reserve.

Officers Training.

Officers will be trained as privates while at their depot. Any soldier holding rank as corporal may apply for entry to the officers' class.

Estimates from the present population show that 50,000 men would be in depots the first year; 50,000 men in depots and 50,000 men in units second year; 50,000 men in depots and 100,000 in units third year and so on until the tenth year, when there would be 50,000 men in depots, 150,000 men in units and 200,000 men in the First Reserve.

HAND LACERATED

Brockville, Nov. 10. — William Hall, a resident of Prescott, had two fingers and a thumb of his left hand blown off by the explosion of a dynamite cap. Hall was sitting by a stove tapping the cap on it when the accident occurred. In addition to losing the fingers the hand was also badly lacerated.

NOTED DOCTOR DEFENDS SABBATH

SAYS THE DAY OF REST SUFFERED SADLY DURING THE WAR.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 10.—Delegates to the third world's Christian Citizenship Conference, which opened here yesterday, today discussed the "family" and the "Lord's Day." This afternoon it will take up some of the national problems of Spain, Russia and the Balkans.

International defence of the Sabbath was urged by Dr. W. M. Rochester, of Toronto, in presenting the report of the world commission on the Lord's Day. The report declared that "the Christian Sabbath had suffered seriously' during the period of the war.

No Restraint

"It was a glorious day," said Dr. Rochester, "for the Sunday newspaper, the theatres, sport and for industries whose leaders were impatient of the wholesome restrains required by the recognition of this day. No such parade of benevolent interest and patriotic fervor has been made by any class as by the enemies of the Christian Sabbath during the war.

"The nations must combine in organization, education, legislative endeavor and such other efforts as shall ensure that the Christian Sabbath shall have a place permanent and supreme of its kind in the life of the world."

PLAY FAIR.

DON'T JUMP TO CONCLUSIONS.

What is the difference between remedy and cure? Any disease which is liable to recur cannot be indefinitely "cured." You may dispel the germs from the system—but that is simply remedying it.

A man suffers for years with Rheumatism. After trying numerous treatments without success, he takes Templetons' Rheumatic Capsules, and is restored to perfect health again.

A year or so later Rheumatic symptoms appear again. What does he immediately conclude? That it is his old trouble returned; that the medicine he took had only a temporary effect; that he will never again be well. This impression is the one we wish to eradicate—because it is entirely false. Whenever Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules are given a fair trial they remedy Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuritis, Neuralgia, or any of their kindred diseases.

T.R.C.'s won't make you immune from the above diseases. They will remedy them and drive them from your system, but whenever you feel an attack coming on, start using T.R.C.'s again.

Ask your Druggist or write us for our new booklet; it is interesting and costs you nothing (Templetons, 142 King West, Toronto). We mail T.R.C.'s anywhere on receipt of $1.04.

Keep Peterboro Humming

Canada is running a great National Store.

Great Britain and other lands come here to buy our surplus agricultural and industrial products. These are the orders that are keeping Canadians busy and prosperous. That is where the money comes from that is paying our farmers for their surplus products and providing full pay envelopes for our workers.

But Great Britain and our Allies are temporarily short of "cash." So Canada must extend them "credit"—just as any storekeeper extends credit to any customer whose financial standing is good.

The success of the Victory Loans 1917 and 1918 made possible the giving of these credits. A continuation of these credits and the maintenance of our valuable overseas markets—depend upon the success of the Victory Loan 1919.

You will, therefore, plainly see how closely bound up with the Victory Loan 1919 is the prosperity of everyone in Canada, without exception.

It does matter.

Unless Canadians to the last man support the Victory Loan it will not be the success that our continuous prosperity demands.

Let Peterborough do its share to keep things humming.

CARPENTIER TELLS HOW HE FEELS ABOUT COMING BECKETT CONTEST

(By George Carpenter.)

London, Nov. 10.—After all that has been said in England, in Paris, in America, that I would wriggle out of the fight with Joe Beckett (it has all been so very amusing, perhaps now and then annoying, for there was a suggestion that I was timid, afraid) you friends of mine will, I hope, believe me that I have begun to train harder and with more earnestness than I have ever done in my life.

For nearly a month I have been at La Guerche, a quiet, straggling little place some 150 miles from Paris, where there is but one cafe, almost no life, no hustle or bustle, quiet always. With me has been Eddie McGoorty and his trainer, Gibson, and many fighting men.

My training here has given me many more pounds in weight. I am 78 1-2 kilos, or as you would say 173 pounds, which is heavier than I was when I met your Dick Smith in my first fight for five years. Those who know me would have it that I am unreasonable optimistic, but I am sure that if all goes [illegible] shall, when I meet Joe Beckett at the Holborn stadium on December 4, be a better man physically than I ever was.

His Other Bouts.

When I took the ring against Gunboat Smith in 1914, I was still growing. I was not a man full grown. Now I am 25, and I am not going to have it, that, although I spent five years in the army and during that time never had the gloves on in a serious fight, I am like Jim Driscoll about to "come back."

I make this confession readily, however. When I fought Dick Smith at the Cirque de Paris I suffered a strangeness that I gave never experienced before; the crowd, the cheers, the flaring lights, the knowledge that I was free to box again after many long days when I doubted I should ever be able to do so again, brought uneasiness to me, I wobbled and felt sick inside; there were moments when my eyes were blurred and I could not find a sense of distance.

It was only when the fight was over that I gained a normal sense of mind. Since then, in the privacy of my gymnasium, I have had many fights, no mere sparring bouts, and today I feel physically competent to take the ring tomorrow against Joe Beckett. I almost wish the combat was tomorrow.

Wanted This Match.

This fight with Beckett I know, will be one of the hardest ever. May I make this confession? When in the early part of the year I signed articles to meet the best heavyweight in Great Britain, I was assured that of a cetainty my opponent would be Billy Wells. No one spoke of Beckett; I had not taken him into my reckoning, and please forgive me, Beckett, when I rushed to London to see you against the Bombardier, I put much money on Wells.

Since that night when Billy was stretched on the floor of the ring, I have thought and dreamed only of Beckett. I have itched to meet him. And since that night I have but one notion, to fight him; for I know, you know, everybody knows, that if I beat him I shall get further on the highway that leads to the world's championship, than if I were to meet and defeat a dozen other men.

After my affair with Smith and my request for a postponement, they said I had no liking for Beckett; that I contemplated running away to America. It is true I had much money offered to me to go to the States, but not a single offer have I taken seriously. I never thought of going, though a big fortune awaited me there, before I had defended my title of European heavyweight champion in London.

Mean Everything.

If I had rushed to America I should have committed professional suicide. Surely, if I had sidestepped Beckett, I could never have held my head up in England again.

I am staking everything on my fight with Beckett on December 4—reputation, money, prestige, everything. If the English champion beats me I come down with a flop, as you say—bang! and it will be hard for me to get up again.

I will not prattle about confidence, but I will back my chances, and I will wager that it will not be a long fight—but a hard, terrible, a mighty crash—a short, sensational one, I picture it will be.

THE BIG FIVE WIN FROM BUSY BUNCH

Y. M. C. A. LEAGUE PROVIDES GOOD SPORT

In three very good games in the "Y" Five Pin League the Big Five won two from the Busy Bunch last night. The teams were well matched so much so that only a lead of 6 points gave the first game to the Busy Bunch. Nicholls, for the Big Five, chalked up the high score for the night in the last game, making 7 strikes and a total of 242. Scores:

Having started the Big Five were hard to hold and in the last game won out by a big margin. The next league game will be played tonight at 7.30—Rollers vs. Centrals.

JIMMY SMITH WANTS SIXTY GAME MATCH

BOWLING CHAMPION WILL DICTATE TERMS OF CHAMPIONSHIP PIN CONTEST.

(By Oscar C. Reichow.)

Jimmy Smith, now of Milwaukee, is the recognized bowling champion of the world and as holder of that title he is going to dictate the terms of his proposed match with John ("Count") Gengler, which bowling fans here are eager to see. If the "Count" does not want to accept the champion's proposition there will be no match, as the latter is determined to have his way about it as he was forced to yield to the terms laid down by Vorhees when they rolled for the championship in 1905 on Charles Ebbets' alleys in Brooklyn.

Gengler is one of the most popular bowlers Chicago has at present and he has been trimming all his opponents with such consistency since he has made this his home that local fans have confidence in him to wrest the laurels from Smith. They are desirous of seeing the two stars shoot for the title on one night in a twenty game match, and believe that if the pair meet under this arrangement Gengler will win the championship. [illegible] has confidence in his ability to defeat Smith, is willing at any time to consent to a meeting of that kind.

Wants Match of Sixty Games.

The champion is opposed to a one night match, contending that it is not a fair way to settle a championship. Besides, Gengler has been bowling on Bensinger's alleys so long that he could almost shoot a 200 score with his eyes shut, and therefore Smith is not eager to give him as big an advantage as that. Smith wants to defend his title in a match of sixty games to be rolled in six different towns for a purse of $500, total pins to count. This is one of the stipulations he will insist upon because rolling on different alleys is where he shines.

Smith apparently is determined to make it as tough as possible for Gengler to win the championship as he has incorporated in the terms that the alleys shall be shellacked the night before each series of games, that there is to be no practice on the drives, the first ball thrown is to count and a new set of pins is to be used every night.

"These are the only rules under which a championship should be decided," said Smith, "for a man has to hit the pins right to get them. Bowling under these conditions brings out the real skill of a bowler and I am willing to meet the Count or any other bowler in the country with these rules prevailing."

Al Lea Beats Champion.

The champion finished his exhibition series here Thursday afternoon and was beaten by Al Lea, who has been one of Chicago's foremost rollers for fifteen years. Twelve games were shot before a gallery of more than 200 fans, in fact, it was the biggest week day crowd that has watched a match at Bensinger's Randolph alleys. Lea won six of the twelve games and was fifty-one pins ahead of Smith at the finish. The contest started out to be a hot one, as two of the first three games were [illegible]. Each shot 183 in the opener and rolled 223 in the third. That gave the local bowler confidence and he improved as the match progressed. His final game of 235 was the best of the series. Smith extended himself in an effort to win —and knocked as many as seven "baby splits" throughout the match. The scores:

R. B. ROGERS AGAIN

We have endeavored to improve our knowledge of the methods of farming and to better the conditions on the farm by holding meetings at which we have invited experts to address us on different subjects pertaining to farm interests, and I can safely say that we have greatly benefited thereby. Both the Dominion and Provincial Governments are only too glad to send their experts to give us the benefit of the knowledge they possess and the benefit of the information they obtain from the numerous experiments they are constantly making. We have not availed ourselves of this great opportunity in the past, to the extent we should have, but we have learned by our experience during this year, which we have just ended. What a great fund of information is available for the asking, and it is hoped every advantage will be taken of these opportunities in the future.

We have also taken advantage of the benefit derived from co-operative buying and selling the produce of our farms. The selling of our livestock by our own agents through the United Farmers Cooperative Company has been a great success and we have profitted considerably by selling in this way.

Our membership has now reached the number of one hundred and seventy-five, being perhaps the largest club in Ontario. We hope our membership will include every farmer in this district. I might add that our district takes in the corners of the townships of Smith, Douro, Otonabee and Monaghan, withon a radius of six miles. We have sold about $60,000 worth of hogs and a considerable number of cattle and lambs on all of which we have received increased prices.

You all know that after subscribing for over 400 shares of stock in the United Farmers Cooperation Company they are about to open a branch store in this city, which is expected will be a great convenience to all the members of the club. It is expected that this store will be the headquarters for the members of the club and it will be a convenient way of buying what we require and also disposing of our butter, eggs and other truck of the farm. The stores that the Company have opened in other places have proved a great success.

We have not neglected the social side of life which is perhaps the most important function of our club. We held a most successful banquet in the Empress Hotel, the first, I may say, of its kind ever held in Peterborough, and which it is proposed to make an annual event. We had a number of brilliant addresses made by prominent members of our organization and a most enjoyable social evening was spent. We also held a most successful assembly in Victoria Hall, at which many of our older members who had long ago laid aside their dancing pumps, again donned them and vowed they would never again neglect them. We were also pleased to see a large number of our city friends, who assured the committee that they would certainly not miss our next annual dance. We also held an excursion down the river at which the crowd was so great that the gates had to be closed before seventy-five of the would-be excursionists [illegible] aboard. Those remaining had to get other means of transportation such as yachts and autos, to convey them to Wallace Point, where the excursion [illegible] heavy shower dampened the feet and clothes, of some of the excursionists [illegible]id did not dampen the spirits of any. We had a number of splendid addresses by prominent members of U. F. O., including Mr. Burnaby, of Jefferson, president of the U. F. O. Co-operative Company, Mrs. Webster of Ops, Mr. Smith, editor of the Farmers' Sun, and others. All agreed that they would be present at our next annual excursion, on which occasion it is proposed to engage all the boats available for the occasion. While on the question of the social side of our programme should we not consider the question of extending it much further and having such meetings as will include our wives and daughters. Why not consider the question of having a Farmers' Club rooms, at which we could have light refreshments and a comfortable place to meet together when we and our wives come to town and also a place to put our horses in and a place to park our cars. It would not cost very much and by meeting together once or twice a week, we would become better acquainted with each other and help to take away some of the monotony of farm life. This opportunity of meeting together could also be taken advantage of by having addresses given by prominent members of the different women's organizations. Also while on this subject, why should we not have a branch formed here of the women's organization. There are a number of women's clubs in the western part of Ontario and at the last annual meeting of the U. F. O., they took a very prominent part in the meeting.

Regarding the programme for the meetings to be held during the coming winter, I would suggest that the incoming directors get in communication at once with all those whom we desire to address us and have a list printed giving the programme for the whole season, so that every member will know at the beginning of the season what he can expect for the whole year.

As you know we have had an election and the result shows what can be accomplished by organization. I am sure we wish the new Government success and that they will govern the province in the best interests of the people as a whole.

Lowness of extraction is no obstacle, as this can easily be set aside by nominal adoption into a family of higher grade.

SOCIAL & PERSONAL

KENNALEY—LANE.

Thronged with friends of the contracting parties, St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a pretty wedding this morning at 8 o'clock when Geraldine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Lane, 243 Hunter street, was united in marriage to Orville Kennaley, son of Mr. W. J. Kennaley, of this city.

The bride, who looked lovely in her wedding dress of shell pink georgette over crepe de chine of the same color, a black Gainsborough hat, corsage bouquet of ophelia roses and a sealskin sacque, entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Doherty. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Loretta Kennaley, who wore a pretty gown of white georgette crepe, large taupe hat, and corsage bouquet of ophelia roses. Mr. aJck Lane, brother of the bride, supported the groom. During the signing of the register Miss Florence Leahy sang, "Oh Fair, O Sweet, O Holy," and later "Ave Maria."

After the ceremony the immediate relatives of the bride and groom returned to the home of the bride, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served, and at 11 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Kennaley left amid showers of confetti for a wedding trip to be spent in American cities. Mrs. Kennaley travelled in a handsome gown of brown georgette crepe with cloth of silver trimming, large black hat and a sealskin sacque. The young couple will reside in Detroit.

The Northern townships district is the latest to win the Prince's district flag, with a total of $21,700. Hurrah for Hal's Bridge!

Peterborough is leading in special subscriptions. Port Hope holds the flags in this competition as they were first to reach their specials' objective. Peterborough has a chance to win the bunting, which goes to the unit, showing the highest percentage at the end of the campaign.

Here is our honor roll — City, Prince of Wales' flag; city and county (combined), Prince of Wales' flag; Cressman's, Ltd., Prince of Hales' banner; J. J. Two million yards of cloth, sufficient to make 500,000 standard costumes, are held by the Department of Wool Textile Production, England awaiting official decision regarding the use of the cloth. DOWN COME PRICES ON LADIES' CLOTHING

Ladies, do you realize what H. J. Zack's "Selling Out" Sale really implies? It means that everything in the store must be sold regardless of cost, as Mr. Zacks is removing to New York; that ladies' and misses' fall and winter suits, coats, sweater coats, skirts and dresses, in fact everything in the ready-to-wear line, dry goods and men's, boy's and lady's furnishings is on sale for a quick clearance at practically your own prices. Remember these goods are not old stock, but were laid down NEW for this season's business before Mr. Zacks had any idea of leaving this city. Consequently, he is clearing out the same high-grade of merchandise for which this store has a reputation, at prices away below wholesale cost. In fact, never before has such a pocket-saving opportunity been offered the Peterborough public, who should rise to the occasion and lay in a stock of clothing needs for the future. Each day's visit to this store reveals new and bigger bargains. See that you take advantage of them while the buying is good.

Remember the place: H. J. Zacks, 422 George street, where a new and up-to-the-hour stock is being sacrificed to the very last garment or article.

FIRE AT ADAM HALL

Coal Heater Becomes Overheated and Sets Fire to Woodwork.

A fire broke out about 8:30 o'clock this morning at Adam Hall's Ltd., 256 Simcoe Street.

It was caused by a coal heater becoming too hot and setting fire to the woodwork from where it spread to the floor. The woodwork was principally cedar and the fire would have spread rapidly, but prompt attention extinguished it before much damage resulted.

ADMIRAL JELLICOE ON WESTERN COAST

WILL INSPECT MARINE WORKS ON COAST OF BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 11.—With uniformed marines drawn up at attention and with the band playing stirring march music, the baltic cruiser New Zealand glided into Esquimalt harbor at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, beginning Admiral Viscount Jellicoe's Canadian lap of his Empire tour.

Today Admiral Jellicoe will inspect the proposed location of the national dry dock here. In the evening he and Lady Jellicoe will be guests at a ball in their honor. On Tuesday Admiral Jellicoe will address the Canadian Club.

In an interview, Viscount Jellicoe took exception to cabled despatches from Australia, which intimated that he had mapped out a plan for naval co-operation between Great Britain and the Dominions in the far east. He had been invited by them on the question of naval defence, but it was far from his purpose to lay down any hard and fast rule whereby that would be accomplished.

May Advise

He pointed out that he had only just arrived in Canada, and under any circumstances, it would be impertinent on his part to attempt to say what should be the measure of naval aid to be given to the British Empire.

He had been invited to go to Ottawa and if asked for advice would give it to the best of his ability.

Going North

On Wednesday next, Admiral Viscount Jellicoe will leave here for Vancouver. He will then go north returning to Victoria on the 19th leave for Ottawa.

MEMBERS INDUSTRIAL WORKERS OF THE WORLD FIRE ON ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

Snipers Busy From Roofs of Houses—Four Soldiers Killed Several Alleged Assassins Caught—Secretary Local Branch I. W. W. Taken From Jail by Mob and Hanged Beneath a Bridge.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Centralia, Wash, Nov. 12.— State troops today patrolled this city, where during Armistice Day celebration, yesterday, four members of the American Legion were shot and killed by men said to be members of the Industrial Workers of the World, and Britt Smith, secretary of the local branch of Industrial Workers, were hanged by a mob.

Twenty Arrested

The reason for the attack has not developed fully to day, but it was said civdence had been obtained that it was premeditated. One of twenty men arrested in a sweeping search for I. W. W. members, following the attack, was said to have confessed that plans were made months ago to get Warren Grimm and Arthur McElfresh, two of those killed, and William Schales and Capt. David Livingston. These four had been active in suppressing radical activities in this community.

Fired on Parade

Centralia, Wash., Nov. 11.— Four former soldiers were killed and a number injured today by snipers, said to have been Industrial Workers of the World, who fired on an Armistice Day parade marching through the streets of the city.

Shots poured from the roof of buildings as the parade reached Lower Avenue, Centralia's main street, and Second Avenue. Arthur E. McElfresh fell dead, and William O. Grimm, attorney, and former University of Michigan football star, and Ben Casagrana, real estate man, suffered wounds from which he later died. All three were residents of Centralia. Four others sustaining less severe wounds: were George Stevens and Dal Hubbard, of Centralia, and two men from Chehalis, Wash., whose last names were given as Friscus and Watt.

The parade of veterans of the world war broke up quickly, while the uniformed marchers made a dash to raid the I.W.W. Hall and round up all suspicious characters.

The service men soon stripped the hall of all furniture and documents and arrested six men. These, thrown in jail, were guarded by the former soldiers to prevent their escape and at the same time to protect them from lynching.

A mob seeking the prisoner was fought back by the overseas men who stood guard at the jail to see that officials made no efforts to take the suspects away.

A meeting was held at the Y.M.C.

A quantity of arms and ammunition was seized when the mob ransacked the I.W.W. headquarters near which the shooting occurred, trampled down the flag, threw it out on the street and burned all the organization's literature. Posses scoured the timber camps and searched feverishly among the town's 8,000 inhabitants for other radicals.

Hanged Secretary

A mob took Britt Smith secretary of the local branch of the Industrial Workers from jail escorted him to a point just outside the city limits, and hanged him on a bridge on what is known as the old Chehalis Military Road.

The man's body is now hanging from a rope under the bridge about [illegible] messages said. "The I. W. W. the mob lynched was the one who shot Dave Hubbard during the fight in the River[illegible]."

PRINCE OF WALES AT WASHINGTON

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 12.—The Prince of Wales today visited the American Red Cross national headquarters, inspected the Lincoln memorial, and at the Walter Reed Hospital met a number of wounded soldiers.

Tonight he will be guest of honor at a dinner given by Secretary Lansing, and later will meet members of the Congress at a reception in the Congressional library. The British cruiser "Renown" arrived in New York today, and the Prince will live aboard during his visit to that city.

FIRE BUG CAUGHT

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Antigonish, N. S., Nov. 12.—The fire bug, who set fire to the Francois Xavior College on Sept. 25, has been discovered in the person of Goong, a Cape Breton student, who fell into a trap set by two other students and was caught making preparations for another incendiary effort. His motive was a desire to get home.

DAIRY INTERESTS OF DISTRICT WILL UNITE IN ONE COMPANY

Enthusiastic Meeting Here Yesterday Afternoon at Which 30 or 40 Representations Favor the Proposition Directors Are Appointed.

A. yesterday afternoon of 30 or 40 representatives, with the object of forming a company to take over and operate a large section of the cheese and butter making industries of the central part of the province. The representatives came chiefly from factories in Peterborough, Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Mr. H. B. Cowan, of the Farm and Dairy, spoke of the organization of the company, its great opportunities of success and the value such a company would be to cheese and butter producers.

10 Per Cent. Saving in Buying.

Mr. Uren, of the DeLaval Supply Company, also spoke in favor of forming such a corporation. He said that an estimate of 10 per cent. saving in buying through the proposed company was very conservative.

He also mentioned the fact that packing houses in Toronto preferred to purchase Saskatchewan butter rather than that of Ontario. This is a question of inferior quality. He thought that some steps should be taken to help to assure butter in Ontario being among the best in Canada

"Why is it that the Government has set the price on cheese and has not interferred with condensed milk companies?" he asked.

Mr. Uren also stated that he knew of fourteen cheese factories being put out of business by one condensory. He heartily endorsed the forming of such a company as was being organized.

Ever Star, Not Able to Stop.

Mrs. Galvin, one of the representatives present, declared he was heartily in favor of the movement. He believed if they ever got this project started they would be unable to stop it. It will be a national industry impaired if we do not look after our dairy business, was his opinion.

F. C. Hart Spoke.

Mr. F. C. Hart, of Toronto, also made an address. He claimed that farmers could make much more in co-operative marketing than in co-operative buying. He believed that few people realized to what extent the marketing system could be benefited by the proposed company. For proof of his statements he pointed to the live stock yards of the U.F.O. in Toronto, where co-operative marketing has been carried on so successfully. A few years ago Prince Edward Island was not noted for its high quality eggs. Now, it is considered the Denmark of Canada.

Ontario, as well as the whole Dominion, needs a better system of handling, marketing and selling produce.

Officers Appointed.

A temporary chairman, secretary and directorate were appointed to approach the various factories, investigate conditions and report as to the advisability of continuing the organization of the proposed company.

MAJ.-GEN. WILLIAMS PERSONALLY PRESENTS MEMORIAL CERTIFICATES

After Delivering Excellent Address Descends From Platform and Hands Next of Kin the Certificate Accompanied by Handshake.

"We have all suffered through the war, you people have suffered more than we soldiers, but we should look upon the more cheerful side of things. You should look upon the great service you have rendered not only to your country but to the whole world at large," declared Maj.-General Williams on the occasion of the presentation of certificates to the next of kin of all those who fell in the war, yesterday afternoon.

In opening his address he congratulated the Board of Trade upon the spirit with which they entered upon that solemn duty of distributing the handsome certificates.

He spoke of how we, not in any sense a miltary race, had shouldered our arms and defated the great warrior nation of the world, a nation that had been preparing for forty years for the gigantic struggle while we were enjoying the spirit of peace and good fellowship.

Taken Prisoner of War.

He spoke of how he had been severely wounded and taken as a prisoner of war. He told of how on many and many occasions he had prayed that he might die and be freed from the hands of those inhuman devils, who caused terrible suffering to those who fell into their power. He stated that he had seen instances where they have crippled for life their prisoners so that on their return to their own country they would be of no more service to that country.

Canada's Noble Part.

Then he turned to the brighter side of Canada's experience in the war. Canada's citizens who had suffered had uplifted themselves in the eyes not only of their neighbors but of the whole world. "What would have happened if you had refused to allow your sons, husbands and brothers to go and fight the unknown foe?. It was terrible, and I went through it and would go through it again for the cause," he declared.

Unable to Forgive

He stated that after what he had seen and gone throgh he was unable to forgive. He had been severely criticized for bringing before the public these strong views but he felt it his duty and would continue to do so until death sealed his lips.

It is his bounden duty to look after the returned soldiers and he thought he was doing it and he had been credited with doing it. And he declared that he would continue to do it.

The General spoke of his service overseas as commander of the Mounted Rifle Brigade. He spoke of the love he bore toward his men and the look of admiration on one of his own troops who was standing at the back of the hall spoke of the love his men bore toward him.

"War is dreadful. War is hell," he exclaimed. Men have to sit and take their medicine. Aand the magnificent spirit with which the Canadians took theirs was wonderful. They sat in groups, chatting and smoking cigarettes, while the shells were breaking around them. And they, or as the General said, or we, as he has the right to call himself one of them were always thinking of home. They did not think of their own hardship and dangers but thought of the sacrifices of the people at home.

Credit to Ladies.

And he gave great credit to the ladies for their great work in connection with the red cross and relief work of all kinds. They could not have carried on if it had not been for the work of the ladies at home. "We in Germany would have died only for the Red Cross parcels," he stated. He told of how they in the prison camp looked forward to their one slice of horse flesh on Sundays.

But he urged the people to look forward not backward. It is a magnificent thing that after the war is over the people of Canada and especially of Peterborough had subscribed so generously to the Victory Loan

After addressing the people the General descended from the platform and delivered with his own hands accompanied by a hearty handshake

DRURY'S CABINET STILL IN DOUBT

WILL OT BE ABLE TO ANNOUNCE PERSONNEL BY FRIDAY

Premier-designate Drury is not making the rapid progress in the formation of his Cabinet that he expected. He will not have it ready for announcement before Friday

"Who is the Minister of Education? Will it be George H. Locke?" —"No, it will not."

"Then is it R. H. Grant, of Carleton?"—"You are at liberty to guess."

"Some of the elected farmers are said to be opposed to you conferring too much with outsiders in the formation of your Cabinet?"—"I have not heard of it," said Mr. Drury.

VICTORY LOAN CREST FOR CITY

His Worship Mayor Duncan, received the following communication this morning, together with Peterborough's first Victory Loan Crest to add to the flag:

Dear Mayor Duncan:—

Peterborough City won a crescent for its Prince of Wales Flag yesterday, the combined teams total now standing at $986,250, being 131 per cent of its objective.

We have much pleasure in enclosing herewith the award, and offer our hearty conugratulations on the continued wonderful record the city is showing.

Yours very truly.

KINGSTON VETS. TAKE EXCEPTION

DEMANDS EXPLANATION FROM DR. EDWARS, M. P. AS TO HIS REMARKS

Kingston, Nov. 11.— Members of the G. W. V. A. took strong exception to the remarks of Dr. J. W. Edwards M. P., re soldiers re-establishment The association demands an explanation from the member for Frontenac county and has referred the matter to various branches of the G. W. V. A. throughout Canada. The association has formed a civic platform for the approaching municipal elections and may have candidates.

TO HOUSE VETERANS

Will Ask of Dominion Government Specific Provision for Soldiers.

Edmonton, Nov. 10.—The Dominion Government will be asked to amend its housing scheme in such a way as to make some specific provision for soldiers, a resolution to that effect having been decided upon by the Alberta Returned Soldiers' Commission. Considerable dissatisfaction with the present scheme was expressed by members of the commission, and Premier Stewart, among others, declared himself in favor of more adequately providing for the soldiers' housing needs.

Another resolution was passed for transmission to the Canadian Patriotic Fund asking that the administration of the fund be left with the local committees instead of as at present having to refer all cases to Ottawa.

REPORTS OF NUMBER OF MINERS RETURNING TO WORK BELATED

Some Local Unions Will Meet Before Reaching a Decision as to Whether to Obey Order to Resume Mining or Not.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Indiapapolis, Nov. 12.—Reports of the number of men returning to work are slow in reaching international headquarters of the Mine Workers here, chiefly because the order rescinding the strike call of October 15 has not yet been received in many districts, and because many local unions will hold meetings before deciding whether to return to the mines or not.

Isolated Strikers.

Despatches received up to this time, while not clearly defining the attitude of the men as a whole, are believed to indicate that the workers will continue to strike only in isolated cases.

Way for Adjustment.

Indianapolis, Nov. 12. — The way for the final adjustment of the controversy between the bituminous coal operators and the United Mine Workers of America, which resulted in a strike of 425,000 union miners and action by the government in the Federal Court, appeared in sight last night.

While the representatives of the miners, who earlier in the day had

CITY WINS FIRST CREST AND GOES OVER MILLION MARK FOR VICTORY LOAN TONIGHT

County Also is Cutting Wide Swath and District of Northern Townships Gets Two Crests.

PLANNING FOR "HOP"

All Canada	$379,111,782
Ontario	219,284,050
Peterborough City	986,000
City and County	2,069,850
(including specials of $504,000.

The first crest for the city's Prince of Wales flag has been won, and tonight will see the city subscriptions to the Victory Loan, exclusive of specials, over the million mark, and the totals for all Peterborough well above two millions. With three more days to go, a new and determined effort will be made to break all percentage records in the city as well as in the county.

Ennismore has reported 51% of the township's objective, and promises of plenty more. J. K. Galvin has charge of the campaign there, and headquarters are confident that the final result will be well up with the top-notchers.

The county is cutting some swath this work and attracting considerable attention. The northern townships district not only won their flag but have added two crests, which knocks the spots off the city. And as a further indication of the drive's progress, Mr. W. Weir of Otonabee reports a $6000 subscription from a party who when first canvassed refused to have anything to do with the Loan.

Presentation at Lakefield.

The presentation of the flag won by Lakefield was made last night at the moving picture theatre in the town, the council adjourning their meeting to take part in the festivities. An immense concourse of people assembled in the theatre and Reeve Moore received the flag from His Honor Judge Huycke. The people of Lakefield were congratulated on their splendid response to patriotic duty during the great war, also on their contributions to the Victory Loan. When the flag was unfurled the audience stood and sang "O Canada."

A "Hop" for Friday.

Publicity Organizer Frank Blackadar, and Harry Dahn, manager of the Grand Opera House, are making arrangements for a "hop" on the pavement on Simcoe street between George and Water streets, for Friday night County Chairman Bradburn and Ald. Harry Phelan, chairman of the city's board of works, will be invited to lead the grand march. A screen will be placed in position and moving pictures shown, and everybody will be invited to take part in the program.

The canvass through the factories of the city is gaining in momentum and nobody, not even Frank Whitehouse, will venture a guess as to the final total. Some of the factories have already done exceedingly well, and others who were late in getting away from the wire are now digging in with both feet. The Peterborough Lock Co. has won the Prince's banner and one crest.

FOR THE VAST BROTHERHOOD OF MAN

The Trades and Labor Council, the industrial unions, all lodges and men's societies will have place in Trinity Methodist Church on Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock, when ex-Controller McCarthy of Toronto speaks on "Brotherhood." Those choirs that have changed their night of rehearsal to release their men for this great gathering have the hearty thanks of the committee in charge. The professional men of the city—doctors, lawyers, teachers and civil engineers—are expected to be present in numbers that will indicate their interest in the subject to be discussed, and employers have an unequalled opportunity to show their friendship for those who co-operate with them in the work of producing

So often it is said that the workers of the cities are regarded only as "hands" and that no heart interest is shown in the matters that are so sacred to the great band of toilers. This gathering, staged without a cent of expense to anyone in Peterborough, presents a unique opportunity for all classes and creeds and men of no creed to show that they are really in earnest when they preach brotherhood from their pulpits and talk it in their unions, and make that word a word to conjure with when they are seeking reconciliation with their employees.

There will be nothing said of a revolutionary nature and those who have the idea that this is to be a preachment of offensive socialism are very much mistaken The gathering is to be a great convention for one hour of the men behind the guns of all legitimate activity in our city and no man should allow any small matter to keep him away.

CANADA'S FORTUNATE POSITION.

WHEN WE START to compare Canada's war debt with that of other sections of the British Empire we begin to realize how excellent a position Canada holds from the standpoint of the financiers of the world. It is true that it is $200 per capita, which, in the aggregate, is a very large sum, especially in comparison with pre-war indebtedness. Yet it is only two-thirds of the per capita debt of Austrlia and New Zealand, which is placed at $300 by Hon. W. A. Watt, finance minister of the Australian Commonwealth. And when we come to compare our debt with that of the citizens of the Motherland, where the war debt is estimated at $700 per capita, we begin to realise how easily Canada has escaped in a financial way. That Canada is in a financial position surpassed only by the United States is due in large measure to the wisdom with which our finances were conducted during the war, which found her at its conclusion with no serious unfunded indebtedness.

It is an unanswerable argument to show the gilt-edged character of the 1919 Victory Bonds. Nevertheless, no one should lose sight of the fact that if the stability of Canada's financial position is to be maintained it must be by a strong resolve on the part of everyone to make the Victory Loan an overwhelming success by their own subscriptions and enthusiasm. The time is short in which to accomplish this, and, though the response of the public has been fine, there is still a big gap to be filled up before the amount that will give Canada a proper working capital to finance great enterprises is reached. It is everyone's duty to help on the final lap.

THE HIGH COST OF STRIKES.

ASSUMING the same relation between wages and value and output as shown in the census of production for 1917, strikes in Canada have caused a total loss in wages and output of workers and factories directly affected of close to $100,000,000. This figure takes no account of the loss to factories indirectly affected through interruption in orders and curtailment of production, nor of the commercial and community loss through dislocation of business. The time lost in working days from January 1 to September 30 is officially reported by the Department at Ottawa as 3,161,525. Assuming the average wage at $3.50, the loss in factory output, according to the 1917 figures, was approximately $73,000,000. Making allowance for the loss from the end of September to date, we find a total reduction in output of approximately $85,000,000, and in wages of $11,000,000.

Industrial disputes in the United States have been more numerous than in Canada, and, while detailed figures are not immediately available, it is probably not unfair to assume that the time lost there has been greater than in Canada in about the same proportion as the population of the United States is greater than that of the Dominion. On this basis we may estimate a reduction in production in the United States of about $1,020,000,000, and a reduction in production on the North American continent in excess of $1,100,000,000. When it is considered that this is a direct loss in goods required by the people of these two countries and for export, it must be recognised that here is one factor in keeping prices high and in preventing a decline in the present abnormal cost of living.

STILL A POLITICAL ISSUE.

PROBABLY the prohibitory legislation adopted by Parliament and approved of by the Senate is the rational and constitutional solution of this vexed queston. It at least assures the various provinces full autonomy in dealing with the liquor traffic, and this seems to have been the idea that the framers of the B. N. A. Act had in mind. Any province, by a vote of its own residents, can, under the new legislation, with Federal aid, make itself bone dry.

The great objection to the measure, however, is the provision that makes it possible to vote on the question of prohibition every three years. This keeps the temperance issue in the political turmoil rather more than ever. There can be no stability in legislative enactments that are subject to such conditions. Agitation for the repeal of prohibition will always be possible because that provision is inserted in the new law. Every three years, if the Legislature of a province so decides, a referendum can be taken, not only on the question of permitting importation, but on the question of repealing the original Act itself.

Provincial prohibition, with importation of liquor permitted from outside points, will always be a lamentable and ghastly farce. It was so demonstrated in the dry States of the American Union until the Federal Government was constrained to take action to stop the importation. It was so demonstrated, too, in Ontario before the war-time order-in-Council put an embargo on shipments of liquor from Quebec and importation from other countries. Importing liquor into a dry province develops a more pernicious system of drinking than was ever cultivated in the days of the open bars. Hundreds of homes became so many drinking places, homes that under the former conditions would be strangers to such orgies. If liquor drinking is an evil, then buying it by the case is certainly more to be dreaded than purchasing it in a government-controlled bar-room by the glass.

If a plebiscite were taken in Ontario on the importation issue, and the votes of the drys prevailed, that would settle the matter only for the space of three years. Any Legislature with the required majority to call for another plebiscite could order one at the end of three years, and not only that but submit the question of repealing prohibition altogether. The province is thus likely to be kept in a state of perpetual unrest. The temperance issue, that so many hoped was disposed of definitely by the recent election, will figure in every provincial election in the future, and candidates for office will be given the same chance to make capital of the cause. Temperance has not been rescued from politics by the recent referendum. The issue is in the mire deeper than ever. The agitation will know no end. To elect a Legislature hostile to prohibition will always be the aim of the antis.

WOMEN AND THE POLL TAX.

THE SUBJECT who is truly loyal will never object to paying any legitimate tax that is applied with equal justice to all classes in the community. The women of Ontario have been given the franchise on the same terms as men. Their new privilege brings with it new responsibilities which the most of the new voters will not hesitate to assume. Certain classes of men, not otherwise taxed, are required to pay a poll tax. Why should not women of the same condition be subject to the same impost for the public good? Alderman Crowe has given notice of a resolution to memorialize the Legislature to introduce such an amendment to the assessment laws. The farmers of Ontario have always as a class regarded the present tax laws as unjust. One of the tasks of the new government will be to equalize these burdens. Ald. Crowe's idea is likely to find favor in Toronto. If women are to be placed on the same footing as men with regard to the franchise, why not bear the same tax burdens and responsibilities as do the male voters?

Ald. Crowe makes another democratic move when he sets out to secure legislation to have the police commissioners elected by the people, just as are the members of other municipal boards, instead of being appointed as they are at present. The police force is one of the most important branches of the city government, and under present conditions the people have really no say in its management. One of the outstanding defects of the present system, long recognized, is the fact that the police magistrate, whose work and that of the constables comes into daily association, is, by virtue of his position, a member of the board with a voice in the appointment or dismissal of members of the force. This point has for years been a subject of contention in Toronto and other large cities of Ontario.

The leading argument used in favor of the present system is that it tends to keep the police department outside the realm of local politics. The administration of the public utilities commission or any other elected municipal board has never suffered through this influence, and no one can question the efficiency of such branches of the city government. The liberty of the citizens is involved in the police department. Its work comes rather closer to the personal welfare of the people than that of any other department. This being the case, it is rather inexplicable that it is the one board in the management of which the people have really no say.

BONUSING INDUSTRIES.

ALDERMAN GAINEY gives notice of a resolution to petition the Legislature to make it illegal for any municipality to bonus an industry as an inducement for it to locate in the town or city granting the concession. If anything ever comes of this move, it will relieve the people of Ontario of a system that has very often imposed heavy tax burdens upon the public. The system has for years been generally regarded as unsound, but had to be tolerated so long as it is given legal recognition. While one municipality had the right to adopt such a plan, all others have by necessity to follow the same course. If the Legislature should cancel the authority referred to, all municipalities would be on the same footing and would be able to secure new industries in proportion to the national and artificial advantages which they had to offer. It would be a case of the success of the fittest.

If such a law were passed in Ontario, however, would it not have a tendency to drive industry to other provinces where no such legislation is in existence? To work out with equal justice to all sections of the Dominion, anti-bonusing legislation should be made nation-wide in its scope. However, a beginning has to be made at some point, and Ald. Gainey has set the ball rolling. His idea marks progress, indicating that not every alderman on the board is willing to rest under conditions the only argument in favor of which is that they have existed for years.

"HELLO" GIRLS' WORRIES.

(Durham Chronicle.)

We were in the telephone office a few days ago and found the "hello" girl almost distracted over making a connection. We felt a sympathy for the poor gorl, who was evidently trying to do her best. She felt like the last rose of summer and no doubt she was swearing inwardly over the [illegible] inarticulate manner in which the fellow at the other end of the 'phone was trying to give his instructions. Nearly every one who has had occasion to use a telephone knows something of the tortures felt when trying to talk to a person who seems to have his mouth full of hot porridge and carry on a telephone conversation at the same time. Much of the indistinctness of speech over the telephone is due to faulty ennunciation. The homes are partly responsible, and we believe the schools are not altogether blameless. We don't wonder at the "hello" girls being cranky at times. We would be cranky, too, if we had to take their places.

HOME OF HEROES IN FRANCE

Here it is, the Sad Little House, down this cobbled lane, just off the Rue de Belleville.

The Rue de Belleville swarms with life. Its hucksters have their carts half across the street. The muddy river of people belonging to this slum of northeastern Paris flows uphill and down, clamorous, noisy, half-sinister. But the little lane, called Rue Denoyez, has no pedestrians, no voices, nothing but the Sad Little House. At number 18, it stands, a low stone hovel, cracking, bulging, yellowed with age. For a century, perhaps, it saw birth, life and death; it shook with the Rabelaisian laughter of its tenants; it echoed to children's voices. It has been sad and gay by turns, but now it is only sad.

Out of this house, in 1914, went fiftyseven young men. Before 1918 twentyseven had been killel and thirty wounded. None escaped.

From the narrow strip of sidewalk opens a passage, low and damp, sallow and forbidding. Looking through it one has a glimpse of a court paved with rough stones, smeared with animal refuse. To the left, a row of little doors, behind which dwells sorrow. On one of these doors a mysterious sign, to the effect that madame—madame the landlord, no doubt—refuses to accept rent from those within. We guess why. Beyond, is an alcove, horses stamp, and a cart is proped amid the straw.

Upon this court frown the shoulders and elbows of other houses, ancient, wicked, fecund. And over all pink clouds float mokingly, like a troupe of ballet girls tripping past a graveyard. Just to the right as one enters there appears in the half darkness, an ornament, alien, but splendidly alien to the Sad Little House. It is a tablet of marble surrounded by a chaplet of flowers artfully interwoven with crape. And the chaplet is enlarged and beautified by flags of France falling away in beautiful folds. Twenty-seven names are there, surmounted by the words "To the memory of the residents of this building, who died for France. 1914-1918."

As one gazes trying to realize what this means to the Sad Little House madame the concierge comes out of her lair, a small dark room, cluttered, like every conciergerie, with a thousand objects, useful or superfluous.

"There you see it Monsieur et madame," she says. "It is that which the mayor and the cure and all the great people of Belleville have done for us; the city of Paris as well. Those are the names of our young men, who had 20 years of age or 30 or more. You see what is said there; they died for France. Eh bien! it is true. Yes, there were 120 persons of us once, but of these fifty-seven went away and came back never or came back mutilated."

She limps back into the dark and returns with faded photographs, showing the great day of a week ago when the mayor and other great ones came and honored the Sad Little House. And she runs rapidly over the names until she comes to "I Chicandre," A pause.

"And he," she says, "he was mine."

She has it there before her door, the tablet erected by the great people. But those who made joy in the Little House are gone.

COMPARISON OF SOVIET AND ALL THE RUSSIAN TROOPS IN SIBERIA

Kolchak Leaders Are Recruiting Young Men Who Have at Least a Rudimentary Education.

By Paul R. Wright.

The lineup of the various forces in Siberia is easy to comprehend says Paul R. Wright, writing to the Chicago Daily News. Let us make a map. Picture a line approximately east and west, representing a distance of about 3,500 miles. Imagine at the eastern end of this line Vladivostok, on the Pacific. At the Western end is Omsk, the capital of the Kolchak government. Omsk is about 500 miles farther from Vladivostok than is San Francisco from New York. Between these points runs a railroad, double tracked nearly all the way, but easy to damage.

Draw a mountain range running north and south, nearly 500 miles farther west than the spot that indicates Omsk. This mountain range is the geographical and geological boundary between Asia and Europe.

To the east lie the Siberian plains and forest lands, with immense fields of rye and barley, great green pastures and limitless expanses of birch and pine. To the west is Russia, with its unfenced farm lands and rolling hills covered with oaks and maples. The oaks and maples on one side of the Urals and the birches and pines of the other indicate the difference in climate. Siberia lies immediately east of Russia, but it is colder. As for the Ural mountains, they are more like great hills to our American eyes. They are beautifully wooded and lovely to look at, but not rugged and gigantic. Countless millions of years have worn down their roughness and carried their bulk into the Siberian and Russian valleys.

It is this country, this border line between Europe and Asia and the territory that lies next to it on either side, that the whites and reds have been fighting over. Sometimes the Bolsheviki have held and sometimes the forces of the Omsk government.

Omsk Armies in Advance.

Last spring the Omsk armies, after a hard winter of fighting, had driven the bolsheviki very far west, pushing them beyond the Urals, 300 or 400 miles back into old Russia, and very strong hopes were entertained that the Omsk regiments would soon be in Samara, on the Volga.

It was my privilege to be with the Russian armies at the time of their greatest advance. At Easter I was with Gen. Gallitzin, 200 miles west of Ufa. All the Russians were in high spirtis. But they advanced too rapidly. The bolsheviki turned on them and they had to run. In June I was at Ufa when it fell and my railway car was in danger of capture by the reds when they crossed the Bielara and were in a position to cut the railway line aread of us.

The bolshevik drive, once started, seemed irresistible. In Russia, Perm, Koongoor, Ufa and a host of lesser cities fell, as well as Ekaterinburg and Chelyabinsk, on the eastern slopes of the mountains. Nobody knew when the drive would cease, whether Omsk would fall, or whether the Reds would speedily be in a position to undo the harm that Gaida had done them a year before. At this crisis the acting foreign minater, Sukine, assured me that the Kolchak people were optimistic, that Denikine's drive from the south would act as a deterrent in Siberia, and that new troops then in training would be an immense help. In the face of the bolshevist advance, Sukine's optimism seemed heroic.

I was called to Vladivostok then and lost personal touch with affairs in the far west, but in Vladivostok I heard the wildest rumors to the effect that the Reds had risen in Omsk and that the Omsk government had evacuated to Irkutsk. These things did not happen. The present battle line is somewhere on the wide lands between Omsk and the Urals. The Kolchak armies seemed to have stiffened their powers of resistance, and the Denikine drive really had the expected result. That is the Siberian war situation. Omsk, the capital, is still in the hands of the Siberian government. Chelyabinsk and Ekaterinburg, so far as I know, are held by the Soviet divisions. All of the real warfare of recent months is out there.

Soviet Army Grows.

The number of men involved, as compared with those in the recent war in western Europe, is small. Last year the total bayonets of the Soviet armies were estimated as being about one million. By this summer their forces were much more numerous. Only a fraction of these are engaged on the Siberian front just now. When the bolshevik had demonstrated their superiority over the Siberian forces in the fighting before Ufa, I was told at the Ufa headquarters that the Reds were winning because they had the more men in that sector, that they had fully thirty thousand men. If you multiply these figures by four or five you get an idea of the Omsk government's available men last summer.

The Kolchak troops are not the best in the world, but they are improving. The levies upon the peasants were made with some difficulty but there have been unwilling soldiers in all armies, even our own. The raw troops, when sent into battle, did not fight well. Moreover, the assertion is frequently made that as soon as these troops are outfitted by the Omsk government they desert to the enemy. This is not accurate. Some of them certainly have deserted to the enemy with their new guns and equipment, but the number was not great. A lot of them resisted the intriguants, remained loyal, and even saved their officers from slaughter by providing them with ragged clothes of the common soldier and hiding them until the would-be murderers had tired of their search and gone on. I was deeply impressed with the loyalty of some of these troops in the campaign about Ufa. Many of them were Bashkirs and Khirgez.

Recruiting Better Troops.

The Kolchak leaders know the weakness that is inherent in troops made up of unlettered and untrained peasants, and their last recruits are almost exclusively young men who have at least a rudimentary education. These "intelligent"—to use the Russian term for an educated person — troops take to army discipline much better than do the illiterates. They make a better showing and learn more rapidly. Moreover, they have a better idea of patriotism.

It was these newer and better drilled and better spirited troops that the Omsk government hoped to see block the advance toward the capital. The hope, apparently, has been realized.

By their drive of last spring and summer the bolsheviki have annexed a vast granary, where in June the fields of grain were ripening to the harvest. There are great herds of cattle in their new holdings, too. If they can get this food to the cities of Rusia this winter the spectre of famine will be robbed of much of its terror.

VICTORY LOAN BOND HAS MANY USES

COMES IN CONVENIENT ON RAINY DAY—A MEANS FOR CREDIT

While you are urged to buy Victory Bonds as an investment it has its uses as a sheet anchor out to windward in a time of adversity. It is something to snub to, to rely on and is accessable in a pinch. It places the owner beyond the necessity of applying to some friend to endorse his note, or to ask the dealer for an extension of credit. Take this illustration of its merits and uses.

During the unemployment, very general at the earlier part of the year, a capable housewife apologized to her grocer for not being able to pay up so promptly as usual. She had dealt with the merchant for several years. The grocer was not anxious about the validity of the account and appreciated the hesitation of the customer to ask for a further credit.

She said that her husband had not had work for several weeks and what money they had saved had been exhausted. All that was left was a Victory Bond for 50.00, and that she supposed could not be used. To her surprise the grocer at once offered to take the bond, pay the interest up-to-date and give the financial market price for the bond, it not being subject to income tax. Having the bond solved the difficulty. A due bill was at once arranged, the arrears paid, and until the balance of the face of the bond was exhausted the housewife had no anxiety as to the immediate future. She said, proudly and feelingly, that if the bond had not been taken, and paid for that the money could and probably would have been used for something not so necessary as the foods required, and that it was a lucky investment for herself and husband that they had been pursuaded to buy even a $50.00 bond.

Not only that, but she told others, similarly situated, and several staved off the prospect of going into debt for household necessaries by bringing bonds and doing likewise.

We know that the bond should have been held, but when pressing need comes in it might be better to part with the bond than have the embarassment of running into debt, and which in the way indicated could be avoided.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general.

ADVERTISING INSURES FAIRNESS OF PRICES

According to the official statements of the fair price committee which has been investigating the cost of living in New York city, retail advertising will have a far greater effect in reducing prices than any attempt to eliminate competition by agreeing on certain "fair" prices.

"Competition," states the report, "is so widespread and universal among retailers that price agreements are impossible, and in themselves would defeat any attempt to lower prices, which are regulated and restrained through publicity given in daily bulletins in the form of advertisements from a number of competing retailers. The public, therefore, possesses the power of control prices by judicious and economical purchases."

Arthur Williams, federal food administrator for New York, in discussing this report, stated that:

"The publication of a daily price list arbitrarily fixed by this committee is impracticable and not the best way to handle this matter for the greatest benefit of the consumer.

"The continuous daily advertising in the daily newspapers by the merchants engaged in handling clothing, shoes and dry goods constitutes virtually a daily competitive price list, the resulting publicity being the best guarantee that the consumer shall obtain fair prices.

"It does not seem practical or feasible that the retail dealer exhibit at the time of the sale his cost prices."

The report points out that on the same day that an analysis was made of shoe prices in twenty-five different smaller stores in various sections and a price of $6.50 was established as a fair price for a certain grade of shoes a large retail store offered exactly this grade to the public at $5.90. Competitive action of this sort exerts far more influence in keeping prices down, according to the report, than any arrangement for price agreements among dealers.

TO LIMIT APPROVAL SALES, ABOLISH THEM

The best solution of the problem of keeping approval sales down to a minimum is to abolish them. This is the answer by which Lillian C. Smith, a sales clerk of Dives, Pomeroy & Stewart, Reading, Pa., won a store prize. She wrote:

"Let the house adopt a rule: 'No approvals, all merchandise must be paid for or charged.' If paid for and returned, have the customer get a refund check from the buyer and then go to the office to get the money. The little trouble to get it will eliminate a lot of reurns, and in many cases they will take an exchange.

"In the case of the charge customer, make them go to the office to get their credit, when again the inconvenience will have a tendency toward making them a little more careful in selections.

"Perhaps we salespeople are often to blame, as it takes hard work sometimes to close a sale and as a last resort 'an approval' is suggested when perhaps the customer has no intention of buying. Every 'looker' is not a buyer, nor are they all prospects, for it is absolutely impossible to sell to every person to whom you show merchandise.

"There is one hopeful way to cure this approval evil and that is if we salespeople learn to sell goods so intelligently and thoroughly that they will stay sold and also realize the difference between thorough selling and foolish selling."

PITTSBURGH STUDENTS BUSY WITH RETAILING

Third and fourth year students in the Pittsburgh high schools have taken to the new courses in retail merchandising with avidity, and are spending one or two days a week in their "laboratories," the even department stores which are members of the Research Bureau for Retail Training of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

This so-called laboratory work however, is real work, conducted right in the stores and under the supervision of both the school faculties and the store managements. In addition there is a great deal of classroom work, in which the experience actually gained in the stores is analyzed and developed. Under the heading of store organization and system, the students take up in order:

The development of the department store.

The Pittsburgh stores.

Store service.

Principles behind stores.

Store organization.

The salesbook.

The purpose of the sales check.

Distribution of the parts of the sales check.

Business habits.

Under the classification of "Merchandise Study" they take up the general characteristics of the two great groups of merchandise, textile and montextiles, with as much of a study of the methods of manufacture of such articles as is practicable.

The third part of the course is devoted to the "Principles of Retailing." It includes:

The salesperson.

The customer.

The merchandise; its care and display.

Selling tactics.

Methods of approach.

Talking points.

Closing the sale.

Suggestive selling.

Stockkeeping.

The successful salesperson.

Demonstration sales.

Students are paid at the rate of $2 a day for the time that they spend in the stores, and those who carry through their courses to graduation are guaranteed employment at $15 a week to start, in one or other of the stores which are co-operating with the schools in the development of the course.

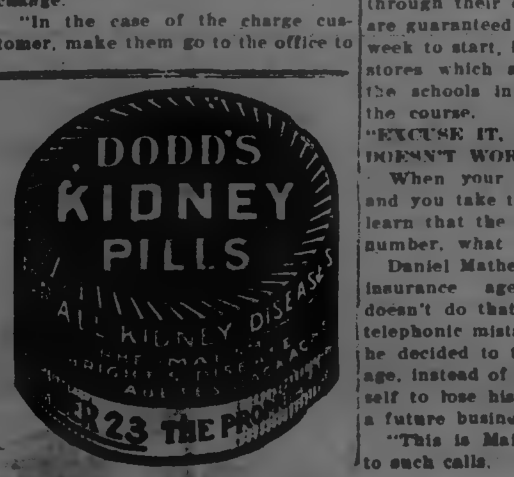
"EXCUSE IT, PLEASE," DOESN'T WORRY MATHER

When your telephone bell rings and you take the receiver up and learn that the caller has the wrong number, what do you do?

Daniel Mather, who is a local fire insurance agent in Indianapolis, doesn't do that. Mr. Mather found telephonic mistakes so frequent that he decided to turn them to advantage, instead of merely allowing himself to lose his temper and perhaps a future business prospect also.

"This is Main 121," he responds to such calls. "You have the wrong number. Now, if you needed fire insurance, you would have the right number, for we have the best fire insurance in the world and sell lots of it. We also handle a lot of real estate. Call us up when we can help you."

It isn't pleasant to get the wrong number and both parties are likely to fret when busy operators make a bad guess. Mr. Mather turns such incidents into little rays of sunshine which, by the way, have played no small part in the building of a lucrative fire insurance and real estate business.



Music in the Home

SPIRITUAL INFLUENCE OF GOOD MUSIC.

Music is being enjoyed by millions who never had any opportunity to enjoy it a decade ago. It has taken a far more important place in the child's education which is as it should be, if education is to fulfil its one great function—preparation for life.

The idea that music is a luxury which only the over refined can relish and that the study of music is fit for boarding school girls only, is rapidly disappearing. The few that still hold to it—usually men of, or beyond middle age—have had the tremendous unifying and uplifting power of music brought home to them through the recognition of music where they may have least looked for it, namely, by our great military and naval leaders. Though these serious men referred in their commendation of music principally to the simpler types of it—to the songs of a soldierly and patriotic character—yet even these simpler types serve as stepping stones towards music of higher and highest order. Their—and the government's —recognition of the spiritual influence of music is an additional confirmation of the view of it which has been held and forcefully expressed by every great philosopher, from the earliest times to the recent day.

CANADA MUST DEVELOP COMMUNITY MUSIC

The growth of the community music means many thingh. It means an endless source of pure pleasure to those who participate. It means a mighty stimulus to the love and understanding of good music. It means that at last we are beginning to weary of being entertained by others and mean to create and perform our own music, through our own efforts. Most important of all, it means that Canada is discovering at last that she is a united nation and is expressing her joyful sense of unity in song.

Let us see that the children have their share in this national awakening, a voice in this national chorus. Let every village, town and city gather its young people and train them for a community chorus or orchestra. There could be no surer means of making them loyal to each other and to their country and of preparing a musical future for the nation.

The war has taught us for one thing, how to come together as a community for spiritual expression in song. We shall be the richer if we preserve and cultivate the practice.

MUSICAL REFORM

For the child who has approached it in the right way in early years, music may become a lifelong source of joy. It is not necessary that he should be a performer himself, though of course he will be doubly fortunate if this may be so. What is necessary is that his taste may be solidly and well formed and that he may learn early to prefer simple, beautiful melodies to the shallow conventionalities of rag time and the "jazz band." Only as parents realize their responsibilities can be degrading influences of musical commercialism be counteracted.There are hopeful signs that such realization is spreading. Just as about a generation ago the absurdities of the old school readers began to give place to selections from 'Alice in Wonderland,' 'Treasure Island" and other good literature so the time is now ripe for substituting for the empty stuff that is too often sung by our children in the schools, beautiful old folk songs and the simpler tunes of the great composers, which children spontaneously love if they have a chance to hear them. No reform could do more than this to make the next generation truly musical.

An eccentric old lady in Paris had the roof plate of her false teeth made of two thin sheets of gold between which he inserted a miniature copy of her will for safekeeping.

Having learned that overeating at banquets and dinners has incapacitated many men political leaders, Mrs. Robert Bass adheres to a milk diet almost exclusively while touring the United States in her capacity of national Democratic committee woman.

WAYWARD BOYS FORM CHORUS

Do Community a Service

An encouraging story of the good influence of music comes from an industrial farm, an institution for the reclamation of wayward boys. Through the assistance of some good friend of music and a good friend of boys, a chorus was organized among these boys. By dint of hard and regular practice the chorus made good progress, acquired a varied repertoire and finally gained a reputation that became more than a local one.

The next step was for the chorus to journey to adjacent towns to lead in community sings. Just think of it, a group of wayward boys leading the community in its musical activities! It gave these youths a new conception of their place as citizens. It gave them self respect. It gave them an aim in life. It fired their ambtion, their imagination and their determination. Music proved a big factor in reclaiming them—music as a service.

Such incidents are coming to the public's attention with increasing frequency and they all show that good dividends are always paid on an investment of what comparatively little time and money are required for making the most of musical activities among boys.

EXTENDING THE MUSICAL SEASON TO 12 MONTHS

To any person who even casually follows the musical goings on in Canarda and the United States, it must be apparent that the summer activities in the world of music are receiving greatly increased attention. As one of the newspapers said the other day "slowly but surely the warm weather musical events are taking on the aspect of a link binding two seasons. From this it is but a step to a further prolongation of the summer functions until they form an integral part of a continuous all-year season."

Nothing but good can be expected from a continuous all-year musical season. Music is just as necessary to ordinary humans in summer as in winter. To hear a good orchestra play is just as restful, just as entertaining, just as elevating in the hot weather as in the cold. The character of the music during the summer, may differ from that of the winter but the music should be there.

Again there are times when, during the winter months, so many musical attractions are billed for, say, a given fortnight, that they are not all properly appreciated. Were the season lengthened to the twelve months' duration and the "strong food" spread a little thinner it might be better for the public and better for the cause of music.

GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR

Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty

Oh, girls, such an abundance of thick, heavy, invigorated hair; a perfect mass of wavy, silky hair, gloriously fluffy, bright and so easy to manage.

Just moisten a cloth with a little "Danderine" and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this magically removes all dirt, excess oil and grease, but your hair is not left brittle, dry, stringy or faded, but charmingly soft, with glossy, golden gleams and tender lights. The youthful glints, tints and color are again in your hair.

"Danderine" is a tonic-beautified. Besides doubling the beauty of the hair at once, it checks dandruff and stops falling hair. Get delightful Danderine for a few cents at any drug or toilet counter and use it as a dressing and invigorator as told on bottle.

A strange custom prevails in Armenia with regard to girls who have attained their seventeenth year without being married or engaged. They are forced to fast for three days; then for twenty-four hours their only food is salt fish, and they are not permitted to quench their thirst.

MUSIC A BIRTHRIGHT

Few people realize that music is actually a birthright. Many of us regard it as merely a source of pleasure. Many parents think of it as a pleasing and ornamental, but rather unnecessary, educational "frill." Very few understand that the musical instinct is as deeply rooted as the speech instinct and that to deprive a child of music is to rob him of his birthright.

Let us remember that the word "birthright" signifies not only a right to which one is entitled by virtue of one's birth, but, furthermore, a right of substantial valpe. We must recognise the child's right to music as a thing of value—as a power to broaden and fill his life by opening to him a great world on a mental and spiritual plane far above the merely physical.

Any instinct, denied a chance to exercise itself, will weaken and possibly die. A "Kim," reared in the jungle, will never fully acquire human speech. In the same way the baby who never hears a mother's lullaby, the toddler who is never trotted on his parent's knee to the tune of nursery rhymes, will become the man who has no ear for music. As Rubinstein says, "The study of the musical language is like that of all other languages. He who learns it in infancy can become master of it, but at an advanced age it is almost impossible to acquire it."

FOGGY?

If Bilious, Constipated or Headachy take "Cascarets."

Tomorrow the sun will shine for you. Everything will seem clear, rosy and bright. Your system is filled with liver and bowel poison which keeps your skin sallow, your stomach upset, your head foggy and aching. Your meals are turning into poison, gases and acids. You can not feel right. Don't stay bilious or constipated. Feel splendid always by taking Cascarets occasionally. They act without griping or inconvenience. They never sicken you like Calomel, Salts, Oil or nasty, harsh pills. They cost so little too—Cascarets work while you sleep.

NO WORLD REVOLUTION

Berlin, Nov. 11.—Gustav Noske, Minister of Defence, speaking at Chemnitz, declared his disbelief in a world revolution, and added. "A revolution in America would mean that millions of people in Germany would be threatened with death by starvation."

Referring to the Government plan for socialization, he said a bill would be introduced in the Reichstag in the winter taxing big employers to the extent of 75 per cent., thus converting them virtually into highly paid employees of their own businesses.

FARMERS WANT MORE FOR MILK

WILL URGE ON BOARD OF COMMERCE NEW WINTER PRICE

Toronto, Nov. 10.—The farmers and dairymen of Ontario are going to appear before the Board of Commerce at its first sitting in Toronto to urge the increasing of the price of milk to $3.35 a can. The board at a previous sitting made an interim order making the price $3.10 a can until Dec. 1.

The fall in pork products has given some relief, but the coming of lower priced hogs promises to make the bacons and hams cheaper still, despite the heavy export business Canadian packers expect.

Clothing orders, boots and shoes price fixing, and questions relating to the cold storage price of butter are items that will take the time of the board when it commences its third session here.

WOMEN TO VOTE ON PLEBISCITE

FEDERAL LISTS WILL NOW NEED TO BE SPECIALLY ENUMERATED

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Women voters as men with exercise their franchise in any plebiscite which any province may ask under the terms of the Prohibition Act which passed Parliament and became law yesterday.

It is for the province, through their legislatures, to ask for the plebiscite on the question of banning import and manufacture, save for export, of intoxicating beverages. The Dominion authorities will do the rest. The lists to be used will be Federal lists, and they will need to be specially enumerated, considering the fact that while all women over 21, with qualifications as to nationality, are now enfranchised, the lists used in 1917 contained only such women as were relatives of soldiers. New ones will need to be prepared. All women will be able to vote. No option to distinguish between them and men is conferred on the provinces, the plebiscite, like all votes under the Canada Temperance Act, being a Federal affair.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twings, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralises the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

DELEGATES FROM BALTIC COUNTRIES HOLD CONFERENCE SUNDAY AND MONDAY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Dorpat, Livonia, Nov. 11.— Delegates of the Baltic States summoned to meet here held conferences Sunday and Monday. The first general meeting, with representatives of Finland, the Ukraine and Poland in attendance was held Monday afternoon. White Russia was also represented.

So far there has only been an exchange of views on the question of an armistice with the Bolsheviki, and the formation of a border states league.

ALLEGED IMMORALITY WAS UNSUPPORTED

GIRLS OF WOMEN'S ROYAL AIR FORCE CLEARED OF ALL CHARGES.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 11.—The House of Lords committee which has been conducting an inquiry into allegations that girls of the Women's Royal Air Force Service at Hurst Park Camp had not always conducted themselves properly, concluded its labors today

Baron Wrenbury, the chairman, announced that the committee unanimously found all allegations of immorality absolutely unsupported by any of the testimony presented.

Drinking a Glass of Hot Water is a Splendid Habit

Cleanse and sweeten the system each morning and wash away poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases waste and acidity and gives one a fine appetite for breakfast. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store, but is enough to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism an enthusiast on internal sanitation.

STOLE FROM CARS

Chatham, Nov. 10. — Ten Grand Trunk cars, standing on the Pere Marquette transfer siding, were entered by unknown parties sometime last night. High Constable Peters, who is working on the case, states that the seal of each car was broken. Several cases of whiskey were stolen. The authorities are of the opinion it is the work of an organized gang.

F. H. Phippen, who represented the C. P. R. and G. T. P. Telegraph Companies, told the commissioners that if the companies could not be put in a position to obtain money to keep their lines in repair and to make necessary extensions the Government might as well take the wires over.

SOLDIERS AND RIOTERS CLASH

CORK THE SCENE OF DISORDERLY MOBS—STICKS AND STONES USED FREELY.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Cork, Nov. 11.—Constant collisions between the military and civilians here culminated in serious rioting last night, when soldiers, enraged in consequence of frequent attacks upon them, broke through the police and came into conflict with the crowd.

Sticks and stones were freely used, and belts were removed and forcefully swung. There were also a few revolver shots. A captain and a private of the troops were badly wounded. The police eventually dispersed the crowds and got the soldiers back to their barracks.

HASTINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Hastings, Nov. 12.—A reception was given in the town hall during the week for eight of our boys who have recently returned from overseas. Reeve Hess occupied the chair and called on the following clergymen for addresses: Rev. Fr. Bretherton, Rev. Mr. Walsh, Rev. Mr. McKim and Rev. Mr. Thomson. The addresses were interspersed with songs by Mr. J. Wilson and Capt. Walter Thomson, also two choruses by the children of the Public school, and some selections by the band. At the close of the program Mr. Alex. Wilson was called to the platform and read the following address, a copy of which was given to each of the boys accompanied by a gold locket suitably engraved.

Address of Welcome.

In the urgent need of our country you gave your services gladly and freely, taking your stand for truth and freedom, for the protection of our homes and our liberty. You have nobly upheld the honor of the land we love, and you have merited our enduring admiration and gratitude. We welcome you back with proud and glad hearts, acknowledging God's gracious hand in sparing your life, and we wish you every blessing God may bestow upon you and all the good our country may be able to give you.

Our earnest prayer is that you and we may be enabled to live worthy of the great and heroic sacrifice you and others have made for us and for all humanity.

As a small token of our regard and esteem for you and yours, the people of Hastings desire you to accept this locket, suitably engraved.

Presented on behalf of the municipality.

J. H. HESS, Reeve.

Can You Forget?

AS long as you live you'll remember November 11th, 1918----Armistice Day.

That was the day the enemy surrendered.

That was the day of Victory for our army.

Day after day---year after year---through rain, cold, heat, mud, death---they had fought bravely, stubbornly, cleverly, faithfully---the spear-head of fate pointing inexorably at the black heart of the enemy.

REMEMBER the Somme? Ypres? Vimy? Passchendaele? Cambrai? Mons?

Can't you catch this brave spirit?

Can't you see how small is our task as compared with theirs?

Shall we fail to lend our money to the country for which they gave their lives?

The Victory Loan 1919 must be a victory, too. It is needed to pay our obligations to the army and to keep the fair name of Canada writ high among the nations.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR DAIRYING.

Farmers may take courage from the fact that the consensus of opinion of Canadian officials who have visited Europe is that the future of the export trade in dairy products is assured. In Enlgand butter is everywhere at a premium and Canadian cheese continues to hold its good reputation. Mr. H. S. Arkell, live stock commissioner, who has recently returned from overseas, states that the shortage of milk and dairy products in Great Britain is unprecedented. The same is true of European countries. The scarcity and high price of concentrated feed is to some extent responsible for this. The condition is so general as not quickly to be remedied. It is further responsible for retarding the increase of swine production and the restoring of the normal requirements of fat. This statement should give confidence to dairy farmers.

SALUTE THE HAM AND—

Think of All the Misguided Dyspeptics Who Refuse the Good Things to Eat for Fear of Indigestion. No Trouble Like That if You Follow Meals With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Lay a slice of broiled ham on a white plate with a couple of nicely

But, you say, I can't eat ham and —they don't agree. This is the sort of prejudice a host of people have against many of the most tempting dishes. People who have just as much trouble with a glass of milk or oatmeal as they do with fried onions. Try eating what you like and follow your meal with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet to relieve possible gassiness, rumblings, drowsiness, sour risings, heartburn, water brash, and the "stuffy" feeling after eating. These Tablets contain harmless ingredients that are with an alkaline effect just as the stomach does when it is perfectly normal.

Many physicians prescribe them for indigestion, dyspepsia and other digestive disorders, as they are sold in all drug stores everywhere in the United States and Canada. The druggist recommends them as among his steady staples for they really give relief and are highly appreciated.

Many of the returned boys joined in the proceedings and much merriment among the young people resulted. The creation of the notorious Guy was carried out on Sandy Point. The costumes were many and Indians, Jews, Chinamen, washwomen, dainty maids, darkeys, etc., were a common sight.

Armistice Day

Tuesday was generally observed as a public holiday in memory of the sigining of the armistice one year ago. The band assembled and played several patriotic airs, while the bells of the town were set ringing.

The Epworth League meeting on Monday evening was made especially interesting by the report of the recent convention which was held in Port Hope, given by Miss Mary Stevenson, of Bethel. Miss Stevenson gave a very concise report of the three days' proceedings and those present were certainly edified.

Like Indian Summer.

Much warmer weather is following the fall of snow and it makes one think of Indian Summer.

MILE-A-MINUTE CROOK MELODRAMA FULL OF TENSE SITUATIONS

Boston Blackie's pleasant occupation of boiling "soup"—nitroglycerin for safe-cracking — is interrupted when his eye falls on an advertisement in the paper he is reading.

> Wanted— Thoroughly efficient safe-cracker, one used to taking risks. Remuneration ample. Apply at once, please. Address Box 2430 Blade.

Blackie rises to the lure of adventure like a trout to the fly. Laughing at his wife's fears, he answers the carefree Morton's, where the jazz and advertisement, and at Morton's—gay, the one-step flourish—he meets, by appointment, Doris Macon.

Blackie's practiced eye sizes her up in an instant—she is "straight," this young, superbly clad, beautiful girl who is awaiting him in the rich glow of the shadded lamp in a nook of the reception room. Being straight, what can she want with a safe-cracker?

Blackie's unspoken question is soon answered. All she asks is that Blackie shall go with her to a house not her own, enter with a key she will give him, follow a printed plan of the house to a wall-safe hidden behind a panel, blow the safe and turn the contents over to her! For that he will receive $500.

Frankly the girl admits that the contents of the safe are not her property—"legally." But morally she insists she has every right to them in the world. "And you couldn't fail. Of course, if you are afraid——"

It is enough. Blackie takes the hook, and at midnight follows blindly as the girl leads the way into a great house standing dark and tenantless in the midst of magnificent grounds. What happens there, when the owner returns as the safe is blown open, and when young Robert Melchoir of the U. S. Secret Service, Doris' Sweetheart, comes in at the door as Doris and Blackie go out at the window, these and the surprising developments that follow when Doris climbs through the transom of Melchoir's apartment—all go to make one of the swiftest, tensest screen dramas of the year. TWO MEN LOSE LIVES HUNTING

Parry Sound, Nov. 11.—Two more lives has been the toll of the hunting season in this district as far as heard from, and there have been a number of near accidents. Just across from the town of Parry Sound Indian reserve resides Mr. Charles Salt, a son of the late Rev. Allan Salt, first Indian missionary to the Ojibway Indians on Parry Island and at one time at Sarnia reserve. Two of his boys went hunting with some others, and Allan, 15 years old, son of Mr. Charles Salt, was fatally shot.

The other accident occurred at Deer Lake, some distance north of here, and the victim was a physician of Detroit, Michigan, who, with other Americans, had come over for the hunting season. His name was Dr. Leiman, aged about 45 years, and a prominent and well-known Detroiter. No particulars are available, but it is believed he was shot in mistake for a deer. The body has been shipped to his former home.

METEOROLOGY WAS IMPORTANT IN WAR

RENDERED VALUABLE SERVICE TO ARMIES AND THE AIR SERVICE

Sir Frederick Stupart, director of the Meterological Services of Canada, who has returned from the convention in Paris, states that during the war meteorology was found to be of such vast importance to armies, and especially to the Air Services, that a very complete Meteorological Department was maintained in the war zone, and furnished general information and forecasts which proved of incalculable value.

The international meeting in Paris convened on September 30th, in the Administration Building of the Ministry of Public Instruction. There were present about forty persons, including meteorologists from nearly all the civilized countries of the world and aeronautical representatives from several of the countries in Europe, including France, Italy and Belgium. Some of the subjects dealt with were as follows: Agricultural Meteorology, Meteorological Telegraphy, Nautical Meteorology, Solar Radiation, Application of Meteorology to Air Navigation, International Meteorology, Exploration of the Upper Atmosphere, Terrestrial Magnetism and Atmospheric Electricity, Polar Exploration.

"It may be confidently affirmed," says Sir Frederick, "that this international meeting will insure a closer co-operation between the meotorologists of the world, and has proved conclusively that the meteorologist has most important obligations to fulfill in solving problems connected with aerial navigation, as well as those connected with the land and sea."

The International Meteorological Committee will in future be composed of 20 members, of whom 15 were elected at the Paris meeting and five vacancies were left to be filled later on by countries not as yet represented. The members elected were: Sir Napier Shaw, Great Britain, Dr. Palazzo, Italy; Colonel Chaves, Portugal; Professor NaKumara, Japan; Dr. Angot, France; Prof. Maurer, Switzerland; Sir Frederick Stupart, Canada; Dr. Van Everdingen, Holland; Captain Ryder, R. N., Denmark; Professor Marvin, United States; Dr. Walker, India; Commander Jaumotte, Belgium; Professor Hesselberg, Norway; H. A. Hunt, Australia; Dr. Eginites, Greece.

MOVING ON PETROGRAD

Helsingfors, Nov. 11. — General Yudenitch is counter-attacking with an offensive against Gatchina, according to a communique issued by the Northwest Russian Army Sunday. Attacks on the right and left flanks of Yudenitch's army, the statement says, were repulsed with great loss.

Omsk, Nov. 6.—General Diedrichs has resigned as commander of the western armies of the Omsk Government, the result of lack of accord with Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk Government. Kolchak and the members of his Goverament are determined to remain and defend Omsk against the Bolsheviki, in spite of the advice of many members of foreign missions.

Omsk, Nov. 4.—The advance of the Bolsheviki has been held up along the Ishim river at Petropavlovsk.

CRAZY YOUTH SHOOTS GIRL

VICTIM WAS INNOCENTLY LOOKING THROUGH DOOR OF SHOOTING GALLERY

Toronto, Novr. 10.—Thos. Creswell, aged 18, employed at a shooting gallery on George street, shot at some little girls who looked in the doorway of the establishment.

One bullet struck a player-piano and the second struck nine-year-old Florence Margaret Taylor, 284 Victoria street, in the face. The victim, aged eight, had left her home just a minute behind her playmates, Florence Taylor and Phyllis and Eileen Shaw, aged seven and eight, of 288 Victoria street, were in the doorway when the shots were fired, Jeannie coming up just as the second shot was fired, instantly appointed herself Red Cross nurse.

Rushing to the side of her injured playmate, with one arm supporting her, and with her own dress used for absorbent gauze, she wiped the blood from the face of Florence.

Creswell was taken into custody within two minutes after the shooting by Sergeants Guthrie and Brown. He said he did not mean to hit the children, and had fired low.

In the morning Police Court Creswell, through Thomas O'Connor, elected to be tried by a jury.

"I think he should be examined by a doctor," said Crown Attorney Corley. "He must be crazy to do a thing like that."

Little Forence was able to sit up in bed for her dinner at the hospital at noon, but the bullet has not yet been removed.

WORLD REVOLUTION IS SEEN BY CZERNIN

FORMER AUSTRIAN MINISTER SEES UNIVERSAL UPHEAVAL IN PEACE PACT

Vienna.—The book of revelations regarding the war written by Count Czernin, former Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, is complete and has come into the possession of a Vienna political personality who briefly and pithily sketches what the Count writes. It presents in detail one section of the war, says the writer, and throws light on dark episodes by official documents archives and letters. Czernin publishes astonishing writing of the one-time German Chancellor, confidential messages from ambassadors and ministers, protocols about government meetings—in short, facts and proofs.

The Count, however, says the writer, tries above all to prove that he never had any blame or guilt and that he was always right and saw what was coming. In two important points Czernin is able to prove completely that he was a good prophet, for in 1916 he was the only Austrian diplomat who predicted the Roumanian war and, in 1917 the breakdown and the revolution. The writer continues:

"The submarine warfare and President Wilson form two separate chapters. The struggles of Czernin against the U-boat warfare are shown from the reports and protocols which are reproduced. Germany, however would not take counsel, and insisted upon using this method. Czernin discusses the idea of separating Austria from Germany but is convinced this would have brought no advantage.

"Should America come into the war against Germany, Austria-Hungary would be automatically drawn in, for Austro-Hungarian artillery was already at the west front, Czernin says.

"Full of gripping interest," the writer adds, "is the chapter about Wilson. Czernin considers Wilson unquestionably honorable, but he questioned from the first whether Wilson's theories would prevent the carrying out of London's ideas. Czernin says he made efforts to determine whether Wilson's programme of the Italian conquests would be the deciding factor in the peace discussion, but right in the middle of his negotiations he was relieved from office, he says. His suspicion of the fourteen points was justified At Versailles, he declares, the terms of the London conference triumphed, not the theories of Wilson.

"Count Czernin says of the future: 'Versailles is not the end of the war; it is only a phase of it. The war will continue, even if in altered form. I believe that coming generations will not call the great drama that ruled the world for five years the world war, but the world revolution, and will know that the world revolution only began with the war. "'Neither Versailles nor St. Germaine will create any lasting work. In this peace there lie the germs of death. The cramps that twist Europe are not decreasing. Like the great earthquake, the underground rumble continues. But other generations will arise and will reconstruct what war and revolution have destroyed. Each winter is followed by spring, and the enternal law will prevail, that resurrection follows death.'"

ALSACE SOLID FOR FRANCE

Every Deputy From Reclaimed Provinces is Pledged.

Strausbourg, Alsace-Lorraine, Nov. 10. (delayed)—"All the Deputies that Alsace-Lorraine will send to Paris after the election will be French, men who have proclaimed their unalterable devotion to France," said Abbe Wetterle to the correspondent when asked to day for his opinion as to the result of the impending election in the regained provinces.

"Not one candidate has been found who has dared go before the people as a protester for even as a neutralist," said Abbe Wetterle. "The population would not have supported but would have stoned any renegade. Candidates on all lists have the word France written alongside their names. This will be the answer to the Germans who assert there was no French sentiment in Alsace. It will be plebiscite for France."

The eligible voters in Alsace-Lorraine consist of two classes, the first bearing cards, composed of Frenchmen or French descendants of pure Frenche extraction, and forming about 60 per cent. of the population. In the second class are children born of mixed parentage, and in this class only the sons of Frenchmen who married German women may vote, the privilege being denied to sons of German fathers who married Alsatian women. About 10 per cent. of the population is eligible to vote under the second classification. Thus 70 per cent of the population will vote.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

NOBODY CAN TELL WHEN YOU DARKEN GRAY, FADED HAIR WITH SAGE TEA.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

HORSE FELL ON WET PAVEMENT

The danger of paved streets in wet weather was clearly shown this morning on Aylmer street, near the corner of Charlotte street. A farmer was driving along with a team of horses when one of them slipped and fell across the tongue. It showed no signs of being cut, due no doubt to the other horse remaining perfectly quiet while the one that fell was unhitched.

LICENSE BOARD IS WAITING, WATCHING

WILL BE GOVERNED BY OTTAWA ACTION RE-LIQUOR IMPORTATIONS

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Out of the maze of conflicting opinions concerning the prohibition situation as it stands at present in Ontario and Canada the certainty appears to be emerging that an inter regnum must occur between the expiration of wartime restrictions and the taking of a plebiscite as provided for in the bill ratified by the Senate yesterday. Authorities on constitutional law are fairly unanimous that the order-in-Council creating Federal prohibition expires immediately upon the official proclamation of peace with the world. One year after the actual termination of hostilities, however, finds the consummation of world peace still a more or less remote possibility. The Ontario License Commission are either unable or unwilling to throw any light on the situation. "We will be governed by the decision reached at Ottawa as to when the order-in-Council expires," Chairman J. D. Flavelle said. He declined to express an opinion whether the order would be nullified immediately upon proclamation of peace.

Asked whether the commission would make a test case if liquor were imported into Ontario following the proclamation, Mr. Flavelle stated that this was a question for the Attorney-General to decide.

"We are prepared to do our share," he said. The commission are of the opinion that Montreal liquor firms are within their rights in receiving orders for liquor shipments to Ontario, following the proclamation of peace. Even if such orders are placed through agents in Ontario they state, there is no violation of the law. The commission have no positive knowledge that vendors are being placed, although reports to this effect are current.

CANADA'S WETS WILL ORGANIZE

BIG CONFERENCE IN TORONTO IN DECEMBER TO DEFEAT PROHIBITION

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Some six hundred delegates from all parts of the Dominion will attend a conference of the Citizens' Liberty League to be held in Toronto the first week in December.

"We are organizing a campaign to defeat the plebiscite for the prevention of manufacture and importation of liquor in Ontario," stated Secretary Carruthers.

Rev. Ben Spence, secretary of the Dominion Alliance, stated that he is not satisfied that strong drink is completely eradicated from Ontario for beverage purposes. He must read the text of the bill passed by the Senate yesterday.

All Women Not Dry.

"All of the women did not vote for prohibition by any means," he said. Many of them did not vote at all. Prohibition was passed by 3 to 1. If you take it that all the women voted dry and then compare the results you will find that the men gave a majority against drink. Yes, the men would have given the same results."

Dr. Grant, secretary of the Referendum Committee, also said that the result would be the same. "In the cities there would have been a good majority of wets on the fourth question, but the drys would have passed it in the province," he said. "The first three questions would have been won by the drys everywhere if the women had not voted."

As soon as Mr. Dury's Government is in position to do so, the plebiscite will be placed before the province to vote for or against manufacture and importation.

This was the last meeting of the season, and the board will be called by the executive for the first meeting in 1920.

The janitor of the Bank of Montreal chambers, where the board meets, was voted a grant of $5.

The president and secretary were authorized to arrange for the use of the board room for 1920.

A vote of thanks to the manager of the Bank of Montreal for the use of the bank's chambers was unanimously carried.

WOULD RACE IN JUNE NEXT YEAR

SIR THOMAS LIPTON TALKS OF YACHT CONTEST FOR INTERNATIONAL CUP.

New York, Nov. 11.—Sir Thomas Lipton said yesterday:

"I have asked that the first race for America's Cup be sailed on June 24 next year, because I believe that we ought to get better breezes earlier in the summer than in September—the month in which I contested—the month in which I contested for the cup before. Of course, the New York Yacht Club has the right to select the course, and I will cheerfully acquiesce in whatever the committee says, but I would certainly rather have the cup races sailed over the old Sandy Hook course than any other.

"My challenge has not yet been formally accepted, but the New York Club may have sent their acceptance to Belfast."

Shamrock, the trial yacht, will be here in March to key up Shamrock IV. in trial races.

Tyler resides in Lowell, Mass., and was expected to arrive in Chicago Sunday morning pass the holiday here and, accompanied by Seys, was to finish the last lap of the trip Monday. Tyler pitched his last game July 2.

NOW IT'S THE VETERANS.

Chatham, Nov. 12.—At a meeting of the G. W. V. A. it was decided to open up a co-operative store in Chatham, providing a sufficient number of veterans will take stock in the new venture. It was also decided to make one more appeal to the city council to refund the taxes of veterans up to $3000 of their assessment. The former application to this effect was turned down by council.

REPORTS OF NUMBER

agreed to comply with the mandate of United States District Judge A. B Anderson and late yesterday mailed an order rescinding the strike, were discussing the future policy of the organization, telegrams were received from W. B. Wilson, secretary of the U. S. Department of Labor, and Thos. T. Brewster, chairman of the operators' scale committee, by John L. Lewis, acting president of the miners, inviting the miners' representatives into a conference.

Mr. Lewis, on behalf of the mine workers, accepted the invitation of Secretary Wilson to meet the bituminous operators of the country in Washington next Friday morning at 11 o'clock, and replied to Mr. Brewster, who requested a meeting of the central competitive scale committee with the operators of the district in Washington on Monday, Nov. 17, "to negotiate a contract, to be in force upon the termination of the contract now in effect," that the miners had already accepted the invitation of Mr. Wilson.

Much Speculation.

There was much speculation last night as to how the notice of withdrawal of the strike order would be received by the miners in the fields. In some quarters it was believed the men would return almost as a whole on orders from their union heads. However, there were indications that in some districts a feeling against obeying the order to resume work existed. Delegates to the conference, who were questioned on this subject, would make no predictions.

OSGOODE HALL NOTES

FRUIT COMPANY WINS APPEAL

Before Meredith, C.J.; Riddell, J.; Latchford, J.; Middleton, J.

Russ v. Atlantic Fruit Co.—F. D. Kerr (Peterborough) for defendant. W. A. Boys, K.C., for plaintiff. Appeal by defendant from judgment of county court of Simcoe of 6th February, 1919. Action to recover $370.71 damages for goods —bananas—bought by plaintiff from defendant alleged to be damaged. At trial judgment was given plaintiff as asked with costs. Appeal allowed with costs and action dismissed without costs.

The above case is a decision of considerable importance to all shipping by railway, the court of appeal deciding that the purchaser of goods to be shipped by railway must look to the railway company for any damage sustained en route, and must accept delivery, even if the goods are a bad condition, provided they were delivered to the railway company in a proper condition, and the court further deciding that this applied to fruit and other food stuffs.

SCENE OF ACCIDENT VISITED BY JURY

INQUEST CONCERNING DEATH OF ALIAS KERTESTON BEGUN YESTERDAY.

The coroner's jury that was impanelled to inquire into the death of Alias Kerteston, who died as a result of an accident at the Quaker Oats plant Monday last, held its primary hearing yesterday afternoon at three o'clock. The jurymen visited the scene of the accident, after which they adjourned until next Wednesday.

The jury is composed of the following men:—W. J. Maher (foreman), D. Drummond, James Metherall, Jos. Picard, G. Evans, J. E. B. Paquette, Albert Warne, W. S. Merrill, John Miller, Robert Snellgrove and D. M. Minicola.

TEMPERORY BRIDGE

The erection of the temporary bridge across the Otonabee River at the end of Simcoe street is progressing rapidly. It is thought that is will be ready for use early next week. The piles have been driven well over half the way across already and would have been practically across now only for the lowering of the water in the river.

$400,000,000 MARK FOR DOMIN. PASSED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Victory Loan totals at noon were: Ontario, $219,224,050; the Dominion, $392,212,768, but as this does not include Monday and Tuesday's totals from five other Provinces, it is certain that the four hundred million mark has been passed.

TREATY TANGLE WITH PRESIDENT

THREE COURSES OPEN TO WILSON IN EVENT OF DEADLOCK IN SENATE

Washington, Nov. 9.—President Wilson soon will have to make a great decision. The ultimate fate of the Peace Treaty will be decided by him, not by the Senate. This appears to be clear from the developments of the past week.

A Senate deadlock on the treaty now seems to be inevitable. The general expectation is that the Lodge resolution of ratification with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's reservations will be defeated. When it is voted down, under the ruling of Vice President Marshall that the treaty will still be before the Senate for action. Senator Hitchcock will have no opportunity to present his resolution of ratification with interpretative reservations designed to gain the support of the Republican group of mild reservationists. He will have this opportunity unless the Republican majority should conclude to overrule the [illegible] which could be done by a majority vote. If this extreme action were taken by the majority, the vote against the Lodge resolution of ratification would stand as a final rejection of the treaty.

None believes the majority will overrule the decision of the vice president. In the first place, it is doubtful if the votes, of all of the Republicans could be held for that purpose. In the second place, even if they could, it is doubted whether Senator Lodge would be willing to take the responsibility by killing the treaty in that way.

The prospect appears to be that the Lodge resolution of ratification will be defeated, that the Hitchcock resolution of ratification will be defeated and that a resolution of ratification of the treaty as presented to the Senate by the President also will be defeated.

This is the situation Minority Leader Hitchcock thinks certain to arise. The stage of compromise will then be reached, Senator Hitchcock said.

Unless the present temper of the Republican majority changes, it will offer no compromise. It will, in effect, say to the President that if he wants the treaty he can have it upon the terms the Senate majority offers, and that if he does not want it on those terms he can't have it at all.

The Republicans would then claim that failure of the treaty was due to the refusal of the Democrats to support the reservations presented by the majority of the Senate.

The situation outlined being that which generally is expected to arise. The interesting question is what will President Wilson do when it does arise? Three courses of action are open to him:

First.—He could instruct the Senate minority to accept the terms of the Lodge reservations. The treaty would then be ratified.

Second.—He could allow the Senate deadlock to remain unbroken and thereby permit the treaty to fail, putting up to the Republican Congress the responsibility of declaring the war with Germany at an end by concurrent resolution and making it necessary to have a new separate peace with Germany negotiated by the United States.

Third.—He could send a message to the Senate stating, that as the Senate and the Executive were unable to agree upon a form of ratification of the treaty, the decision on the treaty should be left to the people of the United States through a referendum vote.

Only Three Days More

Saturday, November 15, is the closing day of the Victory Loan campaign. There are still many Canadians who have neglected to become possessors of Victory Bonds.

They are grateful for Victory, which crowned the valiant efforts of Canadian arms. They have shared in the good times which have been the good fortune of Canadians in the period following the war. They wish prosperity to continue; but they have omitted to do their part in insuring that there will be jobs and prosperity for all in days to come.

They should not let another day pass—or another hour—without discharging their debt to the soldiers who died that they might live; to the warriors who are being restored to civil life.

Let the slogan of the last days of the campaign be "Clean up the war job once for all."

The most you can scrape together is the least you can afford to subscribe to the Victory Loan.

MAJ.-GENERAL WILLIAMS

the handsome certificate to the next of kin of those that had fallen in the great cause.

Chairman's Address

In opening the meeting, Mr. J. J. Turener, president of the Board of Trade, spoke of the way in 1914 Germany had violated her treaty, regarded it as a scrap of paper, and had invaded and devastated Belgium. And then he went on to speak of the way in which the British Empire came to the tid of the little nation and sent messages to the colonies to join her in the gigantic struggle. And in the end, the colonies, united with the mother country, had fought and fought successfully the forces that stood for the principle "Might is Right."

And the war memorial committee it expedient to present these certifiof the Board of Trade had deemed cates to commenmorate and perpetuate the memory of those that had fallen.

Mayor Duncan

Mayor Duncan made a brief speech in which he called attention to the wonderful sacrifices the sons and relatives of those present at the meeting had made in the defence of this country. He spoke of the undying memory of the heroic deeds of the honored dead that will ever be remembered with gratitude and pride.

Dr. F. E. Mallott.

Mr. F. E. Mallott, on behalf of the Ministerial Association of the city paid tribute to the memory of those who had laid down their lives for us. We were becoming materialistic and growing proud of our material wealth. Then the war came upon us and to the surprise of the rest of the world Canada gave evidence that her sons were among the best and truest, the noblest and bravest. Canada's part in the fight for freedom will never be forgotten. It is fitting that we should have memorials of all sorts to keep the memory of those who sacrificed their lives ever green and to do honor to them.

Liuet-Col. Johnston.

The next speaker on the program was Lieut.-Col Johnston. He stated that he considered it was the people who had sacrificed their loved ones who, if there was any class better that another, should be ranked among the highest.

He spoke of the sacrifice of the soldier. And when they return they are forgotten in gratuity. The gratuity of which they are often in need and of which they are always worthy. One spaker, a man who had served as an officer in the C. E. F. had stated that the soldiers were getting all that was coming to them. Colonel Johnston thought this man was honest in his opinions, but he did not realize the situation and the Colonel went on to illustrate by examples how the soldiers were not receiving just reward for their services.

He spoke of serving under Gen Williams' father and he was glad to see that the son was following in the footsteps of his father.

Music

Vocal solos rendered by Capt. M. H. Park, Mrs. G. H. King and Mr. E. Bartlett were also greatly appreciated.

SUGAR FAMINE LOOMS IN SIGHT

ONLY HALF OF THE BEET CROP HAS YET BEEN HARVESTED

Sugar is again scarce, declares the Toronto Telegram. Numbers of small groceries are "out." The local representative of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Company says he has had no sugar for weeks and that the lack of raw material is being felt. The Lantic Sugar Refineries representative said the situation was critical, but he expected a small shipment this week.

Manager Edwards, of the Dominion Sugar Refinery, said: "It is at this time of the year that the cane refineries expect us to help out with sugar beets, but this year, owing to the wet weather, more than half of the beet crop has not been harvested. Farmers are unable to pull the beets while the wet weather lasts."

The wholesale confectioners are worried. At the Willard chocolate factory it was stated that the situation had never been so serious, while at Robertson Bros. it was said that "unless something happens within the week, several confectioners will be obliged to shut down business entirely. The amount of sugar we have in stock is comparatively only a drop in the bucket to what we require."

MAJ.-GEN. WILLIAMS ADDRESSES THE MEMBERS OF COURT STANLEY A. O. F.

Expresses His Appreciation of the Work of the Order Banquet to Welcome Returned Men Back to Civilian Life—Made an Annual Event.

On account of the spirit of good fellowship and fraternity, and the good time enjoyed by the members of Court Stanley A. O. F. at their banquet last night it was unanimously decided amid enthusiasm, to make the banquet an annual affair.

Maj-General Williams Present

Maj-General Williams arrived rather late on account of his meeting with th Veterans earlier in the evening, and, although it was the seventh time he has been called on for a speech in the last two days he cheerfully set about his task.

He felt delighted to know that Court Stanley were honoring their returned fellow comrades by providing this entertainment for them. He spoke of belonging to the order once himself. (Applause.) Before leaving for the Boer War he belonged to a Winnipeg order but on his return from there had been moving about too much to be joined up with any court.

He spoke of the wonderful work the Ancient Order of Foresters had done. A member, no matter if he be a thousand miles away, always feels that he has friends upon whom to rely in time of trouble. This is a very comforting feeling and it is what a man should feel. Every typical man should belong to some order.

The General said he was always delighted to visit Peterborough. Although he is a native of Port Hope, and he had often been kidded at Peterborough's rapid growth beside Port Hope's lack of it, he took in all in a kindly spirit and greatly enjoyed seeing Peterborough prosper through the enthusiasm of its citizens.

He told of attending school in Lakefield 39 years ago and of the happy feelings he had yesterday as he was driven to his old home. The place where he was punished for mischief and the scenes of his boyhood games.

"It is with something of the same spirit, we comrades return to you" he said.

Canada's Noble Part

Canada has played a noble part in the war. In 1914 we did not altogether realize what we were fighting for but it was brought to us by degrees. The Canadians, who first fell into the dreadful clutches of the poisoning gas, knew full well what they were fighting for. And the magnificent work of the Canadian soldiers is known and appreciated throughout the world. He spoke of the presenting of the memorial certificates the previous day to the next of kin of those that had fallen as a very touching incident. "Anything we Canadians suffered, we would do it again for the cause. That's the way I feel and I know everyone of my comrades feel the same," explained the General enthusiastically.

Reorganizing Units

He spoke of the unrest, the social unrest throughout the world. But Canada is suffering less from such unrest than other parts of the world. She is absolutely safe in the hands of such men as the members of Court Stanley.

He stated that he was travelling around endeavoring to reorganize the militia units. We do not want militarism. We have seen what militarism has done and how it has fallen. How right has triumphed over might. But we have seen and learned and we must be prepared.

In thanking the court for inviting him to their banquet, he declared his heart was always with the returned men. It was his duty and his privilege to do anything, no matter how trivial, to further their interests.

Chairman's Remarks.

After the toast to the King had been proposed and drunk, Bro. G. R Record, the chairman, made a short speech in which he welcomed the returned members to this, the thirtieth

VETERANS BAND FOR HOP MUSIC; HOT DOGS FOR REFRESHMENTS

Victory Loan Dance Makes a Big Hit and Crowds Will be There.

Once again Peterborough did it. Besides reaching the million mark in Victory Loan subscriptions yesterday the city canvassers had $74,500 to spare at the end of the day's toil. The prospects appear to be that the city will double its objective by Saturday night. It's a long way to go after the three weeks' job, but it's not too big a job. Peterborough has a good chance of being able to make the best showing in percentage in the province, and the feat is worth striving for.

Your Last Chance.

The Victory Loan of 1919 will be the last. That is certain. It will be the last opportunity for the people to lend their money at 5½% with the Dominion of Canada as security, and such being the case it would appear that the time to act is the present moment. Monday next will be too late.

The Loan Hop."

The big Loan "hop" being arranged for tomorrow night will be another record breaker. The idea has caught on fine. Everybody wants to help, and the committee in charge of the affair are having a hard time to please all. A request has come in for the privilege of selling "hot dogs." Imagine stepping the light fantastic to the music of the Veterans' band with a weiner and bun for refreshments.

Lots of Hydro.

To add brilliance to the scene an effort will be made to flood Simcoe street with hydro electric until it looks like a daylight-saving event. The floor will be put in first-class condition, and other details are being worked out with the sole object of providing Peterborough folks with a big night's fun. The Victory Loan organization appreciate the manner in which the citizens have subscribed to the Loan, and it's their treat tomorrow night. Let's go.

Eight-Weeks-Old Buyer.

This morning's mail brought the following letter and application to headquarters:

Hall's Bridge, Nov. 11.

This application is from John Maxwell Shearer. He is a babe eight weeks old, and his mother signed for him. I rather think he will be the youngest applicant on my list.

Signed. ROBT. SHAW.

No wonder Mr. Shaw has his Prince of Wales flag and two crests with another sure one for today.

NO COMPROMISE BY BRITAIN OR UNITED STATES WITH BOLSHEVIKI OUTLAWS

Such is Declaration Made by Both Premier Lloyd George and State Apartments of America---International Conference to Discuss Problems of Russia---Dangers, However in Public Debate.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 13.—Premier Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons today that no person at any time on his behalf or with his knowledge had interviewed Bolshevik representatives in order to learn whether negotiations for peace might be opened.

International Conference.

The Premier announced that it was proposed to call at an early rate an international conference, at which the problem of Russia might be discussed.

Situation Delicate.

The Prime Minister offered to give the House an opportunity on Monday next to discuss the Russian situation but he pointed out the dangers of a public debate on such a delicate subject. Meanwhile he assured the members that the Government would not inaugurate a new policy or burden the country with any fresh commitments.

Bolshevik Outlaws.

Washington, Nov. 13 —There is to be no compromise with the Bolshevik Government in Russia by the United States, and no movement is contemplated which could be considered as offering to confer with the Bolshevik element in that country, it was learned today at the State Department. This country's attitude is the same now as it was last year, when Secretary of State Lansing appealed to the civilized nations of the world to declare Bolshevik outlaws.

W.E. RANEY, PROHIBITIONIST, WILL BE ATTORNEY-GENERAL OF ONT.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 13.—W. E. Raney, K.C., well-known prohibitionist and social reform lawyer, has been offered and has accepted the post of Attorney-General in the Drury U.F. O.-Labor Provincial Government. This announcement was made today shortly after W. F. Nickle, K.C., had declined position.

Nickle Declined.

Personal circumstances, which cannot at present be adjusted, caused W. F. Nickle, K.C., of Kingston, to decline the Attorney-Generalship when offered to him this morning by Premier-designate E. C. Drury.

Personal Reasons.

Mr. Nickle, in an interview stated that Mr. Drury had asked him to accept the portfolio. "I gave it careful consideration from every angle," he said, "but personal circumstances that I cannot at present adjust forced me to decline his offer."

Good Wishes for Premier.

He went on to say that he had been much impressed with the evident desire of Mr. Drury to promote efficiency and economy in the new government and to advance the interests of the people. He said he had nothing but sympathy and good wishes for the new Premier.

MAY FIND SEAT AT HOME

Kingston, Nov. 13.—It is stated that in the event of W. F. Nickle accepting the post of Attorney-General in the Drury Cabinet he might secure the Kingston seat by the retirement of Hon. A. E. Ross, who would be quite willing to retire from politics if he could aid his closest friend. Hon. Mr. Ross was elected by acclamation.

RURAL ROUTERS TO STRIKE

Mail Carriers in East Insist on Greater Salary.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Nov. 13. —Austin McInnis of the Rural Mail Carriers' Union of Canada announced yesterday that the rural mail carriers in the Maritime Provinces would go on strike on Nov. 22. They are demanding a fixed salary according to mileage, as in the United States, instead of the jobs being given by the postoffice to the lowest tender, as at present. They say that the Postal Department ignored their request, hence the coming strike.

MOONSHINE WHISKEY MEANS SURE DEATH

DETROIT CORONER ISSUES WARNING TO MEN WHO INSIST ON SUBSTITUTE

Detroit, Mich. Nov 13.— Alarmed by the increasing number of deaths due to bootleg liquor, Coroner J. W Rothacher issued a warning against homemade and other substitutes.

Raisin whiskey is a brother of deadly wood alcohol, the Coroner said, while he listed either whiskey, juniper gin, Jamaica ginger, hair tonics, "drops" and extracts of various kinds under the same head.

Since the first of the year there have been sixteen deaths, according to Wayne County morgue records, due directly to these preparations. In addition, there have been numerous cases of paralysis, insanity and blindness due to liquor substitutes.

As a safety measure, Dr. Rothacher advises avoidance of all this "erstaz." Unless the present craze subsides, the Coroner believes there will be many more victims.

Six of the sixteen victims are listed as having died either of acute or chronic alcoholism. Most of these died through the product of amateur distillers.

The latest victim is John R. Ash, a fifty-year-old street railway employee. He was found sitting against a tree, a smile on his face and a partly-emptied bottle of raisin whiskey by his side.

With regular whiskey at $15 a quart, demand for raisin whiskey has increased to such an extent that there practically is a raisin famine in Detroit. Despite efforts of Government operatives the various stills are turning this out in great quantities, and peddlers are disposing of it at $5 a quart.

Paris, Nov. 13.—The Supreme Council today discussed the note to be sent to Roumania in response to Roumania's recent note.

The Allied note was not completed today, but it will be put into shape very shortly, and forwarded to Bucharest within two days.

CANADIAN PACKING COMPANY'S EMPLOYES WIN HONOR BANNER

Mr. Gordon Matthews Also Gives Large Flag at His Own Expense---A Stirring Scene on the Roof of Big Packing House.

At a quarter to twelve this morning the employes of the Canadian Packing Company, Limited, successors to Matthews-Blackwell Limited, were presented with a Prince of Wales banner in honor of having gone away over the top of their Victory Loan objective.

The presentation was made by Mr. Joseph Wearing on behalf of the Victory Loan committee, and took place on the roof of the big local packing house, where the employes, girls and men had assembled for the occasion.

Mr. Wearing explained that the banner, with its additional crest, represented that 12½ per cent of the company's annual pay roll had been subscribed by the employes to the Loan, and that the Canadian Packing Co Ltd had gone 25 per cent. in excess of the amount expected from the establishment. "But then," added Mr Wearing, "the Canadian Packing Co always wins a banner anyway, and has never failed to go over the top of its objective."—(Cheers.)

Telegram of Appreciation.

Mr. Gordon Matthews, manager of the local branch of the Canadian Packing Co., Limited, in a few well-chosen words, expressed his appreciation of the honor brought to the company by the generous purchase of Victory Bonds by the employes. He here read the following telegram from Mr. T. F. Matthews of Toronto:

"Toronto, Nov. 13, 1919.

"Mr. Gordon Matthews,

"Peterborough:

"Am pleased indeed to know that the employes of the Peterborough plant are keeping up their reputation. It is a great honr to hold the Prince of Wales flag coupled with the crest in this present Victory Loan campaign. Please express to the employes my deep appreciation of their efforts.

"T. F. MATTHEWS."

Mr. Harold Fry, county organizer, followed with well-deserved congratulations and appreciation of a strong united effort in the interest of the Dominion.

A Flag Also.

Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, ex-M.L.A., at this juncture uncovered a large honor flag similar to that floating from the city hall, which, in the name of Mr. Gordon Matthews, he presented to the employes. This honor flag is Mr. Gordon Matthews' own personal tribute to the successful efforts of his employes. Mr. Gillespie, in a brief and appropriate manner expressed his warm-hearted appreciation of the fact that the Canadian Packing Co employes always did their duty, either in peace or in war.

The flag was hoisted to the top of the flag staff by Mr. Gordon Matthews.

Three cheers were given for the Canadian Packing Company Limited and for Mr. Gordon Matthews.

GREAT WAR VETERANS ENTERTAIN GENERAL WILLIAMS AT SMOKER

Large Gathering of the Local Branch at Their Club House

Members of the local branch of the Great War Veterans Association tendered a complimentary reception and smoking concert last night to Major-General Victor Williams G. O. C. Military District No. 3, at their club rooms on Murray street. A splendid musical program was provided, as well as speeches by several local men.

At 7:30 o'clock the Veterans formed up at their headquarters, and, headed by their band, marched to the Empress Hotel, where the General was picked up and escorted to the club rooms.

Upon the platform, besides the president, Comrade Harvey Staunton, were Col. Johnston, His Honor Judge Huycke Major C. H. Ackerman, General Williams, Major McManus, and Secretary S. Whatley. The chairman's remarks were very brief, he confining himself to welcoming all the members and inviting them to be free and easy and to feel at home. He then called upon Col. T. J. Johnston to address the assemblage. The Colonel in a brief speech assured the members of the G. W. V. A. that he thoroughly enjoyed himself at every meeting of the association. He declared that all were comrades now, no matter what difference in rank there had been in the army, and asked all to encourage this friendly relation.

His Honor Judge Huycke was the next speaker, and in his characteristically witty manner eulogized the G. W. V. A., the band and Major-General Williams. He spoke of the monument erected in Port Hope to the memory of Col. Arthur Williams, the father of the General, and declared that the name Williams was one to conjure with. The speaker dwelt for a few minutes on the recent war, comparing it to the fight of the Crusaders of the olden days, and he felt sure that the same white Christ of the Crusaders was the captain of the Allied armies in this last war.

General Williams' Speech.

General Williams was then introduced by the chairman, and upon rising was greeted by three rousing cheers. He declared that he had

CO-OPERATIVE STORES.

IN ENGLAND and many ther countries co-operative stores have been a success. We believe the idea originated in London, England, with what was known as the Army and Navy Stores, where almost anything required by the housekeeper could be bought at a very small margin on cost. But that institution was exclusive to families the members of which were connected with either the army or the navy. The name itself implies this. This army and navy co-operative concern was a huge success thirty-odd years ago, and is now for all we know to the contrary.

In this connection an American exchange says that in the United States experiments with co-operative stores have been in almost all instances deplorable failures, and where they have not been their success has been qualified. The difficulty in most instances has been a lack of scientific management on the one hand and a lack of real co-operation on the other. There has been no understanding of the cost of doing business, and it has been impossible to compete with stores where much labor was performed by the owner or his family. The chain stores have offered competition that could not be met, for these stores have become highly organized in their management, while the science of retailing has been developed from every angle.

Among American municipal employes co-operative stores have been established; but they have been allowed to operate on city property, rent free and tax free, and practically labor free. Overhead has been nominal and the cost of doing business reduced to a minimum. Such stores, of course, were not legitimate experiments. Within certain localities, under certain conditions, they ought to succeed, but they must be away from competition and must be organized on a scientific basis. The British stores are so organized, and any attempt to imitate them must include a study not only of the manner in which they are run, but of the circumstances surrounding the organization of each particular store.

British stores are not only organized on the basis of co-operative ownership by their customers, but also of co-operation among themselves. Hence their buying organization is highly developed and they are able to buy goods by the shipload. The probability is that the original stores of the system met with many difficulties and there were many failures before they got under way. Experiments on this side are constantly being made but they will never succeed without the loyal co-operation of their own people, which has not always been in evidence, and actual scientific management.

WHY ANOTHER VOTE?

THE ONTARIO Temperance Act, after being in operation for three years, was submitted to a vote of the people and overwhelmingly endorsed. The new Government is just as emphaticaly committed to the cause of prohibition. The enforcement of the Act is in sympathetic hands. If it is found that amendments are needed, these amendments will be added. Why, then should it be necessary to take another vote so soon after the recent referendum to ascertain the real sentiments of the people on the temperance issue? It is a safe conclusion that the majority who upheld the Act are opposed to the liquor traffic in any form, whether by importation or otherwise under Government control whether that traffic be carried on in bar-room or in shop. The four questions on the referendum ballot were sufficient to clear up anything like doubt on every issue raised.

If a plebiscite is taken on the question of importation and manufacture, it will be impossible to induce the electors to turn out to vote in the same strength as they displayed on October 20 last. In any case, the Province will be plunged into another turmoil of conflicting effort the prohibitionists arrayed on one side and the members of the Liberty League on the other. Such unrest never yet has, and never will make for peace and progress in a community.

One of the fallacies in Canadian government appears to be the idea that the best way to save the majority of the people from temptation is to place so high a price upon it that only the very wealthy can indulge. In order to prevent divorce from becoming too common, it has been held at such a price as to be beyond the financial means even of the moderately prosperous. Only the rich can avail themselves of the privilege. If divorce is an evil, it should be regarded as such for all sorts and conditions of men. Any decrees to the contrary is class legislation of the rankest variety.

If the use of liquor as a beverage is a public menace there should be no discrimination as between rich and poor when it comes to an attempt to legislate that evil out of existence. Any law that makes liquor harder to obtain for personal use rather intensifies the danger than otherwise, there being so many people who will have it at any cost, at any financial sacrifice, which unfortunately, involves their helpless children as well as the direct victims. Why send thousands of dollars every week to Quebec to help fill the coffers of the brewers, the distillers, the retailers and the express companies? Why should one province be permitted to disseminate something that the majority of the voters in another have declared against? Why should Ontario be made the dumping ground for vast supplies of liquor that have been declared outlawed by Federal enactment in the United States. If the people of Ontario are to be worried to the point of ennui by being called upon at brief intervals for an expression of opinion on this issue, who need wonder if the cause of prohibition is eventually allowed to lapse through sheer indifference on the part of those who are now its most ardent supporters? Why these frequent plebiscites on a question so emphatically disposed of for the fourth time in Ontario? What other statute is made the subject of endless agitation, kept up by the minority who hope for its eventual repeal?

"IF YE BREAK FAITH."

THE HEROIC MEN who lost their lives on the battlefields of Europe and who now sleep under the white crosses and the poppies in Flanders, discharged their last duty to the limit. They have given the world a shining example of unselfish sacrifice, of strenuous task faithfully performed. They sleep now, but from every martyred hero's grave comes that message for the living. The dead cannot sleep in peace unless the cause which they gave their lives to support is maintained by those who are left behind. Peace must be made permanent, else the men who died in the tempest of battle have sacrificed in vain.

The dead and what they did for humanity have not been forgotten. The grief over the losses of the best in Canadian manhood has made the whole country kin. This was manifest only the other day when crowds gathered at the G. W. V. A. Hall to pay tribute to the memory of the fallen. We are told that the war was fought to make the world safe for democracy. A striking example of this national ideal was given at the ceremonies when the next-of-kin of the fallen were presented with memorial certificates, a public movement that reflects credit on the members of the Board of Trade who originated it.

There was nothing of class distinction in the touching rites. Even military caste was broken down. Privates and officers, men who stood side by side, who faced the same dangers during the dark years of war, were on the same footing. The commander of the district mingled with the men who fought in the ranks, not as a general, but as a comrade. He clasped the hands of the privates in fellowship, and the best of good feeling prevailed. Men who have suffered have been disciplined as the untried never have. Sacrifice creates a refinement of feeling to which those who escape such trials must always remain strangers.

But it is not sufficient to extend sympathy to the friends of the fallen. The trust the dead leave to posterity must be carried out to the full. Any sacrifice which this work may involve will be trifling compared to that which the dead endured before they found peace and rest on the shell-torn battlefields. The living must never cease to strive for the attainment of the ideals which inspired the fallen to the very end.

A PLEA FOR UNITY.

(Farmers' Sun.)

THE FRENCH-CANADIANS stand in a position entirely different from that of [illegible] no European sympathies to draw them away from Canada. Even France has a much smaller place in their affections than Quebec. During the war they were actually reproached for their lack of sympathy for old France, while Germans were reproached for the very opposite reason, their undue sympathy with Germany. French-Canadians are Canadians first, last and always. They need no education in Canadianism.

Some blamed the French-Canadian attitude during the war as narrow and selfish, and isolated from the great currents of world thought. But now that the war is over, this intense concentration upon Canada is a source of national strength. It would not be to our advantage that French-Candians should be thinking as much of old France as of Canda. Our obligation to Europe is now discharged, and, while we ought to look with sympathy on Europe, and do all we can to help her out of her troubles, our chief work lies here, where we have a small population and a huge country to develop, which may become greater than either France or Germany. By concentrating on this work we help not only ourselves but the world. We have taken enough of the troubles of the old world on our shouldrs. Do not let us perpetuate in Canada the feuds which have almost laid Europe in ruins.

AUSTRIAN AMBASSADOR.

(London Daily Chronicle.)

If the news from Paris is correct, and Baron Slatin is to be the Austrian ambassador in London, it will be a welcome and graceful appointment, for as Slatin Pasha he is known and liked as a comrade in arms. He is, in fact, a British major-general, a K.C.M.G., and an M.V.O. An Austrian officer, he was "discovered" by Gordon, given work in the Soudan, and captured by the Mahdi, who held him as a slave in Omdurman. He escaped in time to serve as one of Kitchener's right-hand men, and in 1914 was commander-in-chief in the Soudan. Still an Austrian, he felt compelled to return to his own country when war broke out, but refused to take up arms against his old comrades and the Allies, and served in a Red Cross corps.

DIVING FOR TREASURE LOST DURING THE WAR

London, Nov. 13.—Treasure seeking got a great impetus during the war because so many vessels which were torpedoed or mined carried valuable cargoes, and there still is a determined quest for the supposedly rich treasures sunk in British waters when the Spanish Armada was scattered.

The lure of treasure hunting has won a feminine recruit. Miss M. Naylor, a handsome Scottish lass, is the first woman diver in this country. Her efforts to recover the wealth from a Spanish ship in the waters of Tobermory, West Scotland, have met with an obstacle, and she may have to go to American to consult with salvage experts. She invites, through the World, some expert opinion on how the salvage work at Tobermory can be successfully continued.

In a letter to the World she writes:

"There is a possibility that I may have to go to New York about the salvage business, as Colonel Foss, the director, has just met with a serious accident through a hydraulic jet. No machinery in England seems capable of dealing with the very tough clay which we encounter under 66 feet of water. Grabbing is no use, as it breaks up articles of great historic interest and value. The same applies to bucket dredging, while clay is too sticky for suction dredging. Some bright American might help Col. Foss to solve the problem."

Miss Naylor has a splendid physique. On her first trip under water she remained half an hour, and showed no trace of exhaustion afterward. She was cheered as she made her way through the streets of Tobermory.

During the stormy Winter weather it will not be possible to continue some of the salvage operations undertaken in British waters. Work which has been going on for six months to recover the $35,000,000 in gold bullion on the auxiliary cruiser Laurentic, sunk at the mouth of Lough Swilly early in 1917, had to be abandoned on account of heavy weather. It is reported that bullion worth $15,000,000 has been recovered. The strong room containing the bullion is at the bottom of the wreckage, and this had to be cleared away every time the divers went down, as the sea was so strong that as soon as a day's operations ceased wreckage was swept on top of the gold again.

To help in the salvage operations a remarkable photograph was taken of the Laurentic. The camera was enclosed in a water-tight iron tank tested to stand pressure 120 feet deep and fitted with a porthole glass. A diver then took it down, and electric bulbs were lowered to provide light. After an exposure of an hour and a half a remarkably fine photgraph of the wreck was obtained.

FARMER JOHN'S TALK

(By Joseph Begley.)

As that old girl I call my own
And I sat by the fire,
I'd been to town, we had our tea,
And just dismissed a buyer.
"Now, Jane," says I quite boldly,
"In town things are not the same.
We farmers are the leading lights
And referee the game.

"Our city rulers have left us ruin
And a whole lot to repair;
Our leader wants a helping hand
And expects us to be there.
Abraham Lincoln could have done much more,
But in good men he was lacking.
The American war would have not been much
If he had Drury's backing."

Then up spoke my bonnie better half
As she never spoke before;
The cat went through the window
And the dog made for the door.
"I could understand this nonse, John,
Before the town went dry
When you took in a load of wheat
And brought back a load of rye.

"You speak about the change in town
And how you should be there.
I saw some change was needed
When I was at the fair.
You are not the one to make this change
John Henry, this I know,
For you believe in knee cut skirts
And necks are not too low.

"You would be ruled by fashion plates
And followers of the fads.
A woman knows just what is real
And what is only pads.
You had better stay at home, dear
John
And I will go instead
And make it safe for poor weak man
Who cannot keep their head."

Paris, Nov. 13.—Francesco Nitti, the Italian premier, in an interview given the Rome correspondent of the Presse de Paris, the combined edition of the Paris newspapers, declared that he considered the plan for the solution of the Fiume problem drawn up by Foreign Minister Tittoni as quite moderate in character.

The premier paid trbute to the attitude of France toward Italy. He said he had received from Premier Lloyd George a pledge that a settlement of the Adriatic question, consistent with the honor of Italy and the interests of all the Allies, would be reached.

Bill Colyar brought us in our annual pawpaw today, and we have tucked it away where it will do us the most good. We know not how it may affect others, but we have managed one way or another to eat at least a pawpaw a year for the past fifty years. And we have noticed this: Every year that we have eaten a pawpaw we have lived until the following summer. It may not work that way with every one, but certainly the pawpaws have kept us alive from year to year. It is a great fruit, the pawpaw; a kind of atavistic throwback to a custard pie on its mother's side and a bullhead catfish on its father's side, carrying the aroma and consistency of the one and the bones and sins of the father. But it is the saddest fruit in the world, too. It recalls woods that are fields and streets now, times that are gone now, days that are memories and boys who are dead.

PRICES OF PORK CHOPS AND SHOES

THESE ARE CONSIDERED IN THEIR RELATION TO THAT OF HOGS AND HIDES.

"I see by the market page of this morning's paper that pork has dropped from $21 to $13.50," remarks Mr. Average Consumer, over his toast and coffee. "Why not let's have some pork chops tonight dear? They ought to be within reach of our pocketbook by now."

"Fine!" agrees Mrs. Average Consumer. "I'll get a couple of pounds. and while we're on the subject, I think I'll invest in some shoes. I see that leather has dropped 20 per cent in price. That would make $10 shoes cost only $8."

This may not be a stenographic report of the conversation which took place in thousands of American homes within the last ten days, but it's a fairly close approximation of it.

Newspapers throughout the country having harped on every angle of the cost-of-living problem, did not fail to feature the reports from Chicago and St. Paul that the price of hogs had decreased from $21 to $13.50 and in some cases even to $12.

But the publicity attained by this information was small compared to the Associated Press report that J. F. McElwain, president of the Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association, had stated at a dinner of the middle States Shoe Wholesalers' Association that leather had dropped 20 per cent and that a corresponding decrease in the price of shoes might be expected within a short time.

"Unfortunately, Mr. McElwain's subsequent denial of this statement, coupled with the announcement that what he had said was that "hides had dropped 20 per cent," and that "there is no indication of a recession in the price of shoes in the near future," did not receive nearly as much publicity as the original dispatch.

Therefore, when Mrs. A. Consumer sallied forth with the expectation of purchasing her pork chops at half price and her $10 shoes for $8, she returned with the firm impression that retailers in general, and butchers and shoe men in particular, are robbers, cheats, thieves and profiteers—not to mention being sharks, brigands bandits, thugs, sandbaggers, swindlers and even stronger terms not ordinarily found in the vocabulary of the lady.

"Would you believe it?" she demanded that night. "Henderson's not only hadn't dropped their prices on shoes, but they'd raised them! And pork chops! They're too high to even talk about. The decrease in wholesale prices must be true—I saw it in the paper!"

"Hogs" vs. "Pork"

But dear lady, did you see it in the paper?

Before considering other, and more pertinent points, let's analyze what you read.

The meat report stated that "hogs" not "pork" had dropped in price. That means the hog "on the hoof"—the entire animal. The report didn't state anything about labor or transportation or overhead charges or handling costs or any of the other factors which play such important roles in delivering pork chops to the kitchen door.

"Hogs are down," is understood by the layman—by the woman who does the buying—to mean that pork prices should instantly decrease, while in the same newspaper there is likely to appear an article stating that some labor organization has won in its strike for higher wages. The reader's reaction to both reports is the same: "Good! I'm glad to hera that!" Glad that food is going down and glad that wages are going up, entirely overlooking the fact that the latter more than offsets the former.

In the case of shoes, Mrs. Consumer read the first report of Mr. McElwain's statement and naturally took it for granted that he knew what he was talking about. Being "news" (which may be roughly refined as anything out of the ordinary), this statement was given a prominent position in the papers. The denial, which was not news, was condensed to a few lines, where it was printed at all.

What Mr. McElwain said was that hides had dropped, not leather, and certainly not shoes, as the uninformed reader might suppose.

As a matter of fact, the recession in the price of hides could not logically be reflected in the retail shoe market for at least a year, even under normal conditions.

Where the Year Goes

"Hides" and "leather" are by no means synonymous. There is a little matter of from four to six months which separate them.

Hides are the skins of animals, with the hair on. These skins must be so treated, chemically, that the hair is removed and the skin itself transformed to the tough, pliable substance commercially known as leather. In the production of some grades of leather it is possible to complete these processes in four months, but the better grades of oak-tanned leather take at least six months before they are ready for use. The leather is then sorted and put on the market through the tanner's salesrooms.

After reaching the shoe manufacturer it is again sorted and then shipped to the cutting room and thence to the fitting room. The fitted upper and the cut and fitted bottom stock go to what is known as the 'assembly room" where both the upper and bottom materials wait for the convenience of the "last" department. Then come the various stages of lasting heeling and finishing, followed by the cleaning, treeing, packing and shipping.

Right here enters the element of transportation, something over which neither the wholesaler, the jobber nor the retailer has the least control. Shipments to distant parts of the country are delayed. Consignments even to comparatively nearby point are held up—and anywhere from two to eight weeks are added to the time which must elapse before the shoes reach the shelves of the retailer.

Tabulated, therefore, the time consumed in the various processes may be divided in the following manner:

Tanning and treating ..... 6 months
Manufacture ... ... 6 months
Transportation ... . ???????
Time between "hides" and "shoes"—at least one year.

Another point to be remembered in dealing with shoes it that "hides" means "leather" (eventually), not "kid," from which the majority of women's shoes are made.

Kid leathers come virtually entirely from abroad—from South America, India and various sections of Europe. Russia supplies much of the coltskin and the various other items which enter in the manufacture of shoes come from widely separated points—goatskin from China, gambier from Philadelphia, wood oil from Michigan; lamp black and turpentine from North Carolina, damma from New Zealand, asphaland coutchone from South America, benzoin from Sumatra, benzine from Pennsylvania, mastic from Scio and sandarac from Africa—to mention only a few of the necessary ingredients, all of which are headed upward in price not down.

But the principal price-factor is labor. And it's hardly necessary to state what is happening there.

It will therefore be seen that in addition to allowing at least one year before the chearer hides can reach the public, it will also be necessary to discount some of the 20 percent saving to make up for the advance in other departments—points which the consumer almost invariably fail to take into sonsideration.

Demand Keeps Pork Up.

So much for shoes.

In the matter of pork chops, or fresh pork in general, there is no so great a difference in time between the raw material and the finished product as between the hides and the shoes, but even here it is figured in weeks, rather than days.

After the hog is killed, the parts from which hams, bacon and shoulders are usually made are put into the picking vat, where they remain from two to four months. Then follows the curing, smoking and dressing—a matter of approximately a week, after which they are delivered to the trade. One week must also be allowed for shipping from the western plant to the eastern market.

A decline in the wholesale price of hogs cannot, therefore, be reflected in the retail stores for at least three months.

Fresh pork, which includes the loins and chops, forms only 8 per cent of the total bulk of the animal, and naturally, with a high insistant demand and a limited supply, the price remains high even in the face of a decrease in the cost of the entire hog.

While the time which elapses between the purchase of the hog and the appearance of the chops upon the butcher's counter is hardly comparable to the time consumed in the preparation of cured meats, it takes fully ten days to make the trip, so that even a drop in the wholesale market at the beginnnig of November could not be felt in the retail trade until the middle of the month if the demand for the choice cuts did not operate to maintain the price.

The next time that Mr. or Mrs. Average Consumer states with an air of omniscience that the wholesale price of some product has slumped and that therefore the finished article ought to be selling at a lower figure at 9 o'clock the following morning, make certain that they understand the facts in the case. It will make for good will and save a lot of unpleasantness.

BRITAIN HAS BIG INVISIBLE EXPORTS

BUT DELAY IN IMPORTS FROM AMERICA CAUSES UNEASY SITUATION

London, Nov 13.—The American Chamber of Commerce in London, in its report for October, notes a gradual revival of British production especially of coal, and an increase of trade in British foreign market, particularly as strikes continue to cripple America's export trade.

According to a leading London bank the Chamber's report says Great Britain's "invisible export" consisting of returns from foreign investment, etc., are estimated at almost $3,000,000,000 for 1919, as compared with less than $2,000,000,000 in 1913. The adverse balance of imports over exports, the report adds, will however, result in a nestimated net adverse balance for the year of about $600,000,000, as against a favorable pre-war balance of $1,100,000,000.

The Chamber urges ready reception of credit loans in the U. S. to enable foreign countries to purchase American goods. It declares the present situation in Great Britain is uneasy, owing to the delay in the essential imports from America caused by the dock workers' strike in New York.

Not Seeking Credits.

The plan for a world union of Chambers of Commerce, creating a "business League of Nations," which the American Chamber of Commerce devised some time ago, appears to have been favorably received in England. British business circles followed closely reports of what transpired at the recent inter-trade conference at Atlantic City the Chamber declares, and the British feel their part in the conference was to align themselves with the U. S. in assisting reconstruction of European nations, rather tran to seek credits or trade assistance for themselves.

CANADIAN PACIFIC BUILDING BRANCH

CONTRACT LET FOR LINE FROM ALBERNIE TO GREAT-CENTRAL LAKE

The C. P. R. has just let the contract to the Foundation Company for the building of the extension of its railway line from Alberni to Great Central Lake. It is expected it will be completed by next July.

The proposed extension is ten and a half miles in length and from Alberni follows the Sproat River north to the confluence of the Sproat and Stamp Rivers where it branches west and runs along the south side of Great Central Lake for a few miles.

The immediate purpose of the extension is to tap the valuable timber resources in the vicinity of Great Central Lake. It is estimated that the timber traffic from Great Central Lake down to salt waetr in the Alberni Canal will pay for the line in a couple of years.

At present there is no settlement at Great Central Lake where the line will end. It is likely, however, that before long the C. P. R. will develop that area as a tourist centre.

The C. P. R. started a few weeks ago to clear the right of way for the Alberni-Great Central Lake extension. To see juts when his company can get on the contract, Bayly Hipkins, vice president and Pacific Coast Manager of the Foundation Company, and E. E. Jenkins, local manager went north to Alberni. This is the first contract on the island outside of shipbuilding that the Foundation Company has attempted although the Company undertakes many such contracts in other parts of the continent.

Richard Marpole of Vancouver British Columbia manager of the C. P. R. says he has given instructions to have it rushed through as soon as all preliminary arrangements have been completed. In speaking of the railway contract J. S. Connell, the engineer in charge of the Vancouver offices of the Foundation Company said that the extension would open up one of the finest sections of Douglas fir, both in quality and quantity, on Vancouver Island.

Preliminary work has already been started on the contract, and Mr. Connell who will be in charge of the work, says that the railway extention between Alberni and Great Central Lake will be completed and ready for operation by next July, providing of course, the necessary steel is delivered as required. Several hundred men will be employed on the job, which will be completed with Foundation dispatch

Victory Tea At George Street Church

One of the most decidedly successful social events of its class and one which will not soon be forgotten was the victory tea, which was held last night in George Street Methodist Church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. It was a merry crowd that thronged the spacious tea room and did justice to the good things which the ladies had provided in abundance. That this society have a true conception of what real hospitality means was quite apparent and also appreciated by those present, judging from the complimentary expressions which passed around the board.

After tea the guests repaired to the church where a delightful and highly interesting program was given, consisting of addresses by the local clergy and interspersed with songs and stories by that imminent soloist and entertainer, Mr. Ruthven McDonald.

Rev. G. W. Ross opened the entertainment with a doxology followed by a short prayer.

Dr. Harvey, who occupied the chair, gave an address which certainly put the audience in good humor. The church, Dr. Harvey went on to say, should be recognised as the centre of the social life in the community, that is provided that the entertainments carried on therein are of a commendable nature. The speaker also touched on different subjects in keeping with the occasion, illustrating the point in each case with a humorous anecdote which drew smiles from the audience.

Rev. A. J. Thomas, pastor of the church, addressed the gathering in a speech, which added considerably to the enjoyment of the evening. In his opening remarks Mr. Thomas stated that, having been urgently requested by the members of the Ladies' Aid to contribute to the program of the evening, he would endeavor to do his share by taking as the subject of his discourse the word "Kindness." After drawing out in glowing terms, the infinite value of this sublime trait of character, the speaker went on to [illegible] it as applied to the different kinds of people met with in every-day life. One of the most deeply interesting studies was that of the character and personality of the people we mingle with in business society and all other walks of life. Calling to memory the days of his early boyhood, the speaker said that one of his most vivid recollections was that of an apple orchard on the farm where he was born. There was a great variety of this luscious fruit in this orchard, as he remembered it. There was the Tolman Sweet, the Ben Davies, the Russet, the Maiden's Blush, the Sweet Pear and a number of others. These apples, he went on to say, always suggested strongly the temperament of the different kinds of people as met with every day. In highly amusing terms, he drew out the characteristics of each type of person as suggested by the apple. This clever and humorous address was greatly appreciated by the gathering.

Rev. B. Greatrix was the next speaker, favoring his audience with an address of marked eloquence. He spoke of the great brotherhood of mankind, of the need for sympathy, kindness and co-operation in helping one another along the road of life. The weaker sex received a glowing tribute from this speaker. He was of the opinion that Adam was not acting uprightly when he laid all the blame on Eve. Down through all the centuries woman had been the consoler, the helper, the uplifter of man, and especially during the past few years of unrest had proved herself as such. He spoke of the value of high ideals—the splendid character that can meet temptation and yet never waiver from the straight way. This beautiful and inspiring address was loudly applauded by the audience.

Rev. Mr. Chapman, of St. James' Church, was the next speaker. He considered it a great favor to be invited to speak on this occasion and gave a very interesting address on the aims, ambitions and success of life, giving one illustration in his own life since deciding for the Christian ministry. When he made the decision he was a public school teacher. On his first journey to take charge of a church he went by way of Peterborough and stopping in the city a short time visited George Street Church. On that visit he aimed to some day stand on that platform as a Christian minister. After preaching for a year he again returned to Peterborough and was ordained in George Street Church. He also spoke of another young man who went to Toronto to work in an office. In the course of his first day's work he aimed to some day be manager of that office and today he has realized that ambition.

Mr. Chapman went on to relate how the associations of George Street Church were indeed pleasant memories, Mr. Greatrix being his one [illegible] or. He also related how he had taken Jesus Christ as his one great guide, this proving that if we would all take Him as our leader and example that our aims and ambitious would be accomplished.

Those who had the privilege of hearing that gifted baritone, Mr. Ruthven McDonald, will not soon forget last evening. As an entertainer of outstanding ability and pleasing stage presence, this singer made a decided "hit" with his audience. His excellent renedition of favorite song, such as to have him recalled again and again. Possessed of a fine sense of humor he easily wins his way into the good graces of his audience. Mr. J. H. THREE SMALL BOYS STOLE 27 PIGEONS

TWO MORE RECEIVED THEM AND ALL APPEARED BEFORE MAGISTRATE DUMBLE

Five small boys were brought before Magistrate Dumble at Police Court this morning, three charged with stealing and two with receiving stolen goods, knowing they had been stolen.

The boys are alleged to have entered a pigeon coop on Edinburgh street last night about 7 o'clock and taken twenty-seven first-class pigeons. A conservative estimate of their value was placed at $60. The birds are good fliers and greatly prised by their owner. Four of them are dead and four are not yet recovered.

The case was adjourned for one week to allow the Children's Aid Society an opportunity to investigate the case.

TO FORCE PEACE IN FIVE MONTHS

OBJECT OF GERMANY'S SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN, SAYS ADMIRAL CAPELLE.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, Nov. 12— Vice-Admiral Von Capelle, former Minister of Navy was bombarded at the National Assembly Sub-Committee's investigation into the war with questions as to why the submarine campaign was not avoided and why more submarines were not built.

Forty-Five Before War

Forty-five submarines were built before the war, the Admiral told the committee, and 775 during the war of which 579 were ordered by Von Capelle during his two and one half years of office, the latter part of the war.

Tried to Force Peace

Asked whether the submarine campaign was planned with the purpose of crushing Britain or merely compelling an agreement to a usable peace, Admiral said, "we believed we could force England to a usable peace in five months."

CANADA TO FIGHT INSURANCE CLAUSE

OBJECTS TO OBLIGATORY RECIPROCAL EXTENSION OF BENEFITS TO FOREIGNERS.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington Nov. 12.—Canada is preparing a keen fight against obligatory provisions in the draft convention on unemployment now before the International Labor Conference. The clause to which exception is taken by the Canadian delegation, refers to reciprocity in unemployment insurances. It provides that states signatories of this convention, which have established systems of unemployment insurance, shall make arrangements whereby workers belonging to one such state and employed by another, shall be admitted to the benefit of such insurance, upon terms to be agreed upon between the states concerned.

Canada takes the position that there would be no obligation to extend the benefits of unemployment insurance to workers of any other country. That cause should be optional. When the draft convention came before the sub-committee on unemployment, Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor, declared that the Dominion Government could not assent to any such obligatory provisions as were proposed. There were at the present time, he said, over three hundred thousand forigners in Canada over the age of 16.

RUMANIA DEFIES ALLIED COUNCIL

REPLY TO RECENT NOTE IS EVASIVE, BUT EXTREMELY POLITE.

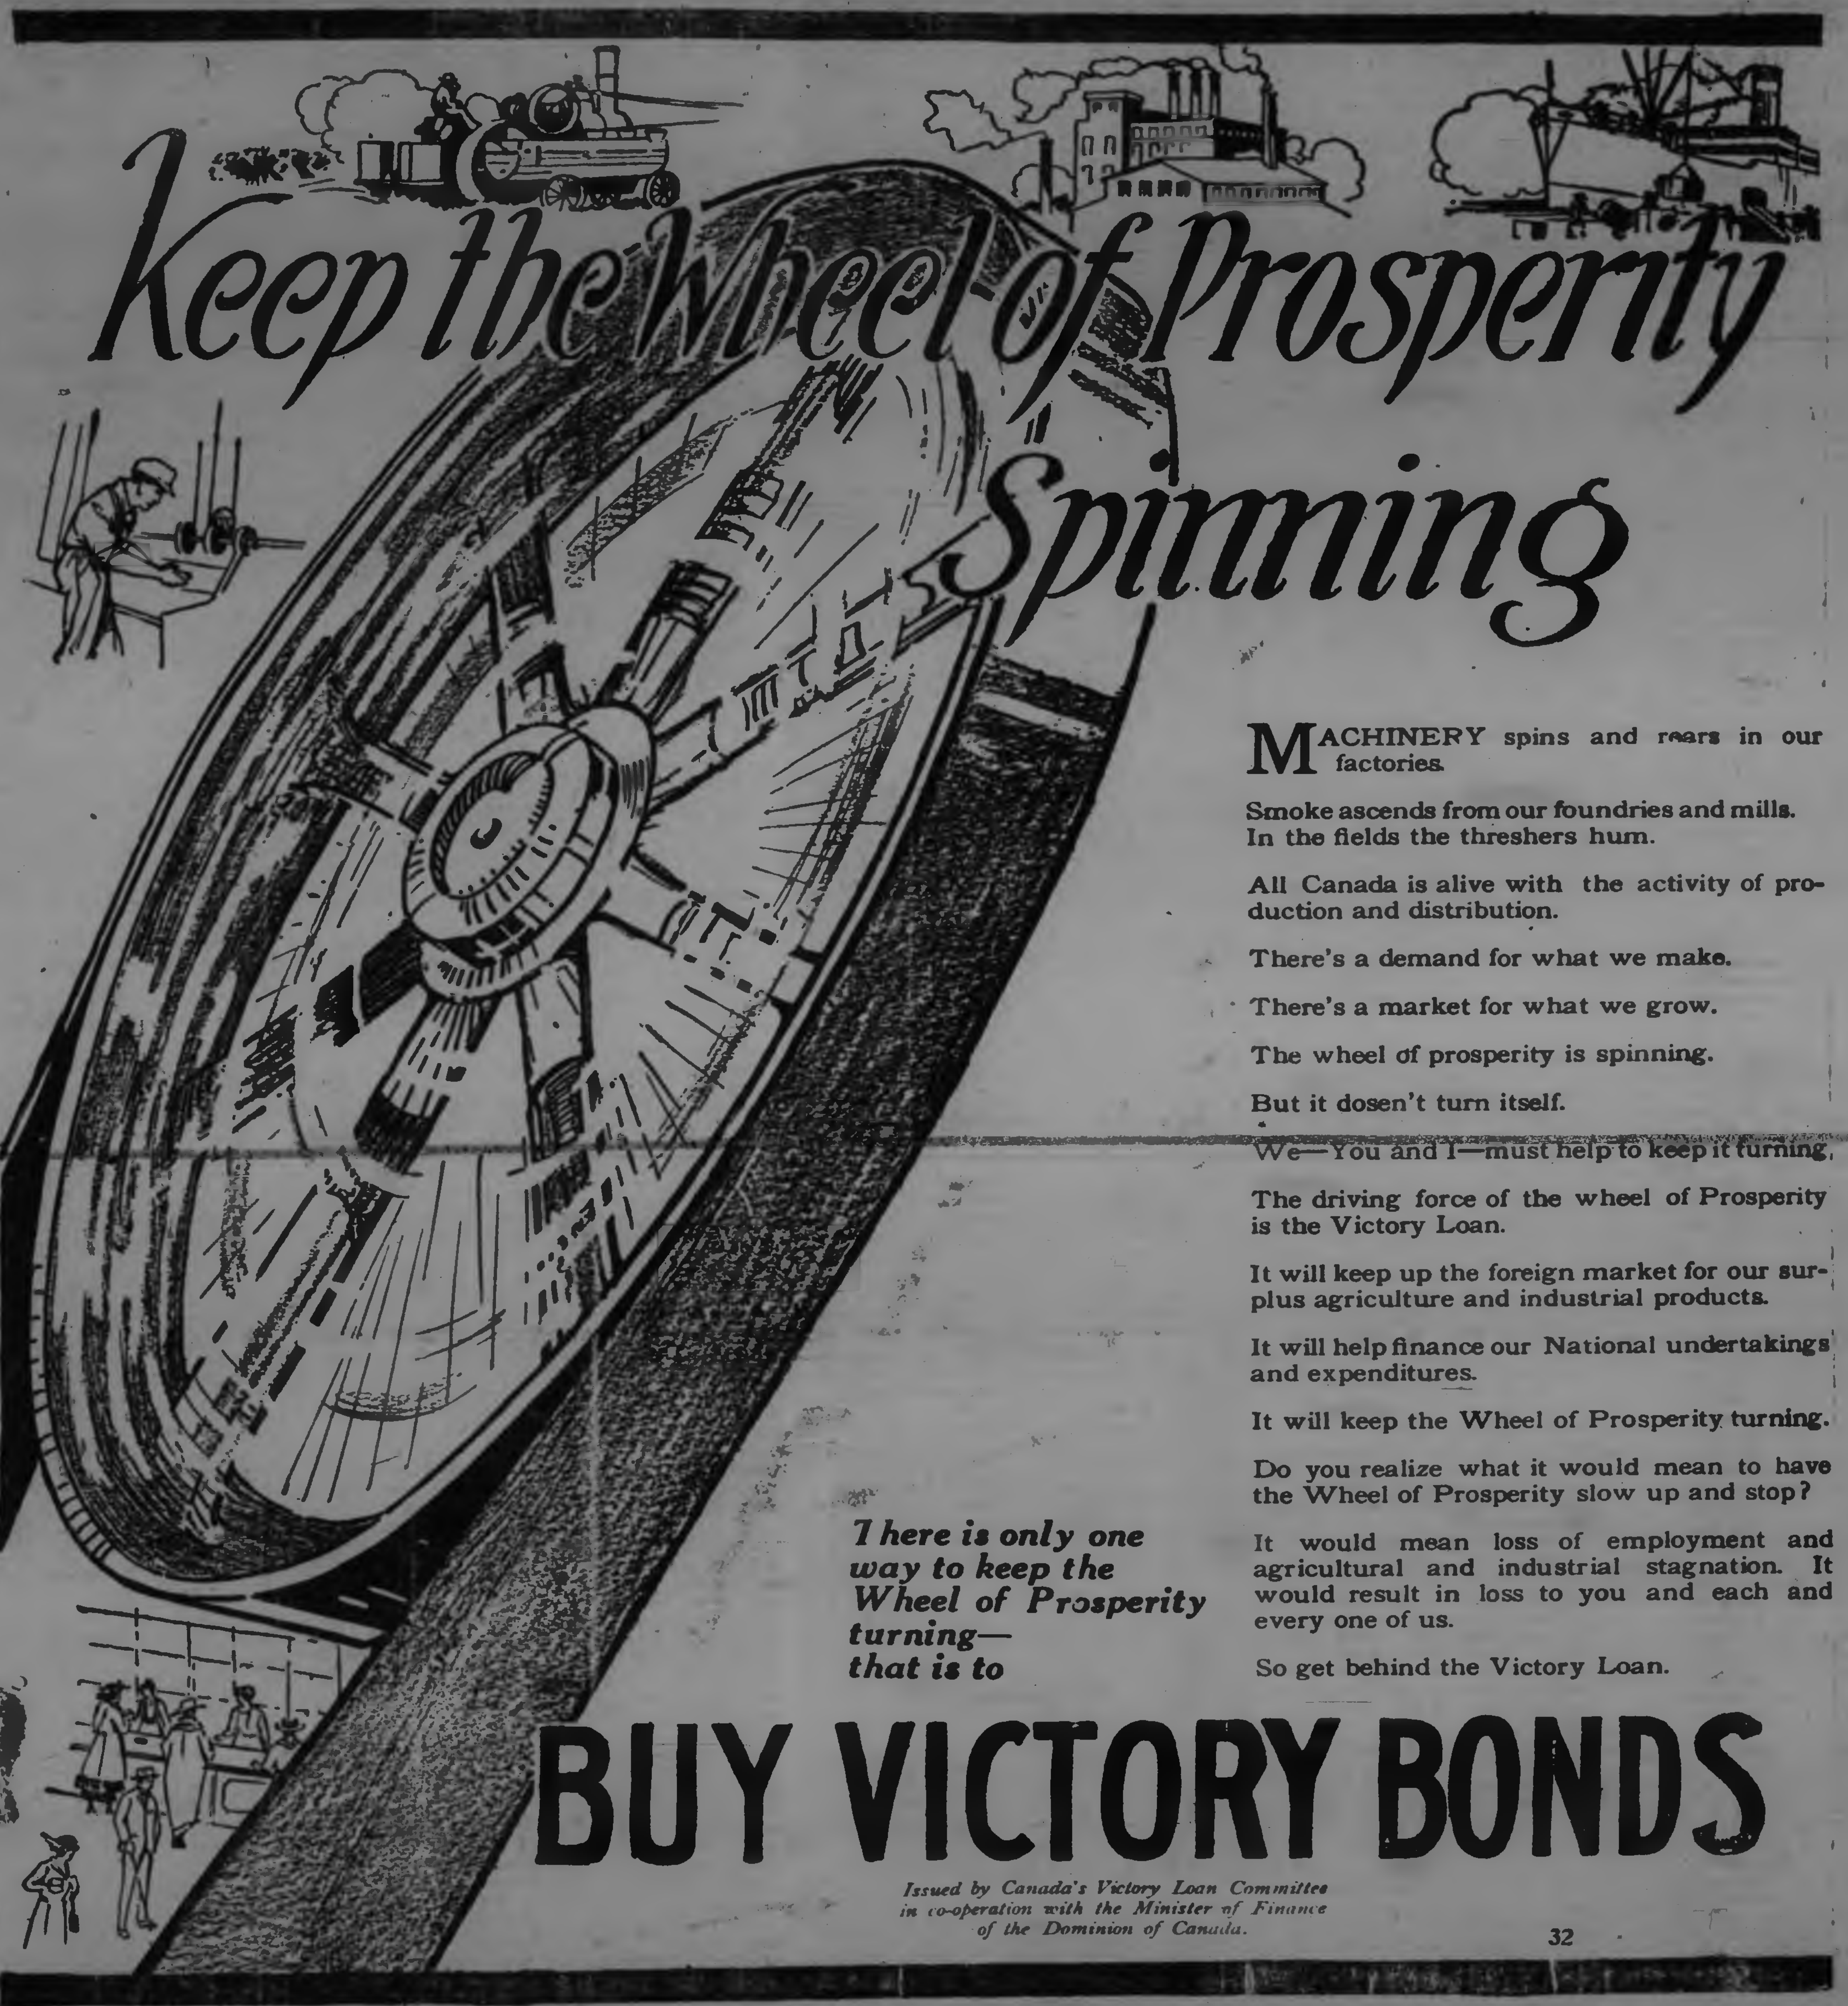
(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Nov. 12.—The reply of Roumania to the Allied note recently presented, in which it was again demanded that Hungary be evacuated is regarded in Peace Conference circles as wholly unsatisfactory.

Note is Evasive.

The note, which was taken up for consideration by the Supreme Council this morning, is characterised as extremely evasive. Roumahians indicate a willingness to retire to the River Theiss, but they decline to respect the original armistice lines and also decline to comply with the Allied request that they have a member of the Inter-Allied Commission to compute the value of goods seised Hungary by Roumanians, so that this amount could be deducted from the total of the reparation due to Roumania.

While the Roumanian note is worded in terms of extreme politeness, it is held to indicate a continued defiance of the Supreme Council.



Keep the Wheel of Prosperity Spinning

MACHINERY spins and roars in our factories.

Smoke ascends from our foundries and mills. In the fields the threshers hum.

All Canada is alive with the activity of production and distribution.

There's a demand for what we make.

There's a market for what we grow.

The wheel of prosperity is spinning.

But it dosen't turn itself.

We—You and I—must help to keep it turning.

The driving force of the wheel of Prosperity is the Victory Loan.

It will keep up the foreign market for our surplus agriculture and industrial products.

It will help finance our National undertakings and expenditures.

It will keep the Wheel of Prosperity turning.

Do you realize what it would mean to have the Wheel of Prosperity slow up and stop?

It would mean loss of employment and agricultural and industrial stagnation. It would result in loss to you and each and every one of us.

So get behind the Victory Loan.

There is only one way to keep the Wheel of Prosperity turning—that is to

SALE OF LIQUOR RESUMED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Providence, R. I., Nov. 12.—Federal Judge Brown today issued a temporary injunction against Harvey A. Baker, a United States attorney, and George F. The injunction was issued upon a petition of the Narragansett Brewing Co. Sale of four per cent. beer was immediately resumed by Providence liquor dealers.

WINNIPEG STREET RAILWAY FIGHT

SIX CENT FARES WILL BE LEVIED UNTIL BEGINNING OF YEAR

Winnipeg, Nov. 13.—Six-cent street car fares will be levied in Winnipeg at least until the new year.

Efforts to get the city's case against the Winnipeg electric placed on the peremptory list were made again on Monday and yesterday, but were entirely without result.

"The case will not likely be heard before Christmas now," an official closely connected with the case declared. The demand of the company that it be permitted to charge higher fares than their contract with the city specifies is being made an issue in the civic campaign. Tuesday night the resignation of Ald. Maclean was demanded by a meeting of the ratepayers who had renominated him, because they ascertained that he had become an employe of the street railway while serving as alderman. Maclean had accepted the renomination, but on demand declined it. Two other candidates for the council from the street railway employes are being fought by the Citizens' League on this ground.

SOLDIERS' PARTY

Only Thing That Will Assure Square Deal in Commons

Prince Rupert, B.C., Nov. 13.—Addressing the local G.W.V.A., Col. C. W. Peck, V.C., M.P., gave it as his opinion that if returned men were to get a "square deal" there must be a "soldier party" in the House of Commons.

CHICAGO FAMINE

No Fresh Butter and Eggs Are to Be Bought.

Chicago, Nov. 13.—No fresh butter or eggs are available in Chicago, according to a statement made by Myron E. Adams, assistant to Major A. A. Sprague, chairman of the Federal "fair price" committee, which accompanied promulgation of the second weekly "fair price" list. The list itself showed no changes in the margin of profits permitted dealers, and slight variation in value from last week's list.

KEEP WAR SHIPS NEAR DOMINIONS

ADMIRAL JELLICOE POINTS OUT NEED FOR MAINTAINING OVERSEAS SQUADRONS

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 13.—"To my mind the British navy should not be kept short of overseas squadrons. I believe that the Empire as a whole realizes the imperative necessity of maintaining ships of war not only in home waters but in close proximity to the most distant Dominions. We must see to it that our overseas naval forces are never again permitted to be as they were prior to the war. It is due to those gallant souls that were given to the Empire in its hour of peril that such a condition should not exist again.

This declaration was made before the Canadian Club when Viscount Jellicoe of Scapa Flow summed up the lesson which he believed had been taught the British Commonwealth by the experiences of the war.

He asserted that the people of British Columbia were justified in their anxiety during the early months of the war.

GIANT ITALIAN AIRSHIP

Destined to Cross the Atlantic With 150 Passengers

Rome, Nov. 12.—The airdrome at Ciampino, near Rome, is busy building a new dirigible destined to cross the Atlantic ocean. The airship, it is said, will be capable of travelling 3,125 miles without refueling. The frame of the ship comprises a hollow steel beam extending from the prow steel beam extending from the prow to the stern. This beam, according to the description, will take the place of the usual passenger carriage and will be able to accommodate 150 passengers.

L. A. Jeanneset has purhcased the business block owned by the late Charles Fischer on Arthur street, Elmira.

Wm. Hill, driver for the Imperial Oil Co., Stratford, who was injured in a runaway accident, died of his injuries.

"I know that Great Britain is hard up," he said. "I know that the dominions, too, are hard up, but I do not believe that the Empire feels so hard up that it cannot keep up an efficient navy."

FARMERS THEMSELVES HAVE HELPED TO DRIVE YOUNG FOLKS TO CITIES

Orators in Rural School Houses Decry Conditions on Ontario Farms and Discourage Rising Generations—Fortunes to be Made in Alsike Alone.

Rol. Foy in Toronto Sunday World.

The great question of public interest today is the tremendous political upheaval among the farmers of Ontario. Ontario is to have a Farmers' government. Toronto reporters, when wishing to interview the wife of Ontario's coming premier call up a farmhouse and interrupt a farmer's wife in her domestic duties; and the men who, enthroned as cabinet ministers in Queen's Park, shall rule Ontario the next four years, are at present hurrying up the fall plowing, getting the threshing done, the roots in and everything snug for the winter. Toronto multi-millionaires may wrangle about the mud wall, underground railways or other matters pertaining merely to parish politics, but the great provincial questions will be settled around the old fireplaces in the farmhouses of Ontario.

What has caused this revolution? What is the meaning of rural depopulation? Why are thousands of farms in Ontario deserted, with houses, a few years ago the homes of happy families, falling into ruin? Has farming become so unprofitable that the glitter of the easy dollar in the cities lures the young people away from rural parts.

The fact stares one in the face that farms are being deserted right now. Young people are leaving the army of food producers and going to the already overcrowded cities to take their places among the army of food consumers and still further complicate the high cost of living.

To remedy this is the work of statesmen. The members of the United Farmers of Ontario have been looking at the matter from a selfish standpoint. They [illegible] house and country hall have rung their tale of woe without end, deploring the laborious, unremunerative and unattractive life on the farm at present. Young people listening to these spellbinders during the last few years would be inclined to fly from the farms as from a pestilence.

Is there any other side to the question? If one brother has followed a profession, another business, another farming, is it possible that the farmer should be envied and not pitied by his brothers? Is there potential wealth in the top six inches of soil in old Intario that would reward the efforts of the brightest young people of the province?

For illustration, an ordinary Halton farmer starts from an ordinary Halton farm with what is in that district an ordinary load of produce, for which he is to receive a cheque for over two thousand dollars. This is only a side line, having grown on a ten-acre field, just one-tenth of a hundred-acre farm. Many alsike fields are this year giving a return of over $200 per acre.

I here give a list of only a few who have sold their alsiki seed in Streetsville during the last few weeks, these coming from just a few square miles of country. Some are too modest to have their names published, so I give just initials: G. Hamilton and son, $4000 (alsike and sweet clover); Fred Ingram, $3200; G. McMillan, $2900; King Bros., $2800; G. Thompson, $2200; J. Wagner, $1950; H. A. C., $2061; K. I., $1700; A. C., $1400; W. McB., $1800; J. M., $1800; T. S., $1189; E. T., $1004; F. F., $1200; J. O., $1884; R. E. H., $1657; J. B., $2250; L., $1530 (sweet clover); McC., $939; S. H., $1200; J. C., $1800.

This is a list of only a few sales from one small district from one field crop, just a side line. A full list of sales of say five square miles would amaze the ordinary person. Yet there is county after county in Ontario where the soil is equally good, where they have never tried out alsike for seed, and apparently know nothing about it. A few localities here and there for years have been making profits that make the good times of the Crimean war look like small change, while only a few miles off farmers are disheartened at the small profits of old line farming.

The farmers' government have a glorious opportunity. Let it co-ordinate the department of agriculture with the department of education, give a real agricultural education, and show the boys and girls the wonders, the mysteries of nature, the opportunities of intelligently co-operating with nature.

There is enough potential wealth in Ontario farms to take the shine off the rewards from business and professional life, not to speak of mechanical or laboring occupations.

We want a new Moses to lead us out of the national tangle in which we are now enmeshed—huddling ourselves in cities growling about the high cost of living, while thousands of fertile farms with untold producing powers are deserted. Let us take stock of the wealth-producing powers of our farms and when we do we will have such a new vision that we will not only be able to keep our own boys and girls on the farms, but we will attract thousands of the brightest from the towns and cities. Then shall the war debt vanish as a dream of the night, unrest and revolution disappear from urban centres, and our country take the place in the sun that properly belongs to her.

An essential adjunct to producing alsike for seed is an adequate number of honey bees to gather the nectar, distribute the pollen, fertilize the blossom and make the high yields of seed possible. The fact of sex in plants as well as animals is often lost sight of. In barley, oats, wheat where there is not any bloom, the pollen is light and is distributed by the wind. In alsike, clover, fruit and vegetables, where there is an attractive bloom, the pollen in heavier and must be distributed by insects, mainly by honey bees. Just where the bloom is most attractive the nectar is just right for gathering, this being the time when the bee will with its rough, hairy body distribute the pollen and fertilize the blossoms.

We produce in Ontario five million pounds of honey annually, worth one and a quarter million dollars. A modest estimate is that there is twenty million dollars' worth of nectar ungathered in Ontario every year. In consolidated schools and in crossroads schools bees should be kept and boys and girls taught the science of the business, and not only would millions of dollars' worth of most valuable food be produced, but more than that would be added to the value of the clover, fruit and vegetable crops of the province.

Roy Thornton, who broke a good umbrella on the head of Geo. Jones, who killed Mrs. Giles at Brantford, will be recompensed to the amount of six dollars.

The Indian Department gasoline tug being used to transport supplies to the Indian camp, was wrecked on the north shore of Lake Superior.

Ald. W. J. Bragg of Brantford announced that owing to the dissatisfaction with the lighting system he intended to run for the office of hydro commissioner.

ST. JOHN MAN HAS GAINED 28 POUNDS

H. F. ROLLINGS IS SURPRISED BY RAPID IMPROVEMENT—TROUBLES END.

"The best proof I can give that Tanlac is the right thing for me is the way it is building me up," said H. F. Rollings, of 62 Flower Hill, St John's, Newfoundland, recently. Mr. Rollings has been employed as carpenter by Reeds Newfoundland Railway Company for ten years.

"At the time I began taking Tanlac," he continued, "I only weighed one hundred and twenty-two pounds and now I weigh one hundred and fifty pounds—have actually gained twenty-eight pounds—and am picking up, both in weight and strength.

"I had been in the worst kind of a fix for some time and could get nothing to do me much good, if any. My appetite went back on me and my stomach was in such a bad fix that I could not eat meats or any of the more substantial foods at all. I had severe headaches and was so run down and weak that I couldn't do justice to my work. I would get so weak, faint and dizzy that I was actually afraid to mount the scaffolds. I was very nervous and nearly all my strength just seemed to be gone. One day while crossing the railroad track I felt one of those dizzy spells coming on me. I managed to call for help, but I fainted dead away, and the next thing I knew I was home. I could never get a good night's sleep and that tired, worn out feeling was with me all the time.

"My improvement since I began using Tanlac has certainly surprised me. My appetite returned after the first few doses and by the time my first bottle was gone I could eat and digest anything. Then I commenced to pick up my lost weight and strength and get rid of that tired, worn out feeling. The headaches, dizziness and nervousness have all left me and I sleep so soundly that I have to be woke up in the mornings. My appetite is so big that I can hardly get enough to eat and I never have the least trouble with my stomach any more, and when it comes to work I can keep up my end with the best of them. I am convinced that Tanlac will help anyone who tried it and I am glad to make this statement for what it may be worth to others."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. B. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle and Sons.

FAIL TO AGREE ON WORK DAY

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE HAS NO REPORT TO MAKE ON THIS QUESTION

Washington, Nov. 13.—A division of opinion was apparent yesterday among delegates to the international labor conference on the proposal of Gino Baldesi, Italian labor representative, that the conference express itself as favoring acceptance of the peace offer of the Russian Soviet Government. Mr. Baldesi had prepared a resolution setting forth such proposition for submission today to the conference.

The recommendations of the conference's committee of fifteen on hours of work was not ready to report when the conference assembled, members of the committee having failed yesterday to agree as to whether the decision of the conference shoul dbe in the form of a convention to be ratified by all the participating powers, or should amount only to a "recommendation" as to legislation.

Sir Wiltrid Laurier Said:

"After all what a man does with his money is to invest, and there is no better way to in it than in Life Insurance.
As an ESTATE BUILDER there is nothing to equal Life Insurance.

TAKE THE FOLLOWING ACTUAL RESULT

A young man sixteen years of age took out a 15 years Endowment (No. 210380) in the Sun Life of Canada, which matured on the first of April. This young man paid annually $66.30 for fifteen years and he now has, through that investment, an immediate estate of $3495.00 in case of death.

DO YOU KNOW THAT THIS AMOUNTS TO ALMOST 15 PER CENT COMPOUND INTEREST ON EVERY DOLLAR PAID?

No wonder Sir Wilfrid said—and he might have added (no better place than the Sun Life of Canada)—"there is no better way to invest it than in LIFE INSURANCE."

Tobacco Habit Dangerous

says Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital. Thousands of men suffering from fatal diseases would be in perfect health to-day were it not for the deadly drug, Nicotine. Stop the habit now before it's too late. It's a simple process to rid yourself of the tobacco habit in any form. Just go to any up-to-date drug store and get some Nicotol tablets; take them as directed and the pernicious habit quickly vanishes. Druggists refund the money if they fail. Be sure to read large and interesting announcement by Doctor Connor soon to appear in this paper. It tells of the danger of nicotine poisoning and how to avoid it. In the meantime try Nicotol tablets; you will be surprised at the results.

SEE "EXPERIENCE" MORALITY PLAY

MOST REALISTIC SOUL-STIRRING FILM OF MODERN TIMES

After seeing "Experience," the modern morality play which F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will present at the Grand Thursday evening only, Geraldine Farrar, the famous Metrotse prima donna, said: "Experience thrilled me. It held me a prisoner, captive to my emotions, unwilling to escape if I could, enthralled at what I saw, enraptured at the unfolding of life's story in this series of tense and vivd scenes. It was wonderful! When it was over, I was as weak as though I had sung 'Carmen'—so greatly did Mr. Hobart's play effect me emotionally."

No more realistic scene has ever been shown on the stage than will be seen in the "House of Lost Souls," the house of cocaine fiends, one of the amazing scenes in the most wonderful play in America, "Experience" which F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will present at the Grand, Thursday evening only.

Here the unfortunate and deluded human beings who are slaves to cocaine are seen in their terrible degradation.

FOR PRESIDENT OF ANANIAS CLUB

Not William Russell as such, y'understand, but William Russel as Robert Winchester McTabb, the happy-go-lucky coffin-salesman in "Some Liar," the latest offering of William Russell Productions.

He proves himself, throughout five snappy-reels, a first-rate genius in the manufacture of lies-while-you-wait, on any topic under the sun. The more sanguinary the subject, however, the more thrilling the tale. He can make you see every detail of the slaughter of a whole regiment of Germans, though he never [illegible] overseas. He can make you shudder while he tells how, with only his bare hands for weapons, he brought a villain to his last gasp—though at that very moment the villain is following him about town. He makes it perfectly clear how he got into the house via the porch and a window—and then he makes good his [illegible] by using that roundabout method the next time he enters.

And when he's once put a lie on record, he sticks to it regardless. Never for an instant does he budge from his statement—even though it brands him as the murderer who is destined to swing from an oak with distressingly sturdy branches. Of course, there's a girl mixed in with his finest masterpiece of mendacity—but how he gets away with them and with her, all at the same time, you'll have to find out direct from the screen. The girl by the way, is some one you know and like—Eileen Percy.

HARRY BULGER AT THE GRAND DECEMBER 11TH

THE SPARKLING MUSICAL SUCCESS "THE FLIRTING PRINCESS" THE ATTRACTION

never appreciated anything in his life before nearly as much as he did the treatment which had been accorded him by this branch of the Great War Veterans' Association. He spoke of the splendid club house of the branch and complimented the band upon their brilliant performance. He spoke very feelingly of the sacrifice of Judge Huycke in sending his four sons to do battle for the Empire. No man could do more than this. He stated that he was first, last and all the time the friend of the returned man, and urged that anyone requiring his assistance should communicate with him at Kingston. The General spoke of his work in connection with the graves of soldiers who had died in this district, and declared that no grave would be neglected. Every branch of the G. W. V. A. was being supplied with small white crosses of a uniform pattern, and these are to be erected in memory of all comrades buried in every cemetery in Canada. The speaker said that the returned man has a great responsibility to maintain the high traditions of the army in civilian life, but he was sure that this would be done. In conclusion he assured the members of the Peterborough branch that he would always consider it an honor to sit among them at a meeting of their association.

During the evening music was provided by the band, and solos were sung by Messrs. Everitt and Farr, a duet by the Leonard brothers, banjo selection by Mr. Frank Clarke, and Mr. Jack Primeau contributed a couple of his famous monologues.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the General for the honor conferred upon the branch by his visit, and also to the entertainers for so generously giving of their talent. In speaking for the vote of thanks, Rev. Canon Davidson took occasion to make an appeal for the several units of the active militia which are about to be re-organized.

The evening's entertainment broke up about 11 o'clock with the singing of the National Anthem.

SIR ADAM BECK TALKS ON RADAIL RAILWAYS

BYLAW TO BE SUBMITTED TO EASTERN ONTARIO RATEPAYERS NOV. 22nd.

Toronto, Nov. 12.—Interest in the vote on the Toronto and Eastern Radial bylaw which will be taken in a few days was furthered among the enthusiastic ratepayers by Sir Adam Beck, who spoke at Brooklin and Agincourt on the plans for the solution of the eastern transportation problem.

Following the interest shown in the project it is definitely assured that the vote recorded will be unanimously in favor of the scheme. Sir Adam comprehensively outlined the plans which have been formulated, and was supported by several prominent local speakers. There was no opposition met with, and Controller Wm. Dryden said that although the northern part of Whitby township might not derive the same amount of benefit as the southern part, it was only a question of time before every part of the country would be using Hydro power.

Conservative Estimate.

Sir Adam said that in estimating the possible revenue from the Toronto and Eastern the figures had been kept down to a conservative level. A proposition, he said, would be made to the Government to accept Hydro bonds for $10,000,000 in payment from the Central Ontario power property and turn it over.

He expressed the hope that the commission would be able to secure from the Dominion Government at a scrap price, not only the G.T.R. line to Port Perry, but the G.T.R. line from Bowmanville to Napanee. This, added to the Niagara and St. Lawrence power schemes, would give the Hydro two and a half million horse-power. With this supply, big strides would be made in furnishing cheap power and efficient transportation for every village and town in the province.

Revenue to be $1,076,175.

After leaving Brooklin, Sir Adam motored to Agincourt, a distance of 20 miles, arriving there at 11.30. Despite the lateness of the hour there was a large crowd awaiting him.

Engineer Gaby, who preceded Sir Adam, said that $6,510,794 would be needed to build the road and provide Toronto terminals, and $1,830,000 to equip it with cars and power and passenger stations, making a total of $8,360,794. He figured the annual revenue at $1,076,175.

Numerous Branch Lines.

Mr. Gaby declared that the main electric line from Toronto to Bowmanville would have numerous branch lines, which would be speedy and have direct connection with the Niagara and American lines. A bylaw to allow of the construction of the new Hydro radial line will be submitted to the people on Nov. 22.

Ottawans Advised Not to Hurray to Import Liquor.

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—Persons who are desirous of restocking their wine cellars and wish to import liquor for that purpose, would be well-advised to wait for the formal proclamation of peace before doing so. Although to all intents and purposes peace has been concluded, it was said at the justice department today that it would not be safe to assume that the prohibition order-in-Council had lapsed. The Canadian statute provides that war shall be deemed to exist until formal proclamation by the governor-general in the Canada Gazette. This will, in all probability follow the proclamation of peace by His Majesty the King. When his majesty will issue this proclamation is not known, but as three of the great powers and Germany have now ratified the treaty, it should not be long delayed.

ENGLISH ADVERTISING.

War's Aftermath as Found in the Newspapers.

When an Englishman wishes to focus public attention upon his pet schemes; when he wants to start a new religion or propagate an old one; when he wants money or a new collie pup, he advertises in the columns of his favorite newspaper. There is a wealth of human interest in those advertising columns of the great British dailies. None of the usual British reticence is there. The lady of quality and the charwoman, the jobless and the wealthy, all unite in the effort to gain the public eye and ear.

House-hunting also, is done through the advertising columns. There is more than a dash of the Canadian verbal comments on May 1, visible in some of the efforts to attract attention. The following is a typical example:

Un-British cruelty — No, medium-size houses to let, outskirts London, for invalid, disabled, or war-strained gentle-born. Did all considerate landlords die on Aug. 4, 1914? Will noble survivors (if any) kindly reply, with particulars, "Invalid," Box F, 141, the Times.

The propaganda "ad" is also common. Religious subjects occur frequently, and the opponents of vivisection also lose no opportunity to keep their hobby before the public. An example of the religious appeal follows:

"What shall it profit a nation if it win a great war and lose its own soul? Send 1½d for a copy of a leaflet bearing this title to A. E. McAdam, 45 Leepark, S.E. 3."

Every housemaid airs her secret aspirations to ladyship. In her search for employment she is never a "woman." A "lady" wishes to undertake a "post" as "Cook general" and she volunteers the rather surprising information that she is thoroughly "domesticated." For this work she "requires" wages of £35 to £40 or, approximately, $144 to $180 for the year.

Householders in the best parts of London, on the other hand, reveal to the world the innermost secrets of their menage. One may readily ascertain how many maids and menservants are maintained, the number of appetites that must be satisfied, the frequency of guests and similar matters. The English servant is also cautious to a degree, for many prospective employers take pains to forewarn applicants that there are "no knives or boots," and often that there are no coal fires, that parlor and scullery maids are kept and that charwomen are employed twice weekly, etc.

References are very much more important than in America. Practically no position is open except to those who can furnish "characters." It is the same whether the place demands a man with a salary of many hundreds or a shopgirl with a guinea a week.

Until the expiration of the war the demand for "Lady Shorthand-Typists" was heavy and a system of yearly or half-yearly bonuses was instituted. The requirements would be extraordinary in this country, and particularly at the low wages of $13.50 in the following offer:

"Merchant's Office — Shorthand typist (lady) required in merchant's office. Permanent position. French, Spanish essential. Salary £3 week; bonus half-yearly. Hours 9.30 to 6. Wire, stating age, experience, speeds, to Pim, 19, Bury street, E.C. 3."

For lesser accomplishments the rate falls to £2 and £2 10s.

Another aftermath of the war is visible in the many appeals for aid. The personal columns often reveal the tragedies of the Flanders Field or of the lone watches in the North Sea, or of the "spurlos versenkt" policy. There are the minor tragedies of the demobilized and crippled soldier who cannot find employment, of the men who are no longer fit for their trades, and of many others. There are also the gloomy, despairing appeals such as this one:

Another influence of the war is apparent in a great many "ads." In two or three inches of a column it is possible to find men who wish to go to South Angola or Demerara or New South Wales, and the established colonies like India and South Africa also furnish much desired fields. These efforts to obtain employment reflect the industrial status of the mother country at this time, because most of those men who wish to emigrate are discharged officers with records of capable and efficient service, the class of men that seldom has difficulty in finding employment at home.

Measuring the Earth.

An effort is being made to induce the Commonwealth and its six states to combine to provide £3,000 for measuring the earth, that is, for obtaining an accurate determination of Australian longitude by means of wireless signals sent out from Aden and Darien (Panama) to Sydney, New South Wales, and Greenwich. Dr. J. M. Baldwin, Victorian Government astronomer, says that in order to measure the earth it is necessary to have two wireless stations at places called A and B. The exact local time at each station having been observed by the stars a series of wireless signals is sent from a third station C and the difference in times of reception of the signals at A and B enable the determining of the longitude in hours, minutes and seconds, which can be easily worked out as degrees, minutes and seconds. Similar experiments in 1913 showed that the meridian of longitude at Washington was one-twentieth of a second out and the imaginary line had to be moved about fifty feet.

A New Thermometer.

For industries where temperature records are of value an inventor has devised a registering thermometer that can be connected to and operated by an alarm clock.

The annual convention of the Knights and Ladies of the Maccabees opened yesterday in Kitchener.

Poor talkers are usually poor quitters.

Early Irish Culture.

The evidences of early and mediæval culture in Ireland are a multitude of beautiful things, classics of literature, but likewise wonders of creative art. Thus at Cong abbey, where sleep many of Ireland's ancient dead, and among them Rory O'Connor, the last king, there is an exquisite cross with gold traceries and delicate beauty of silver and copper and enamel and bronze, a proof of the civilization built up within Ireland long before the Normans crossed to her shores. Such instances might be multiplied.

Glorious Climate of Tasmania.

Tasmania is supposed to be the healthiest spot in the British empire and this character got a great testimonial some years ago. A young officer of a British shipping line was given up by the London doctors at the age of 21 and went to Tasmania to die, the company granting him a pension. Instead of promptly dying he drew that pension for 83 years, dying in Tasmania recently at the great age of 104.

Mends Granite Ware.

The government suggests we economize on kitchen utensils. To mend a hole in granite ware work a piece of putty until perfectly soft, then take a piece of the putty large enough to cover the hole and put one piece on either side of the metal, pressing together inside and out, smoothing down the edges. Place the vessel in a slow oven and bake until the putty is a deep brown. For containing water the vessel will be as good as new.

To Remove Paint.

Paint stains that are not fresh and yet have not entirely hardened can be softened by moistening them with ammonia and sprinkling them with a little turpentine. Roll the fabric up for fifteen or twenty minutes or soak it for several hours if necessary and then wash it with warm water and soap and hang it out in the air to remove the turpentine odor.

Clay and Cork for Insulation.

A new heat insulating material, composed of a mixture of a special clay and cork, has been discovered by a Norwegian engineer. The clay and cork mixture is burned and the result is the formation of a very light substance that is said to be eminently suitable for all heat insulating purposes.—Indianapolis News.

Sympathy as a Fine Art.

Sympathy is one of the fine arts. It should enrich, not impoverish; strengthen, not weaken; inspire while it comforts. It is easy enough to say you are sorry. It is easy to grieve with your friend over his trouble and pity him for his mishaps. But the sympathy which is a fine art does not encourage him to give way to despair. It stimulates. It puts hope in place of heartache. It points on and up. Do not wrong your friend with the sympathy which will make him feel like pitying himself.

Josephus.

Flavius Josephus, the most celebrated of Jewish historians, was born at Jerusalem in 37. As a mark of gratitude for favors, he assumed the family name, Flavius, of the Roman emperor Vespasian. The date of his death is unknown. His most important works are "History of the Jewish War," "The Antiquities of the Jews;" two treatises, "Against Apion of Alexandria" and "A Discourse on the Martyrdom of the Maccabees," and an account of his own life.

To Clean Aluminum.

Make a rather strong soap lather, and while it is warm put the aluminum utensils into it and wash them clean. Dry with soft cloths, and they can be made as bright as desired. Occasionally polish them with whiting made into a paste.

Wanted a Mourning Rose.

Two little boys went into the rose garden to pick a rose for their mamma. Willie, who had recently lost his papa, said: "I'm looking for a black rose for my mamma, 'cause my papa is dead."

NEW YORK STOCKS ARE STRONG TODAY

WELCOME INDICATION THAT LIQUIDATION HAD RUN ITS COURSE

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 13.—Stocks were strong at the opening of today's session, indicating that liquidation had run its course, for a time at least.

It was generally recognized, however, that the market's future was wholly dependent upon money rates. General Motors, the central feature of recent depression, made an initial gain of fifteen points, and Texas Company and Mexican Petroleum, other conspicuous features of recent decline, rose six and nine points respectively. In other divisions of the stock list, rallies of one to four points were made.

It is estimated that the loss to the N. B. Telephone Co. during the recent storm will amount to $5000.

J. S. Barclay, a returned soldier, has been appointed instructor in the Navigation School at St. John, N.B.

AN INDEPENDENT HOCKEY LEAGUE

HAMILTON TALKS OF LAUNCHING TEAM IN CIRCUIT—BITTER AGAINST O.H.A.

Hamilton, Nov. 13.—The Spectator says: Hamilton may figure in an independent hockey league as the result of two of the Tigers' star players being suspended by the O.H.A. and others being under investigation. It is felt that the city could not place a team in the I.H.A. now which would make any kind of a showing, but with an independent league fast hockey would be assured, and the players would not have to do any accounting to the O.H.A. for every move they made.

Billy McLaughlin is prepared to finance the Hamilton team if such a league is formed, and with no residence rule to contend with, it is thought that Brantford would welcome the chance to enter such a league, and Kitchener might also be induced to join. There are enough suspended players in Toronto to form a good team there, and Guelph and Galt might be induced to come in.

A TEN PIN LEAGUE WILL START SHORTLY.

A ten pin league will be organized as soon as the teams are entered. Anyone wishing to enter these teams should do so by Saturday at the Water street alleys.

BRITISH HEAVY COMING

Beckett, British Champion, Sails For America in December.

New York, Nov. 13.—Joe Beckett heavyweight champion of Great Britain, according to George Dwyer, the American representative of Wilde, will sail for America around the first week in December. Dwyer will look after Beckett's affairs during his sojourn here in conjunction with Wilde.

"I have received several letters from Beckett and his manager, in which Beckett asked me to act as his manager in this country," said Dwyer. "I have cabled him to come on as quickly as possible. He is ready to meet Dempsey before the club offering the best inducements."

LUCKY AMERICAN STABLE

Ross Won $208,002 With His Horses This Year.

Last year J. K. L. Ross headed the list of American winning owners with a stable total in money won by his horses of $99,179. This year he holds the same exalted position with the huge aggregate of $208,002 already to the credit of his powerful stable, with a prospect of adding materially to this sum before his horses are sent into winter quarters. Since 1906 no other American stable has won as much. The champion three-year-old Sir Barton was the principal contributor to this great sum, but he had other stars of high class ably assisting. Subsequent to the death of James R. Keene, Samuel C. Hildreth headed the winning list for three consecutive years, but neither in 1909, 1910 or 1911 did his horses win so great an aggregate as this year, when he is only second. Under the circumstances the $168,610 piled up for him by Mad Hatter, Purchase, Lucullite and the other brilliant racers in his stable, constitutes a remarkable record. H. P. Whitney is third, and has had a good year in comparison with 1918, but nothing to compare with the Glen Riddle Farm, which from a modest $2,357 in 1918, advanced to the fat total of $87,976 in 1919, the reason being the magnificent two-year-old Man o' War. There is gratified pride and pelf in the possession of such a grand specimen of the thoroughbred, but the first-named emotion weighs more heavily with Man o' War's owner than the gains due to his superb speed.

EIGHT WINNING MOUNTS

Toronto Jockey Has Reason to be Proud of Results.

Toronto, Nov. 13.—Jockey Sande has good reason for satisfaction with his part in last week's racing, eight winning mounts rewarding his good work in the saddle and putting him in a tie with C. Kummer for sixth place in the list of thirty leading riders of 1919. Kummer landing only two races. L. Fator was next to Sande with six races won. Leader Robinson is enjoying a well earned rest, and will have no further opportunity for increasing his score until Thanksgiving Day ushers in a renewal of late fall and early winter racing at Jefferson Park.

POST OFFICE TAKES 2 FROM LAWN BOWLERS

BUSINESSMEN'S FIVE PIN LEAGUE AT WATER STREET ALLEY

Last night in the Five-Pin League at the Water street alleys the Post Office won two games from the Lawn Bowlers. The first game was won by the Lawn Bowlers, who had it all their own way. The Post Office came strong in the next two games. Walter Oke for the Lawn Bowlers hit the rubber bands for the high single of 237 and high three games of 597. For the Post Office H. Ballard rolled 227 single and high three for his team with 542. The scores:

NEWARK QUITS LEAGUE

Will Transfer Baseball Franchise to Another City.

Newark, N.J., Nov. 12.—Decision to transfer the Newark International League Baseball Club franchise to some other city was announced today by Ernest C. Landgraf, president of the club, who said he had received permission from the league to take such action. The franchise, it was stated, is being sought by Scranton and Montreal. Lack of interest in the team and difficulty in obtaining a better playing field were given as reasons for making a change.

Roy Tunis of Calgary was sentenced to three months in jail for selling an 18-year-old girl dope.

TWO FALLS CONTRASTED.

Our Own Niagara and the Victoria of Zambesi.

While Niagara Falls will continue to hold their own as a mecca for honeymooners and other travelers, they must henceforth submit to comparison with another natural wonder, the Victoria Falls of the Zambesi, as Africa becomes frequented by tourists. From being a place of mystery, so feared that Livingstone, who discovered the falls in 1855, had great difficulty in persuading his followers to accompany him, the falls now are visible from a railway, that crosses the river half a mile below them, and they lie under the proposed route of the Cape to Cairo aerial service, which is to be established this autumn.

Louis Livingston Seaman describes a visit to Victoria Falls and contrasts them with Niagara, as follows:

"Our approach was made by rail from the Indian Ocean at Beira, near the mouth of the Zambesi (that hotbed of micro-organisms, described by James Bryce as the most deadly in Africa), and across the narrow belt of swamp and jungle forming the coast; thence up the gradual slope to the volcanic plateau that forms the real continent of Africa.

"By morning an altitude of nearly 6,000 feet was reached, and a transition from the excessive heat and moisture of the lowlands was experienced that was most grateful and exhilarating.

"This section still abounds with antelope, elephants, lions and other large game, which find excellent cover in the tall elephant grass or the [illegible] the river hippos still gambol and flounder in ungainly herds amid the floating islands of rank vegetation of Nile reeds and papyrus.

"With the altitude, however, came another and less grateful change. The forests were no longer in evidence, but in their stead were vast arid, birdless plains, with parched hungry vegetation, whose anaemic and stunted growth bears witness to the scarcity of moisture that so severely affects Rhodesia and the great stretches of veldt far away to the Transvaal.

"Early in the morning of the third day we were suddenly awakened by the guard and treated to a scene of beauty never to be forgotten. Some ten miles distant five enormous columns of vapor were shooting their roseate-tinted shafts hundreds of feet heavenward, while the faint roar of the falls told us the Mosioa-Tunga—the smoke that sounds—was no longer a mystery.

"Each moment increased the beauty and vividness of the scene. With the first rays of the rising sun came a picture of color of wondrous loveliness. Delicate tints of violet, crimson, and beryl played through the mounting spray as it shot higher and higher, ultimately disappearing as virgin clouds in heaven, while the ever-increasing thunders of the waters lent an added solemnity to the view.

"Hardly could we wait to reach our destination, so great was our enthusiasm. But our hopes were doomed to momentary disappointment, only to be more than realized after a study of the environment; for, notwithstanding their magnitude, the first view of Victoria Falls is decidedly disappointing.

"Although nearly a mile in width and 400 feet in height, the grandeur of their proportions is eclipsed by the sudden disappearance of the river, as it lunges into a narrow, rocky fissure extending across its entire width. Only at a single central point is there a breach in this fissure through which the falls can be seen and appreciated in their full proportions, where the converging waters rush madly to the zigzag canyon below. So restricted is this view that there is an entire absence of that awe-inspiring and almost paralyzing effect which strikes the visitor dumb with wonder and amazement when Niagara bursts on his near vision. On first sight of the Victoria Falls one involuntarily exclaims, 'Oh, how beautiful!' but they lack the majesty of our grand Niagara.

"No single visit can reveal the fullness of their charms, but repeated excursions must be made to their islands and precipices, their grottoes and palm gardens, their rain forests and projecting crags, their rainbows and cataracts and many-sided views of their exquisite setting in the emerald framework of tropic forests, before their indescribable beauty can be appreciated. The fascination of discovering new and hidden charms from different points of view grows on the visitor and becomes one of the greatest attractions.

"Had the falls been in America, Indians would have named them Minnehaha, Laughing Waters; for like a coy maiden are their fascinations, half concealing, half betraying their beauties, and requiring much wooing before revealing all their loveliness of hidden treasures and charm."

Gold.

More than two-thirds of the gold now in use in the world was discovered during the last 50 years.

Don't Wait to Do Good Deeds.

The good deeds we would do are brightened and made more prolific of beneficial results if we carry them out while the enthusiasm of our generous impulse is upon us. Have we not all experienced the warm desire to succor; postponed to a more convenient time (for us)—then dreaded for days until we finally drag ourselves to an accomplishment that makes of kindness a pitiful treadmill and bestows no sweet graciousness upon the recipient, who innately feels the irksomeness of our beneficence?

World's Famous Streets.

A certain difference of opinion appears to exist as to which is the most beautiful street in the world. Among those "in the running" may be mentioned: Princes street, Edinburgh, from which the city received her nickname of the "Athens of the North"; the Via X X Septembre, Genoa; Sackville street, Dublin; the Avenida Callao and the Plazo Mayo, both in Buenos Aires, the High street, Belfast; and the Unter den Linden, Berlin.

Glasses for Appearance Sake.

"Miss Bessie, if you are going to town today, I wish you would buy my sister, who lives in the north, a pair of glasses." "Why, Annie," replied the young lady addressed, "I could not get your sister a pair of glasses. She must have her sight tested so that the glasses may be suitable." "Oh," said [illegible] she wrote me that what fits my nose fits her nose."

Not the Right Tune.

A certain man was angry one night and began to swear in the presence of his wife. The latter, thinking she might shame him into quitting, decided to imitate him and swore fervidly, using the same oaths that he did. He looked at her in amazement for a few minutes and then remarked, "Well, you have the same words but you haven't got the right tune."—Exchange.

"Women" Vs. "Ladies."

The nuances of the English language seem to be as well understood by the person who advertised for "an aged woman to care for an elderly lady," as by the southern darkey who, presenting himself at the door of a fine mansion, announced: "I's lookin' fo' de cullud lady what works fo' de white woman at dis house."—Springfield Union.

Knew She Would Be Asked.

Tillie was leaving to go over to her little chum's house, when she suddenly turned in the door and called to her mother, "Mamma, has baby brother got any teeth yet?" When asked why she wished to know, she replied, "So I can tell Mabel's mother. She always asks me if he has any teeth yet when I goes over to play with Mabel."

Got Fat on Poor Food.

A recruit at one of the southern camps wrote a long letter home, which he started by telling how rotten the food was, and that he didn't get enough to eat. Near the end of the letter, about page fifteen, he told the folks how fat he was getting, having gained ten pounds in about a month.

Race of Boat Builders.

The Irish from time immemorial have been boat builders, although the west coast mackerel fishermen, or the bake coast to the south, or the haddock fisheries on the southeast must be visited to understand the real ingenuity of the Irish native boat builder. In a large way Belfast represents the high development of the shipbuilding industry.

Our Red Cross.

The Canadian Red Cross Society will cease to exist as an overseas organization in a few more weeks. The Canadian ambulances, which it was first proposed to return to Canada for presentation to various hospitals, were found to have done such long service in France that it was considered advisable to dispose of them in London, and this is being done. Like other military stores, they have realized good prices.

Col. Bo[illegible]ock, head of the Canadian Red Cross, will shortly retire to private life and remain in England, while Lady Drummond will return to Montreal.

Good Beginning.

Visitor—What makes you think that William will grow up to be a great doctor?

Fond Mother—While playing doctor with his little playmates, he said: "Gentlemen, before we begin to operate, you hold the patient's hands and feet. I'll get the three cents out of this right hand pocket."

OBITUARY

MRS. PETER McNEIL

There passed to her reward at Keene on November 10th the oldest citizen in the community in the person of the late Mrs. Peter McNeil, who was born in Loch Gilpit, Ayrshire, Scotland, in the year 1827.

Coming to Canada with her parents when a child, they settled in Otonabee near the village of Keene, where almost her whole life was spent. At the age of 17 deceased was married to the late Peter McNeil, and brought up a family of seven children, who grew to manhood and womanhood and were blessed with all the loving care that a fond mother could bestow upon them.

The late Mrs. McNeil was universally beloved by all who came in contact with her sphere of influence not only for her womanly qualities but also for the many acts of kindness rendered, and her death will be felt as a loss to the entire community.

Becoming a member of the Presbyterian Church at an early age upon profession of faith, she lived close to her Saviour all her life. The late Mrs. McNeil retained all her mental faculties to the very last, taking a great interest in everything that was for the betterment of the community.

A brother, Mr. James McNeil, of Keene, and a sister, Mrs. William Sharp, of Westwood, are left to mourn her loss, besides four daughters and two sons: Miss Catherine, at home; Mrs. George McCartney, Bethany; Mrs. R. S. Skinner, Keene; Mrs. T. Eakins, Manvers; James S., on the homestead, and John, of San Francisco, Cal., and eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

LAKEFIELD PASSES THE HYDRO BYLAW

ONLY TWO VOTES CAST AGAINST THE MEASURE YESTERDAY

In the bylaw voted on in Lakefield yesterday to authorize the village council to enter into a contract with the Hydro-electric Commission of Ontario to supply them with electric power for their lighting and industries there were 162 votes cast in favor of it and only 2 against. This is an exceedingly pronounced opinion in favor of Hydro by the citizens of Lakefield.

CHURCH WAS OPENED FIFTY SIX YEARS AGO

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE HELD BY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF LAKEFIELD, SUNDAY

The 56th anniversary of the Lakefield Presbyterian Church was fittingly observed by special services on Sunday and Monday, Nov. 9 and 10. Rev. Jas. Rollins, of St. Andrews' Church, Peterborough, preached at both services on Sunday and his thoughtful and impressive sermons were deeply appreciated by the large congregations present.

In the morning he spoke on "Life's Investments," drawing illustrations from many departments of life. He showed that our returns depend upon our investments. It is true, also, in our religious life and many people are getting little out of their religious life simply because they put so little in.

The choir, assisted by Lieut. McKenzie and Mrs. N. McLeod, of Toronto; Rev. Mr. Sheer, of Peterborough; Messrs. Higgins and Milburn and Miss Doidge, of the Methodist choir, contributed much to the services by their inspiring music. The Methodist pastor and people united in the evening service and the church was crowded to capacity. A liberal thank-offering was presented by the people.

On Monday evening one of the largest crowds every accommodated by the church gathered for the dinner and concert. The four tables in the Sunday School room were tastefully decorated and generously provided with cold meats, salads, pies and other good things, while a matron at the end of each poured tea and helped to produce an atmosphere of hospitality and homeliness that added much to the enjoyment of the meal. Although 400 persons were served, so much remained over that the ladies announced a social on Wednesday evening. While the crowd was gathering in the church Mr. Wm. Graham kindly played some choice selections on his Victrola.

The program was generally pronounced to be one of the best ever given in Lakefield. Miss Reives, elocutionist of Toronto, delighted the audience with her natural and unaffected manner and her splendid rendering of appropriate selections. Lovers of music enjoyed a feast provided by the Misses Loretta and Gyneth Northy, of Smith; Miss Clarke, Miss A. Logan, Miss Dix, Misses Steer and Gould, Peterborough; D. Smith, of Lakefield; Messrs. McKenzie, McLeod and Skeene, of Toronto. The accompanists of the evening were Miss Hunter, Miss Logan, Mrs. McConkey and Mrs Goul.

History of the Church.

The Lakefield Presbyterian Church, a substantial stone building, was erected in 1862 and opened for worship in February, 1863. The brick S. S. room at the back of the church was added about 20 years ago, during the ministry of Rev. A. C. Reeves. During its history the congregation has been served by ten ministers— Rev. John Rodger, 1861-1865; Rev. James Thorn, inducted 1866; Rev Nathaniel Clarke, 1871; Rev. John McEwen, 1885; Rev. A. C. Reeves, B.A., 1894; Rev. C. A. Campbell, B.A., 1900; Rev. S. S. Burns, B.A., 1906; Rev. T. B. McCorkindale, M.A., 1911; Rev. T. J. Robinson, B.A., 1915; Rev. P. L. Jull, B.A., Sept. 13, 1917.

Those who have been members of session and gone are:—Joseph Nelson, Hugh Davidson, David Smith, Geo. Shields, John Fitzgerald, Robt. Graham, Wm. Graham Wm. Campbell, Frederick Armstrong and Robt. Clifford.

The present session consists of A. Fairbairn (clerk), T. J. Cullen, A. J. Kidd, Richard White, A. J. Young and H. Sutton.

The congregation like many another today in the country and small town, is feeling keenly the loss of young people, drawn away to the cities. There is, however, a strong feeling of congregational loyalty and a noticeable quickening of interest in the large work of the church that gives good hope for the future. In the present Forward Movement of the Christian church in Canada the Lakefield Presbyterian congregation will, no doubt, occupy a worthy place.

anniversary of the establishing of the court. He spoke of the noble way their soldiers had gained honor for themselves and for the order. Twenty-seven per cent of the court had enlisted and he felt proud that they had never heard a complaint of lack of bravery or of misconduct.

He declared that it was a proud moment for Court Stanley to welcome back her returned heroes. But he did not consider their duties were over. Now, they have returned to civil life, if they enter into the work of the order with the same enthusiasm as they defended the Empire they would be rendering a service to themselves and to the order.

Our Guests

Bro. Tom Hendry proposed the toast to our guests. He, on behalf of Court Stanley extended a very hearty welcome to those who had served their country so nobly. He spoke of the large percentage of Foresters that had enlisted and a large percentage of these had paid the supreme sacrifice.

Bros. Parker and Dainton replied in brief soldierly fashion thanking Court Stanley for its kindness and telling of their joy to be back home among its members once more. The were prepared to get behind the Court and boost it both for their own and the Court's benefit.

Our Departed

The toast to our departed was drunk in silence and Bro. H. McWho, responded. He told of the noble spirit with which their comrades and brothers had enlisted and several had paid the supreme sacrifice. The best way of remembering them is by following their example and be faithful Foresters.

The High Court

The toast to the High Court was proposed by Bro. F. Pratt, who told of the founding of the order in Leeds England in 1790, and of its success as an order. The first court in Canada met in Montreal in 1871 but the first Court that is now in existence to be established in Canada was one in Toronto in [illegible].

In response Bro. R. J. McWilliams praised the High Court for its excellent service. And the levies were very light compared with those of other societies. The first High Court met in 1882 at which there were thirty-six delegates present.

Court Stanley

The toast to Court Stanley was proposed by Bros. A. Dey and A. Laws and they spoke of the proud record of the court for its overseas enlistments and the splendid bearing of their brothers while overseas. They told of the work being carried on while some of the members had been away but now they needed all for the work of re-construction.

To The Medical Profession

The toast to the medical profession was added to the list and proposed by Bro. A. Hendry, who spoke of the sympathetic work of the medical men of the city.

The toast was replied to by Drs. Moire and King, who appreciated the kind words expressed to them. Dr King expressed his appreciation of the respect and courtesy shown to him by members of the order in any times that he had been called on to serve them.

Press and Host.

A toast to the Press and the host was proposed by Bro. R. Hendry, who spoke of the very bountiful banquet of which they had partaken. He expressed his appreciation of the manner in which the press were always ready to boost a good cause.

This long list of toasts and speeches was relieved by some excellent songs and recitations, that provided some of the best after dinner entertainment that it is possible to provide. These entertainers were Bro J. A. Smith, Bro. R. Hendry, Bro. F. Pratt and Bro. H. Farr.

A ROUSING MEETING OF CALEDONIA CLUB

A rousing and enthusiastic meeting of the Caledonian Club was held last night in the W. O. W. Hall. Seven new members were present to join the club and were heartily welcomed.

It was decided to celebrate St. Andrew's night, November 28th, by an old-fashioned Scottish entertainment. Some noted speaker will talk about St. Andrew, after which the members will enjoy some musical selections and a dance.

After last night's meeting several of the members engaged in carpet bowls. In an "old country" league game Glasgow defeated Edinburgh by 21 to 8. The teams:

The remainder of her income will be from the interest on Liberty bonds and the rental of property in Brooklyn. Mrs. Woolworth is the sole legatee under her husband's will.

BROTHERHOOD FEDERATION TO COMBAT INDUSTRIAL AND POLITICAL UNREST

Ex-Controller J. O. McCarthy of Toronto Sees the Dawn of a New Era When the Spirit of Brotherhood Will Extend Throughout the Whole World—Success of League of Nations Hinges on Such an Organization.

A large gathering of men assembled in Trinity Church last evening to hear ex-Controller J. O. McCarthy of Toronto talk on "Brotherhood in its Relations to the Industrial Problems of Today." Mr. McCarthy was accompanied by Mr. Thomas Howell, general secretary of the Brotherhood Federation. A layman, in the person of Mr. A. MacNab, made a very acceptable chairman of the proceedings.

The keynote of all address was world Brotherhood Federation to combat industrial political and religious unrest, together with community brotherhood locally, irrespective of race or creed.

Get the Men to Unite.

Mr. Howell, in the course of an address explaining the Brotherhood Federation's objective in Peterborough, declared that if we are to have a safe country there must be a bond of brotherhood among men of all faiths. Present day unrest, he said, will never find a peaceful solution until there arises a feeling of genuine brotherhood in all sorts and conditions of men; and the man who carries a dinner pail must experience a sense of brotherhood before the country settles down again to normal conditions. There will never even be a safe church, the speaker contended, without co-operative brotherhood, and "we are here," he said, "to get the men of this community, inside and outside of the church to unite in such a brotherhood." And he hoped the result will be laymen's organizations in every church, the members of which will get together with the object of keeping their community very much alive for Christian service. During the war, he pointed out, the church, as a whole, had gone into every question in connection therewith, and had lent itself to every war organization; and now, concluded Mr. McCarthy, he had come to this city to, if possible, cement together, men of every church and every interest. "Our battle cry is a brotherhood in every church and every church united in one brotherhood."

Dawn of a New Era.

Ex-Controller McCarthy spoke for a spirit of brotherhood throughout the whole world. This is a day of political, industrial and religious unrest, and yet he would not have it otherwise, for he could see in this struggle of humanity the dawn of a new era for the betterment of the world. The truth that all men are brothers is, he said, as old as the truth that God is our Father, and nineteen hundred years ago Christ taught a new brotherhood as never taught before. Man is now recovering from the worst convulsion in history, and men stand dazed at the cost in human life to save civilization to this world. But, for all that, the new brotherhood taught by Christ was re-born, taught and exemplified in the trenches in Europe—the greatest brotherhood the world has even known—where men of different races, creeds, color and interests lived and fought and died for humanity. The first need of the world at present, Mr. McCarthy went on to say, is to get some conception of that great, deep-hearted, open expression of real brotherhood which comes to all people from those trenches; and the great thought in the minds of men today is what memorial they shall build up in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice for home and empire. Pray God that memorial may take the shape of a great world-wide civilian brotherhood.

New Order of Things.

Characterizing the world's unrest as a struggle for conditions better than heretofore known, the speaker placed the responsibility for its solution upon man, who must seek and learn the remedy, and so function that humanity may be born into a

PREMIER DRURY AND HIS COLLEAGUES SWORN IN BY LIEUT.-GOVERNOR TODAY

CHARLOTTE STREET HYDRANT SMASHED

BROKE THE TOP OFF AND LEFT IT IN DANGEROUS CONDITION.

Some reckless driver, and apparently one with a heavy vehicle, ran into and broke off the hydrant on the south side of Charlotte street, half way between George and Aylmer streets. The top was knocked off the hydrant and only the spindle is holding the water in. If this main had been tapped and additional pressure put on, the water would have burst therefrom in a flood and serious damage resulted. This would have made the rest of the main ineffective.

Chief Orange extends an invitation to the party responsible to come to the fire hall and explain how it happened. A dangerous accident of this kind should be immediately reported.

IS HELD FOR TRIAL

Cecil Thompson, Toronto Man In Trouble in Belleville

Belleville, Nov. 14.—Cecil Simpson of Toronto, has been committed for trial here on a charge of highway robbery in connection with a hold-up of four Chinamen at the Royal Cafe in the early morning of the 15th inst. He is also charged with committing a similar offence at Campbellford, when with a companion named Thomas, alias Brown, of Toronto it is alleged, they held up and gagged Chas Mack, a Chinese laundryman and secured a sum of money.

London has gone over the top in the Victory Loan, and has set out to raise another million.

MEETING OF N. H. A.

Montreal, Nov. 14. — President Frank Calder of the National Hockey Association has sent out a call for a meeting to take place on Saturday, November 22.

A marble bust of the Prince of Wales is to be erected in the new Parliament Buildings at Ottawa.

Hon. Beniah Bowman, New Minister of Lands and Forests, The Only Member of New Cabinet Who Held a Seat in Last Legislature—Others are all New Men Speaker for New House Yet to be Elected.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Toronto, Nov. 14. - According to schedule the Government of the province of Ontario passed into the hands of the Farmer Coalition Cabinet, headed by Hon. Ernest Charles Drury, shortly before noon today, when the new Premier and his colleagues were sworn in at the Government House by the Lieut.-Governor, Sir John Hendrie. They then proceeded to the Legislative Buildings, where they were introduced to the staffs of their respective departments, to which in every case, each new head was practically a stranger.

Only One Old Member

Only one member of the new Cabinet, Hon. Beniah Bowman, M. P. P. for Manitoulin, and Minister of Lands and Forests, was a member of the late Legislature, and none of the others have ever had seats in the Ontario House.

Offers Of Seats

Seats in the present Legislature have yet to be found for the Primier, and for Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney General, and Hon. Manning W. Doherty, Minister of Agriculture. But it is understood that various offers of retirement from elected candidates have been received to cover these.

First Official Meeting

This afternoon the Drury Council held its first official meeting. Many matters await immediate attention. The question of electing a speaker for the new House is still to be decided. It is stated in some qutarters that Nelson Parliament, Liberal M.P. for Prince Edward, who also had U. F. O. backing, will probably be the man for this position.

Old Government Out.

Nothing could have been quieter than the leave taking of the retiring Minsters. The only statement made was that of Sir William Hearst. "In retiring from office," he said, "I have nothing to add to what I have already said, save that I recognize heartily and gratefully the staunch support for good measures which the Government has received during its term of office from the great majority of the people of Ontario. It has been an honor and a privilege to serve this great province particularly during the strenuous war period through which we have just passed, and the future prosperity and happiness of Ontario will be my dearest wish."

Mr. Drury and his Ministers will "go on the job" without further delay. With possibly one or two exceptions the Hearst Government Ministers bade goodbye to their staffs yesterday and until the new Ministers arrive, the Departments will be headless. A council meeting will be held this afternoon when the Government will take stock, but little, if any, business, will be done. One of the first official acts of the Drury Government will be the appointment of Lieut.-Col. Carmichael of Centre Grey as a member of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Although Hon. I. B. Lucas sat upon the Commission as the representative of the Government, it was stated last night that the change in Government does not automatically terminate his membership on the Hydro, the act merely declaring that there must be one representative of the administration a member. It is regarded [illegible], however, that when the new Government is installed the former Attorney-General will offer Mr. Drury his resignation. This would clear the way for a direct representative of the municipalities upon the Commission.

POLES WIN ELECTIONS

Germans Admit Their Defeat in Upper Silesia.

Paris, Nov. 14.— First reports on the municipal elections in Upper Silesia to reach Paris show the Poles obtained 75 per cent of the votes cast and say that the Germans themselves admit defeat.

Polish organs express the hope that the Entente will consider the municipal elections, which were organized by the Germans, as final, and that a plebiscite is now unnecessary, Polish opinion expressing itself in spite of what the newspapers term "unsatisfactory voting conditions."

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

FRIDAY, NOV. 14, 1919.

A SERMON BY A LAYMAN.

EX-CONTROLLER McCarthy of Toronto, who delivered an address to men in Trinity Church last night on "World Brotherhood," a universal movement in which he is one of the leading officials, is an outstanding exponent of a healthy spirit of optimism. His is the optimism of the man who has found the pathway of life fairly easy to negotiate and who is convinced that better things are yet to be attained. The world is still in its infancy. Christianity has not yet reached its highest state of development. The movement which he supports so enthusiastically is nothing new. The necessity for it has existed since the beginning of the history of the human race.

One of the finest thoughts to which Mr. McCarthy gave expression in his address last night was that perhaps the best memorial that could be established in honor of the men who fell in the war was to develop the brotherhood, the foundations of which the soldiers laid by their sacrifices.

There was a new fraternity that bound the men of the Allied army together. The basis was established for a new democracy. Personal rivalry was suppressed. Petty jealousies were unknown. Differences in creed and in social position were abolished. In the military cemeteries in Flanders the victims of the war sleep in the greatest democracy of all. A plain white cross marks the resting place of each. No costly marble shafts are seen in contrast to the lowly headstone to perpetuate even beyond the grave the class distinctions that have held men at emnity for ages, passive enmity it may be, but enmity nevertheless.

There is certainly need for the movement that Mr. McCarthy so ably and enthusiastically sponsors. The first fratricide on record occurred as early as in the second generation of the human race. There has been race rivalry ever since the days the sons of Noah strove for supremacy or since Jacob and Esau dickered for the birthright that belonged by custom of the day to the elder. Since the early days of the Bible records, human nature has shown little change. Races, creeds and nations have strived together in senseless warfare. There have been family feuds, and perhaps worst of all, the workingman and his employer have been at odds.

Two thousand years ago a Great Teacher came to earth to teach men their duty one to the other. Had His precepts been accepted the world would again have become a sinless and care-free Eden. But He was despised and rejected by those in authority in His own day. Mankind is still jangling over the interpretation of His message. The high ideals which He set are yet to be attained.

This new fraternity movement in Peterborough has started out with enthusiasm. Let it be the hope of everyone that it will not be allowed to perish in its cradle, as so many other endeavors have done in this city. Man may yet be able to realise the full import of the Nazarene's definition as to who is his neighbor. The field is wide. The world today is what foolish man has made it. The sun rises and sets; the soil yields its yearly fruits; the rain falls on the just and the unjust alike. The Creator has given humanity its opportunity. All that is required to bring heaven nearer to mankind is a working faith in the exalted teachings of Him Who spake as man never spoke before or since.

FIXING THE RESPONSIBILITY.

THE SUM and substance of the protest against strikes today is the argument that greater production is required in order to effect the temporal salvation of the world. The newspapers bristle with carefully prepared figures showing the high cost of strikes, the loss of wages to the workmen, the loss of profits to the employer. Just who is to blame for these industrial upheavals has not always been made quite clear, although in all sets of statistics the implication is obvious. Public speakers pursue the same line of argument. Fixing the responsibility is a matter which depends upon the viewpoint from which the situation is regarded. If it is a workingman who is speaking he seldom fails to refer to the greed of capital. If the speaker belongs to the other side, he is just as apt to deal with the so-called tyranny of labor.

In his address at Trinity Church last night ex-Controller McCarthy dealt with the present industrial unrest. For a man whose hands show no marks of toil and whose well-tailored garments snugly fit a frame that has never been warped by heavy manual labor, it must be conceded that Mr. McCarthy was fair in his treatment of a subject that was especially delicate, discussed as it was before an audience in which both interested classes were represented. There must be more production if the country is to survive financial disaster, he said. The national debt of Canada is two billion dollars, and the only way to meet this tremendous obligation is to manufacture for export. But right here Mr. McCarthy like so many public speakers who venture into the same field, failed to explain upon what terms this production is to be carried on or what percentage is to be allowed the two parties to the contract.

Mr McCarthy certainly did locate one cause of industrial unrest when he referred to the absent shareholder who has not personal knowledge of the men on his pay roll but who is represented by a paid superintendent.

The shareholder looks for results. Usually the superintendent who represents him is some employe promoted for his ability to drive his fellows. Sycophancy rather than efficiency is frequently his leading characteristic. All he cares about is to make a financial showing in production. Human flesh and blood is with many of these men of less importance than the machinery which it costs money to obtain. Others are as ruthless as the paid military commander who for his own glory drives men to certain death in order to reach an objective.

THE CHURCH AND THE OUTSIDER.

"IS THE CHURCH ready for the outsider?" asked Mr. McCarthy during his address at Trinity Church last night, an address any man in the audience, no matter what his station, must be all the better today for having heard.

What is the situation in Peterborough? No one doubts that the Church, manned by an earnest and efficient staff of clergymen, regardless of denomination, men who are faithful to the end in every high trust that has been placed in their keeping, are burning with zeal to minister to the spiritual needs of those who rarely, if ever, come within sound of their voice. In that regard the church is certainly ready for the outsider. But what about those who occupy the pews today? What about the accommodation provided?

Not all the churches, handsome and creditable edifices as they are, are filled to capacity at the regular services. There is still room for some, but not for all of the outsiders. It has been estimated by careful compilers that if every man and women in Peterborough attended church regularly it would at once be made apparent that the present church buildings are inadequate to take care of them all and that the seating capacity would be short by at least ten thousand. That is one reason why it has been deemed advisable at times to hold evangelistic services in a tent or some other unconsecrated structure in order to reach those who attend no place of worship regularly.

Perhaps the people in the pews have an important part to play in searching the highways for the non-church goer. As before stated, the pastors are ready to do even as they have been commanded, and yet there is room. The stranger who drops into a place of worship may or may not be welcomed as such by the regular attendants. But Sunday affability for the church guest is not sufficient. The interest which so many of the pew-holders show for the man or woman visitor is not sufficient unless it is continued throughout the six secular days of the week. Friendship put on and laid aside with the Sunday garments avails little. Humanity has little faith in the good fellowship that extends them a set welcome one day in the week and cuts them dead on the other six.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

CONGRATULATING COOLIDGE.

(Buffalo Express.)

From President Wilson down, everybody is congratulating Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts—everybody except the Bolsheviki, who hissed the news in New York. Here is a warning to politicians who may imagine from some scattered local incidents that Bolshevism opens a road to office.

LIKED THE OLD WAY.

(Druggists' Circular.)

Perhaps you have heard of the fellow who took wheat to the mill with rocks in one end of the sack to balance the load on the horse's back, and when someone asked him why he didn't divide the wheat in both ends of the sack, said that he had always used rocks.

JAPAN'S CHEAP GOODS.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

The gossip from Paris to the effect that Great Britain is not likely to renew her so-called "offensive" treaty with Japan, which soon expires by limitation, may be utterly wrong, but it is none the less significant.

England, like the United States, cannot fail to see that cheap factory labor in Japan and rapid extension of that nation's merchant marine constitute a menace, so far as the world's trade is concerned. Goods made at less than half the cost of other goods must sell as against those other goods, whoever makes them. The purchaser consults his own pocketbook. And in England, as in the United States, Labor is running up its demands to what the Japanese workers in the same lines would regard as inconceivable figures.

CANADA'S DEBT OVER A BILLION

RE-CONSTRUCTION WORK CREATES HEAVY EXPENDITURE—INCREASED REVENUES

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—A considerable falling away in the amount of increases in the net debt of the Dominion is shown in the October financial statement as compared with the figures for September. During October the debt grew to the extent of $35,545,015. During September the increase was nearly sixty-five millions. The net debt now stands at $1,749,221,792. At the close of September, 1918, or one year and one month ago, it stood at $1,224,227,892, or approximately $225,000,000 less than at the end of October, 1919.

War expenditures since April 1, the beginning of the Dominion's fiscal year, have aggregated $206,085,707. For the same period last year they were $169,574,417. These figures indicate that the demobilization of the army has been more costly than its maintenance in the field. That this expenditure is rapidly decreasing, however, is indicated in the war expenditures for October alone, a month which witnessed but a small homeward movement of fighting men. For October the expenditure was $22,345,482, while in October, 1918, the war cost the Dominion treasury $66,610,092. It has been estimated that subsequent to the close of the current fiscal year the sum of fifty million dollars will complete the work of demobilization.

Growth of Revenue.

The revenue side of the statement is encouraging. For the seven months period since April 1, revenues have totalled $186,408,794. For the same period last year they were $164,414,126. For October alone revenues totalled $27,323,234 as compared with $23,431,234 for October, 1918. Ordinary expenditures on the other hand rose from $81,107,824 for the seven months period in 1918 to $159,049,406 from April 1 to October 31st this year. Expenditures on capital account jumped from approximately nine millions last year to over twenty-four millions this year, due to the renewal of activities in connection with the construction of public works, including railways.

EX-KAISER A SPIRITUALIST

Among the German people there are many who believe the former Kaiser is and always will be a confirmed Spiritualist. Spiritualistic tendencies, it is said, have always been in the Hohenzollern blood. In a book published in Germany some years ago it was declared that the Kaiser not only was inclined to Spiritualism, but accepted it as an objective truth, and even went so far as to carry in his watchcase a fragment of the garment of a medium.

Ontario's New Attorney-General Has Been Prominent in Reforms

William E. Raney, K.C., Attorney-General in the rury Cabinet, was born near, Aultsville, Ont., on the farm next to where the late Premier Sir James Whitney was brought up. He attended High School at St. Catharines under the principalship of the late Dr. John Seath, afterwards Superintendant of Education for Ontario, and later was a teacher in the same school. He attended Osgoode Hall and Trinity College at the same time, and graduated in civil law from Trinity woth the gold medal of the class. After graduating he spent about six years in newspaper work in the State of Maine, and at Kingston, and began the practice of his profession at the latter place, but after two or three years he moved to Toronto, about 1892. He is now with the legal firm of Mills, Raney and Dewar. He has been prominent as counsel for the Ontario Alliance and for the "reformers," who have waged war against race track "gambling." He is 58 years of age, has been, and is, a Liberal, and a Presbyterian, though his brother is a Methodist minister. Incidentally, he is Toronto's only representative in the Cabinet. In the retiring Hearst Cabinet, the city had two members—Hon. H. J. Cody and Hon. W. D. McPherson.

(The Drury Cabinet consists of eight F. O. members, two Labor men and one Liberal.)

FARMERS ARE NOT PROFITEERS

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Observance of food bills of two families living near the stockyards district, made by David O. Thompson, secretary of the Illinois Agricultural Association, shows that the farmer is getting a very small percentage of the money paid out by the average American family, while the wholesaler, broker, retailer and others who "get in on" the spread between the producer and the consumer get the rest. As the scale of living mounts the percentage of the food bills that the farmer gets becomes smaller, according to Mr. Thompson.

"With the small family the farmer gets something like 30 per cent., while a meal at the high priced cafes or hotels gives the farmer only about 5 per cent. of the total paid," said Mr. Thompson.

"The producer is not responsible for the kiting of prices of commodities. This was established in recent investigations [illegible]

Checks Family's Food Expense.

He went on to tell of the experiments conducted. The first test, he said, was made with the Lindh family at 539 West 44th place. Gust Lindh, head of the household, is a janitor. Every cent of the $20 he earns in a week goes for food, clothing and housing his seven children, ranging in ages from 7 months to 12 years. His wife, Mary, does her share in keeping the poor but happy little family comfortable by constant mending and making over of clothes.

Gust consented to allow the agricultural association to keep track of what it costs to feed his family, in an effort to determine who was responsible for the high prices of the food they ate. It was found that the total food bill of the family for one week was $16.95, leaving only $3.05 for rent, clothes and fuel. The four necessaries of life coming almost directly from Illinois farms were included in the list of foodstuffs tabulated. For nineteen and one-half loaves of bread, eight and three-quarters pounds of meat, twenty-two quarts of milk and eight pounds of potatoes the family paid $8.35. It was estimated the farmer got only $3.48 out of this. Three dollars and twenty cents was paid for the bread by the family. It was found, according to Mr. Thompson, that the farmer received only 84c for the wheat that went into the making.

Thus a reduction of only 1 cent would be the result of a 75 per cent reduction in the price of wheat by the producer. It was also discovered that the price of the potatoes and the twenty-two quarts of milk was increased 100 per cent. after they left the farmer.

Farmer Gets 42 Per Cent.

"The farmer," said Mr. Thompson, "received only 91 cents of the $1.78 charged the Lindh family for the meat. Our figures show that the farmer gets 42 per cent. of the money this family spends. The farmer who owns or rents the land puts a year in plowing, sowing, reaping and thrashing the wheat crop and gets only 3.1 cents of the 10 cents charged for a loaf of bread. We picked the family that used the cheapest food and showed economy so the figures would be fair."

Another family with two children, using a higher class of food and a little more of it was found to pay $10.18 for the four necessities, the farmer getting only $4.23, or 41 per cent.

"City people know they cannot afford to eat food that is sold by the producer for less than the cost of production," continued Thompson. "It would mean farmers would raise less and in a very short time the food would be very much higher. Farmers are ready to cut the cost of production to the very limit and make living as cheap as possible if others will do the same, but the farmer cannot do it alone. Everything he buys, from binder twine to farm machinery, is high and there has been no reduction in price."

The association is now working on figures to show how much the farmer's prices for hides and wool have to do with the high prices of shoes and clothing.

Secretary Houston Here.

Secretary of Agriculture Houston has arrived in Chicago to discuss with commissioners of agriculture from nearly every state in the union problems that face the farmer and the stand that agricultural interests must take in the industrial unrest prevalent now. He will address the convention of agriculturists this evening, as will John McSparren, member of the executive committee of the national board of farm organizations.

LUMBER JACK WHO IS ACCUSED OF MURDER

WALKS 100 MILES IN ORDER TO CLEAR HIS NAME

Quebec, Nov. 1[illegible] — Tramping his way through muskeg and forest, across mountains and ridges, over rivers and creeks, walking by forced marches, Joseph Godbout, a sturdy lumberjack of St. Georges, Beauce, but at present foreman in the camps of the John A. Morrison Company, away up in Maine, arrived in Jackman, Maine for the sole purpose of proving he had nothing to do whatever with a recent murder.

He said he had tramped his way to civilization just to show himself and find out who started the talk that he had something to do in connection with the recent murder of Nelson W. Bartley, hotelkeeper at Jackman, who was murdered in the bush.

Godbout had a quarrel with Bartley some time ago, and when the dead body of the latter was found hidden beneath the tree trunk in the woods close to the Quebec border, people recalled the dispute between Godbout and Bartley, and some hinted that Godbout may have had some knowledge of the crime.

Godbout heard of this talk about him so decided to hike it back to Jackman, starting from the head of the waters of the St John River and that he may prove he knew nothing of Bartley's death.

DETECTIVE FORCE IS OFFERED OCCULT AID

CLAIRVOYANT TELLS THEM WHERE MURDEROUS BURGLAR MAY BE FOUND

Toronto, Nov. 13. Efforts to have the detective force ascend to the twentieth plane yesterday failed.

They were assured that at this altitude they could capture the gunman who shot P. C. Milton. The clairvoyant who volunteered this dream or spirit-inspired advice as a means to solve the mystery explained matters thus:

A few nights ago he went into a trance. While there he saw a burglar shoot P. C. Milton twice, run West down Walton street, and then take a train for Hamilton, where he hid in a cellar for two days. After this the gunman went to Dundas, where the story runs, he will now be found driving a mud-covered waggon, to which was hitched a roan horse. Even the man's name was furnished the detectives.

With this wealth of detail the task of the force should be easy. But a seance held at the G.N.W. office at which a "medium" produced strange tappings from a telegraph instrument, failed to bring any confirmation from the spirit or the practical world at Dundas.

Will of Chas. L. Freer, art collector, leaves a collection representing the bulk of his $3,000,000 estate, to the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, and provides for a $1,200,000 building to house it.

TOOK HOG TO CHURCH.

Queen of Hawaii Loved Her Strange Pet.

Once there was a Queen in Hawaii, who had carefully reared a favorite hog, making of it, as was a common practice of the heathen days of the islands, a household pet. In after years when she had become a devout Christian and faithfully attended the services held by the missionaries, the hog, which had grown to enormous size, with a pair of great tusks protruding from his jaws, insisted on accompanying her to the church. He waddled in after her and took his place beside her, much to her inconvenience and annoyance.

But the hog knew no better: in his mistress' pagan days great affection had been lavished upon him and he was accustomed to follow her about. The idea of such a porcine pet is repulsive to the civilised mind because of the filthy habits of the hog, but when Christian missionaries first went to the Hawaiian Island hogs were the pets and playthings of the Hawaiian women. In many instances their own children were buried alive, or drowned or strangled by these unnatural mothers, and they lavished upon a hog the care and affection which they refused their children.

Christianity was early embraced by virtually all the Hawaiians because members of the royal family were the earliest converts made by the missionaries, and they helped overthrow the native idols and priestcraft. But the Hawaiians are no longer in the ascendancy in their own islands and Buddhism is making a stronghold there.

The Japanese now greatly outnumber the Hawaiians and, while many of the former are Christians, Buddhist temples may be found in the islands and the number of worshippers is increasing. The Episcopal Church, which took over the work of the Church of England in the islands when they were annexed to the United States, ministers to the bodily and spiritual needs not only of the native Hawaiians, but also of the Japanese, Chinese, Koreans, Portuguese and other nationalities represented there.

When Captain Cook, the famous English navigator, discovered the Hawaiian islands in 1778, the natives had to invent a new name for the discoverer and his crew, as they had never before seen white men. They bestowed upon them the choicest appellation in their language, for Captain Cook was taken by them to be their God Lono, returning to their shores after a long absence. They called him Hoali.

Now Hoali means white hog. The name carried no idea of disrespect whatever. Hogs were the largest animals found upon the islands and they were regarded by the people with great admiration and respect. They were also very acceptable to the gods and were more often sacrificed to them instead of human victims. However, the Hawaiians named better than they knew, for many of the white men who settled in the islands were hogs in everything but shape and appearance, as the missionaries found to their cost, and did their best to corrupt the early Christian converts there for the benefit of their pocketbooks.

A Crowded Cable to Japan.

In view of the fact that Japan, for commercial, diplomatic, press, and other purposes, had occasion in 1918 to cable some 5,000,000 words, or the equivalent of a library of 50 stout books, to the United States, and estimates that the necessity will immediately rise to cable at least 7,000,000 words a year, the inadequacy of the Japan-America cable is a matter of considerable concern. The matter was considered recently at a meeting of influential Japanese at the Bankers Club, Tokio, and a movement started looking toward better cable facilities. At present there is but one cable between the two countries, and as this is also used for communication between America and the Philippines, Japan has but half the use of it. As was said at the Bankers Club meeting, this limited ability for the exchange of speech between the nations is an element of misunderstanding, for in both countries misleading rumors get about and do harm because it is impossible to establish their falsity by prompt cable service. One may foresee before very long the laying of a new cable under the Pacific, whose modest equipment compared with the eighteen Atlantic cables, shows how the importance of communication across the one ocean has until lately predominated over the other.

Famous Old Church.

In a citadel at the foot of Mount Sinai is a church and a monastery that have been uninterruptedly used for more than thirteen hundred years. The light before the tabernacle has been burning all those centuries. The church was built by St. Helena, mother of Constantine, and is on the traditional site of the burning bush where Moses heard the voice of Jehovah.

The citadel just mentioned is of cut stones and buttresses and ramparts and towers. So thick are the walls that rooms and chapels are found inside of them.

In that monastry are unknown ancient manuscripts and works of Christian art, the products of the monks for 1,300 years.

Prayer.

An old darky, who was asked if in his experience prayer was ever answered, replied: "Well, sah, some pra'rs is ansued an' some isn't—'pends upon what yo' asks for'. I obsarve dat w'en ebber I pray de Lo'd to sen' one o' Massa Peyton's fat chickens fo' de old man, dere is no notice took ob de partition, but w'en I pray dat he send de old man fo' de chicken, de t'ing is tended to befo' sunup nex' mornin' dear sartin."

Greece has a total of 2,213 factories, employing 36,124 workers.

BULBS FOR BRIGHTENING

Outdoor Culture of Hardy Spring Flowering Bulbs.

An Open Situation Desirable and Reasonable Care In Planting With Protection During the First Winter—Fall Pasture for Stock.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THERE is probably no class of plants that gives more satisfaction and are more thoroughly appreciated by the flower lover than a collection of spring flowering bluts, flowering as they do from quite early in spring, even before the winter covering of snow has entirely left us, until well on into the early months of summer before but very few of the other border plants are in flower. Their bright flowers are doubly acceptable on this account.

Location.— Bulbs are best planted where there is good drainage and where no surface water lies in winter or early spring. When planted in masses or beds, it is best to have the soil in the centre of the bed a few inches higher than the margin, so as to pitch the water off readily. Bulbs succeed best planted in an open situation and not too close under buildings or under the dense shade of trees. For the later flowering kinds of bulbs, however, that flower about the end of May, such as the Darwin type of tulip, a little shade prolongs the length of the blooming season considerably.

Soil.—The best kind of soil for bulbs in a moderately, rich, light, loamy soil. They will succeed fairly well in a sandy soil, but do not give as fine blooms as in soil of a loamy nature. If the soil is of a clayey nature, dig in some sand or black soil from the bush, or both, to lighten it. Fresh strawy manure should never be dug into the soil when planting. If manure is applied at planting time, it should be well decayed, barnyard manure, almost the nature of the soil itself, even then it should be dug in an inch or two underneath the bulbs so as not to touch them.

When to Plant Bulbs.—The best time for planting outdoor bulbs is about the second or third week in October, although bulbs may be planted until the ground is frozen over for the winter, even as late as the end of November or early in December. Later planted bulbs do not, as a rule, however, give as good results. The soil should be thoroughly dug and raked fine before planting.

Depth to Plant.—All of these smaller growing bulbs should be planted from two to three inches under the soil and quite thickly together, an inch and a half or two inches apart, to give a good effect. The Tulips, Dutch Hyacinths and Narcissi grow about twelve to eighteen inches in height and can be dotted in masses or blocks in flower beds, or in groups more towards the back of a perennial border. They are also very effective planted in groups among or around shrubs. Tulips and Narcissi should be planted about four inches under the surface of the soil and about six inches apart. A group of these of a circular or oval shape, fifteen to twenty inches in diameter, especially Narcissi, has a very pleasing and bright effect in early spring, dotted here and there over the perennial or mixed border.

Protecting Bulbs in Winter.—All bulbs, especially late planted ones, are best protected during the first winter, as it prevents the bulbs from heaving and lifting. Bulbs that have become well established in the border require very little if any protection in winter. Long, strawy manure, straw or coarse grass about three or four inches in depth, make a good winter covering. Green pine boughs laid over the manure prevent unsightliness. Pine boughs alone make a good winter protection. Dutch Hyacinths especially need some protection in winter, as they are not as hardy as Tulips and Narcissi. The covering should be taken off about the end of March or early in April, when the weather has become settled. Remove the covering part at a time, taking away the wet underneath part first and replacing an inch or so of the lighter part for a week or so until the top growth of bulbs becomes hardened to the weather. Hot sun is often as injurious to bulb growth as late spring frosts.

Hardy Kinds to Plant.—Tall growing, 1 to 2 feet:

Narcissus—Emperor, Empress, Bicolor Victoria, Golden Spur, Poeticus, Poeticus ornatus, Barri sonspicua, Mrs. Langtry, Stella, Poeticus Elvira.

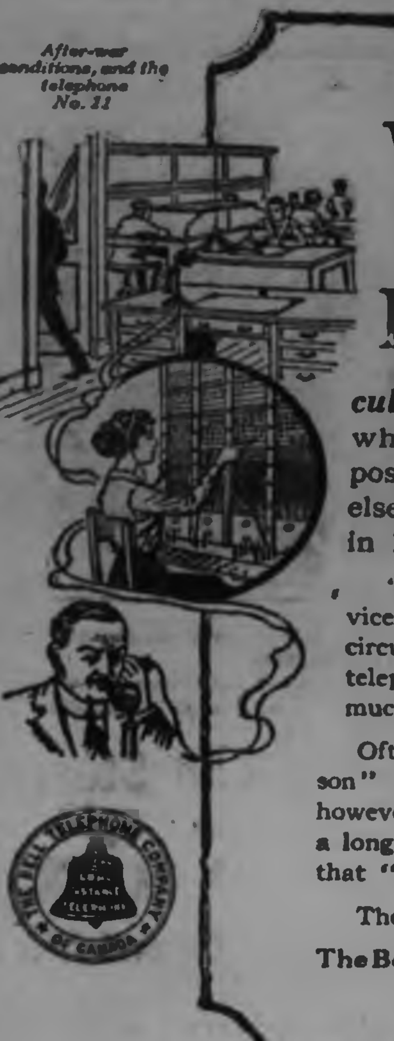
Tulips—Darwin, Cottage Garden and Early Flowering in variety.

Dwarf-growing kinds, 6 inches to 1 foot high—Crocus in variety, Scilla, Chionodoxa (Glory of the Snow), Leucojum (Snowflake). The Paper White Narcissus, Chinese Sacred Lily, and the Roman Hyacinths are not hardy enough for planting out of doors. They are only useful for growing indoors.—W. H. Hunt, Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Pasture Necessary for Stock in Fall.

One of the essential factors in keeping live stock in good condition through the fall and early winter, which is highly important, is good fall pasture, says Andrew Boss, vice-director of the Minnesota Experiment Station. Nothing excells the grasses for pasture, though mixtures of the grasses and clover are better than either grasses or clover alone and furnish the best kind of feed for all kinds of stock. Where an abundance of cultivated grasses can be obtained for pasture no further attention need be given the subject. Meadow aftermath containing clover, or timothy and clover, makes good fall feed. Clover growing in the stubble field is also an excellent fall pasture.

—U S. Representative Reavis said motor cars valued at $310,000,000 were sold to France at 20 cents on the dollar, many havin gbeen sent abroad after the armistice.



After-war conditions, and the telephone No. 11

Will Anyone Else Do?

IN placing a Long Distance telephone call, users sometimes ask to speak to a particular person in the distant city, whereas it would serve their purpose equally well to talk to anyone else at that person's telephone or in his office.

"Particular person" long distance service takes from 2 to 5 times as much circuit time as a call from telephone to telephone, and the operating labor is much greater.

Oftentimes of course, "particular person" service is necessary. We suggest, however, that where possible when placing a long distance call you tell the operator that "anyone at that number will do."

The saving of time is worth while.

Permanent Colors.

Ancient Egyptians had a marvelous knowledge of colors, and they understood fully what colors would last. In the Egyptian papyri the ground colors are as good as ever they were. The Egyptians worked their outlines in lampblack, used clay for their whites, ferruginous earths for their reds, ochres for their yellows, and for greens they used perhaps green jasper or mixed blue carbonate of copper with ochre. All these colors are permanent.

Relative Value of Milks.

The fat globules of goats' milk are so small that cream rises very slowly. This quality, however, gives to the milk a uniform richness not possessed by cows' milk. There are now several condensed milk factories using goats' milk, which is condensed and sold for infant feeding. Many thousands of infants are compelled to live during their first few months on condensed cows' milk, and it is not the best food for their stomachs.

No Such Word as Fail.

There is a difference between not succeeding and failing. The one is final; the other is only a temporary hindrance. If you persevere in spite of not succeeding, if you start again and act on the knowledge you have gained by your slip, it will not work you lasting injury. It is only when you surrender that you are really beaten. There is no such word as "fail" to one who will not give up.

Humor in the Classroom.

Ethel, who was ten years old, was studying her reader, and learned that fish are placed in brine before they are dried and prepared for sale. After explaining that brine is very salt water, the teacher asked why the fish were placed in it. Ethel's face was illuminated with sudden understanding, and she promptly replied: "Because they are used to salt water."

Power of Imagination.

To those who see only with their eyes, the distant is always indistinct and little, becoming less and less as it recedes, till utterly lost; but to the imagination, which thus reverses the perspective of the senses, the far off is great and imposing, the magnitude increasing with the distance.—Mrs. Jameson (Studies).

FEMALE RULERS.

Women in Germany Take Advantage of the Suffrage.

Germany's suffragettes who are not militant have been quick to seize the opportunities for equal rights with men that are offered by the new constitution. Greater Berlin gained the honor during the last week of September of choosing a woman as alderman, the first to hold the place. Kolpenick, a Berlin suburb, made famous by the laughable exploit of William Voigt, the cobbler, elected as alderman Frau Emelie Ehm, an ultra-radical Independent Socialist. Potsdam, too, has elected its first woman town councillor, Fraulein Kroen, an employe in a telegraph office there.

A statistical investigation discloses the remarkable fact that nearly seven per cent. of all Germany's legislators are women. One hundred and fifty-three women are sitting in German Parliaments. The heaviest representation is 28 in the National Assembly, and there are 21 in the Prussian Assembly. The highest percentage of women is in the miniature Parliament of the little principality of Reuss, where there are three women to 18 male legislators. In the Gotha Assembly also, where there are two women to 19 men, and in the Hamburg Assembly, which numbers 17 women out of 184 legislators. Eighteen state parliaments in Germany have women, only seven have not. It is significant that of Germany's women legislators the largest number, 64, are Social Democrats, 37 belong to the Democratic party, 19 to the Catholic Centre, 13 are Independent Socialists, nine are Reactionary Conservatives.

Following the example of the first English militant suffragettes, Hans Bender, a Spartacist leader, went on a hunger strike in the Rogel Jail recently. Bender commanded the Spartacist garrison, which occupied the Wolff Telegraph Bureau building during the Spartacist revolt last January. He refused food for five days, in protest against what he called "treatment unworthy of human beings." The jail authorities refused to permit food to be taken to Bender from outside after they found a steel saw in a loaf of bread that was brought in to him. Bender recovered his appetite.

The Bees of Montmartre.

In the window of a storekeeper of the Rue Montmartre a swarm of bees has settled. So curious an event could not pass without notice and Le Temps, worthy descendant of Montaigne and the Bonhomme Fontaine, sets about culling the lesson it contains. It would fain hail the bees as a happy presage of the abatement in the crisis of the country's [illegible] ing. But this may well not be the bees' message and intention. Offended at the cupidity of the countrymen who, because of the great plentifulness of honey, have not hesitated to raise the price from the pre-war 100 francs to 800 for 100 kilos, the bees may well have abandoned their haunts to open a fresh establishment in a street of Paris. So thinks Le Temps, and who would care to cavil, knowing something of the mysterious ways of bees? There is tradition backing the moral. It was said formerly by many that bees dislike avarice above all things. They will serve men but will not be exploited by them. Their honey must be sold at one price, the price fixed long ago and if anybody with an eye to profit hazards adding an extra sou the bees will go, leaving the profiteer weeping before empty hives. So it was believed in old France and the bees, who have long memories, may have thought the warning timely.

House Cleaning for St. Sophia.

A house cleaning such as has not happened at St. Sophia since the Turks captured Constantinople will presently take place and signalize the return of the old and splendid edifice to Christian control. The Turks have always been cheerfully indifferent to the opinion of other nationalities, and so St. Sophia stands to-day as what one might even call a "horrible example" of Turkish housekeeping, and the British commission which has been formed to restore the edifice to Christian hands will have work in plenty for house cleaners, painters, decorators, and everybody else who normally engages in architectural cleansing and renovating. Dust has collected in the corners and elsewhere for more than five centuries, for the Turkish idea of cleaning things up was an occasional whitewashing, and the whitewashing had little or no respect for the beauties of Byzantine decoration that distinguished the church in its earlier glory. The house cleaning of St. Sophia, moreover, will penetrate into the vaults of the basilica and open many a closed or secret door behind which may be treasures concealed by the clergy when the Turks were attacking the city. Documents may be found in this house cleaning that will astonish the modern world and tell it things now unknown about the life of the past.

Purest Music In the World.

The song which Japanese workmen sing when raising the rooftree of a new building ranks with the purest music in the world, according to Henry Eichman, a Boston composer, who is spending a year in Japan studying Oriental music. He said in Tokio: "The Orientals have evolved by the process of elimination a perfect music. If we could think as Orientals think we would realize the absolute simplicity and perfection of art life." As he goes about Japan he takes notes on the sound of temple bells, with their beautiful overtones, with the view of making them themes for his compositions.

BUILDING NEW NATIONS

CENTRAL EUROPE WILL NOT BE "BALKANIZED."

Small Nations Liberated and Created By the Great War Must Be Given Strong Support Until Fully Organized and They Will Then Prove Effective Barrier Against German Aggression If It Comes Again to Life.

SINCE the fall of Bela Kun's Government in Hungary, there is a possibility of restoring peace and order in the Central European states, which have arisen out of the ruins of the Austro-Hungarian monarchy. There are some short-sighted politicians who consider the present "political structure of Central Europe as being "Balkanized," under which term they understand a permanent danger to peace. Their reasoning may be summed up as follows:

In the place of Austria-Hungary, which, despite all its faults, represented a coherent economic entity, a number of small antagonistic states have been created, whose jealousy will endanger the future peace of Europe. Therefore, something resembling the former dual monarchy must be restored."

Setting aside the total impossibility of reconstituting anything resembling the former Austria-Hungary, let us see whether Central Europe, in its present form, constitutes a greater danger to the future peace of Europe than was the case with the old Hapsburg monarchy. First of all, there is no "balkanization" of Central Europe in the old sense of the term. The creation of the national states by itself does not mean "balkanization." On the contrary, the revival of old historical units such as Poland or Tzecho-Slovakia, and the accomplishment of the national unity of the other states, like Roumania and Jugo-Slavia, by the adhesion of their irredentist minorities, have not balkanized, but debalkanized the whole of Central Europe, removing finally the Austro-Hungarian anomaly, which it was impossible to hold together any longer. It was, moreover, nothing else than the logical application of the idea of self-determination, which constituted one of the leading war-aims of the allies, and the final result of which is the League of Nations.

The existence of such unnatural states as Austria-Hungary and Turkey constituted, indeed, a permanent danger to European peace. Apart from the dominating Germans and Magyars, all the nations—the Tzecho-Slovaks, Poles, Roumanians, and Jugo-Slavs, numbering about 30,000,000—wanted to break from it, and no force could keep them permanently under a foreign yoke. Now these 30,000,000 people are free, living under their own sovereignty.

An economic co-operation among the Tzecho-Slovaks, Jugo-Slavs, Roumanians, and Poles appears to be almost certain. Whether the Austro-Germans and Magyars will be included in this co-operation depends on their attitude. If the Austro-Germans will once and for all renounce their claims to the preferential treatment to which they have been accustomed up till now, I do not think that any of the former Austro-Hungarian nations will refuse to co-operate with them.

In order to prevent any possible "balkanization" of central Europe, the policy of the great European powers should consist in assisting the consolidation of the new states, whilst suppressing the principal cause of disagreement among them, in bringing them every economic and moral support in their internal difficulties, and arriving at a peaceful solution of their differences on a correct economic and ethnographic basis.

In order to realize all this, it will, of course, be necessary to have a practical basis of action. It will be necessary to look for it among the new states which, by their geographical position, economic resources, consolidated government, and their high degree of civilization, will be capable of constituting the stable points in the central European bloc.

The new nations, like the Tzecho-Slovaks, who by their attitude during the war have proved their capacity to become a strong, stable political force for the realization of the logical result of this war, so far as Central Europe is concerned, will render possible the constitution of a mighty group of the new states extending from Dantzig to Matapan as a powerful barrier against an aggressive Germany, as well as against any eventual disintegrating forces from the East. Such a bulwark as this could not be broken by any Pan-German "Drang nach Osten."

This political and economic barrier and "liaison" wedged between the East and West would never allow of the junction of Germany and Russia as possible allies, menacing the results of this war. It would be a mistake to believe that Germany will not attempt to regain her former economic position. The old spirit of Germany will again push toward the East, and may succeed if the allies' policy does not prevent it.

There is a good opportunity for British trade to plant itself in the market of the East. The new states are ready to offer a good field for British peaceful economic influence, and to serve as a solid "porta orientalia" for the future British trade policy.

The task of the future, therefore, is to determine and support what unites the Central European states for this work and to establish the necessary basis of the new constellation; in a word it means finally to inaugurate a new Central European policy, conscious of its aims.

HABITS OF OYSTERS.

Adventurous While Young and Then Settle Down.

The old joke about an oyster's likeness to an elephant, inasmuch as neither of them [illegible] loses its point somewhat when one sees oysters and plenty of them actually growing on mangroves in Florida.

Far above the water at that. But, of course, it is at low tide, along the shores of tidal river or estuary, that the bivalves are thus exposed to view, on the wide-spreading mangrove roots.

We are accustomed to think of the oyster as the most sedentary of animals, but naturalists say that once upon a time it possessed organs of locomotion and was fond of traveling. Not on land, be it understood, but in the water.

After a while some particularly wise oysters made the happy discovery that by attaching themselves to a rock in a suitable spot, where plenty of food was floating about, they could get a much better living. Their progeny adopted the same idea, and so it happens that oysters to-day stay at home.

They still begin life, however, as free swimming animals, not settling down until they are a few days old; and then it is a question of finding a rock or an old shell, or some other hard and mud-free object, to which to attach themselves.

The young oyster lucky enough to acquire a permanent home attains the size of a five-cent piece by the time it is six weeks old. In four or five years it grows big enough to be ready for market. Under favorable circumstances it may live twenty-five or thirty years.

The female oyster lays some millions of eggs in a batch. Which is fortunate, because, floating in the water, they can be fertilized only by accidentally coming into contact with the "milt" of the male turned loose in like manner. Once hatched, the baby bivalve runs frightful risks during its free-swimming period, the chance being at least hundreds to one that it will be eaten. If it escapes, there is still the problem of finding a place to settle down.

An "oyser experiment station" established by the state of New Jersey has made a special study of the artificial propagation of oysters, and has found that 98 per cent. of the eggs can be fertilized and hatched in water of proper temperature, density and degree of saltness.

In other words, if we chose, we could breed unlimited numbers of oysters in captivity; and it has been suggested that, thus brought into the world, they might be reared to thumb-nail size in shallow concrete-lined ponds giving admittance to the tides. By this means could be obtained any quantity of "seed" oysters.

CLERGY AND LAITY ON STIPEND QUESTION

Increased stipends for ministers is a subject which has caused innumerable small flares within the portals of the church, and now the columns of the organ of the Church of England in Canada, the Canadian Churchman, are being devoted to a hot controversy on this question. Recently the Churchman has devoted several editorials to the subject of clergymen's salaries. A recent edition published a letter from "A Churchman," whose name was not disclosed, and now comes a scathing answer to the "Churchman's letter, written by one who signs himself "A Minister of God."

Laity Squirms

"Churchman said in part: "We are continually hearing of the poor, underpaid minister, and, no doubt, it is true their salaries are low in some cases. The onus of meanness or poor-paying abilities is thrown on the laity. I am of the laity, and I squirm when I read these articles. Why not argue the question from the layman's standpoint?

"Now, as a business proposition we pay our ministers a given salary. They are supposed to fill certain duties and work for the upbuilding of the Church; in fact, salary or no salary their ordination vows bind them to devote themselves in this way. Many do it, for their are some godly men among them, but many do not, but expect an increased stipend every once in a while."

Does Nothing

He states that the preacher of his church is a young man;, well able to work hard, but that he does 'practically nothing"; that the church has a profusion of services which no one attends. except on Sunday, and that the preacher makes no pastoral calls; never consults anyone regarding anything, but "rules his parish by staying home and directing things by phone."

Shorter Hours of Work.

"He has home comforts I can't afford, and I work harder and longer hours in a week than he does in six months.

"Am I to go down deeper in my pocket to increase his stipend; Not on your life, Mr. Editor!" he concludes.

Church Just a Store

"Minister of God," replies: "The Church to him is not the Body of Christ, but just a departmental store whilst the clergy are not the ministers of God, but merely employees of 'the people.' He says the given salary is a business(sic) proposition. What business would ever succeed on the amount of capital put into the work of any ordinary parish? The highest qualifications are expected, university degrees, pulpit oratory and efficiency in every department on church work, ministerial and otherwise.

"The stipend patronizingly offered for all this would insult a street-cleaner or a coal heaver. Let clerical work be paid for by the piece, as the work of lawyers and directors is, and at the same rate. "The people' would then be crying out for less work on the clergy's part.

All Family on Job.

"Moreover, in what other profession is the wife expected to work also? Neither in the law, the medical profession, the civil service, or in the army and navy is this expected. The clergy's households are just as private as other people' and although members of their families are always willing to help in any good work, they justly resent the assumed claim upon them because they happen to live at the rectory. If the people want the official help of the clergy's families, let it be paid for as a 'business proposition' and not dishonestly assumed as a right for the miserly stipend paid for the work of one.

Commerce in Church.

"'A Churchman' voices the popular opinion, that the clergy' should not only do their work, but they should earn the stipend paid— e.g., get it together by begging, by box socials, corn roasts, sing songs, dances, etc. What other man after doing his work, is expected to wait for, and to even hunt for, his pay in the same scandalous way that the clergy have to do?

Services are Ordered.

"As to the 'profusion of services,' does the writer not know that the Prayer Book directs morning and evening prayer, to be said daily in the church, besides the Litany on Wednesdays and Fridays, and the due observance of holy days? Yet these together with three or four services a week, and multitudinous details of modern ministerial life, are regarded as 'nothing' unless the clergy are continually 'on the road.' paying social and conventional calls on those pious souls who contribute ten cents a week towards the Church of God It is not true pastoral calls in which the Word is read and explained prayer offered, the conscience laid bare, spiritual advice sought and given, that are wanted, but visits in which, as one family said, 'We have lots of fun.'

"If people only come to church because visited, then let every parish church be closed. Non-church-goers live in a professedly enlightened age; with the gospel brought to their very doorstep, they know their duties, and wouldn't resent being thought ignorant or irreligious. This knowledge and these opportunities are their condemnation."

PRINCE OF WALES IS MET IN WASHINGTON

BY MEMBER OF CONGRESS AND OTHER PROMINENT OFFICIALS

Washington, ov. 13.— The Prince of Wales, as guest of the nation, came into personal touch with Government officials at the most formall event of his stay here, a reception to all members of Congress and their families in the halls of the library of Congress. Members of the Cabinet and the diplomatic corps also attended. The setting served to add to the significance of the Prince's visit, designed to make fully apparent the friendly relationship today existing between the two Anglo-Saxon peoples

The Prince went to the reception from the home of Secretary Lansing, where with Mrs. Lansing, the Secretary had entertained him at dinner. He paid hommage to American soldiers wounded in France, earlier in the day, when he inspected the Walter Reed Military Hospital, and in a brief address hailed these men who have paid the price of liberty as "My comrades-in-arms."

Joins the Red Cross

The Prince also was enrolled formally as a member of the American Red Cross during the day, paying a dollar for the honor during his visit to Red Cross headquarters. The badge of membership was pinned on his breast by Mrs. Farrand, wife of of the Red Cross Central Committee.

"May I in return present you with a dollar, which I think, is the proper thing?" the Prince said as he received the badge.

The dollar he tendered and his autograph were placed in the society's museum.

The only other formal event of the Prince's day was his inspection of the Lincoln memorial, nearing completion beside the Potomac, but he added to his program in the afternoon which had been left for him to dispose of as he saw fit, a call at the home of Mrs. George Dewey, widow of Admiral Dewey.

To Renew Acquaintance

The Prince plans to visit today with President Wilson, renewing the acquaintanceship begun during Mr. Wilson's trip to Europe as head of the American Peace Mission. Owing to the President's illness, which confined him to his bed until yesterday. the Prince's call will be informal in character and made when he goes to the White House to take tea with Mrs. Wilson.

BROTHERHOOD FEDERATION TO

new order—the brotherhood of Christ. Present-day unrest, he declared, will find one of two outlets. One is that the teaching of the Master will be carried into political and industrial life, the other is blood-handed revolution.

He here spoke of that great international brotherhood gathering held last September in old London, where delegates from 20 nations, representing nearly every race and religion in the whole world, met in a congress out of which evolved a brotherhood of world federation. "We have at last," he said, "got it into our heads that God is our father and that all men are brothers; a new spirit has been born into this old world, and is engaging the attention of men everywhere." and he urged the fostering of that spirit of brotherhood in Peterborough.

The Brotherhood's Objects.

In talking of the new united brotherhood's objects, Mr. McCarthy asserted that the church needs a new spirit of brotherhood; industrial unrest will not be solved without organised brotherhood; and the League of Nations cannot effectively hold peace in the world unless a real world-wide brotherhood lies behind it. The church, he said, must come in contact with the great army of men on the street, and should organise to bring them within its environments. There are thousands outside the church whose sympathies indicate a readiness to return to her fold if not asked to take the highest hurdle at the first jump. In his experience he could not recall two men who disbelieved in God and in the good old Bible. Unbelief, he said, is not the canker of the world: the man on the street is heart-hungry for warm brotherly sympathy that will help him solve his every-day problems—and the church is not giving him that sympathy. Absent shareholders, both in the industrial and religious world, are the cankers in the situation today. The church of Christ has been more intent on building up a strong financial organization than in saving the souls of men and the community for God and righteousness. Admitting that the church does more for law and order than all the police put together, still a new call has arisen, and that is for the church to faster the great love story of Christ, to emulate that wonderful spirit of brotherhood born in the war trenches, without creed or demonational restrictions.

Save Wastage.

Talking of Canada's debt, the speaker contended that it is impossible to tax the Canadian people $400,000,000 a year under existing conditions, and the only way to face the situation is by greater production from the farm, factories and all industries. Were a true spirit of brotherhood to be applied by the hundreds of thousands of industrial workers, the saving of present-day waste alone would be enormous, and the might, he said, of capital. When all interests, he said, sit down with feet beneath a common table, then, and not till then, will industrial rest be solved.

For God and Right.

In conclusion, Mr. McCarthy urged the laymen in each church to go out into the streets, so to speak, and gather into their fold that army of men only awaiting an exemplification of true brotherhood to unite with them in Christian communion. Let every church organize its brotherhood, and let all brotherhoods unite in one great city organization for God and right in the community. "The Church of God needs you and I to get our face to the window, with a brotherly longing for humanity beyond, and to get accordingly."

HIGH PRICE OF SILVER.

Romance of This Valuable and Adaptable Metal.

Silver has now reached the amazing price of 54⅝d per ounce, says London Answers. Before the war the average price was 25d to 27d an ounce.

During the war there has been an immense increase in the demand for silver coinage, owing to the withdrawal of gold from common currency.

The great influx of colonials into England, and the large training camps which sprang up all over the country, increased that demand. In 1914 the stock of silver in London was small. Forced purchases in an ill-supplied market drove prices up, and speculation was fostered by the shortage until the present record price has been reached.

Silver mining and prospecting have supplied a wide field of adventure and hazard. Some of the richest mines have been discovered by mere accident. One Californian mine was discovered through a boy, whilst driving cattle across the plain, hurting his foot on a large stone, which proved to be almost pure silver ore. Pioneers have had hard fights to wrest the ore from Mother Earth. Some won, some lost, and to some success came too late.

In 1890, men in the mining centres of America, Australasia, and Mexico lost fortunes in a few hours through the passing of the Sherman Act.

Silver had become so plentiful that the American Senate passed this act abolishing the fixed ratio of 15½ ounces of silver to one of gold, which had been established and maintained by the Latin Union founded for that purpose in the interests of commerce in 1865. Prices went down with a rush, and the whole market was convulsed. It made a partial recovery, but in 1902 silver was in the ratio of 43½ to 1, and was sold at 21 11-16d per ounce.

Now it has weathered the war, and prices are still soaring.

Romance surrounds the transport of silver also.

It now travels "naked" from London to India or China in the strong rooms of the steamers. Before the opening of the Suez Canal it had to be soldered in tin-lined boxes and carried by camels across the Isthmus. Caravans carrying silver into Persia and Arabia encountered many dangers from roving Afghan tribes.

During the war all silver cargo was accompanied by an agent of the sender, and the journeys were not always uneventful. Silver was first conveyed by motor through London during a railway strike, when a harmless-looking van, loaded with five tons of ore, ran the gauntlet of the pickets outside Paddington station.

Many wars have been fought for the possession of territories rich in silver. Would the campaigns of Hannibal in Spain, Caesar in Gaul and Cortes in Mexico, have been waged if there had been no silver mines for spoil? Wherever there is silver adventurous men and ambitious nations rise to battle for it.

American mines were the bone over which Spain fought till she was crippled beyond recovery.

From the earliest time silver has been a "noble" metal, used for barter and adornment. Originally it passed from hand to hand by weight; thus Abraham weighted to Ephron 400 shekels of silver, "current money with the merchant," as the price of the field and cave in Machpelah.

In "Sycee silver" the custom exists in China to-day. Then silver was cast in long rods from which pieces of the desired size could be easily cut. A natural consequence was the recording of the weight of the piece by a stamp or punch, which made them available for any similar purchase in the future. Thus began coinage and currency.

Of all metals silver is the most adaptable for engraving and all kinds of handicraft. It is more beautiful than gold.

If the history of some of the wonderful specimens handed down to us from the Queen Anne and Georgian periods could be told there would be many thrilling pages added to the history of silver.

The Year of the Strikes.

Upon his return to school, Willie was told to write a composition on "How I Spent My Vacation." This, says Life, is what he wrote: "We reached Oceanville, by good luck, three days before the strike of the B. H. & R. The strike cut off our supply of Grade 'A' certified milk from the city, so that we had to get along on milk from the cow. I went in swimming every day until the life-guards struck and the beach was closed. So I got a job as a caddie which lasted until the caddies went on strike. After that I spent the day at the movies, until the movie operators went on strike. So then we came home, and found the cook on strike, the trolley men on strike and the cat gone. If they only would have a teachers' strike I would be happy again."

Fibre From the Eucalyptus.

Fibre made from the bark of the eucalyptus tree may open up a new industry in Australia if it fulfils the expectations formed of it. The discoverer of the new process has made twine, ropes and sacking from his fibre, and points out that the staple is of good length, the product strong and durable and the cost of manufacture low. Visions of a successful rival to Indian jute goods and phormium tenax (New Zealand flax) have interested the Returned Soldiers League, to whom the process and other rights are under offer.

Grateful.

Traveler—Did you find a roll containing fifty dollars under my pillow?

Porter—Yas, suh; thank you, suh.

Four of the olive trees on the historic Mount of Olives are known to be at least 800 years old.

The Prince in Cab of Royal Engine, at Flavelle, Ont.

Ex-Crown Prince on Bleak Island

ONE gathers from an article in the New York Times by T. Walter Williams that the ex-Crown Prince of Germany is having rather an uncomfortable time on the little Dutch island where he is marooned partly through his own desire and partly because of the wishes of the German Government. He is living in no guilty splendor, but in a four-roomed house, and the fact that it was formerly the residence of the village pastor is sufficient guarantee of the extreme simplicity of the appurtenances. It has two bedrooms, one occupied by the prince, and the other by the two German officers who share his exile. His valets live in adjoining quarters. There is no bathroom in the house, of course, and the kitchen, where a German chef presides, is situated in a small wooden structure built in the front garden. From photographs we would gather that the place would rent for about $8 a month to a Hollander, and that the prince may have to pay as much as $9. In the summer the village and the surrounding country are very pleasant to the eye, but in winter—

Hark to the wail of the Hohenzolern: "The winter months from November to May are simply too awful for words. The cold nearly killed me and I still have to keep fires in the bedrooms on account of the north wind which blows cold at night. Then, the fogs, the rain and the snow with the ice jammed up on the strip of the Zuyder Zee which cuts off Wieringen from the mainland make conditions so wretched that I thought I should die. It was literally impossible to sleep. The nights were long and I missed the society of cultured people. I am fond, too, of the opera and good music and scientific lectures on interesting subjects—all lacking in Wieringen." Plainly the sort of peace that the prince is having has its horrors much greater than those to which he was personally exposed in the war. It is well known that the Crown Prince used frequently to entertain actresses and singers from Berlin at his field headquarters. At Wieringen he leads a blameless life, and he added with a touch of regret, "One has to." His health appears to have improved, and many inquiring friends will be glad to know that the former heir to the German throne looks the picture of robust health and vigor.

Apparently the prince is not under surveillance. There are no sen- [illegible] roams about the little island at will. To leave it he might require the permission of the Dutch authorities, and he has made just one visit since he took up his residence. That was to see his mother at Amersfort. He has not seen his father nor any other members of the family since last November. He plans to return to Germany when the Peace Treaty is finally ratified and anticipates no objection raised in any quarter, but his father, he says, will probably stay in Holland for some years, he having invested considerable money at Doorn with this end in view. The young Hohenzollern has large estates in Silesia and contemplates spending the rest of his life in looking after them, having no fear, apparently, that they will be confiscated by the German Government nor that if he leaves Holland his extradition will be demanded by the Allies. He declares that his father, rather than face a criminal trial, would kill himself, and added, "One has always one's honor, you know." He would not admit having the slightest political ambitions or desire to re-establish the German monarchy, but declared that he would always be ready to assist his country in any way. At present he believes that the best way to assist is to keep away.

Mr. Williams says that the prince does not take the war seriously and comments upon it in the detached manner of an observer, rather than as a conspicuous actor. It had turned the world topsy turvy, he said, and it will be fully fifty years before normal financial, living and industrial conditions are restored. He seemed to think that the allies are to blame for having kept up the fight, and it is to be admitted that Germany did everything in her power to make the struggle short, and had hoped to terminate it before the winter of 1914.

The prince is kept well supplied with reading matter, and has occasional visitors from Germany. One of them is Karl von Wiegand, the American newspaper correspondent, who comes sometimes to spend the week end, and who is regarded as a personal friend. He makes it a rule not to talk to newspaper correspondents, he says, because of the garbled accounts of former conversations which have been published and because they have injured Germany, and have made his father furious. His lot, though, is not as unpleasant, he believes, as that of the ex-Kaiser, who is kept a virtual prisoner in a castle. The son takes trips on his motorcycle, although as the island is only six miles long and three wide, and has only 3,000 inhabitants, there is not much sport for the demon cyclist. He also sketches on the beach and plays handball in the garden. The place has been put on the map by his presence, and it has become a favorite point for excursionists from other points in Holland and for honeymooners. The prince is constantly on view and repays the kindness of his Dutch neighbors by not resenting the extreme curiosity which they evince in all his comings and goings.

Could Improve Nature.

It was Robert's first visit to the zoo. "What do you think of the animals?" inquired Uncle Ben. After a critical inspection of the exhibit the boy replied: "I think the kangaroo and the elephant should change tails."

Louis Castoquay, of Matane, Quebec, fell down the hold of the steamer, J. F. Taylor, which was docked at Port Colborne, and died of his injuries.

DESTROYS THE OYSTERS.

Heavy Loss Is Caused By the Starfish.

Much has been learned within recent years about the starfish, which annually destroys nearly $1,000,000 worth of oysters in Long Island sound.

Its eggs, spherical and very minute, lie on the bottom until hatched, whereupon the larvae swim about for some days before attaching themselves to convenient blades of eel grass. Then they undergo a rapid transformation, assuming the adult shape.

For experimental purposes they have been artificially reared; and it was proved by one trial that a young starfish one-fourth of an inch in diameter, put in a dish with fifty-odd baby clams, each as long as one of its arms, could gobble up nearly all of them in a week.

How does the starfish manage to kill and eat an oyster? It is a puzzle that has only recently been solved. The creature forces the oyster open by sheer muscular strength, a fact which needs explanation in order to make it believable.

The starfish's arms are covered on the under side with little suckers. Embracing the oyster it applies two or three of its arms to one valve of the shell and the remaining ones to the other valve. Then, by merely stretching its arms (the suckers holding fast), it tries to pull the valves apart.

Now the oyster is equipped with a powerful muscle for keeping its shell tight shut when it wishes. This muscle is the part of its anatomy commonly, though mistakenly, called the heart. Its strength may be judged from the difficulty one finds in opening an oyster, unless one happens to be skilled in the art.

But even the strongest man may succumb to a moderate muscular strain if the latter be kept up long enough; and thus it is with the oyster. The starfish keeps on pulling, and finally the unfortunate bivalve is obliged to yield. Its shell opens and the enemy proceeds to devour it.

In the centre of the starfish's body, or under side, is a small hole. This is its mouth, through and out of which it is able to project and extend its stomach to a distance equal to the length of one of its arms. The stomach turns itself inside out, envelops the fleshy part of the oyster and digests it as it lies in the shell.

The oystermen used to chop in two the starfishes they caught and throw them overboard, but they gave up this practice when it was ascertained that the halves were liable to develop new arms and thus render themselves complete. It was a way to make two starfishes out of one.

Russian Advertising.

They are not so slow in Russia as many of us imagine. A traveler relates that while in Moscow before the war he one day saw a crowd gathered around a little fellow who was bawling at the top of his lungs. Many asked him what the trouble was, but he kept on crying, and the crowd increased; then all of a sudden he stopped and said in a clear, loud voice, "I am lost. Will somebody please take me home to Ivan Tobinsky, the champion clothier of Moscow, who has a full supply of autumn overcoats, suits, neckties, shirts, hats and umbrellas which he will sell cheaper than anyone else in the city."

The Baobab Tree.

The gigantic baobab tree of Central Africa, the trunk of which sometimes attains a diameter of forty feet, often serves as a natural cistern, retaining rain water in large quantities in a cavity formed at the top of the broad trunk. Taking the hint thus afforded by nature, the Arabs artificially hollow out the huge baobabs and fill them with water during the prevalence of rains, as a provision against the dry season. These cisterns are in many cases twenty feet in height and eight or ten feet in diameter.

Beer "Improves."

Bottled beer that was said to be 2.75 per cent. when it left Milwaukee registered from 5 to 15 per cent. alcohol when it was delivered in Chicago. The trucks had been left standing for many hours in the sun, and a chemist says that the sun's rays would cause unpasteurised beer to ferment to such a degree that bottles would explode.

PETERBOROUGH' GREATEST STORE

PETERBOROUGH HAS YET ANOTHER CHANCE

BY DOUBLING OBJECTIVE MAY CARRY OFF RECORD FOR DOMINION

The city of Peterborough by being first in attaining its objective in the present Victory Loan campaign made a wonderful name for itself. The accomplishment was the talk of the Province. Do the citizens of Peterborough realise that a still more notable achievement is within their grasp in the attainment of 200 per cent. of their objective. From last night's figures we are about $350,000 short of the necessary one million and a half. If the Peterborough citizens will rise to the occasion and double their objective, it will almost surely be a record for Ontario and possibly for the cities of the Dominion.

From a purely advertising standpoint, Peterborough should not miss this opportunity The campaign organization for the city is doing its utmost to reach the new figure, but it is absolutely up to the citizens. There is absolutely no excuse for any person with at least $50.00 in the bank not buying a Victory Loan Bond, in fact, the final analysis any person who has good health and a reasonable assurance of steady earning capacity for the next few months should buy a bond.

From the patriotic standpoint, it is the duty of every citizen to buy a bond This is the last great war drive and everybody should be in on it. There are numbers of citizens in this city who since the close of hostilities one year ago have measured up their own war effort in comparison with others, and especially with the splendid men who suffered and died. These most surely have felt that their part in the great struggle was very very small indeed, in comparison with what they should have and could have done. This is the opportunity of such people.

There are business men in the community who have subscribed and others who have put in a subscription, but for a nominal amount feeling that they will require the money in their business These men overlook the fact that Canada is their business and that her prosperity is their prosperity. These men should go the limit as the banks are quite willing to give them anything in the way of Loan accommodation that they may require, in connection with their subscription. There are young men in the city who are passing up the best opportunity they will have for some time to save money, overlooking the fact that they "can measure their own capacity for success by their ability to save."

On the other hand there are citizens who are mortgaging their future for months to come, to support the Loan, and it is to their credit that the Loan has been as successful as it has. The city campaign is still short by 1400 subscriptions under its record of last year. We must secure these 1400 subscriptions today and tomorrow.

Let us show this country and the whole world that the morale of our people is as high in peace as in war, that we are prepared to do our part under any conditions for the prosperity and welfare of Canada.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO CARRY ON THE WORK

JOSEPH WEARING CHAIRMAN OF LOCAL EXECUTIVE IN BROTHERHOOD MOVEMENT

At the close of the address of Mr. J. O. McCarthy in Trinity Church last night it was decided to appoint a committee, one representative from each church in the city; this body to meet and devise ways and means for perfecting the movement. The idea is to have a branch of the Brotherhood in every church, and a central organization which will hold mass meetings regularly. The members of the committee nominated last night were as follows:

Joseph Wearing— Murray Street Baptist.
G. A. Turnbull.— Knox Church.
H. C. Walker. — George Street Methodist.
A. B. Cunningham.—Trinity.
H. B. Cowan— St. Paul's
Joseph John.— St. Andrew's.
H. Wilfrid.— St. James.
Fred Gandy.— Salvation Army.
W. F. Moore.— Park Street Baptist
C. E. Sisson.— All Saints.
John Speer.— Mark Street.
J. J. Linton.— St. John's.
J. J. Turner.— St. Luke's.
A. J. Johnston.— Bethany Tabernacle.

Mr. Waring was selected as chairman and will call a meeting of the committee when a permanent organization will be effected.

The musical programme last night was furnished by members of city choirs Mr. George H. King, organist of Trinity Church, presiding at the organ.

ONE WAY TO MAKE BROTHERHOOD PERFECT

(By T. Tooms, M.L.A.)

It is interesting to observe the action being taken by the churches to institute the great world-wide brotherhood movement. There is something tangible in our make up one towards another. Being present at some of the brotherhood meetings, it became apparent to me that there are two factors to face, namely, the rise of democracy and the decline of ecclesiastism

The former is a tidal movement, for there is no speech or language today where its voice is not heard,

As to the other factor, proofs are equally abundant. Nine-tenth of the preachers of today are almost discouraged, in every nation alike, and this fact cannot be treated with contempt or punishment. Quite a proportion of the workingmen are out of touch with the churches. The religious world, with its organizations, is something far removed from the labor world; with its organizations. The church seems to be losing its power in the moral and civil life of the nation. Why is this?

I believe the democracy detects an unmistakable languor in the church going. The church places her faith and hope in charity. Yes, millions for charity, and not a cent for justice. This charity, submissiveness, does not help the spirit of self respect in the man The new religion should be one of self respect. This antagonism to the church does not carry an antagonism also to Jesus, but on the contrary, Jesus probably never stood higher in their esteem and affections.

Among the working class, only one quality of religion remains, and that is respect and reverence for Jesus Christ. But an unhappy situation is ahead of us, unless a halt is called; that is, industrialism and religion will become divorced from each other. They were meant to be mates.

Industrialism needs the spiritual note to impart zest to its conscience. Religion, likewise, need the industrial note, lest its dreamings become sickly fermentations of the brain. Meant for each other, each incomplete, without the other, yet there is coldness, distrust, crimination. We have got into a state of mutual compatibility. The solution is human brotherhood.

Major-General Williams sounded the note at the G.W.V.A. this week as he sat in company with the private, and they enjoyed the human side of life together Did that detract anything from General Williams? I say not, it added to his prestige and respect. The men could go and meet him with a band, and heart-felt gratitude. He did not necessarily go down to the men, but the men came up to him. It had its elevating efect on morals; that is brotherhood.

I make these remarks with but one desire to state the facts as I see them in order to further the interests of brotherhood, and sincerely hope it will cause some thought that will bring the church and Labor closer together. Democracy asks but one thing of the church, that she sticks to the gospel, for Christianity once democratized, it would not be long before democracy would be christianized For this the Prince of Peace was born It was hailed with a peace on earth goodwill to men, and fittingly so, and with the same phrase on our lips, we call for our mate the church, to wed and work for the common good. Then, we shall have the brotherhood so much desired.

CANNOT IMPORT LIQUOR YET

MUST WAIT UNTIL PEACE IS FORMALLY PROCLAIMED—PEOPLE MISTAKEN

Ottawa, Nov. 13.—People who are shipping liquor from Quebec into Ontario and elsewhere, and the number of seizures indicate that they are many are wholly a stray in their conclusion that the War Measures restriction let up with the anniversary of the armistice. The lid is on as tightly now as ever. As frequently explained it will be lifted only when peace is officially promulgated by the King. Even that proclamation in itself will not affect the order, but it will be the signal for the Governor-General to issue a proclamation suspending the War Measures Act. It is expected before Christmas.

It would appear from all reports that tons of liquor await the advent of the wet season before being shipped to the arid areas. Some of the more venturesome have taken a chance and shipped or imported since Armistice Day. The result has been a material increase in the stock of confiscated liquors in the hands of the Ontario authorities and a corresponding enrichment of the Treasury by severe fines.

MAY CURE EARL GRAY'S BLINDNESS

PHYSICIAN IN WASHINGTON CONFIDENT HE HAS DISCOVERED CAUSE

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 14.—The Canadian Press learns on the most reliable authority (a passenger on one of the great liners coaling here) that the cause of the blindness of which Viscount Grey, British Ambassador to Washington, is afflicted, has been diagnosed by an eminent American specialist, Wr. Wilmer, of Washington. The origin of the affliction is said to have been found in an abscessed tooth, which has impaired the optic nerves. Viscount Grey, it will be recalled, was obliged to withdraw from political life on account of this affliction, and it was only for the reason of the vital principle bound up in the appointment that he accepted temporarily the position of ambassador. The hope is now entertained that the discovery of the cause of blindness does not come too late, and it is even believed that sight may be fully restored.

VETERANS PROPOSE NATION WIDE VOTE

ON THE QUESTION OF THE G.W.V. ASSOCIATION GOING INTO POLITICS

A coast-to-coast ballot on pro-politics or no-politics for the Great War Veteran's Association is to be returned at the various provincial headquarters not later than December 1. Official forms and instructions to branch offices have been despatched to the 200 odd organizations for a final verdict on the important question. Included in a lengthy letter from Ottawa, Secretary C. S. MacNeil, Dominion secretary, special attention is given to the eligibility of members to vote. He says:

"All branch executives are urged to exercise the greatest possible care in conducting the voting. Scrutineers should be appointed, and the ballots cast as carefully and secretly as is the case in public elections. Only members in good standing should be given an opportunity to vote, and only non-resident members should be given an opportunity to vote by mail.

"A ballot box should be placed in the headquarters of every branch for the use of resident members and they should be advised of the hours when ballots may be cast. As an early decision is required, the executive committee request all branches to take the vote immediately, as it is hoped to have complete returns at provincial headquarters not later than December 1, 1919.

"Under no circumstance must the ballots be destroyed following closing of the poll. They should be carfeully counted and forwarded to provincial headquarters together with a certified statement signed by the president and secretary testifying to the fact that only members in good standing have been allowed to vote and that the returns made are accurate."

The Dominion Command is also calling for constructive proposals to be applied to the defining of a political platform for the G. W. V. A., and urges concerted effort on the part of every unit in the G. W. V. A.

"ONE OF THE BLOOD" AT GRAND THEATRE

An amusing comedy picture entitled "Fatty and the Bathing Beauties," creates a huge laugh. The Pathe Weekly is up-to-date with pictures of general interest. This interesting programme will be repeated tonight and tomorrow.

"SILK-LINED BURGLAR" IS THRILLING DRAMA

PRISCILLA DEAN PRESENTED IN A "BOSTON BLACKIE" STORY

"The Silk-Lined Burglar," starring Priscilla Dean, which opened yesterday at the Empire Theatre, is one of those swiftly-moving "crook" plays which open with a bank and [illegible] a zip. In the opening scene an advertisement for a "thoroughly efficient safe-blower, who is willing to take risks" is shown, and the expectations thus aroused are never disappointed.

The story is based on one of the Boston Blackie stories by Jack Boyle which appeared in the Red Book Magazine. It deals with the girl's determination to aid her sweetheart, a United States Secret Service agent, whose professional career is threatened with ruin unless he can get the contents of a certain safe. His official position prevents him from taking the most direct means of accomplishing this, but his sweetheart, Doris Macon, is under no restrictions.

Doris, played by Miss Dean, hires "Boston Blackie" to go with her and blow the safe. They are surprised by the unexpected return of the owner and fights, flights and surprises follow each other in rapid order. The play moves with ever-increasing speed to an entirely unexpected climax.

In "The Silk-Lined Burglar," Miss Dean adds further to the record she made in "The Brazen Beauty," "The Wild-Cat of Paris," and her other recent Universal successes. Associated with her are Ashton Dearholt, Sam De Grasse, Sam Appel, Fred Kelsey and Lillian West. The direction is by Jack Dillon, and many of the settings are elaborate, including one representing the interior of a famous Broadway cabaret.

ROMANCE OF OIL.

Has Been Used In the Intrigue of Mexico.

The romance of Mexican oil is one of the most interesting chapters of industrial history; but the romance of Mexican oil propaganda is even more fascinating, says P. Beckwith Davis in Leslie's. It is a romance full of intrigue, trickery, deceit, the confusion of statesmen, the browbeating of officials, and, alas, touched here and there with tragedy with the stories of brave men shot down in ambush, robbed of everything they possessed, and either left to make their uncharted way through the jungle, naked to the brush and insects of tropical swamps, or their bodies left stark in the forests for the beasts to prey on and the purifying buzzard to clean.

But it will come as a shock to most people to know that the propaganda has been one-sided, and the side that has made use of this lever on public opinion to shift the great responsibility of murder, theft and political trickery from its shoulders has been the Mexican side. The American public has been deceived. Americans have been the victims. The bodies left to rot in the steaming swamps have been the bodies of American citizens. The statesmen who have the wool pulled over their eyes and have been despoiled of their property have been those whose rights it was the duty of the United States Government to protect in whatever part of the world they were, for they were citizens of the great republic, who had gone into Mexico in search of oil, needed by their country, the development of which had resulted in untold benefit to Mexico herself.

The Mexican oil propaganda began in 1911, when Porfirio Diaz, his star waning and with the wolves of revolt close on his heels, raised the cry that the Standard Oil was backing Madero with oil money. This was the birth of the Romance of Mexican Oil Propaganda. Diaz could explain the Madero successes only by exposing the dry-rot of his system, and to avoid this confession he and his supporters filled the Mexican, British and American newspapers with accusations against the Standard Oil, or Waters-Pierce Company, charging that the company was furnishing arms, munitions and vast sums of money to the Maderistas.

The object of Diaz was, of course, to discredit Madero in the eyes of the American public, to shift the responsibility for the failure to suppress the revolution from his own shoulders to the oil company. Madero won, but this first blast of oil propaganda also won, and its victory was more enduring than Madero's. So successful was this initial use of oil propaganda that the Senate of the United States appointed a committee to investigate the charges, and after numerous hearings and the testimony of many witnesses which filled 400 pages, this committee developed the incontrovertible fact that the charges were utterly unfounded.

In spite of the facts that this investigation disclosed, in spite of the proved falsity of the charge, and in the face of the established fact that intereference with Mexico's internal affairs would be the worst possible policy for the oil companies to pursue, the impression that Mexican revolution is the story of oil, that oil influence is back of all the trouble in Mexico, is still abroad and is played upon by every amateur journalistic and reformed expert, and by every Mexican Government that needs something on which to blame its own ineptitude, misfortune or failures.

Liberia.

Liberia is a negro republic on the west coast of Africa, founded in 1820 by liberated American slaves under the auspices of the American Colonization Society, and recognized as an independent state in 1847. It has an area of 35,000 square miles, with a population of 2,000,000. The climate is tropical; the chief crop is coffee; other exports are palm oil, ground nuts, caoutchouc and ivory. The climate is very unhealthy for Europeans. British weights, measures and money are mostly used. The English language is used among the governing class, and schools and churches are amply provided, and civilization is making rapid strides among the natives. The population consists of some 60,000 immigrants from the United States and their descendants and 2,000,000 natives. The capital is Monrovia and the government is a republic modeled after that of the United States.

Our Nerves Are Electric Systems

THAT nerve energy is simple electricity is a belief now held by many physiologists. Their idea is that the brain is the central power station of an electric system that has for its main transmission line the spinal cord, and for its subsidiary wires, the nerves.

By this means the brain directs and controls all the activities of the body, just as an ordinary power station operates the electric lights, the street cars, and the innumerable machines and mechanical contrivances of a city.

But the electrical system of a human being is far more complex than that of a city. It has a much greater variety of duties to perform, and it is vastly more efficient.

One method of generating electricity is by burning coal. Part of the heat hereby obtained is converted into electricity by means of a dynamo, the phenomenon representing merely the transformation of one kind of energy into another. To utilise it for mechanical purposes a motor is employed.

In your own body the fuel is the food you eat, which is chemically burned, producing heat. A large part of this heat (according to the theory here quoted) is converted into electricity, which is stored for use as it may be required.

One naturally asks, what part of the brain generates the electricity, acting as a dynamo? What part serves as a motor? And where is the electricity stored?

Nobody can answer these questions. The brain is still a profound mystery tothe physiologist, who has managed to find out only a few things about it. He can point out certain "motor areas" on its surface, which control movements of various parts of the body—as, for instance, the big toe, which is wiggled in response to orders from the middle of the top of the cerebrum. He will tell you that the "cerebellum"—a small secondary brain, located behind the ears—has for one of its functions the co-ordinating of muscular efforts. When it comes to considering the business of the "medulla oblongata," which is a great enlargement of the upper end of the spinal cord, just below the brain, he is pretty much in the dark.

There must be a motor somewhere, to drive the machinery of the body. There is the blood to be kept continually circulating through many miles of veins and arteries, and, to accomplish this, power must be applied to the pump which we call the heart. Power must be available for use by the external muscles, and for many other purposes.

Your nervous system is vastly more complex than you probably imagine. Distributed on the spinal cord and along the important nerves throughout the body are knots of brain stuff called "ganglia." These are the subsidiary stations of your electrical system, and through them the activities of the various parts of your body are directed and controlled.

The system is a veritable maze of "wires" extending through every part of your body. Look at the palm of your hand, and observe the wonderfully elaborate arrangement of ridges with which it is covered in curiously convoluted patterns. Each of these ridges is merely a roof to protect a row of tiny nerve-ends. Beneath the outer skin of your palm are hundreds of thousands of these nerve-ends, and the arrangement of their rows is marked by the ridges. The same remark applies to the similar ridges that, in equally complex patterns, cover the sole of your foot.

These are nerves of touch. Suppose that the end of your finger comes into contact with something hot enough to burn. The finger instantly signals to the brain, "Something painful has touched me!" The brain signals back, "Pull your finger away!"

The order, of course, is promptly obeyed. But in the meantime, your finger may be burned badly enough to blister; for it takes an appreciable time to send an alarm to the central power station and get an answer back.

A familiar illustration of this is afforded in operating a typewriter. You know that you are going to strike a wrong key, but you cannot get quickly enough from your brain the order to your finger not to strike it, and so you have a letter to rub out.

Curiously enough, the first hint that nerve energy might be electrical was obtained through observation of a fish—the so-called "torpedo ray," which looks like a magnified skate, and carries an elaborate equipment for generating and storing electricity. So formidable are the thunderbolts with which it is armed that a man who incautiously touches a fresh-caught specimen is liable to be knocked down.

The electrical equipment of the torpedo ray is far more efficient than any constructed by human hands, delivering a much greater amount of electricity in proportion to the size of the apparatus and quantity of fuel (represented by food in the fish's case) consumed.

According to the theory here set forth, the torpedo ray offers merely an illustration of electrical phenomena which are, in all essential respects, reproduced in a human being, though less open to ready observation.

Japanese Spinners.

The cotton spinning industry in Japan is regarded by many to be as important commercially as the silk industry. The number of cotton spinning mills increased from 152 in 1909 to 177 in 1918.

Shortage of cars and locomotives caused a loss of some 2,000 tons in production of coal at Drumheller Mines, Alta., through half a day's idleness.

Appearance and Manner Made Sir Arthur Currie A Very Typical Canadian

STANDING six feet four inches, weighing close on to two hundred and forty pounds, built in proportion, Sir Arthur Currie merits the name of "big Canadian" no less from his physical attributes than by reason of his qualities as a soldier and a man. Not a wrinkle mars the smoothness of his round, youthful face. A pair of big blue eyes look out from his broad and open countenance. Born at Strathroy, Ont., in 1875, he is a native son of Ontario from the soles of the big field boots which he constantly wears in preference to riding boots or puttees, to the parting in the middle of his blonde, grizzling hair. His deep voice is the voice of a Canadian, untinged with any trace of the swank and affectation to which, alas! more than one in the C.E.F. has succumbed. In manner and bearing he is just the same Currie who sold real estate in Victoria before the war.

The Canadian corps commander impresses all who meet him with his simplicity and straightforwardness of manner. So much so that many marvel how this can be the man who became lieutenant-general at 42, the commander of 200,000 men, and one of the most successful leaders in France.

"Somehow he looks like a stalwart civilian who has put on a uniform. He lacks the brass-hattiness and the barrack-room air of the stereotyped general," is the tenor of the comment made by strangers discussing him after their first introduction. But Currie's blue eyes can flash fire on occasion, his voice snap out commands, and his apparently easy-going manner undergoes a lightning change when there is work to be done. Casual visitors only saw him off duty. Shrewder judges of men had sized him up soon after the First Canadian Division landed in France, and marked him out for promotion. Gen. Byng, the idol of the Canadian corps and the victor of Vimy Ridge, wanted Currie as his successor.

GEN. ARTHUR CURRIE.

Gen. Currie talked very freely to Canadian newspapermen. He would invite them into his battlefield hqt at Vimy, hard by the deep, dark dugout dungeons which served as First Division headquarters, or later, when occupying some old chateau, into the lofty chamber, with its antique furniture and four-post bed, and there unbosom his mind to the press as he could not do to anyone else in France. Most of such conversations were strictly confidential, and not for publication.

In London, during his short and infrequent visits of a day or two to confer with the Overseas Minister of Militia or the War Office, pending some great development, or on his still less frequent leaves to see his wife and children, the Canadian corps commander moved about as unostentatiously as a private on furlough. He frequently carried neither cane nor gloves, and when his towering figure rose above the crowds on the Strand, it was only the rank badges on his shoulders and on the straight, old-fashioned and uncomfortable-looking cloth tunic collar which he alone of all the generals wore, that restrained vigilant A.P.M.'s from stopping him and inquiring the reason for this reprehensible lack of gloves and walking stick, without which every officer was deemed "improperly dressed."

Bluntness rather than diplomatic suavity characterizes Currie. He speaks his mind freely. A royal personage—not the Prince of Wales—who was at one time attached to the Canadian Corps, delights to tell a story in this connection. The royal soldier, one inky night, made use of his electric torch to pick his way through the mud at the gate of Canadian Corps Headquarters, then located at the Chateau of Camblain l'Abbe. A Canadian sentry, not observing who the transgressor was, exclaimed angrily: "Put out that torch or you'll have Heine dropping bombs on us. A fellow would think you were the corps commander." Royalty promptly extinguished the torch and next day at the mess related the story with gusto. "Huh!" exclaimed Currie with a quiet smile. "I wouldn't be such a d—— fool as to flash a torch like that." The royal raconteur, a great admirer of the general, considered this last addition, one on himself, the tit-bit of the whole story and cherishes it among his anecdotes.

Taste.

The sensation of taste, while of common and constant experience, is highly complicated in its nature. What is commonly called taste is not a simple sensation at all, but rather a complex. In addition to the actual functioning of the apparatus properly pertaining to the sense of taste, the tongue receives impressions of various other sorts, all of which go to make up this complex. As finally recorded in the consciousness, the taste of any substance has to do with its heat or coolness, perhaps with a mild amount of pain, certainly with astringency or acridity — which are in themselves further complexes of thermic and tactile sensations—and above all with smell. The reader will probably agree that ice cream and coffee are entirely different from their true selves when served at inopportune temperatures; and it is a matter of record that a person of the keenest taste may make the most ludicrous errors if asked, blindfolded and with his nose stopped, to identify substances placed in his mouth.

Gunpowder.

Black powder is the original gunpowder. It consists of pulverized charcoal, sulphur and saltpetre mixed together. Both sulphur and charcoal are inflammable, and if they are ignited they will burn as fast as air can be supplied to complete the combustion. When saltpeter is heated it gives off oxygen. By mixing with charcoal and sulphur enough saltpetre to supply the necessary oxygen for complete combustion, we obtain a mixture that can burn without the aid of air.

As soon as sufficient heat is applied, the saltpetre gives off oxygen which burns the adjacent sulphur and charcoal, forming more heat, which decomposes the surrounding saltpetre, thus continuing the process. As the combustion does not have to wait for air to be supplied, it spreads through the mass with practically instantaneous speed.

An Illustration.

"Thought," says a philosopher, "may stay behind silent lips, but when it becomes feeling it runs to expression." We've noticed this in cases of persons who thought they were hitting a nail, but who felt they had smashed their fingers.—Boston Transcript.

Colors for Dyeing.

White, very light cream, pink, blue or green can be dyed any color. Light red may be dyed a darker red, purple, plum or brown. Brown will become a darker brown by the use of crimson or garnet. A dark green may be dyed a deeper shade of green, brown or black.

The unicorn is a fabulous animal, with the body of a horse but of larger size, and with one horn of 1½ to 2 cubits in length on its forehead, perfectly straight, with a white base, black middle, and red tip.

X-Rays in Industry.

Apart from their use in medicine, X-rays are steadily extending their field of usefulness. With new types of tube a ray powerful enough to show up the minutest flaw in a four-inch thickness of steel can be produced.—Chicago Journal.

Had Some Merit.

A well-known clergyman in Liverpool used to tell a story of a fishing experience he had in Shetland. He was out fishing for sea trout, accompanied by a local youth, when his foot slipped on a stone and he overbalanced. As he was encumbered with heavy waders, which quickly filled with water, he was in considerable danger of drowning, [illegible] good deal of struggling he managed at last to reach safety, though in a very exhausted condition. When he managed to recover his breath, he said very reproachfully to the youth, who had stood stolidly all the time watching him, "I noticed you never tried to help me." "Na," came the reply, "but it wasna because I wasna thinkin' o't."

In the White House at Washington there are about 175 miles of electric wire, providing for 3,000 incandescent lights, together with a call-bell system and a private telephone system for the use of the executive household.

Pearl Culture in Japan.

Hardly another spot in the world shows the revival of peace-time activity in a more distinctively individual fashion than the bit of ocean in the Miye prefecture, Japan, where for many years Mr. Mikimoto of Tokio has been carrying on his experiments in the culture of pearls. The work is no longer experimental, for Mr. Mikimoto has found how to persuade the oyster to create both the flattened pearl and the round pearl, which, being more difficult to obtain, commands a much higher price in the world's markets. Four years it takes an oyster to produce a flattened pearl, and seven years a round one; and the place of residence for the oyster must be chosen with regard to several considerations. It must have a warm current and be at all times inaccessible to fresh water, nor must it be disturbed by wind or rough sea; and by studying and mastering these and other details of the pearl culture, Mr. Mikimoto is said to have brought about quite a revolution in the jewelry world and created pearls that are nowadays sought by buyers in every part of the globe. Begun in 1890, it [illegible] years later that the results first justified the effort; and only during the war did it become reasonably certain that the effort to secure the round pearl was really successful.

Sleep Talkers.

It is much more usual for people to swear than to sing hymns in their sleep," says Dr. E. Coplans in a letter to the British Medical Journal. Dr. Coplans has been a patient in a military hospital. "The percentage of talkers is astonishing; 60 per cent. of the men in my ward indulged in it. The maximum period is from 1 to 2 a.m. Often a sentence is begun clearly, but trails off in a blur. One patient, a by no means pious Scottishman startled me by singing in a stentorian voice, 'Abide With Me.' The melody and words were perfect. One speaker will start another going in an adjacent bed. Your sleep talker will answer a question, and there is no doubt that people give away secrets."

TEACHERS DECLARE FOR SALARY RAISE

LEEDS AND BROCKVILLE PEDAGOGUES SET NEW MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM

Brockville, Nov. 14.—At a meeting of the Brockville and East Leeds Teachers' Institute, the question of salaries was discussed. A schedule for the Province was proposed and ordered to be forwarded to the Ontario Educational Association. For rural teachers and urban assistants a minimum of $900, increasing yearly to 1,700 was suggested; for principals of from two to five rooms, a minimum salary of $1,600, increasing to $2,400; principals of more than five rooms a minimum salary of $2,400, increasing to $3,300, was also suggested. In the opinion of the meeting, now that the cost of living has more than doubled the minimum salary of $900 was considered too low, and it was felt that a teacher received $600 in 1914, should be paid over $1,000 now.

TOWN PLANNING FOR PETERBORO

COUNCIL WILL PROBABLY APPOINT A CITY COMMISSIONER AT EARLY DATE

A meeting of the City Council was called for last evening to meet a special committee of the Board of Trade to discuss a policy of town planning and to appoint a city commission in this connection, as suggested by the Dominion Government's expert town planner, Mr. Thomas Adams. The Board of Trade's Special Committee, consisting of Dr. Harvey (chairman), Messrs. Ryerson Ritchie, W. Sangster, and Charles Sisson, were to hand, but as only four aldermen and the Mayor put in an appearance, no concrete business could be transacted.

In a brief informal discussion of the town planning scheme His Worship and his colleagues all expressed themselves as heartily in sympathy with suggestions put forth by the Board of Trade's representation for a fuller development of Peterborough in every way.

Incidentally, Mr Ritchie, in referring to the value of Mr. Thomas Adams as a town planner, pointed out that he is being offered $100 a day to transfer his services from Canada to the United States, and those services are offered free to Peterborough city.

Council will meet the Board of Trade's committee on the question at an early date.

HIT IS COMRADE ON HEAD WITH SHOVEL

ITALIAN DIES IN HOSPITAL FROM INJURIES RECEIVED IN QUARREL

Struck over the head with a shovel in the hands of a fellow countryman, Joe Caramandi, 35, an Italian, of 72 Teraulay st., died in St. Michael's Hospital from a fractured skull. His assailant it still at large.

Both men were employed by the Robertson Candy Co., 103 Queen st., east, as laborers on their new building An altercation occurred. The other man hit Caramandi with a shovel he was using.

Several men around held him for a minute, but he broke away and ran south through a lane on the Richmond street and westward. Detective Sergts. Koster, Young and Wickett were sent out to trace him.

Accompanied by the forman, the police, in a motor, hastened to Teraulay street, where a search was made at two houses. They then visited a house on Spadina avenue. Some papers found in a lane, property of the man sought, would indicate that he had started from the city.

BURNED IN HOTEL

Man May Succumb to Injuries In Fire

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 14—One guest was seriously burned and eight others were slightly injured or overcome by smoke in a fire at the Vanderbilt Hotel, a four-storey brick building at Exchange and Washington streets, early yesterday. Wm. H. Pawling, of Watertown, may die. Among those less seriously injured was Albert Marcotte of Quebec.

John Quirk, a retired farmer of St. Mary's, died in London as the result of drinking wood alcohol.

DRUGGIST'S RECIPE FOR MAKING LIQUOR

PROVES FATAL TO MANY MEN WHO FOLLOW THE DIRECTIONS

Sulphur, Okla, Nov. 14.—Two deaths at Purcell, three at Marlotta, one in Oklahoma City, one in Kay County, and several others in different parts of the state have resulted from drinking booze made from a receipt of an Oklahoma City druggist, according to claims of officials here. The disclosure was made at the hearing of Bob Churchill, who was bound over to the district court on a charge of selling wood alcohol for human consumption. Police officers promise sensational facts at the trial scheduled for December

The recipe calls for one gallon of wood alcohol and a cube of magnesia, the mixture is allowed to age 20 minutes, after which a match is touched to the stuff. After filtering it is ready to drink. The state chemist testified at he hearing that once ounce was sufficient to cause death in 20 minutes. The liquor is alleged to have been sold by the druggist in almost every county of the state.

The hours of men in round houses remain at eight hours a day, six days a week The agreement stands for one year from November 1, 1919.

ONE EXAMINATION TO BE ELUMINATED

SINGLE SET OF PAPERS FOR NORMAL SCHOOLS AND MATRICULATION

As a result of negotiations with the university authorities, Hon. Dr. Cody in making his last official announcement as Minister of Education, was able to impart the good news that arrangements have been made for joint examinations for matriculations and for entrance to the Normal Schools and Faculties of Education. In the past the High schools have been required to prepare candidates for two types and standards of examinations based on the same courses. By the new arrangement, the work of the schools will be materially lessened, and the pupils will have the opportunity of qualifying at the same examinations for entrance to the Normal Schools and to the universities.

Under the old system the examinations were under separate control, but in accordance with the arrangement just completed, the supervising board of examiners, the board of examiners who are to prepare the examination papers, and the associate examiners who are to read the papers of the candidates, are to be nominated by a joint committee representing the Department of Education and the Matriculation Board representing the Universities.

MUSICIANS OBJECT TO U. S ORCHESTRAS

KINGSTON UNION PROTEST AGAINST THE CUSTOM OF IMPORTING AMERICANS

Kingston, Nov. 14.— Protest of the Kingston Musicians' Union over American orchestras coming to Kingston to play at dances and entertainments was sent to Ottawa, but there is little likelihood of the protest succeeding owing to the provision of the Canadian immigration laws. It has been pointed out that these laws permit entry of any person who has on his or her person a sum of fifty dollars, and the local inspector has no right to debar respectable people. Kingston musicians are determined to protect local rights and declare that if there is nothing in the law. to meet this particular case they are going to see that the laws are changed in the interests of Canadian musicians.

FARMER LANDS UPON THAT MAN O' CONNOR

SAYS THAT HE HAS RUINED LIVESTOCK INDUSTRY IN CANADA

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 13.—Attacks on Commissioner O'Connor of the High Cost of Living Branch of the Department of Labor and the Board of Commerce, as ruining the live stock industry of Canada, were made here today at the convention of the Western Canada Live Stock Union.

"The Government say fit to appoint a Board of Commerce, and they turned loose a man named O'Connor," said J. D. McGregor, of Brandon. "Anybody who has been connected with the Administration, or who has been at Ottawa, knows that he is the rankest kind of a four-flusher. He advertises himself in the paper. As a matter of fact he did not do anything himself, but had a lady, and when she left him he was left high and dry. He has unsettled the whole live stock industry all over Canada."

Mr. McGregor said that there should be a farmer and producer on the board.

The Union decided not to organize actively at present the National Live Stock Union, but is at all times ready to co-operate with the Eastern Canada Live Stock Union.

Walter McNeil, operators' representative on the Commission, thought the Government of Alberta should install such a plant in Manitoba, using the 5-cents a ton coal tax now being collected to operate the plant. It was also urged by one of the Commissioners that bake-ovens, which would secure the by-products from the slack, should be installed.

LIBERTY LEAGUE TO MAKE TEST CASE

WILL IMPORT CASE OF LIQUOR FROM MONTREAL AS BASES OF SUIT

Toronto, Nov. 14.—The Citizens' Liberty League, in order to test the validity of the order-in-Council with reference to the importation of spirits from another province into Ontario, and to discover whether or not the provisions of said order-in-Council have now been [illegible], have decided to import a case of spirits from Montreal to Toronto and consigned to the private residence of one of their members and in this way have the matter tested in the courts. At a conference between Mr. J. D. Flavelle (chairman of the Licensing Board), Mr T. L. Monahan, and Secretary T. L. Carruther, Mr. Flavelle agreed that for the purpose of this test case the Board would not make any prosecution of the shipper or carrier, but would confine any action taken to the person to whom the parcel was addressed.

NEW ELECTION ACT FOR THE DOMINION

DEFAULTERS UNDER MILITARY SERVICE ACT WILL BE DENIED FRANCHISE

Ottawa, Nov. 14.—One of the items of the legislative programme for the next session of Parliament will be a new Election Act. The old Dominion Election Act was temporarily superseded during the war by the War Time Election Act under which the general election of 1917 was fought. The War Time Election Act was in turn repealed by the Dominion By-elections Act passed in the Spring session of the present year. Under the By-elections Act were held the contests of the present year to fill vacancies in the House of Commons. It will next session be necessary to provide a new general law for use at the next general election. This, it is reported, will include provision for Dominion lists owing to the divergence in the laws of the different provinces. It will likely call for disfranchisement of defaulters under the Military Service Act.

There have been suggestions that conscientious objectors should also be disfranchised and that provision should be made for a literary test for voters. The bill, however, has yet to be drafted.

Entertainment By Court Chemong I. O. F.

Altogether refreshing and out of the ordinary was the entertainment given last night in the W.O.W. Hall, under the auspices of Court Chemong I.O.F.

The organizers of the social evening and the ladies of the order, especially are to be congratulated on the pleasing spirit of hominess and good fellowship which prevailed among the crowd that filled the tastefully equipped hall. The chairman, Mr. Frederick Oxley, in an introductory speech, explained the purpose of the gathering. The members of the I.O.F., as well as their friends, had assembled there, in order to promote that sentiment of fraternity which means so much to the welfare of the order. He urged the hearty co-operation of his brother forresters, one and all, not only in furthering the interests of the order, but also by endeavoring to enlist new members. The speaker alluded to the splendid work of this fraternal society in connection with the great world war and also urged loyalty to the ideals which had made the order what is is today.

The musical program opened with a piano solo by Miss Martha Hoag, who delighted the audience with her excellent renedition, evincing a thorough mastery of technique and tone.

One of the foremost entertainers of the evening, Mr. Harvey Lloyd, a clever and laugh-provoking commedian, received many enchores. Mr. Loyd, who possesses a singing voice of pleasing quality, contributed much to the merriment of the gathering with several parodies and comic songs.

Mr. Geo. A. Mitchell, assistant supreme Chief Ranger, gave an interesting and convincing address on "Fraternity." He went on to explain the worthy motive that lay behind this organization, touching on the big and generous ideals which it had clung to. The order had met with difficulties of a testing nature, and even in the face of slanderous reports, launched in an endeavor to crush its spirit. This order had proved itself to be what it is today —one of the greatest organizations of its kind in the world.

The speaker dwelt on the excellent work of the society in times of stress and hardship, especially during the months when that dreadful scourage of Spanish "flu" raged in our midst. Many a cheerless home was brightened by the timely aid of the I.O.F. He impressed upon his audience the need for nuturing the fraternal spirit—he admonished them one and all to be always "boosters", never "knockers," and ever loyal to the order.

Dainty refreshments were served, after which the young people cleared the hall in a surprisingly short length of time and spent the remainder of the evening in tripping the light fantastic toe.

Following is the program:

1.—Chairman's remarks.
2.—Piano solo — Miss Martha Hoag.
3.—Humorous song — Harvey Loyd.
4.—Soprano solo—Miss Marjorie Wilson.
5.—Song—Harvey Loyd.
6.—Address on Fraternity—Geo A. Mitchell, Asst. upreme Chief Ranger.
7. — Piano solo — Miss Martha Hoag
8. Soprano solo—Miss Marjorie Wilson.
9.—Comic song—Mr. Harvey Loyd.

VICTORY LOAN DANCE WAS HELD IN OPEN AIR IN PELTING STORM

Cold and Slippery Pavement However, Did Not Dampen the Enthusiasm of the Revellers—Ald. Harry Phelan Leads the Grand March.

The Victory Loan's Committee's big Community Dance was a bowling snowstorm. One right after another they came but not hard enough to quench the enthusiasm of Young Peterborough. Once the Great War Veterans band, under the baton of Bandmaster Hughes got the dance music well underway, few there were who could resist the temptation to weather the storms and glide along the asphaltic and snowy way. It was a great night for young folks, and many of the older ones, and the official chronicler of the event would right here thank His Worship Mayor Duncan for getting the "hop" off to a right royal start by making a short speech through the medium of a megaphone, and Ald. Harry Phelan who helped in the festivities to the extent of snow-ploughing with fair partners and encouraging others to do likewise.

Early in the evening, there were doubts that the "dance" could be put on but the same old spirit that helped win the first Prince of Wales flag for Peterborough and will bring the VictoryLoan subscriptions for all Peterborough up to the three-million mark won the day, and it was decided to carry on. City Engineer Parsons was early on the scene with a number of men, and the police officeres were here too. Lads who were having the time of their lives on the highly "waxed" floor joined the sweeping brigade and soon most of the snow from one of the storms was packed away in the gutter.

Then another situation arose. It was too stormy for the band to do justice to themselves. so Mr. Harry Dahn, chairman of the "stunts" committee of the Victory Loan organization, had to arrange for a room. Mr. F. H. Dobbin was reached by telephone and the headquarters of the Patriotic Fund were secured, and there the musicians lodged for the evening. At half time they were treated to "hot dogs" by the members of the Business Girls' Club. Incidentally it might be mentioned that the Business Girls' and the Peter Robinson Chapter I. O. D. E. did some good work towards the success of the affair.

Now to return to the feature event. It demonstrated that there is nothing new under the sun, especially in dance steps. If there are any others, dancing masters have yet to produce them. What the dancers lacked in originality, the snow and the cloppery floor contributed, and the several thousand spectators laughed till their sides hurt them. But slips and spills didn't worry the revelers a bit; they only added to the fun. One and all one-stepped, sidestepped, waltzed and fox-trotted to their heart's content. When it was all over, each and every one agreed that it was a good night's fun, and when Mr. W. H. Bradburn, county chairman of the Loan organization went to the Patriotic Fund rooms and cordially thanked the band for their contribution, the bandsmen said they had as much fun as the dancers.

MUST NOT JEOPARDIZE ANY PRIVATE INTERESTS IN COMMERCE BD. INQUIRY

Agreements Between Canadian and Foreign Countries Cannot Be Disadvantageous to Canadian Public, Rules Mr. O'Connor—Senator Nicholls Gives Evidence.

Toronto, Nov. 15.—At the resumed hearing of the application (which commenced last Friday at Ottawa) of the Canadian Laco Philips Co. for a declaration by the Board of Commerce that the Canadian General Electric Company is a combine, Senator F. Nicholls was the principal witness.

Applicants state that before the war they imported lamps from Holland, but that European conditions prevent them from now doing so, and they desire to engage in their manufacture in Canada, but that the refusal of respondents to supply the wire prevents them.

Respondents claim that they hold not only a patent for wire, but also for lamps, and that they are not bound to assist any competitor in infringing their patent.

The applicants claim that the Canadian General Electric have agreements with other companies under which they allege a world-wide combine exists, and that different companies operate the patent rights in their respective territories, and agree not to invade the territories of the others. The operation of this alleged agreement, applicants contend, is detrimental to the public interest.

Before adjourning yesterday Mr. I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., counsel for respondents, said: "I state it baldly that we propose to drive every pirate away that we possibly can."

Senator's Evidence.

Senator Nichools stated he had been president of the Canadian General Electric as at present constituted, since 1892. At that time the Thompson, Houston Co., of Boston, and American Edison Co. had interests in Canada. The Canadian General Electric acquired all the interests of these and other companies.

Counsel for applicants referred to an agreement between companies in various countries whereby each agreed to keep out of each other's territory.

"I hope to get in a general way the general scheme of territory, patent rights, the combine for the interchange of patent rights and the results of these," he said.

"A matter of that sort should be worthy of the fullest particulars," said Judge Robson, who added that it was not relevant to the charge. "If you wish to amend and broaden your case, do so, but at present you have no right to go into this."

Mr. O'Connor could not see how agreements made by Canadian companies with foreign countries could be a disadvantage to the Canadian public, and he had said so at Ottawa.

Judge Robson looked on Mr. Anglin's course as setting up an entirely new case. The court should not be allowed to become so loose that private interests should be placed in jeopardy.

Submitting that the application was for "all proper investigation," Mr. Anglin thought that under the Board's power he should not be hampered at this stage of the hearing.

Mr. Hellmuth remarked that the Board had ruled the question was one of relevancy. He submitted it must be shown it was prejudicial to the public interest.

The Lamp Question.

Under examination, Senator Nicholls admitted that from the beginning of the war in 1914 the price of tungsten lamps advanced, and that in 1918 they began to fall and a total reduction of 30 per cent. had taken place last fall?" The object, he said, was to give the Canadian consumer the cheapest tungsten lamp in the world, and not to put the Canadian Laco Phillips Company out of business.

Continuing his evidence, Senator Nicholls said prices had advanced in the United States. In England the prices were higher than in either the states or Canada. He was not aware of an effective monopoly in England.

Before the war the C.G.E. practically had a monopoly of the Canadian lamp business. They had been accustomed to buy their glass in Europe, but hostilities shut off the market.

With the increase in volume of sales, they expected to continue to reduce prices to the consumer.

"What do you say as to your being able to take care of the entire lamp business in Canada?" Senator Nicholls was asked.

"We expect to have an equipment to turn out 50 per cent. more than our entire output in Canada."

ONLY FEW MINERS RETURN TO WORK

BUT SLIGHT INCREASE IN PRODUCTION OF BITUMINOUS COAL IN SIGHT

Washington, Nov. 14.—At the conference of coal miners and operators from the bituminous coal fields, beginning at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon, Secretary of Labor Wilson, acting as mediator, hoped a lasting settlement would be reached of the differences which led to the recent soft coal strike.

Await Developments.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Only slight increase in the amount of bituminous coal produced throughout the country was in prospect to-day. The miners generally showed a disposition to await developments of the meeting to-day at Washington of miners and operators called by Secretary of Labor Wilson to negotiate a new wage scale.

In the general summary of the situation, optimistic statements regarding resumption of fuel production were received only from Colorado. A number of independent mines there were reported to have started operations yesterday for the first time since the strike was called two weeks ago.

FARMER ELECTED BY ACCLAMATION

W. N. H. HARVEY WAS NOT CONTESTED IN KINDERSLEY SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatoon, Nov. 14.—W. C. Harvey, of Flaxcombe, was yesterday elected by acclamation to represent Kindersley in the Saskatchewan Legislature. The new M.P.-elect was nominated on Friday last by the farmers of the riding, his candidature later being endorsed by the Liberals. As the Conservatives did not put a man in the field, there was no election yesterday. The new member takes the seat which was vacated by Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Provincial Minister of Agriculture, who resigned recently to contest the riding in the Federal election.

OTONABEE REMEMBERS ITS HEROES AND RELATIVES OF SOLDIER DEAD

Returned Men Presented With Rings and Next of Kin With Lockets—Welcome Home to War Veterans Last Night

The returned soldiers of that portion of Otonabee neighboring on the city were presented with handsome signet rings, and the next-of-kind of those that had fallen were presented with lockets, at a meeting held in the Sons of England Hall last evening.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O, Canada." Col. Johnston was chairman and stated that, although the soldiers all know they were welcome home this gathering was held to impress that fact more deeply upon them.

Rev. Father Phelan made a brief address, welcoming the boys home again. "We are here tonight to honor those brave young men who have returned and to remember those who laid down their lives on the fields of Flanders," he explained. "Otonabee was never behind in doing its bit, and the number of men who enlisted from there added to its honor. He said that he knew Col. Johnston well, and paid great tribute to him as a soldier and as a man. There were no braver men in the Allied armies than Canadians and no better Canadians than the boys of the 93rd Battalion."

Rev. Mr. Ross.

In opening his address Rev. Mr. Ross highly praised Col. Johnston for his services as a soldier and for his noble spirit as a citizen. He declared that the colonel had been one with his men through the hell of it, for war is hell.

"And why did you men go?" he asked. "It was because your country called you, and you, then, buckled on the sword." Speaking of why the war came upon this world, he gave it as his firm belief that it originated because the world and the church were getting away from God. The theologists of Germany were spreading their doctrine of higher criticism around the world even into England and Canada. The great professors were beginning to question the divinity of Christ. "Germany insulted Jesus Christ," he declared. "The war came because we forgot God."

But the effect of the war is that men are getting together in a spirit of brotherhood that they never felt before. There is great unrest, but it is an unrest that comes before the dawning of a new era of brotherhood and good fellowship.

Nothing Too Good.

There is nothing too good for the soldier, the speaker declared. The $2,000 gratuity is not enough for returned men: if it can be so arranged, those who have suffered most would obtain the most. They have saved our homes and our loved ones from the bloody Hun and the bloody Turk. "We welcome the men home as the saviors of our country."

Presentation of Rings.

At this juncture of the program the returned soldiers were all requested to stand while Miss F. Pettie read an address and Miss S. Sargent presented them with signet rings.

Col. Johnston, on behalf of the soldiers, thanked the people for their kindness and generosity.

Live on Good Fellowship.

Rev. Mr. Rollins, after praising Col. Johnston for his interest in his men, both during the war and since their return told some interesting stories of experiences in France.

He declared that people could live on good fellowship but not on animosity and hatred. The great psychological mistake the Germans had made was by cultivating a feeling of hatred in their men toward their enemies. It was an unwholesome spirit and lowered the morale of the German soldiers.

He had no envy for the man who reaped service during the war. He does not want their money, of spoil, and he does not believe returned soldiers do either. "We all had our faults," he declared, but let us organize, and get together for good."

He spoke of the wonderful work of the women during the war and of the suffering in the hearts of mothers who have lost sons.

Presentation of Lockets.

Here Miss G. Casey read an address to the mothers and sisters of those who had fallen and Miss H. Chamberlain presented each next-of-kin with a beautiful locket. These, as well as the rings, were procured at Warne Bros.

Mr. F. D. Kerr.

The last speaker of the evening was Mr. F. D. Kerr, who declared that the people at home were proud of every soldier who returned and proud of every soldier who had made the supreme sacrifice. And he spoke of the exceptional pride the people of Peterborough city and county had in the 93rd Battalion and its commander Col. Johnston. He spoke of how all our hearts go out to relatives of those who had been killed. We all have lost someone dear to us, but it is not the suffering experienced by the mother losing her son. But we must remember, as Rupert Brooks puts it, there is a corner of some field in Flanders that is forever Canada.

There is one thing the war has brought home to us and that is a sense of fair play, justice and honorable dealings between creeds, classes and nationalities. Love will lead this world to heaven, but hate will carry it down to hell. The duty of the soldier is not over. He must for civilization in his own community. We must unite, one and all, unite with the civilian for the fight for the advancement of this great country.

The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

NEW FARMERS' PARTY BORN IN WINNIPEG TO CONTEST NEXT FEDERAL ELECTIONS

Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario Will Be Called to Prepare for an Active Campaign.

Winnipeg, Nov. 15. — A United Farmers' party to contest Federal elections was born at the meeting of the Canadian Council of Agriculture tonight.

In addition to opposing the old political parties at provincial elections, the Farmers' party will launch out into Dominion politics, probably at the coming general election, but assuredly at the election after, it was stated by delegates.

The members were united on everything except details, and an inter-provincial convention, of Alberta Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario will be called to prepare for an active campaign while T. A. Crerar, H. W. Wood and other strong Grain Grower speakers start next week on a tour of the western provinces, speaking in favor of agrarian organization. Wood's economic group idea was not made a part, however, of the Council's policy of endorsement.

Federation of Parties

The first form of organization will include an inter-provincial federation of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Ontario parties. Later the Dominion organization will spread out to include all the provinces in the Dominion, it was planned.

MINE WORKERS WILL NEGOTIATE NATION-WIDE WAGE SCALE FOR U.S.

Agreement Reached in Conference at Washington today—Labor Secretary Wilson Tells Both Sides What Would Have to be Done for an Adjustment.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 15.— Acceptance without qualification by the mine workers of Secretary of Labor Wilson's proposal for the negotiation of a nation-wide wage scale agreement, was announced at the conference today by John L. Lewis, acting president of the United Mine Workers of America.

Suggestions Outlined.

Operators and miners again faced each other today in an effort to settle the controversy which led to the recent nation-wide strike of the soft coal miners.

Secretary of Labor Wilson, by whom this conference was called in Washington yesterday, in an address told both sides just what would have to be done for an adjustment of their disputes.

When the conference re-convened at 10 o'clock today suggestions outlined by Mr. Wilson were the first thing to be discussed by both factions.

D'ANNUNZIO IN A NEW ADVENTURE

LEAVES ON TORPEDO BOAT FOR LANDING ON DALMATIAN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Paris, Nov. 15. — The American Peace delegation here has received a telegram from Vice-Consul O'Hara, at Trieste, telling of reports there that D'Annunzio left Fiume on the torpedo-boat Valloi, and landed on the Dalmatian Coast, where he is engaged in another adventure.

Warship Follows

D'Annunzio was said to have been followed by an Italian warship, which was merely observing his movements. His debarkation point on the Dalmatian coast is not known. These advices to the Peace Conference were from the American Vice-Consul at Trieste. He forwarded the report that D'Annunzio had left on the Valloi and had effected a landing on the Dalmatian coast line.

Election Scheme

Special importance is attached in Peace Conference circles to D'Annunzio's movements, because of the fast that Sunday is election day in Italy, with Fiume the chief issue.

It is generally thought that D'Annunzio is seeking to carry out a spectacular operation to strengthen the Fiume party, which is reported in Paris to have lost considerable ground in Italy.

FAILURE OF UNITED STATES TO RATIFY GERMAN PEACE PACT INJURES FRANCE

Paris, Nov. 14.— France is described as the chief sufferer from the failure of the U. S. so far to ratify the German Peace Treaty, in an editorial by Alfred Capus, editor-in-chief of the Figaro, published in the combined journal of the Paris newspapers, La Presse de Paris. The editorial asserts that France is directly interested in having the treaty ratified and put into effect immediately after the election, so that France may be enabled to buy raw materials at better prices than at present. It says that the Americans seem to take no account of this and to view the treaty as a thing to be realt with purely on terms of American policy, "without concerning themselves with the sericus manner in which delays over the treaty jeopardize our interests."

"But do they not know," the editorial continues: "what concessions we ourselves have been obliged to make and under what pressure, under what influence, avowed and visible, we made them? Was it not the authority of President Wilson that led us? Was he not their representative, their plenipotentiary?

"Today, for motives purely material, they disavow this high agent, and, to reach him who spoke in their name, they are going to punish us for our compliance, for we are the first victims of this disagreement, we who await, coal, leather, wheat and cotton—we who are buying at the rate of nine francs for the dollar.

"It is not the turn of our friends of the U.S. to forget their preferences, or to sacrifice them for the common cause? This sacrifice is necessary to our economic rehabilitation, which concerns American interests as well as ours."

THE NEW PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENT.

MANY OF THE newspapers of Ontario that profess friendship for the new Provincial Government make the mistake of extending sympathy to and in a measure apologising for the members of the Cabinet. They hasten to explain that these men are new to their positions, and for that reason are entitled to public toleration. Give them a chance. They may yet make good, and the implication is that if they do the Province will be really surprised. The very fact that the new Cabinet Ministers dress much as other men array themselves and do not display a wilderness of hirsute adornment is quoted as so much argument in their favor.

Since when have the farmers of Ontario shown themselves in any way inferior to other classes, either socially or intellectually? Men have been called unexpectedly from private life to public place and have discharged their duties with credit to themselves and to the advantage of the public. Premier Drury and his Cabinet associates represent the best elements of the farming community. They do not lack intelligence of a high order or experience in public life, even if that experience has been confined to service on municipal councils. They have simply been called to a wider field, to higher duties, and none but the [illegible] or the disappointed office-seeker has any misgivings as to their ultimate success in meeting the obligations that have been placed upon them.

The new Government has its opportunities and will rise to them. It can remodel the public service. It can lop away the fol-de-rols that have made the opening of the various sessions of the Legislature a society display of millinery and a blaze of jewels, a cheap imitation of the ways of a royal court, and a weak mimicry of military circumstance. It can announce its policy at the opening of the House and then immediately set its hand to giving that policy effect, instead of spending days in set and wearisome speeches, a discussion all the more fruitless because the same debating ground is covered again when the various questions are up for final disposition.

Premier Drury and his associates have so far proved true to the trust that has been reposed in them. They have been elected—or chosen for election—as an independent party, and so far have maintained themselves as such. The old political parties were slaughtered at the polls. The farmers and Labor men who have replaced them make no attempt to call the dead from their tombs. No entangling alliances have been formed with the rejected faction in order to obtain security in power. The farmers and their associates, who had a common cause and interests at the polls, will now work out their own destiny. If they succeed, the honor will be theirs. If they fail, it will probably be because political combinations of which they have been so long the victims have been used against them again.

THE SILLIEST EXCUSE.

PERHAPS THE MOST trivial of all arguments that Victory Bond sellers have encountered in the present drive is that of the man who says he would buy Bonds except for the fact that he is dissatisfied with the present Government. He represents the type of individual who, according to the old saying, "cuts off his nose to spite his face." Does he want Canada to fall back in the race for trade; does he want her to abandon production; does he want her to fail in carrying out her obligations to the returned soldiers, simply because he does not like the present Government?

Every one should realize that this Loan is not merely the petty device of a political party to keep itself going. It is Canada's Loan to keep Canada going. It is a loan for the people, by the people, and its benefits go back to the people in increased trade, increased production, increased wages, and increased circulation of money generally. A man might just as well refuse to write to his friends because he does not like the Postmaster-General as to decline to buy Bonds because he would like to see some other party in power. Before these bonds mature there will be other men and other parties in power. It is a Loan without political significance of any kind, for it is endorsed by political leaders of every stripe. Its true significance is national and patriotic. If a man is holding back merely on account of his prejudice, he had best revise his patriotism and subscribe at once.

THE ONE THING NEEDFUL.

OCCASIONALLY a public speaker is brought from Toronto or some other centre of intellectual culture to illuminate the minds of the native population upon matters of grave spiritual or material import. The orator comes, speaks, and departs, and the effect of his efforts, judging from subsequent results, are not always apparent.

On scriptural topics it is difficult to see where many of the visiting professional reformers ever really accomplish anything in the way of enlightening the masses. Few of them have a message. They tell the old story in the old way without anything like a new application of its truths. They dwell on the spiritual needs of mankind, but are slow to suggest a practical remedy for the conditions which they deplore. They are in the same class as the physician who can tell what ails his patient but is at sea when it comes to prescribing for his malady.

A few selected verses from the Sermon on the Mount, the Golden Rule, and the story of the Good Samaritan, printed in illuminated text and hung over every rostrum in the city, lay or clerical, would have more effect upon average humanity than ninety per cent. of the oratory of men who might, to effective purpose, study such inscriptions themselves, orators, many of them, who have none but an academic interest in the matters which they discuss.

"Why does not the workingman attend church?" someone asks, and another is always ready to volunteer the answer that it is because the object of this solicitude is lost in spiritual darkness. He is indifferent as to his fate. If not an out-and-out infidel, he is at least an agnostic.

Nothing of the kind. Those who speak thus of the workingman have no actual knowledge of his state of mind. Christ was never held in such reverence by the masses as He is today. His teachings are studied as they never were before. But it is the life and the precepts rather than the tragic death of the Saviour that is emphasized by His undenominational worshippers. What they object to is anything like an attempt to build up a cheerless theology on sectarian interpretation of those deathless words and to use the Cross as a symbol of the system.

LAYMEN VERSUS PROFESSIONALS.

HOW IS IT that the self-satisfied laity is always setting up its opinions against those of trained professionals? It is nothing unusual to hear the man in the pews criticize the pastor's discourse and to talk of what he would do if the church were "thrown open" to the ministrations of outsiders. There are others who never read a single statute who, according to their own say, know more law than half the lawyers in existence. It is indeed a modest individual who does not assume to know all about the way in which a newspaper should be conducted.

Perhaps the members of the medical profession suffer more in this regard than any other class. Their professional attainments are often openly challenged, that, too, by men who can have no knowledge of what they are talking about. To quote a recent incident by way of illustration, there is a certain class of residents in Toronto who are up in arms against the idea of compulsory vaccination. They profess to believe that this branch of medical science is a menace rather than otherwise, and are prepared to fight it to the last ditch.

The discovery of the use of vaccine as a preventative for smallpox has always been regarded as a medical triumph. Vaccination has been generally adopted by the profession the world over and has been made compulsory in many countries. Years ago smallpox was one of the most horrible, most dreaded diseases to which mankind was a prey. It meant ghastly suffering, and if it did not result in death usually left the victim disfigured for life. Of recent years all such visitations have been of a comparatively mild type, and the percentage of fatal cases is small. Medical men seldom agree on all points of practice or ethics, but the general expert opinion seems to be that this change for the better is due to the general enforcement of vaccination.

But the hard-headed public must in this case, as in so many others, be saved from the effects of their inborn prejudices and obstinacy. It is not that the objector dislikes submitting himself to a trifling surgical operation. The real cause of his opposition is that he objects to anything that savors of compulsion. The principle of personal liberty is again involved. Still the obstinate man who refuses to be vaccinated is not only a menace to himself but to the members of his family and the community at large. He must be saved from himself. In the very nature of things, he cannot be expected to have any intimate knowledge of the mysteries of medical jurisprudence.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING.

(Newspaperdom.)

Newspaper advertising benefits producer and consumer alike by facilitating quantity production. The buyer of articles regularly advertised in the daily newspapers is often able to get them in retail quantities at less than he would have to pay for wholesale lots but for the rapid turnover the seller secures by creating an active market for his wares through good publicity.

Advertising keeps the manufacturers of these commodities busy and enables them to make the most economical use of their plants. It cuts the cost of selling and delivery to a minimum.

It is as profitable for the consumer to patronize regular advertisers as it is for the advertisers to send news and information about their products into the homes of hundreds of thousands of prospective purchasers.

PROBLEM OF THE DOWN TOWN CHURCH

(By J. E. Middleton.)

Fifteen years ago, in a district of Toronto long established as the home of comfortable Canadians, a new church was erected. The congregations were usually large; therefore, it seemed necessary to get the Board to provide a commodious auditorium. Rather than incur too heavy an obligation, the normal needs of the Sunday School and social organizations of the congregation were skimped.

Scarcely was the church opened until foreigners began moving into the neighborhood. House after house was sold, the former owners moving into the newer districts of the city. Generally, the new-comers had less careful and less tidy habits than their predecessors. Every family, it seemed, took in lodgers and the streets on a summer evening were crowded with gay and dancing children who shouted to their hearts' content. The drug store at the corner had a window sign in four languages, Yiddish, Greek, Italian and English.

The congregations of the old established family church shrank to a mere handful. The minister went out into the highways, but could compel few to come in. He and his Board saw no way of meeting the financial committments of the church, and there was no possibility of readjusting the building for city mission work without a heavy expenditure.

Meanwhile, they had got the notion that all the English-speaking folk had moved away from the neighborhood, and there was talk of selling the property and building elsewhere. Advisers who were called in from other down-town districts suggested that a house-to-house survey of the parish should first be undertaken. The work was done and those who assisted were astonished at the result. The total population was 19,000. Of them, 13,000 were foreigners of a dozen varieties, but 6,000 were English speaking. The great majority of these cheerfully admitted that they went nowhere to church, and seemingly they had no marked desire to change their custom.

Some said their clothes were not good enough. Others said they did not want to mix with a lot of snobs. Others were frankly but courteously uninterested. A few were less polite, advising those engaged in the survey to mind their own business. Thus it was borne in upon the managers that the church had a field of service where it stood. The custom of praying earnestly that the light might be sent into heathen lands suddenly became obsolete. The faithful remembered that mission work of all sorts should "begin at Jerusalem."

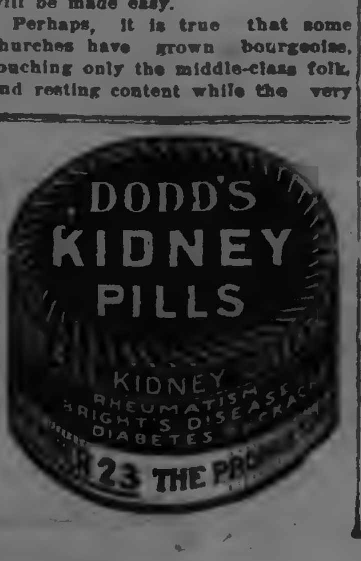
Friends of the old church got together and provided for the mortgage. The place was remodelled to supply club rooms for boys and girls. A deaconess was engaged. The pastor stopped preparing crudite sermons for a colection of saints long in the way, and became a spirited and peripatetic evangelist. The place became a social centre. It is true that some peculiarities attended the work. One group of boys came to Sunday School solely to raise Cain, and more than once, while waiting for a teacher, filled the room with cigarette smoke, or broke the furniture in mere wanton mischief.

Two of the boys got into trouble and stood one morning in the juvenile court. The pastor was there to give his pledge that they would run straight if they were allowed to go. In a short time the gang was transformed into a class, respectful and eager to learn. The people began to understand that the were not asked to be kind to the church, but that the church was here to be kind to them.

That sort of work faces every down-town church in every considerable community. Bear in mind, that it is not yet possible to reach the foreign element. That requires a specialized form of missionary work. But if the English speaking unchurched folk can be interested—and they can—the other work will be made easy.

Perhaps, it is true that some churches have grown bourgeoise, touching only the middle-class folk, and resting content while the very rich and the very poor go straight to hell. If so, it is time for a change. Christianity is not a middle-class religion. It has a universal appeal, and should be universally proclaimed.

Five denominations of Christians are associated in an Inter-Church Forward Movement for the purpose of rousing the Canadian people to a better understanding of the relation of the gospel to the progress of the nation. It is an unusual and noble spectacle to see Anglicans, Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists and Presbyterians deeply concerned about the spiritual health of the people, and determined to emphasize in pulpit and press the essentials of Christianity.



TONIC TREATMENT FOR THE NERVES

NEURALGIA AND OTHER SEVERE NERVOUS DISORDERS CURED THROUGH THE BLOOD.

In many severe nervous disorders the best remedy is often a tonic. The most active tonic treatment is recommended by the highest medical authority to arrest the progress of such disease. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic that acts on the nerves through the blood, which carries to the nerves the elements needed to build them up and restore them to a normal condition.

Neuralgia, sciatica, nervous headaches and a number of more severe nervous troubles are properly treated by building up the blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and are often entirely cured in this way. If you are nervous you can help yourself by refusing to worry, by taking proper rest and sleep, by avoiding excesses and by taking out-of-door exercise. For medicine take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and you will soon notice the beneficial effect of this tonic in every part of the system. Miss Annie L. Johnston, R.R. No. 1, Listowel, Ont., is one of the numerous sufferers from nervous troubles who has found a cure through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Miss Johnston says:—"For a long time I was a severe sufferer from nervous troubles, with the result that I grew very pale and weak. Medical treatment did not help me, and various medicines had no beneficial effect, until finally a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began their use and took the pills regularly for several months with the result that I not only gained in weight, but have recovered my full health and strength. I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills too highly for what they have done for me."

To build up the blood there is one remedy that has been a household word for a generation, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They tone up the entire system, make the blood rich and red, strengthen the nerves, increase the appetite, put color in the cheeks and lips and drive away that unnatural, tired feeling. Plenty of sunlight, good wholesome food and fresh air will do the rest. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EDITOR'S MAIL

MOONSHINE IN COURT

Editor Review. I will give you herewith a translation of an article which appeared in the German newspaper, The Herald, of New York:

"The closing of the bars needn't bring sorrow to those who like something a little stronger than the 2½ per cent. There appeared before Magistrate Dale, of Gates Avenue Police Court, a man who gave his name as Edward E. Stark, of 342 Sumpter street, Brooklyn, and who was charged with being drunk. The magistrate was first struck with amazement—prohibition and drunkness—how can that happen? Then he said to the prisoner: 'Your case may be very interesting; where do you get your drinks from?'

"'I make them myself,' said the prisoner in a laconic tone, whereon the magistrate said: 'Maybe some of the audience here would be glad if they would get some more information about your secret,' and then discharged him on suspended sentence.

"Stark then handed the magistrate the recipe by saying: 'With this you can make a fire water of 100 per cent. proof.'

"After he had said this, he wanted to leave the room, but he was unable, as all the beadles and the audience surrounded him in moment and everyone wanted to get a copy of the recipe of this 100 per cent., and he gave it to them.

"Here it is: Take two pounds of brown sugar, one pound of raisins, one quart of cornmeal, three lemons cut in slices, two yeast cakes and one galon of distilled water. Mix all in an earthen crock, let stand for 30 days and strain.

"After he had distributed the recipes he said: 'You will have with this a gallon of a spirituous beverage with a regular kick in it for only 35 cents,' and then he beat it."

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for your kindness in giving me a space in your valuable paper.

COUNTESS HAS NO USE FOR BLACKLEGS

LADY WARWICK SCORES RAILWAYMEN WHO STOOD AT POST DURING STRIKE

Bishop Stortford, Eng. — Twelve railwaymen employed at the station here, who remained at their posts during the recent strike, have been presented with a sum of money and an address of appreciation by the townspeople. The Countess of Warwick, who has a residence here and uses the station when living in town, was invited to contribute to the fund. She sent this response:

"Lady Warwick is amased at the communication sent her, which she returns herewith. It is incredible that any thoughtful person should commend disloyalty to a union for monetary reward. The railwaymen who stood aside reap the benefits of the great victory achieved by their fellows, as did the occupants of snug and safe berths during the war, while others fought for them. Lady Warwick will have nothing to do with blacklegs."

Guelph, Nov. 14.—A tablet to the memory of the late Lieut.-Col. WANT $45 A WEEK.

A schedule fixing a minimum wage of $45, based on a fourty-four hour week, has been presented by the Watchmakers and Clockmakers' Union of Toronto to the manufacturing jewelers and watchmakers of Toronto and the locality and the retail stores. The demands of the union mean, if granted, almost one hundred per cent increase in wages to a considerable number of the watchmakers.

During a church service the car belonging to Rev. W. Moore, Sarnia, was stolen.

MRS. M. PECK HAS GAINED 25 POUNDS

NINE YEARS' TROUBLE ENDS, AND SHE IS WELL AND HAPPY NOW.

"I have gained twenty-five pounds since I commenced taking Tanlac, and the troubles that have been making life miserable for me for nine years have been completely overcome," said Mrs. Minnie Peck, who lives at 9874 82nd Avenue, Edmonton, the other day.

"When I commenced taking Tanlac," continued Mrs. Peck, "I was so weak and run down that I was hardly able to get about. Everything I ate would disagree with me, and I would suffer for two or three hours after every meal on account of gas forming and bloating me up. I would have severe cramping pains in the pit of my stomach. I was very nervous, so much so that the slamming of a door would upset me terribly, and a good night's sleep was out of the question for me. I would actually get out of bed every morning feeling more tired and worn out than I did the night before. This condition just kept getting worse all the time until I got to where I was compelled to stay in bed most of the time.

"Then I decided to give Tanlac a trial, and it's the honest truth, I commenced to feel better before I had finished my first bottle of this wonderful medicine, and my condition just kept getting better until I am now as well as I ever was in my life. I never have a sign of stomach trouble now, and I have a fine appetite and eat just anything I want. I have gotten back all my strength and can easily do all my housework. My nerves are in splendid condition and I sleep like a child every night. It is simply wonderful the way I have gained in weight, and in fact I just feel fine all the time. Yes, sir, Tanlac is a wonderful medicine, and as long as I live I will never lose an opportunity to say a good word for it."

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by W. R. Warne Drug Co., Ltd.; in Havelock, by A. C. Denike; in Lakefield, by Tanner Drug Co., Ltd.; in Fowlers' Corners, by W. A. Hunter; in Gelert, by A. J. Scott; in Westwood, by G. Pringle and Son.

A chorus, a quartette, a duett and a solo will be given. Men of all ages are cordially invited. A special invitation is extended to men who have no church homes.

LADY ASTOR IN LIVELY CONTEST

BRITISH BYE-ELECTION PHENOMENALLY QUIET—HEAVY LABOR VOTE ESTIMATED

London, Nov. 14.— Four by-elections are now in progress, Plymouth where Lady Astor pursues a lively contest, polls on Saturday, and the counting takes place November 28. W. T. Gay, her Labor opponent, prophesies he will win with 12,000 votes against Lady Astor's 10,000 and the Liberal candidates 7,000. Lady Astor declares she will receive 14,000 majority. More dispassionate prophets, including the Unionists, estimate a heavy labor vote.

South Croydon polls Friday, counting November 27.— The vacancy is created through the resignation of Dan Malcolm. The Unionst candidate is Sir Allan Smith, the Liberal Alderman Houlder. The election is phenomenally quiet.

The Thanet vacancy is caused through the death of Commodore Hon. E. Harmsworth, son of Lord Rothermere, who makes a great feature of alleged waste by the Government. The Liberal candidate is Capt. West. This election is also very uneventful.

TWO WEEKS' UNITED CHURCH CAMPAIGN

ANGLICAN FORWARD MOVEMENT SENDING OUT TONS OF LITERATURE

The conventions of the United National Church Campaign commence on November 24 and 25. The series will last for two weeks, the object being to educate the people about the campaign, and to inspire them with the spirit of it.

The Anglican Forward Movement has sent out 22 different kinds of literature throughout the Dominion, totalling 1,750,000 copies. The demand for the "Cycle of Prayer" has been phenomenal. Charts and lantern slides are also being sent out. Many young men and women are volunteering for home and foreign mission service.

In each of Canada's 2,000 Anglican parishes committees are organized to distribute Forward Movement literature.

Solve this Puzzle!

FOR Johnny's birthday his mother presented him with a dandy rifle, and Johnny took the four targets that came with the rifle and went out to the back yard to try his skill. Shortly after, his mother came out too to satisfy herself that Johnny knew how to use his gun. Upon examining the targets showing all the holes made by the bullets, and being a quick-thinking woman, she exclaimed: "Why, Johnny, what a good shot you are—and do you know that you have made every target spell a word? Can you tell me what each target spells?"

Can YOU Puzzle It Out?

Johnny couldn't, so his mother told him HOW TO DO IT. Each target spells a word. Each circle of each target shows a number of bullet holes, as you can see by the targets, and each circle represents a letter. The number of holes indicates the position of that letter in the alphabet. For instance: "A" would be represented by one hole, "B" by two holes, "C" by three holes, and so on.

After you have worked out all the letters that are represented in each word, you will find that they are not in their proper order. Put them into their proper order to spell out correctly the names of the four things wanted.

In order to help you, we will tell you that the letter represented by the middle circle of first target is "A," because A is the first letter of the alphabet. This is not an easy puzzle, but with perseverance you can work it out—and the prizes are worth trying for.

Copy your answer upon a plain sheet of paper as neatly as you can, because neatness, spelling, handwriting and punctuation count if more than one answer is correct—Put your name and address in the top right-hand corner of the paper. If you have to write a letter, or show anything else, put it upon a separate sheet of paper. We will write as soon as your answer is received and tell you if your solution is correct, and also send you a complete illustrated list of the grand prizes that you can win.

THE PRIZES:

First Prize - Genuine Culver Chummy Racer, value	$250.00
Second Prize - Magnificent Gold Watch and Chain, or Girl's Wrist Watch, value	25.00
Third Prize - Genuine Autographic Kodak Folding Camera, value	20.00
Fourth Prize - Solid Gold Ring for Boy or Girl, value	15.00
Fifth Prize - - Moving Picture Machine, with Film, value	10.00
Sixth to Tenth Prize - Self-Filler Fountain Pens, value, each	2.50

And 2,000 Extra Special Prizes Valued at $3,000.00.

What Others Have Done, YOU Can Do!

Here are the names of only a few of the boys and girls to whom we have already awarded big prizes:

Shetland Pony and Cart—Helen Smith, Edmonton

$15.00 Bracelet Watch—Mary Procter, Vancouver, B.C.
$10.00 Doll and Carriage—Eva Gauthier, North Bay, Ont.

We will send you the names of many others too. Only boys and girls under 17 years of age may send answers, and each boy and girl will be required to perform a small service for us.

The contest will close on June 30, 1920, at 5.30 p.m. Send your answers this very evening.

MACHINERY FOR MODERN OFFICE WORK ABOLISHES ALL DRUDGERY

Wonderful Appliances Now Allow of Congenial Occupation For Young Women and Young Men at Increased Salaries—All Nerve-Racking Strain Eliminated by Twentieth Century Inventions.

Speed with efficiency, accounting with unquestionable accuracy these strenuous days of re-construction, are responsible for the adoption of mechanical aid by all modern business and commercial establishments where office work enters largely into every day operations. Mistakes and belated work no longer find toleration in this age of specialization, for at last men of genius have directed attention to office needs, and invented such wonderful appliances as the Calculator, the Book-keeping and Posting Machine (electrically driven), and the Dictaphone.

A Marvellous Trio.

The Burrough's Calculator is a mechanical contrivance which adds, subtracts, multiplies and divides with unfailing accuracy; the Book-keeping and Posting Machine does the work of a bookkeeper, with an infallibleness that is simply astounding; the Dictaphone, in brief, is simply a speech-recording machine. Just as the typewriter is the most efficient office appliance for writing correspondence, so the Dictaphone is the recognized efficient and accurate invention for receiving and transmitting dictation. The business-man dictates his letters into the receiver, which records them on wax cylinders; these cylinders are placed in a transmitting machine for use by the typist, who affixes hearing tubes to her ears, sets the machine in motion and types from the actual dictation of her employer, heard from the Dictaphone as clearly as were she sitting at his side. The speed of both receiving and transmitting apparatus can be adjusted to suit both dictator and transcriber.

Today all large modern business establishments either have or are acquiring these time-saving and efficiency-assuring appliances, and consequently operators are much in demand. But this trio of specialized efficiency call for skill in their operation, as does all machinery, and the business man only engages those who have been trained in a knowledge of them before hand. Hence the Peterborough Business College, of which Mr. J. A. McKone is the principal, has installed a battery of five Calculators, one Book-keeping and Posting Machine and one electrically driven Dictaphone for the instruction of students. For the Dictaphone Mr. McKone has a battery of 12 sets of hearing tubes, so that twelve typists can practice from the one transmitter. So far there are but one or two other schools in Canada which teach the Calculator, while Peterborough Business College is the only school in Canada with a Book-keeping and Posting Machine.

Drudgery Eliminated

The advantage of a practical knowledge of these machines should be readily grasped by the young man or young woman seeking a business career; they eliminate all the drudgery of office work, and make typing, book-keeping and accounting pleasant avocations; they assure shorter hours, generous salaries and a less laborious day; and, above all, their operators are in demand by substantial business establishments, where cheerful conditions exist, and where the health, comfort, happiness and material welfare of employees are a consideration with the management. It is such establishments as these which are drawing on the Peterborough Business College for their office help—young men and young women thoroughly trained in modern clerical and typing requirements. For this school is up-to-the-minute in every respect, and unquestionably one of the best equipped business educational institutions, for its size, in Canada. Its graduates are always placed in remunerative and desirable positions, as, for instance, one young girl, who, after but eight weeks training with the Calculator and typewriter, found engagement with a Toronto business house at an initial salary of $780 a year. And Mr. McKone is constantly in receipt of letters from his graduates telling of prosperity and advancement in the business world as a result of their initiative training under his tuition.

The Peterborough Business College was established in 1885 and has kept apace with the city in its march of progress. Today there are 108 pupils studying under Principal McKone and five efficient assistants. The school is situated at the corner of George and Simcoe streets in the Dominion Bank building. The class rooms are bright, cheerful, lofty and admirably ventilated, and no modern convenience for students has been overlooked. Night school is conducted Monday and Thursday evenings, from 7.30 to 9.30, and there are 55 students just now. Young men and young women from a distance are enrolled on the Peterborough Business College's books, and the principal sees to it that they are desirably accommodated in the city. Altogether this business college enjoys an enviable reputation for thoroughness in its teaching and modernness in its appliances and methods, while past graduates rejoice in successful business careers as a result of graduating in a school which has risen to the twentieth century call for efficiency.

SIR CHAS. ROSS' CLAIM

Seeks Compensation For Compulsory Taking by Government of Rifle Factory

Ottawa, Nov. 15.— The Exchequer Court is to adjudicate upon the claim of Sir Charles Ross for Compensation for the compulsory taking by the Government of the Ross rifle factory in 1916. Subsequent to the expropriation Sir Charles filed a claim for about $18,000,000 compensation and damages for cancellation of contracts. The Government refused the necessary fiat on the ground that in the order of exproriation the maximum value of the property was fixed at $3,000,000. On the latter basis the case now goes to the Exchequer Court to determine the actual amount to be paid with three millions as the outside limit.

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if bladder bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become sluggish; they become overbackache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for a generation to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

EMBARGO ON ARMS

Effort to Prevent Shipping to Ammunition to Mexico

Washngton, Nov. 14. — Efforts are being made by the United States Government to prevent the shipment of large supplies of arms and ammunition purchased in Europe by the Mexican government.

One large order for munitions was placed by Mexico with the Fabrique Nationale d'Armes of Liege, Belgium, and it was learned that the U. S. charge at Brussels had protested against shipment of the arms on the ground that it would be in violation of the international arms convention.

STORY OF BANK MANAGER'S PLUCK

SHOT IN THE ABDOMEN HE FOUGHT TWO HOLD-UP MEN

Toronto, Nov. 15.— John Putwain, the man who is alleged to have attempted to hold up the officials of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Agincourt on May 20th, was committed for trial by Magistrate Brunton yesterday.

Robert Laing, manager of the bank said that he had been asked by Putwain for change. While he was in the vault getting it he heard his assistant, Miss Chapman, give a little frightened cry—and a stool moved over the floor.

"It just ocurred to me what was happening," said Mr. Laing. "I picked up a revolver that was lying in the vault and walked to the door of the vault. Just as I came to the vault door I heard a report and was shot in the abdomen. I had my revolver ready and shot right into the man. He shot, and I shot right after—as soon as I saw him. I paused to see if there was any more fight in him before I went after the other fellow."

Prisoner pleaded guilty and asked the magistrate to "finish it as soon as you can," but Major Brunton preferred to send him for trial. "There are many complications in the case, which, in the interests of the public, I think should receive thorough investigation."

WHAT IS A CURE?

IS IT A TEMPORARY OR PERMANENT CONDITION?

Let us get down to brass tacks. Is there is any such thing as a cure? You may eradicate every trace of disease from your system and be restored to your former state of health—but you haven't attained a cure. Why? Because as long as disease germs are prevalent in the universe you may be afflicted again.

Take for example: a man has a terrible headache for days. It has driven him almost insane, sapping his energies and making him incapable of working. He tries doctors, takes prescriptions, and finally finds a preparation that makes him fit again. Immediately he says, "I'm cured."

Six months later his head begins to ache. What does he say, "Here's my old headache back again, that medicine was a fake"—or does he say, "Another attack! we'll soon knock that out!" and commences the use of the remedy that relieved him before.

This happens in many cases of Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, Neuralgia. That is why we say "Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules" remedy these diseases. They are 99% effective by actual record.

Ask your Druggist or write us for our new booklet, it is interesting and costs you nothing (Templeton's, 142 King West, Toronto). We [illegible] anywhere on receipt of $1.04.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

St. John, N. B., Nov. 15.—An advance of twenty cents an hour in wages is demanded by the longshoremen of the port of St. John for the coming winter.

The present rate, fixed a year ago, is sixty cents an hour, and the men now ask for eighty. As a counter offer, steamer men suggested sixty-five cents an hour. Coal handlers, who now receive seventy-five cents an hour, are also asking for higher wages.

WILL ENTER FEDERAL FIELD

Farmers Decide to Take Part in Dominion Politics.

Winnipeg, Nov. 14.—The Canadian Council of Agriculture, which has been in session since Tuesday, concluded its business last evening by announcing to the public its decision to enter the field of Dominion politics and calling a conference of representatives of the organized farmer organizations of the three prairie provinces and Ontario for the purpose of co-ordination of effort to secure the election to the federal parliament of supporters of the new national policy of the council. In preparation for this event the platform which was issued a year ago has been revised and brought up to date by the addition of planks calling for the federal electorate being placed on a provincial basis and for personal naturalization only.

START TOMORROW AND KEEP IT UP EVERY MORNING

Get into the habit of drinking a glass of hot water before breakfast.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles according to hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, become food for the million of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisons and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood, causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath, bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

CHURCH FIELD DAY.

Tomorrow will be a Forward Movement field day among the Anglican churches of Peterborough, a delegation of influential men having been sent down from Toronto to deal with the subject. At 11 a.m. His Honor Judge Hodgins will give the address in St. John's, Mr. N. W. Allin, diocesan commissioner, in St. Luke's, and Rev. R. S. Mason at All Saints'. At 7 p.m. Mr. R. W. Allin will be the speaker in St. John's, Judge Hodgins in All Saints', and Rev. R. S. Mason at St. George's. There will be a special meeting for the men of the different congregations at 4:15 in St. John's guild room to discuss the matter with Judge Hodgins.

PRINCE HELPS IN HEALTH CRUSADE

TALKS ON NEED FOR ATTACKING SUCH MENACES AS TUBERCULOSIS

Washington, Nov. 15.— Before going to Annapolis yesterday to inspect the naval academy, the Prince of Wales purchased 100 Red Cross Christmas seals from Adrienne Mayer, the five-year-old health crusader, who was recently decorated by Gen. Pershing for making a perfect score in the children's health crusade against disease. The seal was the first made this year, and the Prince promised to use the seals on his personal letters.

"Startling facts on public health conditions were shown by the medical examination of millions of men during the war," said the Prince in making the purchase. "These facts have demonstrated clearly the necessity of attacking harder than ever such menaces as tuberculosis. I am sure this world-wide work has the approval of every thoughtful person. I wish the campaign all success."

WHAT GOOD HIGHWAYS MEAN FOR ONTARIO

GRANT FROM DOMINION IS CONDITIONAL UPON AMOUNT SPENT BY PROVINCE

The secretary of the Peterborough Automobile Association has received from the president of the Ontario Motor League a communication in which he says in part:

It is of the utmost importance that the plans which have made for the building of a complete system of highways in Ontario be put into effect and roads constructed throughout the Province, designed to serve the interests of all classes of the community through being adequate to meet the requirements of the traffic they may be expected to bear.

The Department of Public Highways so far this year has collected over $1,500,000 in automobile license fees from the owners of the 135,000 motor vehicles in use in this Province. All of this money is available for road building purposes. The Dominion Government this year set aside $20,000,000 for expenditure on roads during the next five years. While this money is to be divided among the Provinces in proportion to population, its payment is to be conditional on a provincial expenditure on main roads. The Dominion Government will pay forty per cent. of the cost of constructing these highways within the limit of its grant. Ontario's share of this Federal aid will be about $1,000,000 per year, if the annual expenditure on main roads in this Province is not less than $2,500,000. The revenue from automobile license fees alone, it will be seen, if spent on main highways, would earn the full amount of the Federal grant.

The benefit that would be secured to town and country alike from a complete system of improved highways scarcely need be emphasized. From the motorist's standpoint, however, it might be pointed out that since automobile license exchange with the United States was inaugurated there has been a great increase in motor tourist travel, with the result that about 100,000 cars from the States now enter Ontario annually, the owners spending on a conservative estmate $2,000,000 each year in this province. With the improvement of our highways, tourist travel will increase and still larger sums will be spent by the tourists. The development of rural motor express and wayside markets are further evidences of the effect of highways improvement.

The utility aspect of automobile use is nowhere more marked than in Ontario. The small car predominates. Of a total registration of 101,845 passenger cars in this Province last year, 84,018 were of 25-horse-power and less. There were only 31 cars of over 50-horse-power registered. Farmers who in 1913 owned but 996 cars, in 1918 headed the occupational list with 37,758 cars. Merchants and manufacturers took second place last year with 27,144 cars, while skilled trades came third with 6,634 cars.

DISTILLERS DEFY PROHIBITION LAW

SELLING WHISKEY OPENLY IN LOUISVILLE, KY., AT $75 THE CASE

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 15. Two local distilleries sold whiskey openly in Louisville to-day at $75 a case, regardless of the war-time prohibition law. Hundreds of orders, filed before July 1st, when the war-time law went into effect, it was said, were being filled by these distilleries, which resumed sales following the granting of an injunction to them yesterday by Federal Judge Evans, restraining the Government from interfering with sale of nearly a million galons of "floor stock" whiskey. They made their sales, however, with the knowledge that they are liable to prosecution, according to District Attorney Gregory if the Federal Supreme Court reverses Judge Evans' in a decision it is expected to make Nov. 20.

The case before the Supreme Court was appealed to it by the Government from a previous decision of Judge Evans, who held both the war-time law and the enforcement acts were unconstitutional, and granted the Kentucky distilleries and warehouse company an injunction forbidding interference by the Government with the sale of nearly 69,000,000 gallons of whiskey.

PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE WILL GIVE RAILWAYMEN'S UNION A CHANCE

London, Nov. 15.—Premier Lloyd George has offered the Railwaymen's Union membership in a committee management of the roads with railroad directors and Government officials, according to a statement by J. H. Thomas, general secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen.

Mr. Thomas announces that the Government also has made a definite offer of new machinery to deal with wages of railwaymen and settlement of disputes. Both offers were made at a conference of the Premier with a delegation from the National Union of Railwaymen Thursday. The plan will be submitted to the executive of the union to-day for decision.

How Much Tobacco Will My Heart Stand

A Question Vital to Every Man Who Smokes or Chews.

IT MAY COST A PRECIOUS LIFE TO FIND OUT BY EXPERIMENT.

The heart of every user of tobacco bears a double burden. It does its allotted task and then fights nicotine for supremacy. As long as the heart wins he lives; when it loses he dies, but before the final victory of nicotine you pass through many stages of decline and decay and suffer many pangs. Hearts are like human beings—some are stronger than others; therefore, some hearts will stand more tobacco than others, but there is a limit to what any heart can stand. The man who puts this additional strain on his heart a dozen times a day by smoking cigarettes, a pipe or cigars or chewing tobacco is taking a madman's chance with health and life to lose and nothing to win but the chance that he may not lose them. He is indulging in a costly habit at the expense of precious health. Ask any doctor anywhere, and he will tell you that using tobacco is injurious and that it is far better to quit the habit than to experiment to find how much tobacco your heart will stand without serious results.

But the thought of quitting is unpleasant to most men—even to those who know that tobacco injures them—and to really quit takes more will power than they have, and causes more suffering than they can voluntarily endure. To quit the habit make it easy for yourself by getting Nicotol tablets and taking them as directed. The habit really quits you, and its departure is a pleasure equal to its indulgence.

If you want to know how much easier it is to quit the habit with Nicotol than without it, go twenty four hours without tobacco and note what an effort it costs you; then begin using it as usual and take Nicotol tablets. At the end of a week discontinue smoking or chewing for a day, and it is probable you will have no desire to resume. At least your desire will be greatly diminished, and another week or two should make it not only possible, but a pleasure, to quit.

Note.—Dr. Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, under whose advice Nicotol has often been used, said when this statement was shown to him: "I have known Nicotol to conquer the tobacco habit in less than ten days' time, and I can therefore recommend it highly." When the doctor's statement was shown to one of our leading druggists he said: "Nicotol is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit, way ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol is sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists. (8)

EXPERIENCE COMING TO GRAND THEATRE

F. Nay Comstock and Morris Gest will present George V. Hobart's much discussed modern morality comedy drama of today, "Experience," called by critics the most wonderful play in America, at the Grand Opera House, Thursday evening, only.

Mr. Hobart has taken the universal adventures of mankind, the struggles, the sins, the temptations—the elements which persuades man for right or wrong, and has woven them into a play of vital reality. He has aptly called it "Experience," for under that title may be included all the attributes of men and women, good and bad, in their relationship of each other.

In this unique play Mr. Hobart has written one of the most interesting and thrilling of modern dramas. He has directed his appeal and efforts in language and situations so universally accepted as true, that whoever sees or hears the play may know.

"Experience" tells the story of the episodes through which Youth—the average young man of today—passes in his efort to achieve supreme happiness, and one is often reminded of "Pilgrim's Progress" while watching the show, although "Experience" is quite modern and up-to-date.

Youth leaves Love, his first sweetheart, and accompanies Ambition into the Highways of Life. He meets Pleasure, a very charming and captivating woman, on the Street of Vacillation as he enters the city, and fascinated by Pleasure, Youth turns from Ambition, refusing at the same time to heed the call of Opportunity, and with Pleasure visits the Golden Cabaret. "Experience," his guide, looks on while Youth goes the pace with Passion, Wealth, Beauty and Intoxication.

There are ten scenes, showing his downward career and his final regeneration. The play is handsomely staged and will be acted by a splendid cast.

Small Percentage.

An English barrister, arguing before the Criminal Court, remarked with much solemnity to the presiding justice: "My lord, there is honor among thieves."

The justice looked at him severely. "There is gold in sea water," he replied, "but it can't be extracted in profitable quantities. Go on, sir."

THEATRICAL

NOVEL REVENGE OF ORPHANS CREATES GREAT HUMOR IN EFFECT ON ASYLUM MATRON

Prune Strike, Led by Mary Pickford as Judy Abbott in "Daddy Long Legs" is One of Many Comical Events in Super Feature.

Everybody who loves a baby is destined to a treat when they see "Daddy Long Legs," the first Mary Pickford Company super-feature which will be presented at the Grand, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. More than a score of the cutest kiddies on the screen aid Miss Pickford in this screen version of the famous novel and play by Jean Webster.

Penitentiary Model For Orphanage.

The earlier scenes are enacted in a great orphan asylum where dozens of children, wee pathetic charges without father, mother nor near relatives, are supported by the bounty of John Grier, who obtained his ideas of how a charitable institution should be run while directing convict labor. Grier left behind the big gray building as a memorial to his whispering conscience, but he undid any good which there may have been in the act by placing cruel domineering women, with no sympathy for children, in charge.

Into this institution there comes, at the opening of the picture, a baby different from the rest. She grows to a child of twelve, being named Judy Abbott, because this name looked good to the tyrannical head matron. As the real action of the picture is opened, Judy (played by Miss Pickford) is seen offering to the little toddlers around her the only kind words and really pleasant treatment they have.

The first half of "Daddy Long Legs," is filled with the doings of the little parentless children, clad in stripes, like as many little criminals, and fed upon soup and prunes. They are seen at work, and at the machine-like play prescribed for them; cowering before the matron and the more crabbed of the trustees; always hungering for the love and attention which is denied them; occasionally, as every child must, "acting naughty."

TWO VESSELS LOST ON LAKE SUPERIOR

TERRIFIC STORM SWEEPING LAKE PAST FEW DAYS—SCHOONER ABANDONED

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 15.—As hours passed without any word from the Lake steamer John Owen, marine men here clung to the hope today that the ore carrier had put into one of the numerous harbors between the Soo and Kewenaw Point and had outridden the storm that for three days has lashed Lake Superior into a sea of mountainous waves, accompanied by a blinding snowstorm.

Most land communication lines were paralyzed, but all points reached by the coast guards reported the John Owen had not been sighted. Vessels on the lake were searching for her by wireless, while they kept sharp watch for wreckage.

To Identify Wreckage.

Surf boats from the Eagle Harbor coast guard station were dispatched to Manitou Island this morning in an attempt to locate and identify wreckage reported in that vicinity by the steamer W. Ilpen. The John Owen carried a crew of twenty and was last sighted on Wednesday.

Two Boats Lost.

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 15. (Later)—Two vessels, the J. B. Owen and the H. E. Runnels, are known to have been lost and several others missing in a terrific gale which has been sweeping Lake Superior for the past few days.

Abandoned Schooner.

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 15.—The schooner Faustina was towed into St. John's last night. All the crew are missing from the vessel.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general.

TOO MUCH "DIGNITY" HINDERS BANKS' GROWTH

"The advertisements of a bank must sell the service which the bank has to offer, just as a progressive merchant must sell his goods through advertising."

This was the distinctly radical statement recently made by W. A. Schulte, advertising manager of the Cleveland Trust Company, in discussing the success of the campaign which his institution has run for some time past.

"I have no quarel with the phrase 'dignity in advertising,'" declared Mr. Schulte. "Personally, I am in favor of a reasonable degree of dignity in anything. My objection is to the statements referring to 'dignity in bank advertising.' I believe that the wide-spread acceptance of the terms 'bank advertising' and 'financial advertising' has been a retarding influence against the logical and consistent expansion of advertising as a power in the banking field.

"These terms have set up various prohibitions of one sort or anyother—have implied the creation of something that isn't, or can ever be, a definitely specialized sort of advertising. You don't hear of 'shoe advertising' or 'food advertising' as specialized forms. All of these are just plain, every-day, honest-to-goodness advertising—with its common-sense application to any line of merchandising.

"But ther's the rub—merchandising. Until a bank realizes that it has a merchandising proposition on its hands, that it has commodities to sell—even though they consist of intangible services—until it realizes that it has to sell its goods to the public hrough advertising med iums of the same general character and with the same sort of live, human, interesting appeal to which the public has already been educated, until such a time will the advertizing policies of that bank be afflicted with dry rot and its growth accordingly retarded."

A "UNIVERSITY" DEPARTMENT STORE

The habits of the university student are not the habits of the average man or the average customer—facts which the Guilford stores in Philadelphia have taken into account in stocking their new "university department store" across the street from the University of Pennsylvania.

In their downtown stores, the Guilford organization confines itself to the sale of men's furnishing exclusively, but the university shop is a combination haberdashery, tailoring establishment, drug store, pool room, tobacconist's, confectioner and stationery shop, with a club room added for good measure. The "club," incidentally, is placed at the rear of the store, so that the student has to run the gauntlet of sores of tempting displays in order to reach the billard tables, reading room and writing desks maintained for his use.

When it is remembered that the University of Pennsylvania enrollment includes several thousand names and that most of the men have other liberal allowances it is not difficult to see how Guilford's will profit from this innovation in retailing.

GROCERY STORE NOW ROLLS TO YOUR DOOR

The woman who telephones for her groceries is not only extravagant—she is out of date. The housewife who is really modern has the store roll right up to her door, goes out to the curb, selects what she wants and has it brought in without a moment's delay. At least that's the way they are doing it in Canton, Ohio.

The A. B. Flory Grocery and Baking Company started the idea, with a fleet of attractive, high-power trucks which are, in reality, nothing more than stores on wheels—stores that travel right up to your home and sell you anything from a cake of yeast to a side of beef. When you come right down to it, the Flory "auto groceries" are nothing more than glorified huckster's wagons—but they bear about the same relation to the itinerant driver with his carelessly selected stock as Wanamaker's does to the neighborhood store at the cross roads.

The autos are specially constructed and so made that the customer can actually enter the "store" through the front door—located on the right side of the truck—make her purchases at the counter and go out without feeling the least cramped for space or selection. Of course, it is not possible to carry a complete stock of goods in so small a space, but the driver-clerks have instructions to take orders for anything which they do not happen to have on hand and these are delivered the next time that the "store" makes its rounds.

Each store is sixteen feet long by six and one-half feet wide and is fully equipped with shelves, glass cases, bins, refrigerators, scales, cash register and counter. Windows and a skylight provide plenty of light and the success of the venture is apparent from the fact that the number of trucks already in operations is to be tripled as soon as the manufacturers can make deliveries.
THE MERCHANTS——Gal TWO

"Women," says A. B. Flory, the proprietor of thirty "stationary stores," in addition to the auto-groceries "like to have the advantage of the cash-and-carry system, but they naturally object to having to go to the stores for their purchases and lug them all the way home. Hence this system of bringing the store to the customer, a plan which is working out exceptionally well for all concerned."

Flory, incidentally, started in business ten years ago in a single room thirteen feet square. Now he operates thirty stores in Canton, Massillon and Alliance and is doing a business of $2,000,000 a year.

GARVIN'S [illegible] CLERKS [illegible] THEIR TOES

Albert Garver, of Garver Brothers, Strasburg, O., who operate the largest country store in America, has a system of stimulating his sales force that accounts largely for his continuous success and his record for "beating his own record" steadily ever since he started in business.

His stimulator consists of a bulletin sheet 9½ by 17 inches in size, on which he works out a complete statement of sales for the year up to date of issue by the day, by departments and by individual salespeople. It is not an estimate in round numbers. The exact figures are given to a cent. Every person in the store knows precisely where he stands, and furthermore, Garver knows exactly how business is, and which department is gaining or losing.

This bulletin is hung up each morning where it can be seen by all the salespeople and by the public. Naturally this method causes intense rivalry between departments and within departments, and even extends outside to the friends of different salesgirls who often make purchases to help them roll up a big record. There is no bonus or reward other than the "honor" of winning. It is a very astute appeal to the sporting instinct, and it works. It should be said, incidentally, however, that Garver has supplemented this with a profit-sharing plan by which a cash commission on increase sales will be paid to salespeople, a bonus to all employes on the total increased sales for the month and a share of the net profits at the end of the year.

HEALTH FOR THE BABY

The baby of to-day is the man or woman of to-morrow. Thus the success of the future man or woman depends upon the baby's present welfare. If the baby is sickly and ill nourished it is not to be expected that he will grow into a strong, active man who will hold his own in the business world a few years hence. Mothers it is a duty you owe the future to keep your little ones well now. This can be easily done if Baby's Own Tablets are kept in the house. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus make baby healthy and strong. Concerning them Mrs. W. Orser, Elginburg, Ont., writes:—"I have a fine healthy boy three years and have used Baby's Own Tablets for him ever since he was a small baby. I certainly think them a splendid medicine." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

TORONTO BARBERS DEMAND INCREASE

ELECTRIC LINEMEN TOO ARE LIKELY TO ASK FOR A RAISE

Toronto, Nov. 14.—The journeymen barbers of this city contemplate making a further demand upon their employers for increased wages. At present the average wage is $20 per week plus a commission on all receipts over $28 from each individual chair. The men, while in most cases makin ggood money under the scale, contend that it is not equitable, as the amount they receive varies from week to week, according to the condition of business. They propose to ask for a minimum wage of $25 per week, plus a commission on all receipts over $32 per chair per week. A special meeting of the Barbers' Union, to which the employers will be invited, is to be held next week to discuss the matter.

The linemen employed by the electrical companies, who at present are receiving a wage of 75c per hour, are seriously considering the advisability of making a demand for an in[illegible]. The matter was discussed at a meeting of the Electrical Workers' Union at the Labor Temple on Thursday, but no definite decision was reached, as many of the men interested were absent.

MR. OR MRS. DYSPEPTIC

Get rid of Indigestion and Stomach Worries with "Pape's Diapepsin"

"Really does" put weak, disordered stomach in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heart-burn and sourness due to acid fermentation—that—just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach antacid and regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments and turns sour, you belch gas and eructate undigested food or water; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated, remember the moment "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness. A box of Pape's Diapepsin tablets costs so little at drug stores too.

IMPORT LIQUOR AS A TEST CASE

LIBERTY LEAGUE TO SETTLE QUESTION OF BRINGING LIQUOR INTO PROVINCE

Toronto, Nov. 15.—For the purpose of a test case, Chairman J. D. Flavelle, of the Ontario License Commissioners, has consented to confine any action taken in the case of importation of liquor from Montreal to to the person to whom the parcel is addressed. This resulted from a conference with him by Liberty League officials yesterday afternoon. The Liberty League will bring about a test case as soon as the order-in-Council prohibiting importation ceases to exist upon the declaration of peace.

Express Co. Declines.

Montreal, Nov. 14.—Express companies here announce that they will not carry liquor in order to enable the Liberty League of Toronto to make a test case and settle the question of whether liquor can or cannot be shipped on order to Ontario consumers.

REFUSE LIQUOR SHIPMENTS

Montreal, Nov. 15.—Express companies have issued a circular forbidding their agents to accept liquor consignments for Ontario and other Canadian points until a proclamation is issued cancelling the prohibition order in Council, which will come with the official proclamation of peace. Large orders have thus been held up.

EASTERN DISTRICTS WANT THEIR SHARE

IN HYDRO DEVELOPMENT AS OUTLINED BY SIR ADAM BECK

Brockville, Nov. 13.—At a meeting of the Public Utilities Commission of Brockville the power situation as affecting the town and Eastern Ontario generally was discussed. With a view to securing sufficient power at a proper price and a just share of the huge sums expended in Hydro matters, a resoluiton was passed urying the municipalities of Eastern Ontario to organise for the purpose of expediting the developement of electrical power at the Long Sault Rapids. This is believed to be the only adequate source of supply which can be obtained to relieve the situation and furnish the power. The manager of the Brockville Commission was instructed to prepare for an organization meeting of the municipal representaatives here at the earliest convenient date.

MUST PUNCH THE TIME CLOCK

New Regulations For Civil Service Employees to be Enforced

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—Civil servants employed in the Departmental offices here may soon find themselves called upon to "punch the clock." on their arrival at and departure from work. Of late Government employees have been required to report the times of their comings and goings by signing books, of which the deputy heads of departments are custodians. Now the Civil Service Commission has reported in favor of the installation of time clocks in Government offices, and an order-in Council has been passed by the Cabinet, instructing the Public Works Department to make enquiries as to the cost of the necessary clocks.

FOSTER COMMISSIONER

Ottawa, Nov. 15.—The early return to Canada of Sir George Perley, High Commissioner in London, is anticipated, and as his successor, the practically certain appointee is Sir George Foster. Though Mr. Loyd Harris, late head of the Canadian Trade Mission in London, is also mentioned in some quarters.

ABANDONED AT SEA

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 14.—The schooner Oceana, believed to be on voyage from St. John, N.B., for Lisbon, has been abandoned at sea, according to a wireless message received to-day from a steamer giving the code signal "K V O E." There is no mention of the crew. It is presumed the crew abandoned their ship during last week's storm.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.

During the first ten and one-half months after the signing of the armistice, the United Kingdom exported to Germany goods to the value of $80,000,000.

SALVATION ARMY YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONVENTION.

This week-end promises to be a red letter one in the history of the young people of the local Salvation Army corps. Commissioner Richards, who has charge of the Army's work in Eastern Canada, will, with a large staff of officers assisting him, personally conduct the annual young people's convention.

The program of events starts with welcome to the visiting officers and delegates tonight, followed by a concert given entirely by the younger portion of the corps.

Tomorrow the meetings will be held in the W. O. W. Hall, and will be open only for young people between the ages of 13 and 25 years.

For Monday a splendid program has been arranged, again entirely under the auspices of the young people. The public are cordially invited to the Saturday and Monday night entertainments. Every minute of the time will be packed full of interesting items. Instrumental and vocal music, recitations and dialogues, etc., will be included in the program. Be sure and come to at least one of the sessions and bring someone with you.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. Reed, of the S. A. Home League, desires to thank all of the kind friends who contributed in any way to the pie social held last Monday, which proved to be a great success owing to the hearty co-operation of all those who contributed to the program and the rest of the entertainment.

"THOSE MINUTES OF SILENCE"

The above will be the subject of the Sunday evening sermon at Murray Street Baptist Church tomorrow evening. The reference, of course, is to the period of silence observed throughout the British Empire on Tuesday last. We understand that the pastor of Murray Street had observers at different places in the city and was himself in the Canadian General Electric Company's factory during the very interesting period. On his observations he bases the message for Sunday night.

HAVE YOU GOT "MANDY"?

"Mandy" is one of the new Victrola records for October obtainable in the Vctrola Parlors of Ye Olde Firme of Heintzman & Co., Limited, George and Hunter streets, Peterborough. It is a halting, eccentric ragtime rhythm, of a kind that puts a curious little catch in your walk when you hear it on the street. It is by Irving Berlin, and is one of the successes of Zeigfeld Follies of 1919. It and "Breeze" and "Our Yesterdays" are three of the several new vocal records that you will want to have.

COLD WEATHER GARAGE SERVICE

WARM PARKING FOR MOTORS IN ROOMY STEAM-HEATED PREMISES

The Duffus Garage service is freely commented upon by the automobile public as the last word in efficiency. Its night service, for which ready attendance is always on hand, affords commendable accommodation; and especially is this so during the cold season, when motorists using their cars at night for business calls or conveyance to the theatre or other entertainments up town, find in the Duffus Garage warm parking for their machines in roomy steam-heated premises.

A dominating feature of this modern garage is that the building is absolutely fire-proof. Cars may find storage therein with no danger of loss by fire and once a car is stored within its walls all worry for its safety ceases.

Then there is the wholesale and retail accessories department, in which is carried a complete assortment of tires, parts and accessories repairs. Nothing will be found wanting here by the automobile, motor-truck or delivery owner needing quick attention. In fact this garage is the distributing centre for miles around Peterborough, and consequently its supplies are never permitted to run short.

Another specialty of this establishment is its gasoline, lubricants and air service, available at all hours, and motorists never fail to find very prompt and satisfactory attention. In fact, within the walls of this large, spacious, two-storey building at the corner of Water and Charlotte streets is found a garage service unexcelled in Canada, and motor car and truck owners have awakened to this fact.

gest methods of organization. A conference of the four provincial parties will be called next spring.

Others Welcomed.

All political organizations which will pledge themselves to support candidates professing (the Farmers' views will be welcomed. At present such organizations include only the provincial Farmers' parties, but if other bodies accept the platform they will be made welcome, delegates declared.

Opinion was first divided on the point of forming a close combine of the provinces in the Canadian Council of Agriculture, or spreading out to include all provinces. Strength would be gained by first forming the four provincial alliance, and then extending throughout Canada, it was finally decided.

Railway Questions

The Council will watch the development of the trans-continental lines under Government policy, and discuss conditions at the next meeting. The resolution reads:

"Whereas, the Government of Canada has already acquired the Canadian Northern Railway, and negotiations are under way for the acquisition of the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific systems; and whereas, it is most desirable that the administration of these Government properties be conducted with efficiency, vigor and determination in a desire to develop a profitable business for these railways in behalf of the Canadian taxpayers.

"Be it resolved that a memorandum be presented to the next meeting of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, setting forth the present state of development in the relationship of the people with the railways of this country."

EPWORTH LEAGUE IN CONVENTION

INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESSES—OFFICERS FOR CURRENT YEAR INSTALLED

The annual convention of the Peterborough District Epworth League was held yesterday afternoon and evening in the school-room of the George Street Methodist Church. The meeting throughout were marked by a spirit of interest and enthusiasm by all the delegates.

At the evening session the different leagues of the city were grouped together and when the roll was called responded collectively. There was a good attendance in spite of the inclemency of the weather.

After the opening exercises Miss Maud Runnings was called to give a ten-minute conference on how to make the league more interesting and instructive. Several suggestions were offered, one being to have the topic , the original idea of the speaker, not copied or read. Another was the need of emphasis on the knowledge of the spiritual growth of the soul which could be helped by questionaires and answers.

Mission Work

Miss F. Hall, President of the Conference League gave an address on Missionary work taking the work of Dr. and Mrs. Smith as the subject. Dr. Smith is a personal friend of the speaker and is the first Methodist Missionary sent out by the Cobourg District. Dr. Smith was not given any education when a child, his father died when he was but five years of age. At the early age of eight years he began to study the beauties of nature and at twelve was still working on the farm. His education was obtained by attending school during the winter months. When he became a little older and went out with other companions his ambitions strayed into material aims desiring only to be rich, but he could never be free from the call of the Master. He became converted, attended Albert College, and later took the medical course at Trinity College. He and Mrs. Smith left for China in the year 1896 and have been working since then for the cause of Christianity in that heathen country, claiming that above all the hardships they have the knowledge of the love of a personal Saviour to help them in their great work.

Literary Work

Rev. Mr. Mallott the next speaker emphasized the importance of the literary work. Systematic study of the Bible should be very helpful, suggesting a ten-minute study at each business meeting to gain a most complete knowledge of the Bible. He also encouraged the use of badges and decorations and the holding of social entertainments as a means of encuraging young people to attend.

Citizenship

Mr. G. H. Griffin, Belleville, discussed citizenship, explaining clearly the necessity of this department. He impressed upon his hearers the importance of studying politics, provincial laws, national service, prohibition, etc, all of which would influence the young people to set higher ideals by a knowledge of the great questions of the day in the political sphere. He remarked that the league was a good place to entertain your friends, much better than in the pool rooms or at the billiard tables. Members of the league have a splendid opportunity for the study of law which is not as well known as might be.

The next item on the programme was a solo by Miss Myrtle Succee which was greatly enjoyed by the gathering.

Mrs. E. W. Hibbart, a missionary from China then gave a very interesting address on life in China. Her most urgent request was the need of workers and money but especially workers, to take up the missionary work. Chinese children going to the missions on Sundays and having to return to their homes, no teachers being available. Mrs. Hibbart told how the Chinese were bright, intelligent people, eager to learn the Christian life. The education given to Chinese women is perfect submission, which makes her life not so happy as it would if she were free. She is grateful to the Epworth League and summer school for the support and assistance rendered her to become a missionary and impressed the need of more to offer themselves for the work of saving others. At the close of her address she was presented with a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums to which she made a suitable reply.

Officers Installed

The next item on the programme was the introduction and installation of the following officers for the coming year:

Hon. President. —Rev. A. J. Thomas.
President.—Rev. A. McLauchlin.
Secretary— Miss M. Elliott.
Treasurer.— Mrs. Morton.
1st. Vice-President.— Mr. Kennett.

RED ROSE TEA is good tea

WE were among the first to put up tea in sealed packages.

We were the first to use automatic electric weighing machines so as to insure accurate weights.

We were the first to make known the qualities of the now world-famous ASSAM teas.

And we are now the first to adopt a new package for the better protection of these fine quality teas.

The lead package has served its purpose well for generations, but it was easily broken or torn, allowing not only a loss of the tea from the package but exposing the tea to the air, odors and dust that it was so necessary to protect the tea against.

Our new package—the waxed board carton—is stronger, more secure and more completely air tight; altogether the best container for tea that has yet been devised.

JUSTICE HODGINS TALKS TO MEN OF ST. JOHN'S CHURCH ON FORWARD MOVEMENT

First Call Comes to Men of Character and Standing in Every Community to Accept Responsibilty For Proiect's Success

The call in the Anglican Church of Canada today is for acitve co-operation by the laity, in the great Foreward Movement now inaugurated, and in keeping with this need a distinguished layman, in the person of Justice Hodgins of Toronto, addressed a large congregation in St. John's Church yesterday morning.

The speaker was convinced that all members of the Church of England recognized that this Forward Movement these days is to promote a general Christian Brotherhood, and he hoped the laity would appreciate their responsibility in this connection at once. He supposed that in Peterborough, as elsewhere, all have passed through strenuous times and feel the need of relaxation; but he said, conditions are such that unless advantage is taken of the opportunities offered, the period of re-construction facing Canada, the movement for a brighter era will fall behind and fail in its objective.

In every community, Judge Hodgins contended, the call for laymen's activity comes first to men of character and standing—in agriculture, industrial business and socvial life;—such are the men the church expects to lead in this great forward Christian enterprise. Too often, he feared, the work of the Church is handed over to the poor, the lame and the blind, so to speak, men who have neither the talent nor acquired energy of their more fortunate and prosperous brethren to accomplish big results.

Unrest For Some Time.

The Church of England, the speaker said, realizes that for some time a spirit of unrest must continue in Canada, but he was happy to say that, from observations in Toronto, all churches are uniting in a movement to and in restoring conditions to a normal and improved level. He felt that there can be no better influence in communities or nations than that of Christian character, the exemplification of which will have a strong and steadying effect on present day restlessness.

Solve Own Problems

The Church today, Justice Hodgins claimed, needs first to solve its own problems, and accomplish what the Church corporate has undertaken to do: to carry on that great Brotherhood work begun in the war, and made possible only by the success won in the war; to move forward, in fact, until that era of peace, restfulness and satisfaction all are hoping for is reached.

Among the Forward Movement's objects, the speaker jointed out, is the extension of mission work in the great northwest, where thousands of aliens are settled. These foreigners, he said, are not any too anxious to assume Canadian citizenship, and mission work among them would foster their allegiance. And, it must be remembered, religious teaching is, after all, the solid foundation upon which a nation is built.

Advocating the urgent need of an endowment fund to enable the Archbishop of Rupert's Land, Primate of all Canada, to prosecute his work, he illustrated how, oftentimes, His Grace finds himself in a position which involves the honor and dignity of the Church, but without the financial means that position demands.

Greatly Encouraged

Bespeaking hearty co-operation in the Forward Movement by both men and women organized for work, his honor, however, made it quite plain that there always comes a time when unless every individual man and woman accepts his and her own share, the church must fail in its objective.

In conclusion he expressed gratitude that Canadians had arisen to the occasion by subscribing to the Victory Loan as generously this year as last, thus making Canada safe during her period of reconstruction; and this encouraged him to hope that that same spirit of loyalty would animate men of the Anglican Church to carry them over the top in their Forward Movement, and assure the accomplishment of the end they had in view.

FATHER MEENS WARNED BRITISH

FOUND THAT DINNERS TO OFFICERS ALWAYS PRECEDED AIR RAIDS

London, Nov. 16. — Exploits of Father Meens, who warned London of impending German air raids during the war, and who worked with Edith Cavell, the martyred British nurse, in aiding British prisoners to escape from Belgium, have just been disclosed by the Roman Catholic periodical, The Universe. Father Meens, who lived in Brussels, was associated with the allied intelligence department.

Once he disguised himself as a cattle driver, and making his way to Ostend found the hiding place of the German submarines.

Air raids to England, the priest learned, were usually preceded by a dinner of the officers of the zeppelins and gothas. By pretending to be a pastry cook he discovered when the dinners were to be held. Carrier pigeons carried his messages to Holland, and before 6 p.m. the British admiralty would have word of the coming raids.

Escaped British prisoners seeking Nurse Cavell proceeded, disguised, to Brussels, and were met there by a little girl of 11. She used to carry a big doll, run about and play and look in the shop windows. Without any sign on her part of recognizing the soldiers, she would lead them to the house where Nurse Cavell awaited them. There the men were bandaged, transformed into "hospital patients" and turned over to "Baron Janssen," otherwise Father Meens, who took them across the frontier.

On the night of Nurse Cavell's arrest, Father Mens had been sent to Holland to carry a message for Cardinal Mercier thus escaping death, as he had arranged to meet at midnight two other conspirators, both of whom were taken and shot.

HALF A MILLION FACE STARVATION

ALLIED COMMISSIONER SAYS IMMEDIATE RELIEF IN THE CAUCASUS URGENT

Paris, Nov. 16.— Half a million persons will starve in Caucasus this winter, unless immediate relief be provided is the opinion of Colonel William N. Haskell, allied high commissioner in Armenia, who left Paris last night for Tiflis, after having conferred with delegates to the peace conference for the past two weeks. One million Russian Armenians and 300,000 Turkish Armenians now are living a terrible existence in the Armenian Republic, he says.

There will be no harvest this year there are no cattle, horses have been destroyed, and there is neither medicine nor clothing according to Colonel Haskell, who says the homeless families are living in desperate poverty.

"The food program of the inter allied relief committee headed by Herbert C. Hoover, is finished," adds the commissioner, "and the last supply of foodstuffs furnished by that organization and the committee for relief in the near east will be exhausted in December.

"Twenty thousand orphans are totally supported in 49 orphanages. Eighteen hundred beds are provided in hospitals. We have maintained bread lines and soup kitchens which have supported countless thousands. In Alexandropolis alone, twelve thousand under-nourished children receive food daily. The starving children by thousands are gathered into compounds by Armenian officials and we take care of as many as possible.

"During my visit of inspection I saw 23 children carted out of one compound dead. We rescued the remainder."

Smallpox in a mild form has broken out in Oshawa and the Medical Officer of Health has advised the people to be vaccinated.

D'ANNUNZIO'S LATEST EXPLOIT GIVES COMMAND OF ENTIRE DALMATIAN COAST

Four Warships, Including One Dreadnought, Added to His Naval Forces---Holds a Formidable Weapon With Which to Maintain the Present Position---D'Annunzio Returned to Fiume Yesterday

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Fiume, Nov. 17.—Gabriele D'Annunzio's latest exploit appears to have made him master of the entire Dalmatian coast. It secured the adherence to his side, it has developed, of Admiral Millo, commander of the Italian occupation forces in Dalmatia, thus giving D'Annunzio continuous command from the Austro-Italian armistice line north of Fiume southward to Ragusa, just to the north of Cettinje, covering all approaches to the Dalmatian coast.

Commands Warships.

Four warships, including one dreadnought, and four torpedo-boat destroyers, also have been added to D'Annunzio's naval command, giving him a formidable weapon with which to maintain his present position.

Landed At Zara.

Rome, Nov. 17.——Capt. Gabriele D'Annunzio, accompanied by his staff and escorted by nine warships, proceeded to Zara, on the Dalmatian coast, where he landed six hundred Italian shock troops and six hundred Carabieri. Vice-Admiral Millo, in command at Zara, declared himself powerless to prevent the occupation of the city.

D'Annunzio returned to Fiume yesterday.

Lack of communication and the censorship make it difficult to obtain details of the expedition. News of it was published yesterday, although many patches of white in the newspapers indicated that something relating to the adventure had not been allowed published.

Great Enthusiasm.

At Trieste enthusiasm over the new exploit was not pronounced, it being thought necessary to forego Dalmatia and centre activities at Fiume.

When D'Annunzio reached Fiume he was accorded a great demonstration by the populace. He is said to have declared his purpose to occupy other territory, including part of Istria, which he claimed should form an independent state to relieve Italy of responsibility to the Allies.

OMSK'S CAPTURE BY SOVIET REDS IS REASSERTED BY BOLSHEVIKI

Admiral Colchak's Forces Have Retreated Eastward in Disorder—Yanovsky Also Falls to Bolsheviki Army—Gen. Yudenitch Resigns Command of Russian North-Western Army—Succeeded by General Laidoner

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 17.— The capture of Omsk by the Russian Soviet forces, unofficially denied in advices through Scandinavia yesterday, is reasserted in a Bolsheviki communique received by wireless from Moscow. Severe street fighting preceded the capture, and more than one thousand prisoners were taken by the Bolsheviki, it is declared.

Pursuing Yudenitch

Kolchak's forces retreated eastward in disorder says the statement, which also claims the capture of Yanovsky from all-Russian troops. In the Baltic region it is annonced that following the capture of Yambourg, the Bolsheviki continued to advance and are pursuing Gen. Yudenitch's troops.

Yudenitch Resigns.

General Yudenitch has resigned the command of the Russian north-western army, according to a special despatch to the Daily Mail from Helsingfors. General Laidoner, commander-in-Chief of the Esthonian army, has succeeded him.

It is said that the change is not connected with the failure of his offensive, the object being to avoid internment of Yudenitch's army on entering Esthonia.

In the course of the recent offensive by General Yudenitch, his forces captured 12,000 Bolsheviki, according to a northwestern army report today. The report also declares that six thousand casualties were suffered by the Bolshevist forces. It is reported here that all the Bolshevist commissioners engaged in the campaign have been executed.

Army in Bad Way.

Reval, Nov. 16.— The position of General Yudenitch's northwestern army, it has been known for many days, has become more serious. His statements about future operations have been made to hide the real situation from the public, according to information reaching Reval. The disorganization of his army is daily more evident. The Yudenitch forces are crowded together in a small space near Yamburg.

A week ago General Yudenitch inquired as to what Esthonia would do if he were obliged to cross the Esthonian frontier. The answer was that he could take over his hospitals and supplies, but that his troops must disarm.

Bolshevik pressure has been too great to allow Yudenitch to reorganize his forces, and since the loss of Yamburg the situation has become aggravated.

SAYS CRERAR WILL BE NEXT PREMIER

REV. J. WATSON OF NORTH VICTORIA ADDRESSES MEETING AT LINDSAY

Lindsay, Nov. 17.—At a convention of the U. F. O. for Victoria County the chief address was delivered by Rev. J. Watson, M.L.A.-elect for North Victoria, who was heard for the first time in Lindsay. In the course of his remarks Mr. Watson traced the history of the U. F. O. and the birth of the Grain Growers' Association in the West, of which Hon. T. A. Crerar is president. He also made the somewhat prophetc remark: "And I want you to do all you can to help Mr. Crerar and to speak a good word for him for he is going to be the next premier of Canada." (Applause.) The speaker said that in the past governments had been in the control of men who were not heart and soul for democracy and government for the people, but were controlled by corporations.

Who Owns Newspapers.

Mr. Watson also stated that he knew the Government is going to find out who really owns the big newspapers—the Globe, the Star, the Telegram, the Mail and Empire and other papers—to see if, when they announce a certain drop in pork and other products, Sir Joseph Flavelle is not behind it all and getting the price of the salt.

He also stated that there was not a single commodity the farmer used or ate that was not controlled by some corporation, but farmers are organizing and would take their proper place. It would not be necessary for them to take a trip to Ottawa with their hair properly combed, to get a hearing, but just as soon as the telephone rang and Ottawa found out that the farmers were on the other end of the line Ottawa would jump four feet to give attention.

He predicted the farmers would cut a wide swath for the rights of the people.

DUMMER STILL IS CAUGHT AGAIN

OWNER MATHEW LYTLE FINED $5.00 WITH 3 MONTHS IN JAIL

The famous Dummer still, that operates without a license, will remain idle for some time—at least three months—while its chief shareholder, who claims to be sole owner, spends that time in the county jail performing hard labor.

This manufacturer is Mathew Lytle, who pleaded guilty to this charge before Magistrate Dumble at Police Court this morning and was fined $500 with $101.10 costs, besides a sentence of three months. In default of payment he must spend six additional months in jail.

Both Mathew and his son, Charles, were charged with the manufacture of liquor contrary to the Inland Revenue Act, but the father shouldered all the blame, declaring his son was not even an accomplice of the crime. The crown withdrew the charge against the son on the father pleading guilty.

Mr G. N. Gordon, appearing for Lytles, submitted that, although this was the second offence, the accused was a crippled man endeavoring to make a living on a very poor piece of property. He thought a rather small fine would be inflicting a severe penalty upon this man.

The magistrate, however, considered that the arrangement for the father shouldering all the blame was solely a family agreement to lessen the punishment. He thought they wouldn't mind their helpless father obtaining three month's free lodging at the expense of the Government.

About a week ago Mr Buller, collector of inland revenue, informed the police of this illicit manufacturing, and members of the force spent a considerable time in the swamps of the back country searching for the still, which they finally discovered last Thursday.

License Inspector Joseph Stewart was an interested witness of the trial this morning.

SHARP BREAK IN N. Y. STOCKS

HEAVY SELLING PRECIPITATED BY SUIT AGAINST SOUTHERN PACIFIC CO.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 17. — The stock market was subjected to another sharp break at noon today, heavy selling being precipitated by the announcement that the United States Supreme Court had decided against the Southern Pacific Co. in a suit involving six thousand acres of valuable oil lands in California. Southern Pacific brokers made extensive sales from 106⅝ to 101½, and in less than ten minutes the entire list broke with Southern Pacific.

As the session progressed selling became more urgent, being impelled by a further liquidation of weakened account. General Motors continued its erratic course, losing 11 points, rallying six and then dropping back again. Crucible Steel was the weakest issue in the entire list, losing 15 points. Union Pacific displayed a consistent strength, extending its gain to four and one-quarter points. Several food and metal shares showed marked firmness. Part of this advantage was forfeited before noon, however, fresh weakness in foreign exchange and 12 per cent. for call money playing into the hands of the shorts interests.

UNITY OF WORKING CLASSES

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Copenhagen, Nov. 17. — Philip Scheideman, former German Chancellor, writing in Vorwaerts, says he considers that Germany is really in the power of Reactionaries. "The entire army," he writes, "seems to be at the disposal of Reactionaries, and the unity of the working classes has become a bounden duty."

OVERSHOOT THE OBJECTIVE BY NEARLY ONE HUNDRED PER. CENT

Total Victory Loan Subscriptions for City and County Almost Twice the Amount Allotted—All Records Have Been Broken Both in City and County.

With every record made in former war loans smashed, and the city and every district in the county exceeding their objectives, the Victory Loan campaign was brought to an official conclusion on Saturday night. Today the canvassers are picking up the odds and ends.

To it's war efforts, Peterborough had added another glorious achievement. The approximate total subscriptions secured by the canvassers in the city is placed at $1,500,000, an increase of about 37 per cent. over last year's fine performance. The special subscriptions total $850,000 and the county's contribution stands at $1,000,000, making a grand total of $3,350,000.

The comparison for 1918 and 1919 follows:

	1918.	1919.
City	$1,092,050	$1,500,000
Specials	582,050	850,000
County	895,050	1,000,000
Totals	$2,569,150	$3,350,000

The subscriptions for all Peterborough show the objective overrun by 87 per cent., and whereas the per capita for the city was $80 last year, it is $117 this year, and that of the county is $84 this year.

A more complete statement on the campaign will be published in the course of the next few days, showing the amounts raised in the county by districts, the work done by the factories and the special subscriptions. As an indication of the spirit in which the industrial establishments met the appeal, it will be very satisfactory to the citizens to know that the Western Clock Co., one of the recent new-comers to the city, subscribed $30,000 to the Victory Loan.

DR. SYMONDS AT THE CANADIAN CLUB

What promises to be an active season for the Canadian Clubs of Peterborough will be inaugurated here on Thursday, November 20th, when Dr. Symonds, of Christ Church Cathedral, formerly of Saint Luke's Church, Peterborough, and a very eloquent and convincing speaker, will address the Women's Canadian Club in the lecture room of the Public Library on "Reconstruction, Men Before Things", at four o'clock, and the Men's Canadian Club at the Empress Hotel at seven o'clock, when his subject will be "League of Nation vs. World Power." The address at the Empress Hotel will be preceded by a dinner, to which all present and prospective members of the Canadian Club are cordially invited.

The membership fee is $1.00, which is used to pay expenses of speakers and for correspondence, printing and so forth, and in order to make the club a success, it is desired that all who can will join. Applications may be made to Messrs. G. O. Cameron V. J. McElderry or B. D. Hall, and all who desire reservations for the dinner on Thursday are requested to hand in or phone their names to these men as soon as possible so that suitable and satisfactory arrangements may be made for their accommodation.

A number of other speakers have signified their willingness to address the club during the winter, including such well-known men as Dr. James W. Robertson, E. W. Beatty, Esquire, president of the C.P.R.; Captain J. Mackintosh Bell and Ernest Lapointe, M.P.

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE MAY FORCE MINERS TO RESUME WORK

All Bituminious Coal in Ontario, Either in Transit or Storage, to be Seized by Fuel Administer Harrington--Dealers Restricted From Delivering Soft Coal Without Written Consent of Administrator.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 17.—Operators in the soft coal industry today considered calling upon the Department of Justice to enforce more vigorously the Federal Court's mandate against striking miners, and to force a resumption of work in those districts where the men walked out on November 1st.

Seize Soft Coal.

The action of the miners in not returning to work is so seriously affecting the supply of soft coal in Canada that a seizure of all bituminous coal in Ontario either in transit or in storages, has been made by Mr. H. A. Harrington, Provincial Fuel Administrator, under an order which he issued on Saturday night, shortly after he had been notified from Ottawa that the Canadian Trade Commission had instructed Customs officials that an embargo had been placed on all coal shipments from Canada. This action comes as a result of the recent strike of bituminous coal miners in the United States, and is taken to protect public utilities and essential industries at he request of the Federal authorities.

Dealers' Restrictions.

The order of the Fuel Administrator forbids any coal dealer, either wholesale or retail, to deliver to any person bituminous coal without first securing written consent from his office. It does not apply to coal now in transit or in storage for use in public utilities, hospitals, food manufactories or newspaper publishing plants, nor does it prevent deliveries of coal to domestic users.

The embargo put into force by the Canadian Trade Commission, which is co-operating with the Dominion Fuel Controller, efectually prevents shipment of coal to the United States without permission, and the order of the Provincial Administrator will stop any shipments to other Provinces. Mr Harrington explained that he does not desire to in any way interfere with as much coal coming into Ontario as possible, but the steps taken are to give every protection to the essential industries.

Export Prohibited.

Export of coal from Canada to all destinations has been prohibited, except under license issued upon the recommendation of the Canadian Trade Commission.

Exportation of coal to Europe will cease immediately. As the prohibition includes coal for all purposes, licenses will have to be obtained in the usual way for bunker coal. In the case of coal already loaded for export the Canadian Trade Commission announces that consideration will be given application for licenses by telegraph.

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1919.

PETERBOROUGH'S BRILLIANT RECORD.

THE VICTORY LOAN returns are not yet all in, but enough is known to justify the conclusion that in both city and county all former records have been broken, creditable as all of these have been. It will likely be found that in the city and rural districts the total amount subscribed is considerably over three million dollars. The objective was $1,800,000, so that this particular district has not only gone triumphantly over the top but has exceeded the original amount aimed at by nearly one hundred per cent. The city was the first in the Dominion to secure the Prince of Wales' flag, and thereby won for itself a national reputation, one of the most gratifying advertisements it has ever received. Every district in the county will also be awarded an honor flag. Honors are even on every hand. The unexpected has happened. Each district in the county as well as the city has overshot the mark aimed at.

One of the most gratifying features of the campaign is the fact that no individual loan in excess of $10,000 has been received. This shows that prosperity is general and that the [illegible] and the small investor were able to purchase bonds on the easy terms so generously offered by the Government. It was by no means a rich man's loan exclusively.

The Government asked for three hundred million dollars. It is now evident that when all sections of the Dominion are heard from it will be found that he loan has been subscrbed by over one hundred per cent., so that the showing made by Peterborough has been of a piece with that made in the rest of Canada.

It was organization, hard work and "pep" that scored such a signal triumph in Peterborough. This city is filled with hustling men, young and old, who can achieve anything to which they set their hand. Their recent success was but a repetition of what they have done on former similar ocacsions, with the added distinction that the triumph has been more marked than ever before.

The organization was thorough from the beginning. Mr. Harold Fry, the county organizer, overlooked no detail. The very fact that W. H. Bradburn again acted as county chairman, and Mr. Felix Brownscombe as secretary, was sufficient to inspire the workers with confidence. They had been tried out and proved in former years, and in this drive they brought added experience to their natural enthusiasm in the cause.

Mr. Frank Blackadar, head of the publicity department, was another who proved himself a master of the work to which he had been assigned, and he made no mistake when he added to his staff Mr. C. E. Curtis the well-known former newspaperman. The local papers were served as they never have been on such former occasions, more thoroughly than they would had they been obliged to rely on their own efforts. Publicity was an essential part of the campaign, and the recent success is due in no small measure to the manner in which this department was handled.

All of the canvassers this year have made records, but Mr. Frank Whitehouse, who looked after the work of securing the subscriptions in the various factories of the city, deserves special mention for his energteic services.

THE NEW FARMERS' PARTY.

THE JURISDICTION of the new Government now in power in Toronto is only provincial-wide in its scope. The Legislature has nothing to say as to the trade policy of the country. Still, the opportunities for changes are numerous. It is within the power of the Legislature to amend the Assessment Act. The course likely to be followed in this regard may be surmised by any one who has followed the agitation in farmers' clubs and societies for the past few years. One of their complaint has been that the privately owned railways do not bear their share of the taxes, and delegation after delegation has gone to Queen's Park to protest. One argument used was that the assessment on the Canadian roads was little if any more than half of that carried by the lines in Michigan, mile for mile.

The farmers of Ontario may not be single taxers but they at least favor the land rather than the improvements carrying the heavy end of the tax burden. There are up-to-date farms in this Province today, many of them, that if they were put on the market would go begging for a purchaser. The reason is that so many improvements have been made in the shape of buildings and drainage that the tax rate has assumed such proportions that few men would care to undertake to make a living off the property and pay the taxes. None but the man of means who took up farming as an avocation instead of a calling can undertake to assume the ownership of such property.

The new Federal Farmers' party that has just been organized in the West has been formed for the express purpose of securing a revision of the tariff. This means free trade eventually, reached by easy stages, the platform of the party calling for a fifty per cent. reduction in the tariff on British goods at once, and the abolition of duty entirely in a given number of years. The platform also calls for the revival of the Reciprocity pact that was defeated in 1911.

It is the farmer on the prairie who is leading in this agitation for free trade. His chief complaint is the cost of his agricultural implements. He takes no apparent note of the fact that since the election of the Borden Government the tariff on binders and other farm implements has been cut to the point of revenue production only. When the farmer of the West sets up the claim that he paid more for his machinery than the agriculturist in Ontario on account of the freight rates from Toronto to the Western provinces, Sir Thomas White, at that time Minister of Finance, secured a revision of these rates so that Western and Ontario farmers were on equal terms in this regard.

The West lacks manufactories. Until it has secured these it will never reach its highest point of development. No industries can be secured for the West under present world conditions, if free trade becomes the fiscal policy of the country. Not only will the West stagnate itself if it carries its point in this regard, but it will bring disaster upon the already established industries of the East. The European market will not last indefinitely at its present standard. A home population of consumers is essential in order to ensure national prosperity, and such a population can be secured only by the fostering of industries. When labor conditons and the rate of wages are the same in Europe as in America, then the removal of trade barriers may be discussed. Until there is uniformity in this regard all talk of equality in commercial relations is an idle dream.

Why revive the Reciprocity skeleton that has been laid away on the shelf for the past eight years? The free trade party in the United States has again been crowded into the corner. The Republicans are preparing to restore the tariff walls that were lowered in 1913. The experiment in free trade has proved a failure in the United States. The American Congress are not likely after that failure has been brought home to them, to consent to renew the trade negotiations which the Canadian electors so emphatically rejected in 1911.

MAY WRECK UNIONIST PARTY.

AT THE NEXT SESSION of Parliament the most important matter to come before the members is likely to be the new Election Act. It is announced that the Government in this measure will disfranchise all defaulters under the Military Service Act and will deny aliens of certain descent and length of residence in Canada the right to vote.

Both these provisions are certain to meet with strong opposition, the latter especally in the West, where the voting strength of the provinces would under such an enactment be reduced by nearly fifty per cent. The new Farmers' party could not possibly make a showing if those conditions prevail, and it is in the West that the organization places its hope for support. It will surprise few if the Union Government finds itself unable to survive the approaching session, and that it will be forced to appeal to the country on this [illegible] the old Act for the purposes of the new election.

FARM LABOR AND COMPENSATION.

IF THE FARMERS in the Legislature are anxious to devise ways and means to solve the labor problem on the farm, one course is open to them to help attain that end. They can amend the Workmen's Compensation Act so as to make it include in its operations men employed on the farms. This is one point on which the farmers and the Labor members should be able to reach perfect accord.

When the Workmen's Compensation Act became effective some years ago, farmers were exempted. The occupation was not regarded as dangerous, and besides, if a farm hand is injured while on duty he is usually given his board and attendance free of charge until he recovers. There is, however, no provision made for the man who is injured while at work on a farm. There is no free medical attendance until he regains his health. There is no pension for his widow and minor children in the event of his death. All of which has had a tendency to drive the workers from the country to the city where he is given liberal protection in the case of injury.

In their own interests, the new Government of farmers would be well advised to extend the scope of the Act so as to include men who work for them. The tax necessary to maintain a fund for the purpose would be merely nominal, as accidents are comparatvely rare. Such a change, however, would remove one difficulty in the way of inducing men to work on farms. It would relieve the farmer, too, of all liability for maintenance, doctor's fees or damage in the event of accident.

OPINIONS OF OTHER EDITORS.

THE FARMERS' PUZZLE.

(Ottawa Journal.)

And now a day has come when the prosperous farmer ponders over the question whether he should first buy a twin-six passenger car, an aeroplane or a tractor.

REMODELLING THE IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

(Vancouver World.)

In Mr. Asquith's opinion, the Parliament of the Mother Country is not what it used to be. But that is not unusual with parliaments. However, it is true that before the war Parliament was losing authority and prestige, though not, perhaps, from causes which Mr. Asquith mentions. The chief reason, probably, was that the House of Commons was hopelessly inefficient because hopelessly congested. Public and private bills costing thousands of pounds were choked to death every session because there was no time to look at them, and reforms unless so pressing that the Government was obliged to take them up, got [illegible] shrift. The remedy has been clear enough. It consists of the devolution of parliamentary powers to subordinate legislatures, as in Canada and other dominions. The lines of that devolution are now being sought. Sixteen members of the House of Commons, with the Speaker at their head, will shortly consider the establishment of minor parliaments in the British Isles with a view of devolving upon them much of the domestic legislation now coming before the Imperial Parliament. Such a scheme is long overdue. It will no doubt go far to relieve parliamentary congestion, and give to the present House of Commons what it now lacks, namely, reasonable opportunity to deal with empire and world affairs, and the great policies which in future must be evolved.

THREE DIFFERENT KINDS OF CIDER

(New York Sun.)

The announcement of the acting collector of inland revenue at Boston that the manufacture and sale of pure apple juice, fermented or otherwise, is still legal will be a relief to thousands of farmers. Mr. Casey's warning that conditions will be different after Jan. 16, when the prohibition amendment will forbid the sale of any intoxicating beverage, probably will spur the cider mill men to get rid of their stock before that time.

Rural New York and New England are sopping with cider this fall. Up in Maine and out on Long Island the only apples which escape the commercial cider mill and the home press are those for which the apple sauce canners pay a good price. Why shouldn't the man with an orchard make the mill hum when he is getting 40 cents a gallon or about $20 a barrel? The farmer with enough apples for a thousand barrels makes a neat fortune in a single season. Old whiskey barrels, which at one time brought $1 in the cider business, are selling at $10 in Connecticut now.

Cider of all kinds is the farmer's pecuniary blessing. Cider of the hardest kind is the farmhand's curse. For there are three kinds of cider. The first is plain apple juice, fresh from the press, innocent as a dewdrop and as sweet as the sugar you can't buy. The second is the juice after it has spent a few days in the barrel and has developed a fizz reminiscent of champagne and a tang like the air of a perfect November day. This is the draught that goes best with the turkey and cranberries. At its finest it is as delicate as Rhine wine.

The third kind of cider is seven devils. It is the juice that is too evil to become even good vinegar. It is sold in jugs, carried across the fields in jugs and drunk from jugs, gurgling as it goes on its sinister errand. It makes first drunkards. It is the last resort of drunkards. It brings with it rheumatism, sciatica, hardening of the arteries, delirium tremens and death. It burns down houses, breaks up homes, lets crops rot in the fields, and turns shotguns on neighbors. It does not need to be mixed with whiskey, thereby becoming "stonefence." Beelzebub does not need to be accompanied by a minor fiend. Taken in sufficient quantity, plain hard cider has everything that whiskey carries and a bit more. Forty cents' worth of whiskey would get no man drunk, but forty cents' worth of hard cider would stagger anybody.

The peculiar fact about cider's relation to prohibition is that, while no law will prevent the farmer from selling pure sweet apple juice, no law will keep the new owner from letting the juice become the worst tipple that this country has known.

LAND SETTLEMENT UNDER STATE AUSPICES

California has been making a successful experiment in land settlement under state auspices. This is said to be the first experiment under such authority and supervision. It was authorized by a state land settlement act passed by the state's legislature in June, 1917. The avowed purpose of this was to show "what could be done by planned rural development, adequately financed, and to show how people of small means could be helped by the state to secure farms and rural homes without this aid becoming a burden to the taxpayer."

These are some of the terms under the act whereby land may be purchased from the state:

Applicants must be citizens of the United States or have declared their intention to become citizens. Settlers must take a cash payment of five per cent and may have up to forty years in which to complete payment. They may obtain a loan of 60 per cent of the cost of houses and other permanent improvements and may have twenty years in which to repay this loan. Loans for all improvements may not exceed $3,000. Repayment of loans on livestock or implements may extend over a period of five years.

The land must be cultivated by the purchaser in conformity with rules laid down by the state land settlement board, which must give its consent to a transfer or other disposal of land within five years. Actual residence must begin within six months from the date of the approval of the application and must continue for at least eight months in each calendar year for at least ten years.

Prices of land were fixed with due consideration for all influencing factors, such as character of soil, roughness, accessibility and so on. The total price of units ranged from $3,600 to $15,000, the average selling price being $150 an acre. Terms of purchase were five per cent down and five per cent interest on the unpaid balance, to which was added a three per cent payment on the principal, making eight per cent a year, which pays for the farm in twenty years.

Two tracts of land in the Sacramento valley were purchased, a total acreage of 6,219. This became known as the Durham settlement. About 3,500 acres available for immediate settlement were subdivided into fifty-two farms, and twenty-one farm laborers' allotments and offered to settlers in May, 1918, while twenty-seven farms and five farm laborers' allotments were opened for settlement in November, 1918. All the allotments have been sold execept 700 acres of pasture land and 320 acres of farm land. Farms vary in size and adaptability to different kinds of farming, some embracing as much as 160 acres, while fruit farms are generally small. Farm laborers' allotments consist of two acres or less, but the law has now been amended to permit farm workers' areas to be sold that have a value of $1,000.

A report issued by the state settlement board remarks that among the advantages offered by the Durham settlement are a co-operative stock breeders' association; aid in improving farms, building fences, houses and so on; a system of roads, irrigation, drains, superintendent service, a community centre and other social features.

Although the project is less than a year old, the progress of the settlement has been so encouraged that the legislature this year appropriated $1,000,000 for continuing the settlement policy and authorized a bond issue of $10,000,000. If the latter is ratified by the vote of the people, it will enable the board to proceed wtih land settlement in a more systematic and economical way than before.

ROYALIST PARTY FOR GREAT BRITAIN

INTENTION TO GIVE TRUE LIBERTY AND TO COMBAT BOLSHEVISM

London, Nov. 17.—A new political organization, the Royalist party, has been launched to oppose elments of Bolshevism in Britain, to back up the monarchy as against any other form of government to win back "ancient liberties," and to run candidates for Parliament.

Capt. Chitty Thomas, M.C., honorary secretary of the new party, says that the organization's program contemplates the refilling of the House of Lords "with the old nobility elected by the public." Seats in the House of Lords are now either hereditary or appointive.

The Royalist party also plans to build more houses, provide cheaper coal, clothing and food, and railway fares.

"We are modern in our ideas," though not exactly progressive," said Captain Thomas. "We do not believe in forcing progress like a hothouse plant. Let it take its course. We would like to go back to the comfortable days when a king was a king and the lords had real administrative power.

"We intend to restore the liberty of the subject in the shape of removal of restrictions imposed on civil life in 1914 (defence of the realm act), and to give labor, so far as companies are concerned, a real interest in production by means of profit sharing.

"The House of Lords would be a buffer between the Throne and the Commons."

Capt. Wheatley-Crowe, leader of the new party, said: "We stand strongly for the support of the monarchy against republicanism and bolshevism. We want to see a close bond between the King and his people, and to this end it will be necessary to strengthen the House of Lords."

EDITOR'S MAIL

Editor Review: I have long wondered that an intelligent public would tolerate the vulgar demonstrations by women who make their toilet in public. Having occasion to go to town several times a week, my attenion is attracted by women who open their handbags and boldly bring forth a rouge pot and powder box and proceed to smear their faces with the contents, absolutely regardless of onlookers, often using the store windows as mirrors.

In a street car a few mornings ago a sweet young girl drew forth her toilet accessories and began daubing in a vigorous manner her entire countenance. When not so engaged she occupied her time by munching sweets. A child of perhaps four or five years of age seated next to her said, "Oh, do give me some." The young lady, supposing she meant the sweets, offered her the box, when in a loud childish treble the little one said: "I do not want candy; I want some of the pretty red stuff you put on your cheeks." A general titter followed, and it is needless to say the offender alighted at the first stopping place.

Being a frequent patron of theatres my mind is often distracted from the play by the [illegible] in the audience who are busily engaged in powdering their nasal organs. The masculine portion present certainly must be amused at so glaring an acknowledgment of the weakness and vanity of womankind. I have been in a great many places all over the globe, but I never have seen anything of this kind to such an extent as it is carried on here.

I trust that some thought will be accorded to this matter and that Peterborough women, who are among the most beautiful and clever women of the world, will, if beauty must be adorned, resort to the artifice in the sanctity of their boudoirs.

Ottawa, Nov. 16. — A delegation from the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada waited on Hon. C. J. Doherty, acting prime minister, yesterday morning and presented a number of resolutions passed by the federation at its recent meeting in Toronto. The resolutions advocated a uniform divorce law; that the salaries of husbands, guilty of desertion shall be paid to the wives they have deserted; that railway companies place conveniences for women on trains; that when naturalization is granted it be marked by an appropriate ceremony; and also resolutions dealing with the age of consent, and the sale of narcotics. Judge Doherty promised consideration by the government of the resolutions.

"Congratulations!" replied the elderly doctor. "What was the matter with him?"

"Nothing. I couldn't find a thing wrong with him."

Proved It.

"And you call yourself a lover of peace!" said Mr. Raxerty.

TRIAL BY ORDEAL.

Trial by ordeal still exists in some parts of Japan. If a theft takes place in a household, all servants are required to write a certain word with the same brush. The conscience is supposed to betray its workings in the waves of the ideographs written. Tracing an ideograph involves such an effort of muscular directness and undivided attention, that this device often leads to the discovery of the guilty party. The test is, at all events, more humane than the ordeal of boiling water, to which accused persons were formerly submitted in Japan.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general.

AYRES FINDS IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE HIS "ADS"

The average store would not think of advertising the fact that it had made minor improvements in the physical condition of the establishment, but L. S. Ayres & Co., of Indianapolis, recently did that very thing in a style impressive enough to cause comment.

Like most stores in the same line Ayres & Co. use big space in the daily papers to feature their various bargains. The location of this advertising depends on various elements, and varies from day to day. The company, however, reserves the upper left hand corner of the last page of one of the big afternoon dailies for little chats with the public, incidentally taking advantage of the opportunity to direct attention to its main advertising on another page, the location of which is ascertained in time to give the exact page number in the smaller space.

The ad featuring the store improvements, like others run in the same fixed space, was in an intimate vein:

"The visitor said, 'you've a remarkably attractive store. It is so clean and cheerful.'

"The visitor was a man and we felt just like a woman when her best friend says, 'How smart you look.'

"For this is a clean store in both stock and habitation.

"You probably didn't suspect it, but during the last three months sidewalls and ceilings have been painted at night—from basement to top-most floor. Housekeepers and porters are busy almost at daybreak mopping and cleaning each remote corner against your coming.

"And the merchandise! Why they're going and coming all the time, these buyers of ours, on the alert for what Indianapolis needs and open-minded for each new appeal of fashion.

"Our constant endeavor is to make this, undeniably, your best store, as we work hard to make it so."

At the bottom is the line: "Store news will be found today on Page 13."

Striking the Human Note.

St. E. Ryan advertising manager for Ayres, believes that the public can be interested in the most minute details of store management, provided it is told in an interesting way.

"The woman who spends a great deal of money in a store enjoys a peep behind the scenes," he explained. "She is interested in not only the goods we sell and how we sell it, but in the appearance of our saleswomen, and a lot of other things, which, on the surface, would appear to have no connection with merchandising."

The same intimacy which is a peculiar feature of Ayres advertising also has made its appearance in classified advertisements for saleswomen. The store might content itself with the usual: "Girls wanted for all departments" ad, but an effort is made to put the same human touch in this type of publicity as in that designed to sell goods. A recent ad for help ran like this:

> A public singer who had lost her high notes, but not her ambition, took employment with L. S. Ayres & Co. as a saleswoman. Three months later she remarked: "I marvel that girls, unless very gifted, struggle with the opposing forces of a 'career' when there is available at home such a stimulating, educative and altogether enjoyable vocation. I enjoy my present work; it's jolly fun to sell goods; it's pleasant to meet such customers as we have here, and I certainly appreciate the opportunities the store offers for attaining greater culture. One absorbs naturally the essentials of taste in dress, and gets mental stimulus in facing and solving commercial problems."
>
> Perhaps you who read would also enjoy department store work amidst such environment. We have a number of positions open, earnings dependent alone upon your ability to "make good."

This ad had a two-fold purpose—the first being, of course, to attract to the store high-class saleswomen. It refuted the too-general idea that work in a department store is drudgery, and in addition was a strong argument to the numerous young women who look longingly in the direction of a career, when profitable work lies at hand.

The other angle is its appeal to buyers. The ad emphasizes the knowledge of dress acquired by saleswomen, and, it is believed, will do much toward inducing the public to place more reliance in the judgment of the sales staff that is generally the case.

Several former school teachers have been secured for the Ayres staff, and this fact is extremely suggestive, in view of the efforts made by department stores to get women of culture, [illegible] ary salaries of school teachers have resulted in efforts to get other work by many members of that profession.

OMAHA TO CONTINUE COMMUNITY ADVERTISING

Omaha has spent $15,000 for community newspaper advertising this year and the results are already so apparent that the sum will be increased to $25,000 in 1920, according to the announcement recently issued by Arthur Thomas, of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Our first venture in advertising Omaha," said Mr. Thomas, "was one which appeared during the war. Under the headline, 'Open an Office in Omaha,' it called attention to the fact that the city had few war industries and that it would not, therefore, be adversely affected by the reconstruction period. The announcement was not only prophetic, but produced very encouraging results.

"The second of the series was 'The Breadbasket of the World,' a statement emphasizing why our agricultural wealth would increase during the after-war prosperity. By the time that the third advertisement appeared a new Omaha book—descriptive of the city and the territory surrounding it—was ready, and we ran some purely "inquiry copy" in small space (from 14 to 28 lines) calling attention to this volume. One of the single-inch advertisements was particularly effective.

"Early in the present year we began a series of twelve three-inch advertisements, all in a similar style, using the word Omaha for the display and, as a subhead, 'Where There is Lasting Prosperity.'

"These advertisements are not designed to pull inquiries, but are informative in character, each being devoted to some salient point about the city. One calls attention to Omaha as the second livestock market of the world, another as the second corn market, another features the fact that Omaha is thirteenth in bank clearings, although thirty-fourth in population, and so forth.

"The growth of the city and the rapid increase in new businesses which have come to Omaha is the 'proof of the pudding'—and also the reason that we intend to increase our appropriation next year."

MUCH DISEASE IS FEARED IN ENGLAND

WINTER HOUSE OVERCROWDING MAY BE RESPONSIBLE FOR EPIDEMICS

London, Nov. 17.—With a view to combatting effectively the next outbreak of influenza scientists and doctors have been investigating causes of epidemics.

They have proved that influenza travels in waves, which recur at remarkably coincident times all over the world.

The 1918 epidemic started in China. After this the wave spread to the Pacific coast, in the American soldiers' concentration camps. It then passed across the middle west, and Chicago was badly attacked in March 1918. Thence it passed to Europe and laid low ten thousand of our sailors at Scapa Flow. France received the disease later, and the tail-end of the wave was on the Italian front.

Spring, summer and autumn waves of influenza have been experienced in England, where it is expected to make a reappearance at a period now being worked out by the authorities. When further records have been made, it may be possible for these epidemics to be timed as fixedly as astronomical observations.

"Old Moore" makes a practice of predicting outbreaks of diphtheria scarlet fever, cholera and smallpox in various parts of the county. Exactly on what grounds he bases such predictions it is difficult to say. But it is a fact that experts can foretell the outbreak of epidemics to a certain degree. Violent climatic changes, earthquakes and other geological disturbances are known to be the forerunners of contagious diseases. Famine and poverty will also start a wave which may travel around the world. A well-known physician attributed a big outbreak of typhus fever a few years ago rather to the prevalence of what he termed an atmosphere [illegible] produced by bad sanitation.

At the moment doctors are prophesying and preparing for an outbreak in epidemic form of disease of the worst kind in the present month. It is estimated that before the end of the month there will be an excess of population overhousing accommodation of about two million adults. During the summer months when a great deal of time can be spent in the open air the worst consequences of overcrowding are not apparent. When winter comes, however, housing conditions will be such that the Cabinet, in alarm, are now considering a scheme for trying to prevent the diseases which are likely to spread.

BRITISH BABIES FOR ADOPTION

MORE IN OLD COUNTRY THAN CAN FIND SUITABLE HOMES

London, Nov. 17.—Officials of the British National Baby Adoption Society say more babies are offered for adoption now in this country than can be placed in suitable homes. Many of these children are illegitimate.

Some are children of demobilized soldiers whose wives have died or left them. Since the war, it is said the desire to adopt children is more widespread than ever before.

"Many unmarried women have taken a child," one of the officials said. "The children are sent to the class of home to which they belong by birth. Many children are adopted by miners, who are fond of children and will take good care of them."

ROLLS PERFECT SCORE

Chicago, Nov. 15.—Bowlers up in the North End League experienced a little sensation all their own and one that never comes to many another league throughout an entire season. They had the unique thrill of seeing one of their number shoot a perfect score of 300. The man with the accurate aim and whom all the breaks favored was Robey Anderson, No. 3 shot on the Lincoln quintet. His first game was 210, the covted perfect count came next, and then he ripped into 183 maples for the last match. His grand total for the round was 693, or an average of 231.

HOLD HUNGARIANS

Their Arrival at Kelowna Objected to by Returned Men

Vancouver, Nov. 14. — Twenty-nine Hungarians are remaining on board an Okanagan lake steamer as uninvited guests of the Canadian Pacific Railway, owing to the fact that they are not welcome at their ultimate destination, Kelowna, where they have been ordered not to land by a body of returned soldiers of that town. Mounted police who were sent from Vancouver have so far failed to solve the problem.

The party, which is composed of [illegible] men, seven women and 17 children, left Moose Jaw, where they had been engaged in farming since before the war, last week, and with a carload of household goods they were bound for Kelowna, with only enough money to cover the expenses of the trip. When the C.P.R. boat arrived at Kelowna, from Okanagan Landing, on Monday, it was met by a delegation of returned soldiers, who refused to allow the party to land. Similar attempts were made to land them at their destination on Tuesday, but without avail.

CLEANING UP IN LICENSE DEPT.

PREMIER OUT FOR THOROUGH ENFORCEMENT OF ONT. TEMPERANCE ACT

Toronto, Nov. 16. — It is understood that the question of the Ontario License Board will be one of the first matters to engage the attention of the new U. F. O. Labor Cabinet. There is no doubt of the existence of considerable dissatisfaction with the general administration of the Ontario Temperance Act, and quite a number of allegations are hanging over the heads of the members of the license board. On the other hand the chairman, J. D. Flavelle, is said to be courting the fullest investigation, and there is a disposition on the part of the cabinet to really comply with his requests. Mr. Drury, in his speech at the Victory Loan meeting in Massey Hall last week, made it perfectly clear that he was out for the proper enforcement and administration of the O.T.A. A general clean-up in connection with the license department may, therefore, be speedily looked for.

Appointments to Fill.

The cabinet also has to fill the important position of chairman of the T. & N. O. Commission. The present occupant, J. L. Englehart, offered his resignation to Sir William Hearst three weeks ago, but consented to carry on until the new government came into power. Lieut. Col. Carmichael minister without portfolio, is also to be appointed as government representative on the Hydro-Electric Commission, a position carrying a salary of $4,000 per annum. He will not, however, need to seek re-election.

BECKETT A FIGHTER

Actions of British Boxer Indicate a Formidable Opponent

New York, Nov. 17.—Just back from England, Harry Sugar brings the news that Joe Beckett, English heavyweight champion, is "there" as a fighter, and is not to be sneered at by Americans, who think he would be peaches and cream for our own Jack Dempsey. Mr. Sugar saw Beckett defeat Eddie McGoorty in their recent fight in London, and says although it required 17 rounds, the Englishman did the job like a regular ring mechanic.

Talking to Billy Gibson the other night, Mr. Sugar said that physically Beckett resembled McGoorty a lot. "But," asked Billy, "what American fighter does he look like in action?" Mr. Sugar thought a minute, then replied, "Billy" Miske." This is odd considering that Miske has been the most troublesome opponent Dempsey has faced.

Nothing Doing.

"I suppose," said the poor but otherwise truthful young man, cautiously feeling his way, "that you wouldn't be satisfied with love in a cottage?"

"Why not?" queried the fair maid "I'm sure I'd rather marry the right man with an income of only $10,000 a year than a millionaire. I didn't love."

And having sense enough to see through the hole in a doughnut, the young man quietly faded away.

LAKEFIELD DIVER IS ENGAGED FOR WORK

GORDON NORTHEY WILL HELP FLOAT SUNKEN CHICORA AT TORONTO

Gordon Northey, the diver at Lakefield, is one of the men who has been engaged to help float the historic old Chicora, which lies in twenty feet of water in Ashbridge Bay, Toronto. Mr. Northey, with another diver, Henderson, of Toronto, has been working under water on the wreck for some time making bands on the sides of the sunken craft. On these a big canvas will be placed. This will extend all around the boat to several feet below the top of the hull. The water will be pumped out and the consequent suction or pressure will force the canvas close to the hull, making it practically water tight.

To Make it Water-Tight.

Before this is done, however, a rope at the bottom of the canvas will be pulled tight to make the lower extremity of the canvas more water-tight. Then the Chicora will be raised. This work will probably take a week. It depends on the weather.

Aid is pumped to the divers from adjoining dredge, while by means of a telephone apparatus they are in constant communication with the workers above.

The Chicora is owned by the Canada Steamship Co., and the John E. Russell Company, of Toronto, are the contractors who are raising her. W. Newman, the wreck master, has had years of experience in this game. He raised the "Picton" which was burned and sank off Yonge street in 1911, and also the dredge "Shunia" which was sunk in 1914.

VACANCIES EXCEED NUMBER APPLYING

ONLY IN CLERICAL LINES ARE THERE MORE MEN THAN JOBS

The Government Employment Bureaus of Ontario report for the week ending November 8, applications for work from 1211 returned soldiers and 1520 civilians, a total of 2731 men. Vacancies notified by employers number 3842 and placements include 829 returned soldiers and 1189 civilians, a total of 2018 men.

In the Women's Departments, 290 women applied for regular work and 234 for casual employment. Employers asked for 291 regular workers and 384 day workers; and 126 women were placed in regular employment.

These statistics show no special change in employment conditions during the week. The demand for workers throughout the province continues greater than the supply in many kinds of employment. It is only in clerical lines that there are more men than jobs. This is true of the women's applications as well

MEN OF THE STAMP OF THE MARTYRED STEPHEN ARE NEEDED IN WORLD TODAY

Rev. F. E. Malott, in His Morning Discourse at Trinity Church, Shows How Great Occasions Call For Great Men.

Rev. F. E. Malott preached an interesting and helpful sermon yesterday morning in Trinity Methodist Church on one of the greatest men in history, a man whose type is needed in the world today, namely, Stephen, of the New Testament.

All through history new occasions have called forth new men. In the political era of this Province a new occasion has called new men out of their obscurity to fill the offices of government. The war called many men to leadership and service who would otherwise have remained quietly in obscurity.

It was a new occasion in the church that called Stephen to the front. The church had been established for about four years and the work had grown too great for the apostles. Murmurings of discontent arose and they did the wisest thing possible—they called a large congregational meeting and asked the assembly to choose their leaders to look after the business affairs of the church. They did so and the leader of the leaders was Stephen, a man formerly living in obscurity, brought into leadership by this new occasion. And these men were consecrated to the work of the church. "There should be some sort of consecration for the men who attend to the business affairs of the church today," added Mr. Malott.

Stephen's Qualities.

Mr. Malott then went on to point out the qualities of Stephen that made his career, although very short, so mighty in its influence. Stephen was a man of good reputation. A man's reputation may not be his character, but in most cases it is a clear index to his character. For a man to assure a good name he must be deserving of it. But the enemies of Stephen stole his good name and caused his downfall and death. One should criticize those in positions of responsibility only when it is absolutely necessary for the public good.

And Stephen was a man of good judgment and endowed with the spirit of wisdom. We need men of good clear common sense in the church today.

Man of Faith.

And Stephen was a man of faith. This is a necessary qualification for office today, in the church, the state, in business, and in the world of industry. Faith is insight. We need men of vision that can see the things that should be done. For our great tasks of today we should turn from our own weakness to the strength and power of God. "The just man shall live by his faith and faithfulness," said the prophet.

And Stephen was filled with the Holy Spirit. The word enthusiasm is derived from the expression, "God in us." The spirit of the living God is the spirit of wisdom and understanding, of power and might and of reverence. It is possible to have God living in us and not be filled with the Holy Spirit. To be filled with the Holy Spirit means that we are serving God all the time with all our energies. It is yet a possibility and a privilege to be filled with the Holy Spirit. Our failures are largely due to lack of faith in God.

Such lives as Stephen's are brought about by Divine grace. Before the war the world worshipped the strong man. The lower classes looked up to the great prize fighter, a little higher up they reverenced the large commercial man, and the highest people worshipped the intellectual giant.

Truly Great.

But Stephen, a turly great man, was full of kindliness, gentleness, virtue and power—the power to live a clean, upright, good life; the power to witness for Jesus Christ before the world; the power to dispute the great Pilate even unto death, the power to bring thousands into the Church of God. That gigantic power is for all of us. What we need is more than teaching—the power to lead us through a new spiritual experience. That is the great object of the Forward Movement of the churches throughout the country.

And every man who undertakes it will receive power from God and will be endowed with the wisdom and faith necessary for the great spiritual experience.

LIQUOR INTERESTS LOSE CONTENTION

New York, Nov. 17.—The eagerly awaited decision by Judge Learned Hand of the United States District Court was a bitter disappointment to the brewing and liquor interests. Judge Hand squarely upheld the constitutionality of war time prohibition and dismissed suits brought by the Jacob Ruppert Brewing Corporation and Dryfoos, Blum & Co. to enjoin the Federal Attorney and the Collector of Internal Revenue from enforcing the bone dry law. Simultaneously Judge John C. Knox, also upholding the validity of the war time prohibition act and the enforcement act, dismissed demurrers filed by liquor dealers in another proceeding to nullify enforcement.

Judge Hand followed what appears to be the trend of opinion of the Federal bench in this district and his ruling is the worst blow the liquor interests have received since Congress passed the Volstead act over the President's veto. At the same time the decision calls attention to the extraordinary conflict of opinion and the muddled situation which exists in the country.

In one spot, Rhode Island, it is legal to sell beer. In another spot, Louisville, Ky., it is legal to sell whiskey. Ohio has rescinded her ratification of the Eighteenth Amendment. Judges issue irreconcilable opinions. It is probable, however that a final decision by the United States Supreme Court as regards the constitutionality of the act of November 21, 1918, and the Volstead act may be had very soon, as it was announced by Judge Hand that the Supreme Court would hear argument in this matter on November 20 and that a decision might reasonably be anticipated in the near future.

McGILL DEFEATS VARSITY IN CHAMPIONSHIP FOOTBALL

Immense Crowd Witnesses Inter-Collegiate Union Game on Saturday—Win For Varsity Would Have Tied Up Whole Series.

Molson Stadium, Montreal, Nov. 15.—In the presence of a big crowd, probably the largest which ever attended a football game in Montreal, Varsity met McGill this afternoon in an intercollegiate union game.

The game had a direct effect on the championship of the Union, as a win for McGill gave them the championship, while a win for Varsity tied up the series. The teams lined up as follows:

Referee—Jack Hazlett (Queen's). Umpire—McEvenue (Toronto).

First Quarter.

McGill won the toss and chose to play with the wind behind them. Varsity kicked off, amid the cheers of their supporters, who occupied a big section of the stand. The game went into Varsity territory on a long kick by Montgomery. After a couple of downs, Varsity kicked, and play was in mid-field. Carroll dropped two catches, recovering the second one 10 yards out. Carroll kicked into his own scrimmage, and Notman plunged through and secured and went over for a try. It was not converted.

A series of scrimmages occurred, in which Varsity backs were thrown back for losses. On an onside kick, Carroll was nailed 20 yards out. He kicked over, and Flannagan hurled for 50 yards. Then, McGill pulled off a trick play, and Anderson went through for a try.

It was a typical Shaughnessy performance, who refused, until Anderson, who was unmasked, took the pass. It was converted. Varsity made their yards on three downs. Carroll kicked over, and Flanagan rouged. Quarter-Time score: McGill 11, Varsity 1.

Second Quarter.

McGill inaugurated the second quarter by plunging for ten yards and then five yards. Varsity was offside, and the play was dangerously near their line. McGill lost the ball for offside. Carroll got away for a nice thirty-yard run, and the situation was relieved. McGill secured for off side and made their yards in the first scrimmage. On a over, Breen dropped the ball, but recovered. He was lucky, because two McGill wings fell on him just afterward.

He failed a moment later when a high kick came to him behind his line and fumbled badly. Seath secured and got a touchdown. It was converted.

Breen made a nice catch of the next one that came Varsity's way, but was smothered behind his line for a rouge. Seath broke through, and beating the Varsity wings ran twenty yards. Breen was forced to rouge on a long kick by Seath just before half time. Score: McGill 19, Varsity 1.

Third Quarter.

The third quarter opened listlessly. Scrimmage after scrimmage ensued. In midfield both lines held well. McGill through Flannagan's kicking, when yards were not made, slowly approached the Varsity line. Henri dropped a catch and Hughes secured and went over. It was called back because Henri had not been given a fair chance to catch the ball. Breen was finally caught behind his line and forced to rouge. McGill secured another point a second later before the change over, when Carroll rouged. Score: McGill 21, Varsity 1.

Fourth Quarter.

Breen kicked to Anderson and he was tackled near centre. Ross carried the ball through Varsity's left scrimmage. McGill lost the ball. Breen kicked and Flanagan carried the ball back 20 yards. Anderson went through for six. Montgomery made a gain. Anderson bucked for nine yards. Flanagan went through twice in succession. On a fake buck Anderson gained seven yards. Notman went through for yards. Montgomery got five yards on an end run. McGill lost the ball. Breen kicked and Shoebottom brought Heney down on Varsity's 45-yard line. McGill lost the ball. Breen kicked to Anderson, who was brought down on McGill's 45-yard line. Montgomery went through for 20 yards. Notman gained five yards. Flanagan kicked to Breen. Breen kicked to Flanagan. Sullivan replaced Holmes. Breen kicked to Flanagan at McGill's 40-yard line. Flanagan kicked into touch at Varsity's 20-yard line. Breen kicked into touch at centre field.

Game ended at midfield. Score: McGill 21, Varsity 1.

MISS CORINNE GRIFFITH GIVES AN UNUSUAL PERFORMANCE IN "THE BRAMBLE BUSH"

Uses Master Toucn in Portaying the Emotions of Tennessee Girl Who Goes to Washington to Make Her Way and Finds Romance.

"The Bramble Bush" is unusual not because of its plot, but because of the clever interpretation of Kaly Dial given by Corinne Griffith. She displays a master touch in expressing the various emotions that enter the life of the heroine and draws a fine distinction between the various shades and tints of the same emotion Her expression is spontaneous and the result of a mental struggle rather than a mechanical interpretation which is studied and imaginative. Vitagraph could have selected no better vehicle in which to star Miss Griffith than "The bramble Bush," which is showing at the Empire theatre on Monday. Tuesday and Wednesday.

The plot is clever and swift in action. It tells a story without unnecessary scenes and padding. There are strong human interest and love elements introduced in a tale which is similar to the life story of every human being. It is this closeness to life that holds the audience and leaves in the mind a mental picture that offers material for discussion long after.

Appeals to Women

An able cast supports Miss Griffith, and each scene picture is given a background fitting the situation and harmonizing with the atmosphere of the piece. The photography is exceptionally fine, and each scene is brought out sharp, vivid and clear cut. Miss Griffith's gowns make a strong appeal to the women, as she wears fourteen different costumes in the picture. They were designed especially for the star by a Fifth avenue modiste and are in advance of the fall styles.

The production is a credit to the skill of Tom Terriss, who directed the picture. It is typical of his thorough understanding of human emotions and the causes that lead up to the expression.

The story deals with the adventures of Kaly Dial, a Tennessee girl, who after her mother's death goes to Washington to seek her fortune. She carries with her two letters written by her mother before her death addressed to two of her mother's girlhood friends.

FRANCES RICHARDS, AS PLEASURE IN "EXPERIENCE," AT THE GRAND THURSDAY EVENING.

EXPERIENCE COMING TO GRAND THEATRE

MOST WONDERFUL PLAY IN AMERICA NOW IN SIXTH SEASON.

"Experience" aptly described as the most wonderful play in America, now in its sixth season of remarkable prosperity, will be presented by F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest at the Grand Thursday evening next.

The career of "Experience" in the past few years has been little less than remarkable and the announcement of the coming of this big dramatic and comedy success is sure to result in a capacity house. Six years ago Messrs Comstock and Gest produced this play for the first time and since then it has played in most of the big cities of the United States from coast to coast and has enjoyed remarkable endorsement from Press and clergy everywhere it has been presented. Now for its sixth season the managers have provided a complete new scenic production and new costumes for the ladies in the company. The cast has been selected with great care and will be one of the strongest that has ever presented this wonderful morality play.

The play bids fair to be more successful this year than ever before because it seems that no matter where "Experience" goes, this remarkable modern morality play always attracts capacity audiences. The clergymen of every big city from Maine to California have pronounced "Experience" one of the most wonderful lessons of right living ever presented to the eyes of youth. It is the story of the trials and temptations that beset youth on every hand and it is presented by a remarkable cast amid surroundings of great scenic beauty. There are the scenes in the production and the cast is an exceptionally strong one.

PREPARED PLOT TO BREAK UP PARADE

TEN REDS NOW IN JAIL WILL BE CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Centralia, Wash., Nov. 17.—A confession that a thoroughly prepared plot existed to break up by a rifle volley the armistice day parade during which four soldiers were killed, is in the hands of D. C. Cunningham assistant county attorney. The statement was obtained from one of the Reds, now a prisoner, who, it is leaders from the start and sat in at the final secret session of the I. W. said, was in the councils of the ring-W.'s held on Sunday, at which the last diabolical detail was arranged.

Mr. Cunningham said that ten of the men now in jail will be formally charged with murder, and that an eleventh, Bert Bland, is being sought by a posse. Bland fled during the riotous roundup of radicals that followed the street slaying. He is held responsible by the county prosecutor for the shooting of Warren Grimm, commander of the Centralia post of the American Legion. His description has been placarded throughout the State, and his capture is regarded as certain.

Missing Man Hunted.

Officers of the American Legion were in communication with the county prosecutor's office, and when they learned of the confession reported to have been obtained and that Bland was wanted, they organized with rifles at once to get him. An even hundred men went out, on authority, ready to shoot to bring the fugitive in, but to capture him at all cost. Feeling in the city ran higher with the announcement of the new developments.

A freight train coming into the city from Seattle bristled with the menace of armed I. W. W.'s. As the train pulled into the yard here sixteen radicals with rifle barrels tucked under their coats dropped from the brake beams and started for a rendezvous. They were sighted by members of the train crew, who attempted to interfere with them. The radicals promptly shifted their guns into play, and compelling the crew to hold up their hands and back up against the cars, made off.

Fears were expressed in some quarters that another concentrated move had been planned to repeat the bloodshed of Tuesday. Several instances were reported during the day where sullen, armed men had been seen slinking about the borders of the town. Extra deputies have been sworn in for safeguarding the city. Edward Godfrey, an employe in the Chehalis Mills, was shot by a guard for refusing to halt upon command. The bullet went through his left shoulder without inflicting serious injury. Godfrey had worked at the mills, and had the military regulations regarding passing the sentry fully explained to him.

TEACHERS COMPLAIN OF WAGE SCHEDULE

ST. THOMAS SCHOOL STAFFS ARE PROMISED INCREASE NEXT YEAR

St. Thomas, Nov. 17.—There will be no advances in the salaries of the public school teachers of St. Thomas this year, but there is a strong probability that recognition will be given their claims early next year if the majority of the present Board of Education is again in power. The question was the main topic of discussion at the meeting of the Finance and Supply Committee of the Board, a petition from all the public school teachers of the city being to hand asking that their maximum salary be increased from $1,000 to $1,200 a year; that all teachers with 10 years or more experience receive this stipend, and that all teachers with less than ten years' experience be given an increase of $100 a year until the maximum is reached. There was also a petition from the assistant male principals of the public schools requesting that their maximum salary be increased from $1,200 to $1,500. Both petitions gave the increasing high cost of living as necessitating the fresh demands.

The result of the discussion was the following resolution, passed unanimously:

"That this Board recognize the claim of the public school teachers for an increase in salary on account of the high cost of living and would recommend the next year's Board to generously consider the same. This Board is unable to deal with the petition on account of the estimates being overdrawn."

Up Against It.

Inspector Taylor warned the Board that it was going to be up against a serious proposition if it did not increase the salaries of its teachers. Higher teaching salaries were inevitable, he said, and the Board might as well realize the fact at once and avoid difficulties. He was not particularly in favor of discriminating against the younger teachers although he highly commended the system of rewarding years of service and experience.

THREE CANDIDATES ALREADY IN THE FIELD FOR THE MAYORALTY

Ald. McIntyre, Edgar and Taylor Aspire to the Position Now Held By Mayor Duncan---Slate Arranged to Appoint Latter to Utilities Commission

The five members of the City Council who were a year ago elected for a two-year term were Aldermen Morrison, Gainey, Turner, Hamilton and Murray, the place of the latter now being filled by Alderman Crowe. These five are the men who will hold over. The five whose term expires are Aldermen Phelan, Taylor, Edgar, McIntyre and Garside. The latter is not likely to be a candidate for re-election, as his course in the Council has not been always satisfactory to the Labor men who elected him. Of the remaining four aldermen, McIntyre, Taylor and Edgar are avowed candidates for the mayoralty, Alderman McIntyre as the choice of Labor. A three-cornered fight is in prospect, in which Ald. McIntyre is likely to have easy sledding. Ald. Phelan will be a candidate to succeed himself, with chances bright for re-election. As chairman of the Board of Works committee and in matters connected with the new Hunter street bridge he has been the most indefatigable worker on the Board during the past year.

It is now taken for granted that Commissioner T. F. Matthews of the Utilities Commission will resign the position to which he was elected by acclamtion two years ago. When he does, the slate is already fixed for the appointment of his successor. Mayor Duncan is to resign. Ald. Taylor is to be appointed acting mayor. The Council is to be called together to appoint a successor to Commissioner Matthews. With Mayor Duncan out of it and Ald. Taylor in the chair, the Council is almost certain to divide four to four on the question of appointing Mayor Duncan, the Labor aldermen being likely to insist on Labor's right to representation on this committee. Alderman Taylor, however, will have the casting vote.

There is talk, too, of another vacancy by resignation on the Utilities Commission. If this really occurs, the aldermanic program is to appoint W. H. Bradburn as commissioner.

The law is clear as to the appointment of a member of the Commission to fill a vacancy. Council has no authority to order a special election for the purpose, but must make the appointment as the Act specifies. The member of the Commission whose term expires is Mr. Hicks, and he will be a candidate for re-election. Labor will nominate a man to oppose him, as well as a candidate for the School Board and at least four for the Council. The Trades Council is encouraged by the recent Legislative election to hope that they will be able not only to capture the mayoralty but to secure control of the Council.

BIG BOSTON RETAIL STORE WILL HAVE INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY

Will Be Conducted on Same System as Federal Government of the United States—Majority Vote of Employes to be Law For the Entire Store.

A big forward step in workers' representation in business has just been taken by John Shepard, Jun., owner of the big Shepard department store in Boston. Mr. Shepard, in a communication to the employes of his organization, outlines a plan for an industrial democracy in his establishment along all-American lines that is unique in the branch of his business which his store represents. This plan, the first of its kind to be adopted in big retail establishments, provides for co-operation of all employes in running the store under a representative form of government similar to the United States. In brief, the employes will elect a house of representatives, the heads of departments will form the senate, while the board of directors will form the cabinet. Mr. Shepard outlines his aims in the following letter:

"To the Employes of the Shepard Stores, Boston:

"In addressing you as above, I refer not only to the excutives, but to every employe from the messengers up to the merchandise managers, to the end that all the employes of The Shepard Stores shall receive that consideration to which they are at all times entitled; that a pleasant and happy relationship may exist between employer and employe; that all may work in harmony and with that spirit of goodwill toward each other which is conducive to contentment and satisfaction; to promote the welfare, enhance the happiness and cultivate the good-fellowship among one another.

"Ever since the Boston Store has been under my direction it has been my desire to make it the greatest retail establishment in New England, and one of the leading stores in the country.

"For many months I have given serious consideration as to what I could do to put us in the forefront, not only in our relations with the public, but in our work together, for the improvement of the store, and for the advancement and happiness of every person employed by the store.

"I naturally concluded that I wanted all the employes to co-operate in the running of the store, so that each one may express his or her beliefs on any question, and each one may have an opportunity, with every other one, to help direct the affairs of the store.

"I want you to make this store a much greater store, and to have it in your power to help decide all questions pertaining to its success and the welfare of those employed in it.

"I, therefore, have directed that the following system be put into force at as early a date as the organization can be perfected.

"I want to model the government of the store after the United States Government, which consists of a Senate and a House of Representatives, a Cabinet and a President.

"I want the employes of the store to elect from their own number persons of their own choice, one or more from each department, or group of departments, as may be arranged, to form the House of Representatives.

"I want the heads of all merchandise and general departments to form the Senate.

"I want the present board of directors to be my cabinet, I to remain the president, retaining the final decision, but being always inclined toward that which you, as a majority, may decide is best.

"I want the two official bodies, the Senate and the House of Representatives, to meet at such times as seems advisable, for the discussion of the conduct of the store and the changes and improvements that should be made.

"I want these two bodies to be regulated as are the House of Representatives and the Senate at Washington. Committees will be appointed from each of those bodies, which will consider every possible phase of the business and report to the House of Representatives and the Senate such resolutions as they may deem advisable, to be voted on. These resolutions, when passed by both bodies, shall go to the Cabinet and to me as President, as freely as any resolution of Congress now goes to the President of the United States.

"Anything that the employes of the store can agree on in this American way will hereafter be the law of the store.

"It is my desire that The Shepard Stores be the first of the large stores in America to adopt an all-American way of conducting its affairs for the general good, and for the good of every single person working with and for us.

"I hope I may have your hearty co-operation in introducing 'Industrial Democracy' into the retail business of our great country. I think we are all patriotic enough to believe that that which is a good government for us as citizens will also be a good government for us as merchants and storekeepprs."

FRAZEE WILL NOT SELL THE RED SOX

REFUSES OVER A MILLION DOLLARS FOR BOSTON BALL TEAM

Boston, Nov. 16.—Harry Frazee is not going to sell the Red Sox. Harry has been offered a staggering price for the club. In fact, he has been offered over a million dollars, and not in Mexican money either.

Now, a million dollars is a lot of dinero, even in these moving picture times. But Frazee has turned the offer down cold.

You see, Mr. B. Bancroft Johnson, the president of the American League, once said he would force Frazee out of baseball. And that statement still rankles in the Franzee bosom.

Frazee could use that billion dollars. Who could not? But the Boston American League baseball club is a paying proposition, and he would rather cut in on the income it nets than give Johnson the satisfaction of saying he forced him out of the national pastime.

COAL PRODUCTION NOT NORMAL FOR MONTHS

Ottawa, Nov. 17.—According to advices received here, only the utmost economy of bituminous coal reserves in Canada will enable the various industries dependant upon that coal to keep going all winter. Production of bituminous coal in the United States will not be normal for a month and perhaps longer, and many miners are refusing to return to work.

The bituminous coal received by Canada from April 1 to October 31 this year was 8,600,000 tons,, only seventy per cent of the amount received in the same period last year. More than that, not a ton has come in since November 1. To supply needs in Western Canada from Regina east only 1,400,000 tons came in through the Great Lake terminals at Fort William from mines in the eastern United States, as against 1,660,000 tons the previous year and 2,330,000 tons in 1917.

As soon as navigation closes this source of supply will be closed [illegible] situation is made worse [illegible] Alberta fields only supp[illegible] usual output on account [illegible] troubles. In October, the railroads carried 30 per cent more than in the same period last year. If this is kept up the situation may be saved. In the eastern and western coal fields miners are working steady as yet.

The Dominion Government will only permit exports to the United States in the same proportion as the United States lets bituminous entre Central Canada. Ships will be allowed to bunker at Canadian ports to encourage the Dominion foreign trade.

Active Christianity Will Mend the World

THE United National Campaign—representing the co-operative feature of the simultaneous, but independent, Forward Movements of the Anglican, Baptist, Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian communions invites all followers of our common Lord and Master to pray earnestly for the peace and well-being of Canada and the world, and for a renewal of the Christian spirit of sacrifice and service.

Thirteen National Conventions

Thirteen National Conventions are about to assemble at the call of the United National Campaign. The dates arranged, and the places of meeting here follow:—

November 24th and 25th	Toronto and Montreal.
November 25th and 26th	Montreal and Moose Jaw.
November 26th and 27th	Regina.
November 27th and 28th	Saskatoon.
December 1st and 2nd	Edmonton and St. John.
December 2nd and 3rd	Calgary, London and Halifax.
December 4th and 5th	Charlottetown and Vancouver.

The Objects of the Conventions

1. To give thanks to God for Victory.
2. To rouse the Canadian people to a keener sense of their religious privileges and national responsibilities.
3 To stimulate the practice of prayer for individual and national needs at this difficult period.
4. To re-affirm the principle that the Gospel of Christ is the only cure for those conditions which produced the world war, and the only foundation for ensuring national stability, social welfare and individual happiness in the day of peace.

The Reason for United Action

His Grace, the Archbishop of Canterbury, preached the opening sermon of the Church Congress held at Leicester, England, on October 14th, 1919. On that occasion, he said:—

"We ought to be able to make more of the real oneness, which, thank God, is already ours, the oneness, both in faith and in potential action, of all who can and do kneel to Christ as their living Lord. We want to dwell upon and foster the power of that fellowship for united . . . impact upon the world, or penetration of the world, at an hour so inexpressibly difficult as this. That need not, it will not, interfere with completest loyalty to the distinctive truths, which in our smaller circles within the Church of God we conscientiously hold dear."

"The corporate life which belongs definitely to our own Churchmanship claims our whole-hearted allegiance. But that allegiance acquires an element of peril if it becomes so disproportioned as to obliterate or mar our loyalty to the larger whole, the Christian fellowship, the God-guided life and energy of all who profess and call themselves Christians."

DOES HE BEAT HIS WIFE?

Allegation is Made Against the Ex-Crown Prince.

New York, Nov. 17.—A Berlin cable to the Tribune says that the German ex-Crown Princess, Cecilee, has been granted a separation decree from her husband pending the hearing of her divorce suit. Evidence submitted shows that the former crown prince struck her in the face, following which she fled toward Switzerland, but was intercepted, placed under arrest and returned to Berlin under arrest and returned to Berlin under guard, like a common criminal. A stormy family conference followed, during which the ex-kaiser shook his fist in her face.

Recent cables from Europe intimated that the difficulties between the ex-crown prince and his wife had been patched up. Photographs have been received in Canada showing the ex-princess and the ex-prince together on Wieringen Island, the present home of the latter.

OMEMEE RESIDENTS MAY SET PACE IN COOPERATING IN EDUCATION

Meeting Last Night Addressed by Inspector R. Lees and Provincal Inspector W. I. Chisholm---New Law Providing for Consolidated Schools Thoroughly Explained.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Omemee, Nov. 19.—The good work started by Hon. Dr. Cody as Minister of Education in planning to improve the rural school system of the Province, is, apparently, to be carried on by his successor in office. Two representatives of the Education Department are touring Ontario, speaking in the interests of consolidated schols. A meeting for this purpose was held here last night, the speakers being Inspector Richard Lees of Peterborough and Mr. W. I. Chisholm, formerly of the Normal School staff in Peterborough and now Assistant Provincial Inspector. Coronation Hall, handsomely decorated with flags, was crowded with residents of village and surrounding district, among the audience being Inspector G. E. Broderick and W. H. Stevens, both of Linday. District Representative Knight of Lindsay operated the lantern used in making the illustrations. Inspector Lees, who is thoroughly at home on this subject, explained the benefits of the system, while Mr. Chisholm followed him with a clear explanation of the steps required to bring about consolidation. The tangible result of the meeting, which was presided over by Rev. R. S. Scott, the new pastor of the Presbyterian church here, was the appointment of a committee to consider the idea of linking up two or three of the neighboring rural schools with the highly efficient school within the village limits.

Mr. Lees' address was illustrated with pictures of the splendid consolidated school buildings and grounds in Indiana, a State where the system has been brought to a high degree of development. Every school building is a credit to the district in which it stands. Every school too, is a community centre, the farmers' institute sessions and other meetings being held there. The people have a pride in these buildings and an interest in keeping them in repair, a feeling in marked contrast to the contempt in which so many of the rural schools of this Province are held by the people who attend meetings in them. Mr. Lees explained how the plan is made to work out, including the provisions made for the transportation of pupils to and from the schools.

Mr. Chisholm Explains Act.

Mr. Chisholm complimented the women in the audience upon the fact that they are now eligible for positions as rural school trustees, and expressed the belief that the best results would follow this innovation. He then showed illustrations of some of the oldest consolidated schools in the United States and gave a brief history of each.

Mr. Chisholm believes that Canada can accomplish anything that has been done in the United States. Any country that can send half a million men to the service of the Empire and raise nearly seven hundred million dollars by popular subscription loan in a few days, is not likely to fail at anything.

There is a consolidated school at New Liskeard which has been in operation over ten years. It was burned down three years ago, and the people voted to rebuild it and continue the work on the same lines. Manitoba is the banner province of the Dominion in the matter of consolidated schols, and in Manitoba the climate and the roads are a more serious obstacle to the success of the system than are to be met with in Ontario.

The law was clearly explained and it was stated that already two consolidated schools have been established since the adoption of the Act. The Government will, if the voters of a district decide to consolidate, grant $6000 for a new building, $2000 extra if it is completed by December, 1921, and $2,000 more if it contains an assembly hall. The maximum grant for the building is $10,000. When the school is in operation the Government will make a grant of $100 a year for every teacher employed at a salary of $600 or over.

There are three schools on the outskirts of Omemee, in which the number of pupils enrolled is not over ten. If these schools were incorporated with the one in Omemee greater efficiency would be secured and three teachers would do the work for which five are now necessary. It was explained that all children within one mile of a consolidated school must walk the distance, but all the ratepayers in the district are required to help pay the cost of transportation of those at a distance.

At the conclusion of Mr. Chisholm's address a motion was carried nominating the trustees of the several schools interested a committee to discuss the question of consolidation. This committee will hold a meeting one week from Monday night.

NEVER MIND U. S.

France and Great Britain Will Put Treaty Into Force.

Prais Novl 19.—Regardless of the American Government's attitude, the peace treaty at Versailles will be put into force, according to the prevalent view here following receipt of the report that President Wilson might withdraw the treaty from the U. S. Senate.

Whatever happens, the feeling in French circles, is that France cannot meet the German plenipotentiaries again, and French opinion is that Italy and Great Britain have a like feeling.

ADVISES SENATORS TO VOTE AGAINST TREATY PACT WITH RESERVATIONS

President Wilson Says Committee's Program Provides Not for Ratification but for Nullification of the Agreement Great Britain and France Considering Need of Carrying Out Terms of Treaty With Germany Without Waiting for U. S.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 19.—Great Britain and France are considering whether they are not compelled to proceed with the carrying out of the German peace treaty and operations of the League of Nations independently of the United States, pending a decision of the American Government on its course.

Cannot Delay.

It is pointed out that matters are continually arising under the treaty which need immediate attention, such as the operation of the various plebiscite commissions, and it is considered that because of this fact it is no longer possible to delay making the pact operative.

Against Ratification.

Washington Nov. 19. — A letter from President Wilson, advising the Senators to vote against the ratification of the treaty, with the Foreign Relations Committee reservations, was laid before the conference of the [illegible] Senate forces today by Democratic Leader Hitchcock. The committee's program, the President wrote, would provide, not for ratification, "but rather for nullification of the treaty." The conference had been called to decide upon the final Administration tactics in a fight for ratification, which is expected to come to an end today or tomorrow.

May Ratify Treaty.

Washington, Nov. 19.—Compromise moves to rescue the peace treaty from a threatened deadlock made such progress yesterday that its friends declared it had more than an even chance for life.

So far as it had taken definite form last night, the compromise program called for a final vote Thursday and pointed toward acceptance of the reservations of the Foreign Relations Committee without the requirement that they must be assented to affirmatively by the other powers.

The way to compromise was opened by the group of mild reservation Republicans who served notice on the Republican and Democratic leaders that they would not put up the bars entirely to modification of the committee resolutions, but would stand out against and defeat the Administration's parliamentary program.

With this final announcement of how their [illegible] strength would be used in the closing stages of the treaty contest, the mild reservationists retired to the background. The result was that Republican Leader Lodge and Democratic Leader Hitchcock faced each other and laid all their cards on the table.

CONVENTION AT WASHINGTON AGREES TO COMPROMISE ON EIGHTT HOUR DAY

Senator Robertson, Canadian Minister of Labor, Introduces Motion Which Provides That no Day's Work Shall Exceed Nine Hours--Age Limit for Children Regarded as too Low

Washington, Nov. 19.—Canada is likely to win her point and secure direct representation on the governing body of the International Labor Office. The issue is one of some weeks' standing. The governing body controls the International Labor Office and direct representation in its membership is considered of prime importance. It consists of 24 persons. Twelve are to represent the Government. The other twelve consist of representatives, in equal numbers, of the employers and workers' delegates at the conference and chosen by these delegates. Of the 12 Governmental representatives on the body, eight represent the eight States judged to be of chief industrial importance. The other are chosen by the International Labor Conference on its nomination of the Committee of Selection.

May be Conference Choice.

When the Organizing Committee of the conference prepared a list of eight States of chief industrial importance, Canada was excluded. The Dominion Government immediately filed a protest. That protest is still on record and is due to come before the Council of the League of Nations at its first meeting. But so prominent has been the part played by the Canadian delegation at the conference, that it is understood there is every likelihood of Canada being nominated as one of the four which the conference appoints. The matter is now in the hands of the Committee of Selection, and the committee has not yet reported. Its nominations, however, are expected to exclude the Dominion. Should this be the case, the protest before the Council of the League is unlikely to be pressed.

But Canadian employers are less successful: the six empoyers' representatives on the governing body so far as at present determined, will be from Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Czech-Slovakia and Switzerland. Strong representation was made by the Canadian employers' group—supported in this by the employers' group from Great Britain—that Canadian employers should be included among the six. The point was taken that the six employers' representatives nominated by the general employers' group will include no representatives of employers either of the whole American continent or of Asia. But the representatives have so far been unsuccessful. The general workers' group have not yet nominated their six representatives of the governing body.

Age Limit Too Low.

The children's charter is scheduled to come before Conference in plenary session to-day. Speaking generally, the expectation is that it will receive the two-thirds vote necessary to secure its adoption. Nevertheless, there is considerable criticism of some of its provisions. Among the Labor group there is the view that the age limit is too low. Among employers the convention is criticized on the ground that its provisions are too inelastic. The case, for instance, is cited of school children, during their holidays, picking fruit for the canning factories. Would this and similarly light work, it is asked, be forbidden?

Compromise on Eight-hour Day.

Compromise on the eight-hour day has apparently been reached, although the special committee continus its labors: nor has the present stage in the committee's work been reached without heartburning and angry scenes. Two Labor delegates from continental Europe at one point flung themselves out of the committee room. They heatedly declared they would have nothing more to do with the Conference. They were through. But under the counsel of British and Canadian Labor groups they returned to the committee room, and were eventually successful in the reopening of the discussion on the 48-hour week.

The compromise, which, it is understood, has the support of the majority, both of employers and of the workers, is an extension of the suggestion made by Senator Robertson, Canadian Minister of Labor a few days ago. It provides for an eight-hour day and a forty-eight-hour week, with these exceptions:

Exceptions to Convention.

(1) The convention is not to ap-

DESERTIONS TO THE BOLSHEVIKI

TWENTY THOUSAND OF YUDENITCH'S TROOPS GO OVER TO THE ENEMY

Helsingfors, Finland, Nov. 19.—It is reported here that 20,000 troops of General Yudeuitch's Northwestern Russian Army have gone over to the Bolsheviki.

Kolchak Attacked.

London, Nov. 19.—An attempt to assassinate Admiral Kolchak, head of the all-Russian Government, which until recently maintained its capital at Omsk, is reported in a wireless despatch received here from Moscow. Hand grenades were thrown at Kolchak, six soldiers being killed and twelve wounded.

Kursk Captured.

The capture of Kursk, south of Orel, is reported in despatch, Bolshevik troops entering city on Tuesday. In the course of operations resulting in the capture of Tobolsk, Isbim, Zukalinsk, Petropavlovsk, Kotkzhetoff and Omsk, the despatch asserts the Bolsheviki took 1,000 officers and 27,000 men as prisoners.

SETTLERS RUINED IN AUSTRALIA

MOST DEVASTATING DROUGHT IN THE MEMORY OF WHITE RESIDENTS

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 19.—Australia, especially New South Wales, is suffering the most devastating drought since white men have resided in that country, even the drought of 1902 being surpassed according to a Sydney despatch to The Daily Mail. Stock and crops have been destroyed, and it is doubtful whether there will be enough seed wheat for next season's sowing.

Thousands Ruined.

Hundreds, and perhaps thousands, of settlers have been ruined. Northwestern New South Wales is described as a desert, being stripped of everything green. Paddocks are littered with skeletons of cattle and even rabbits are dying in vast numbers.

AMERICA MUST SUPPLY EUROPE

OLD WORLD STRUGGLING FOR EXISTENCE—HELP THEM TO THEIR FEET

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 19.—(Gazette)—Lloyd Harris, of Toronto chairman of the Canadian Trade Mission, just returned from a year's study of conditions in Europe's war area, made his report to Sir Robert Borden at a private conference in the Traymore Hotel.

While Mr. Harris will not disclose what passed at the conferences with Sir Robert the belief is that he is an advocate of "give until it hurts" policy.

"Increased production lots of it—a great volume of uninterrupted production is the duty of the United States as well as of the Dominion," Mr. Harris said. "We in North America must not adopt the attitude that we did our share to bring the world war to a successful termination, and have no further duty or responsibility. We simply must do more, if only for our own future welfare.

"I wish American workingmen could see what I have seen on the other side. They are working. Their motto is increased production. That, plus our help, will enable them to emerge in a comparatively short time from the deplorable condition into which they were forced. See what has happened in Serbia and Rumania. Six months ago they were starving. When I came away they were raising tremendous crops and cereals, and it will amaze Americans to learn that these countries, after supplying their own needs have been exporting."

PEOPLE MUST AND SHALL HAVE COAL SAYS FUEL ADMINISTRATOR

No Matter What Miners or Operators May Do U. S. Govt. Will Arrange for Fuel Supply---All Soft Coal in Storage or Transit to be Seized---No Need for Panic in Canada

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Washington, Nov. 19.— Speaking with the authority of President Wilson's Cabinet, Fuel Administrator Garfield told representatives of bituminous coal operators and miners here today that the people of the United States need, must have, and will have coal, and as long as Government stands they will not be prevented from getting it by "anything operators or miners may do."

Dr. Garfield explained that his purpose was to furnish the conference with data which we should use in determining what wage advances if any, agreed by the operators and miners could be borne properly by the public.

Seize Coal in Transit.

Toronto, Nov. 19.— All soft coal in storage or in transit may be seized and hereafter manufacturers must apply for supplies to the Fuel Administrator, according to notice given by Mr. H. A. Harrington, Fuel Administrator for the Province of Ontario.

Mr. Harrington assured the press last night that there was no need for a panic, either so far as industrial companies or householders are [illegible] the need however, for conservation of fuel supplies, in view of the situation in the mining districts of the United States.

"The bituminous coal consumption in Ontario is approximately 100,000 tons per week," said Mr. Harrington. "The supplies in the hands of the consumers, together with the amount I have under control, will last not more than ten days. That is speaking generally. There are certain industries that have sufficient coal to carry on until March 31st, and others that have not enough coal to last them until the day after tomorrow."

"What are you going to do, take from those who have coal and give it to those who have none?"

"No, we hope that by the end of the ten days we will be able to get more coal from the United States. In the meantime, we will be able to supply the men who are short.

"While I will not under any consideration use measures that will tend to interfere with their work, if it comes to a matter of domestic safety, it will be absolutely necessary to take over all possible coal. I am not dealing with tomorrow merely; I am looking ahead as far as January 1st.

Mr. Harrington said the hospitals public utilities and institutions of that character would be taken care of first.

"Will the industries of the Province be affected?"

"There is very little danger of interference with industry locally," replied the Administrator.

It is learned from Washington and Pittsburg advices that the miners are not expected to return to work for some time, and that there is a possibility that mining operations may not be resumed until New Year. The trouble has not affcted the anthracite miners as yet, but they are in sympathy with the bituminous coal miners and it is not thought improbable by those in close touch with the situation that the hard coal miners may be drawn into the conflict.

Investigation among some of the big industrial concerns locally last night revealed the fact that they are generally speaking, in fair shape. Some of them have large quantities of bituminous coal, while others depend largely on electrical energy, and one or two others are using fuel oil. The Allis-Chalmers Company runs entirely on electric power, although bituminous coal is consumed for heating purposes.

DEPUTY POSTMASTER JOHN CORKERY TO SUCCEED LATE POSTMASTER EDGAR

Under New Civil Service Rules Promotion Goes to Oldest Employe in Point of Service—Mr. Corkery's Advancement Certain to Please Patrons and Employes of Office

Under the new Civil Service rules, which are designed to recognize and reward merit in the public service, Mr. John Corkery, assistant postmaster, will succeed his late chief, Postmaster Edgar, who died yesterday. The usual scramble for the position, the buttonholing that invariably figured in such appointments, will not be apparent in this case. The same principle will apply to this branch of the public service as that which prevails in private business, and a civil servant now has an additional inducement to make good.

Mr. Corkery has been thirty years in the employ of the Government as a postal worker in Peterborough. He began at the lowest rung of the ladder, and worked up by degrees to the second best position in the office, every year of hard work and efficient service making another stepping-stone for advancement. During the absence of the late Mr. Edgar through illness Mr. Corkery has discharged the duties of postmaster and is perfectly familiar with every detail of the work.

There is no question as to Mr. Corkery's efficiency. There is not the slightest doubt as to his being entitled to the promotion, according to the rules of seniority. It is equally clear that his promotion will give universal satisfaction not only to the patrons but to the employes of the office. Mr. Corkery has the goodwill of every one with whom he has been associated during the three decades of his public service.

Mr. Corkery has been on duty under three chiefs—Postmasters Rogers, A. H. Stratton and James Edgar. Reward for the faithful performance has come to him slowly, but has reached him at last.

When Mr. Corkery becomes postmaster his present position of deputy will go to Mr. Charles Lacheur, another promotion that will be as deserving as it is sure to be popular among the public, who have always found Mr. Lacheur a courteous and obliging official.

When there occurred a vacancy in the Toronto post office about a year ago through the death of the postmaster, soon after the revision of the Civil Service rules, the appointment went automatically to the deputy who was the oldest in point of service.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1919

THE LATE JAMES EDGAR.

QUIET PERSISTENCE very often scores. It is not necessary for a man to have a brass band accompaniment to his every act in order to achieve success. The quiet life of the late James Edgar, postmaster of this city, demonstrates this. During his wtenty years' residence in Peterborough he made many friends, first as a business man, then as a member of the City Council and later in the important Federal position which he held at the time of his death. Unassuming in his disposition he may have been, but his energy was unwearied while health was given to him, and he was noted for his courteous dealings with the public in all his relations. Among those who knew him best, and these included his staff of assistants at the post office, he was held in the highest regard.

ONE SPECIFIC REASON.

"ROB ROY," a well-known writer on agricultural topics, in the latest issue of the Toronto Sunday World, has an article in which he refers to the much mooted question as to why so many young people leave the farm for city life. He makes one reason perfectly plain. The farmers themselves, by decrying their own vocation, are responsible to a great extent for these conditions. Every oratorical spellbinder, the politician who is seeking the farmer's vote, holding forth in the country school house [illegible] hall, [illegible] lamity from the rostrum, and the poison of his false teachings never fails of effect. Such speakers—among them are many farmers themselves—picture a rural life of long and arduous hours of toil, of harsh living conditions and small profits. The city is played against the country to the disadvantage of the latter. Who, then, need wonder if the young men and women who listen to such Homerics, come to the conclusion that country life has been marked with the branded curse of Cain and decide to abandon it on the first opportunity?

"Rob Roy," both as a writer and a public speaker, has always taken the exactly opposite course. He is a living demonstration of the fact that it is possible for a man to be a farmer and in love with his calling. He is not deaf to the music of the spheres, not blind to the daily miracle of the birth of a new dawn, not insensible to the independance, to the freedom from irritating restraint, that are among the privileges of rural life. The long winter evenings in the ingle-nook with a well-stocked library at his elbow, appeals to him because he can thus spend many a pleasant hour in communion with the brightest minds the world has ever known. Happy is the man, indeed, who has found his life work. Contentment may be better than wealth, as the sages say, but co-existence of the mental and material conditions is not impossible.

"Rob Roy," in the article in question, proves this when he produces figures and names to show the profits that have been cleared up by farmers in his district on the alsike crop alone, some of them having made as high as $2,000 on a ten-acre field. This fact can scarcely be used as an argument to show that the farmer is a profiteer. The price is something beyond his control. The district of which "Rob Roy" writes is peculiarly fitted for the production of such a crop. The intelligent farmer saw and accepted the opportunity The cost of living is not directly affected by his success.

The farmers of Ontario are in a position today that they have never held before. They control the legislative machinery of the Province. The prestige of the people of the rural communities is higher than it ever was in the history of the Province. Let the farmers entertain the same high appreciation of their life work as that shown by "Rob Roy," let them inspire their children with regard for their opportunities, and infinitely less will be heard of this exodus, this lure of the city.

NO CLASS LEGISLATION IN SIGHT.

(Farmers' Sun.)

"DEAR PEOPLE," said the spokesman for three young evangelists, "there are three things we want you to remember. First, the world is wrong side up. Second, the world ought to be right side up. Third, we're the chaps to put her there."

Let it be understood that Mr. Drury and his Cabinet entertain no such ideas as these young men expressed. They regard themselves merely as a body of plain business men requested by the voters of the Province to conduct the business of the whole Province, under the guidance of sound business principles.

Every man of them is a Canada first man. While a very large proportion of the new Legislative Assembly are farmers, they have no intention of legislating solely or disproportionately in the interests of agriculture. It has never entered their heads that it is any part of their function to cripple any industry or occupation that promotes the welfare of this Province or of this Dominion. They will give the farmer a square deal, but in doing so they will guard the interests of all others who contribute to the prosperity of the Commonwealth. Common sense demands that they do no less. As clearly as any, do they see that as one swallow does not make a summer, so one class of citizens does not make a province, however important that class may be. As fully as any, they realise that the interests of town and farm are not antagonistic but mutual. Prosperous cities and well-to-do countrysides are mutually helpful. The one cannot long exist or prosper without the other.

The new Government of Ontario sees all this and is determined to legislate, not in the interests of any class at the expense of any other class of citizens, but in view of the whole public good. The farmers, particularly, have far too much at stake to follow any course less enlightened. Dependent as Ontario is upon agriculture for the major portion of her prosperity, it would be the height of folly for any Legislature to fail to encourage farmers to ply their craft with all their might. This does not mean—nor does it even imply—the neglect of any other industry or the failure to promote the thousand and one other affairs that have to do with the whole life of the Province. While the new Legislature sees that the farm is the reservoir that feeds the mill race of every industry in the Province, they realise that cities and towns supply the outlet without which the farmer's product would have but little value.

There need be no fear, therefore, that the new Government will be less broad in its outlook or narrower in its sympathies than the most enlightened of its predecessors. The latch-string will be on the outside of the door of Parliament for every man who has an enterprise that he can demonstrate to plain and reasonable men to be in the interest of the people of Ontario.

ITALY RAISES THE DUTY.

A PROVISIONAL revisal of the customs tariff which will increase duties on many articles is anticipated in Italy. The British Board of Trade Journal, discussing Italian tariffs and import restrictions, says:

"Interest centres in the revision of the existing customs tariff, in connection with which a parliamentary commission has been at work since July, 1917. The need for revisal is admitted on all hands since the existing tariff was established in 1887 and is out of date both with regard to classifications of merchandise and to the duties imposed. The Italian Government has taken steps to free its hands by denouncing existing commercial treaties or renewing them only for short periods. The commission, however, is not expected to report until 1920 and in the meantime, according to one of the leading commercial newspapers, a provisional revisal is to be made by a Royal decree to be issued shortly. The statement lacks any official confirmation, but the journal in question has published what purports to be the text of the decree, and a full list of the new duties. The immediate object of the measure is said to be the necessity of preventing the Italian market from being flooded by goods from the Central Powers, favored by the cheapness resulting from the low rate of exchange. About 120 out of the 472 articles in the tariff are affected, and the increase in duty varies in general from 20 to 400 per cent. The decree would not apply to 'conventional' duties in the case of countries with whom a commercial treaty exists, nor in the case of these countries to the general list of duties [illegible] has, since the beginning of the war, raised its own tariff against Italy."

HOW WHALES BREATHE.

(Rochester Post-Express.)

An eminent naturalist says concerning the breathing of the whale: "The windpipe does not communicate with the mouth: a hole is, as it were, bored right through the back of the head. Engineers would do well to copy the action of the valve of the whale's blow-hole; a more perfect piece of structure it is impossible to imagine. Day and night, asleep or awake, the whale works its breathing apparatus in such a manner that not a drop of water ever gets down into the lungs. Again, the whale must of necessity stay a much longer period under water than seals; this alone might possibly drown it, inasmuch as the lungs cannot have access to fresh air. We find that this difficulty has been anticipated and obviated by a peculiar reservoir in the venous system, which reservoir is situated at the back of the lungs."

EMMA GOLDMAN THE NOTED ANARCHIST

Washington, Nov. 19.— Submitting a bill to Congress for the suppression of anarchy and violence, the Department of Justice has prepared a complete record of the activities and writings of Emma Goldman. Connected with the story of Emma Goldman is part of the record of Alexander Berkman, who, with Emma Goldman, has been sentenced to deportation for obstructing the draft. This dossier was given out in reply to a Senate inquiry as to what has been done to deport the pair.

The story of the life of Emma Goldman is interesting as showing how her present mental attitude was acquired, while her teachings are a startling exemplification of the mental disease which terms itself anarchy is the story of the influence of the Goldman woman over Leon Czolgosz, who assassinated President William McKinley of Buffalo on September 6, 191.

A leaflet is attached to the record entitled—"McKinley's Assassination." written from the anarchist standpoint At the top of the leaflet appears the significant question, asked by Voltairine de Cleyre:—"Which was the Martyr, McKinley or Czolgosz?". Voltairine de Cleyre was a notorious anarchist, whose works were collected and published by the "Mother Earth" publishing association, and as an inducement for subscription Emma Goldman offered copies of her own works.

She Influenced Czolgosz

Czolgolsz confessed that he had acquired his views from reading the Goldman publications.

In his confession he said he had frequented a club in Cleveland, where he had met Emma Goldman. He said she had talked about government and had said "she didn't believe in voting and didn't believe in government." He said she had also stated she believed that government was tyranny and that "she believed in anarchy." He said Emma Goldman wrote for a publication called "Free Society" which he frequently read, and that he had never seen her before meeting her in Cleveland.

In this same publication Emma Goldman, wrote eulogistically of Gaetano Bresci, the anarchist who assassinated the King of Italy.

Sympathies With Assassin

On October 6, 1901, Emma Goldman wrote an article in Free Socitey entitled "The Tragedy at Buffalo." In this article she claimed to justify the act of Czolgosz and closed with this remark:

"And my heart goes out to you in deep sympathy and to all those victims of inequality and the man who will die the forerunners of a better, nobler and grander life."

According to the record Emma Goldman was born of Jewish parentage in Popolan, county of Shaval, State of Kovno, Russia, June 16, 1870. She was twenty-four years of age when she arrived in America, where her father had already become a resident, and became a tailoress in Rochester, N. Y.

She was married to Jacob Kersner, although it was said the man who performed the ceremony had no right to perform it. Later she was divorced from him. Kersner had been naturalized, which gave Emma Goldman a claim to citizenship, but it was later proved that Kersner had obtained his citizenship by fraud, and he was denaturalized, Emma Goldman losing her own claim to citizenship accordingly.

Preacher of Anarchy

For many years Emma Goldman has been preaching and writing "Anarchy," "Direct Action," "Violence" and "Syndicalism."

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Bac[illegible]che is sign you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

PREMIER DRURY CALLS ATTENTION TO CHANGED CONDITIONS IN PUBLIC LIFE.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—"I believe the spirit of self-sacrifice displayed during the war has come to the front in our public life, and I believe that we are going to have a clean up," said E. C. Drury, premier of Ontario, in the course of an address to the Political Economy Club of Toronto University at the Carls-Rite Hotel last night. Mr. Drury was announced to speak on economic problems, but pressure of public work had prevented him from properly preparing anything and he gave an impromptu talk on issues connected with the U. F. O. movement and politics in general.

Mr. Drury maintained that a higher standard had already been reached in the public life of Ontario, and in this connection instanced an entirely new state of affairs at Parliament buildings. "When previous governments have changed," he said, [illegible] office hunters. Today these corridors are emptier than during the last days of the old government. METHODISTS RAISE PAY OF MINISTERS

COUNTRYWIDE RESPONSE TO HIGH COST OF LIVING PROBLEM.

New York, Nov. 18.—A general increase in the salaries of Methodist ministers throughout the country, in some instances 100 per cent., was announced by the Centenary Conservation Committee of the Methodist Episcopal Church at 111 Fifth avenue. Laymen generally are taking the initiative in raising ministerial pay and a minimum living salary is to be provided. The Detroit conference went on record as declaring that 85 per cent. of the pastors at prevailing salaries cannot even educate their children. A minimum of $1200 a year with a parsonage was settled upon in the Detroit district.

The Des Moines, Iowa, and Nebraska conferences have adopted a $1500 minimum. The Southern Illinois conference has fixed upon $1300 and the South Dakota conference $1,400. In every case parsonages also are to be provide. In 1907 the average salary of Methodist ministers was only $826. In 1918 it was $1,111.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is aching; if what you eat sours and forms acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous [illegible] and sour bile, before eating more food.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate, which is inexpensive and almost tasteless.

Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast.

Man of Seventy-five Announces Himself Candidate for Mayor.

Salem, Mass., Nov. 18. — John F. Hurley, former mayor, famous as "Silk Hat" Hurley, observed his seventy-fifth birthday by announcing he had taken out papers for nomination to the mayoralty. This is the thirteenth time he has run for the office. He served five terms as mayor out of the twelve times he has been a candidate.

Mr. Hurley won his soubriquet of "Silk Hat" because of his invariable custom of wearing a high hat. He has been a prominent figure in parades of veteran firemen, bowing and waving the hat in salutation.

Sculptured Portrait of the Prince.

A beautiful bas relief of the Prince of Wales has just been executed by the sculptor, E. L. Laur, which is one of the most artistic and pleasing portraits of the young prince. Indeed, it was done from the prince's favorite portrait, sent over from Buckingham Palace, and shows the prince in the outfit he so much enjoyed wearing, the rough khaki shirt of the soldier. This sculptured portrait will later be exhibited at the National Academy, New York. Some 800 composite copies are to be made for Canada, in antique and French bronze shade, and ten copies in solid bronze! Below the portrait are the dates of his birth and of the year of his visit to his country, 1894-1919, and these are surmounted by the Prince of Wales' feathers. The portrait is really a work of art, and the whole is a dignified tribute to the royal visitor.

Curry, Not Currie.

That the correct spelling of the name of Canada's commander-in-chief is "Curry," although Sir Arthur has been called "Currie" since the outbreak of the war, has just come to light. On September 16, when Middlesex county presented Sir Arthur and Lady Curry with a $500 chest of silver, it was noted that the spelling was changed in a manner at first ascribed to an engraver's error. Later the Warden of Middlesex, John Curry, brother of the general, announced that Canadians at large have been in error during the war and that the Middlesex silverware is accurately designated.

Electric Insoles.

To keep the feet of outdoor workers warm, electrically wired insoles have been patented, which can be placed in any shoes into which sockets for connecting with sources of electric current have been installed.

THE MERCHANTS' COLUMN

Edited by
MANSFIELD F. HOUSE
(Copyright.)

In this column, which appears every Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, will appear news and short articles of special interest to merchants, their salespeople and business men and women in general.

"THE BEST CHRISTMAS AD WE EVER USED"

"The enormous day's business produced by a single piece of our copy last year was due to the attraction it had for women folks," states O. A. Engel, advertising manager of the Hub, one of the largest men's stores in Chicago.

"This may appear to be a strange admission, when it is considered that we cater exclusively to men, but it's the truth [illegible] we have always believed that a great part of the high-priced men's-wear gifts purchased at Christmas were bought for women, and the advertisement in question proved our theory.

"The copy wasn't large, as such things go, measuring about 175 lines by three columns. Neither was it crowded with type. Line sketches of a cane, a tie and some gloves appeared at the upper left-hand corner, with one or two Christmas decorations at the top and bottom. In fact it had just enough 'trimmings' to suggest the Christmas spirit.

"The idea of bringing women in to inspect our goods was apparent from the headline—'Abundant in selection—Exquisite in quality and style—This holiday display of gratifying gifts for men.'

"Below was listed a variety of items, each with its name in large type, indented into the paragraph which carried the prices in blackface type. Women always like variety and, as they are famous for delays in buying gifts, we figured that they would be glad to see a list of suggestions like these some ten days before Christmas.

"Undoubtedly this advertisement sold to many men—because we are primarily a man's store—but frankly having watched the crowds the day after the ad appeared, I think the women were the ones who sent the scales way over the top of any previous record."

"FREE JAZZ" MADE FRIENDS FOR STORE

The Yonkers Talking Machine Company, Yonkers, N. Y., has found a clever method of making friends and selling records. The scheme is simplicity itself.

All during the balmy summer months, beginning at 7.30, a machine was placed so near the door fronting on the street that the trains of music could be heard outside the moment the record began to revolve. And all of the latest jazz melodies were sent skylarking into the night.

Then things began to happen.

South Broadway is popular at this hour with young folks, and "block parties" are quite the order of the night. The cop on the beat has a big heart. He didn't have it in him to interfere, so the girls and boys tried out a few steps right there on the sidewalk in front of the talking machine company's store. In fact, it merried up the old street.

Each fair evening, from 7.30 to 10, the dance music bubbled from the open door, the lights blazed and the young people danced. It was such a success, that even if they wanted to trip the light fantastic inside, room was made for them.

In two weeks, the idea made this store more popular than all the other establishments on South Broadway. A splendid trade was built up and the dance records sold like the proverbial hot cakes.

TAKING "BLUE" OUT OF "BLUE" MONDAY

At different times through the year the Weigel Furniture and Carpet Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., puts on sales that increased traffic in the store on Monday—the day of the week which things are usually dull.

People are not inclined to visit a furniture store unless they have something of size in mind. They even buy their furniture polish of the hardware or drug store merchant. For that reason Weigel's has inaugurated some sales that give hundreds of persons, mostly women, an excuse to visit the store. These are the Monday specials.

One advertisement was of a card table, a timely offering [illegible]. When the Liberty Bond drives were on a sale of safety boxes were staged; with such success that a repeat order had to be placed—for the calls continued to come in long after the clean-up. One other Monday saw a combination stool and stepladder offered. Clothes hampers were the subject of another. The price is nominal and right; and the article is such as will be needed in any home.

When there is to be a special advertised in the Sunday paper the windows are piled high with the goods—all of the stock as a rule, and just the one item. No charges are made, no orders wrapped, no telephone orders filled or deliveries made. Trouble starts at eight, the hour of the opening. Men take the items to their offices, employes rush over at noon and many women hustle down town earlier than ever. They all talk about it—and that probably is the source of the greatest benefit. A. L. Guile, advertising manager of the firm, said that noon as a rule sees the windows clean with more calls being made.

But price is not the only argument the store offers in its advertising, for last summer the store held one of its heaviest rug sales—and not a price was quoted in the advertisements.

MAKING THE CIRCULAR FIT THE PROSPECT

There are many ways of using literature furnished to merchants by manufacturers. One way is to fill each statement envelope with as many as will go for the two cents postage. In that case Miss Singlelife will get a circular showing beautiful illustrations of baby carriages, and the Rev. Prim will get a folder on card tables, or Mrs. Scrimp will open a booklet showing expensive period furniture such as she sees in the movies but can never get on John's measly salary. Obviously that is not the most advantageous way.

Another way, used by a furniture man in Roswell, N. M., is this: When the bookkeeper finishes addressing and inclosing the monthly statements she turns them over to the merchant. While she has been doing the statements he has been rounding up the assortment of imprinted dealer literature that he has on hand. There's one lot on sweepers, one on ranges, one on kitchen cabinets and one on talking machines. Besides these, he has a quantity of slips showing a sale of cheap rugs. He takes down five shoe cartons. One he marks "Sweepers," another "Ranges," and so on to include one for each kind of circular he has.

Then this merchant picks up the envelopes and begins to note the names. "Mrs. Henry Franham," he says, "she ought to be interested in a sweeper. Mrs. Herbert Russ; this sale of rugs ought to interest her. George M. Quinn; talking machine. R. W. McMullen; ranges." And he throws each envelope into the proper box. Then he turns over the lot to the bookkeeper, who incloses the proper folders. In this way the misfits are held to a minimum. Takes more time—but it is more like real salesmanship, considers the merchant.

PLUCKY GIRL IN WAR ZONE.

Was Under Shell Fire in Dugout for a Fortnight.

One of the most remarkable stories of the war, describing the adventures of a girl who succeeded in spending nearly three months in the war zone disguised as a sapper in the Royal Engineers, is related in a book entitled "Sapper Dorothy Lawrence."

Miss Lawrence recounts how, in 1915, after unsuccessfully attempting to obtain permission to visit the front as a war correspondent, she went to Paris and, with the assistance of several soldiers and a staff captain, managed to reach the firing zone, after obtaining the uniform of a sapper.

At Albert she attached herself to a unit of the R.E.'s entrenched within 300 yards of the firing line. Hidden most of the time in a dugout, her presence was not noticed by the officers, and she managed to escape detection for a fortnight.

She was unable, however, to get on the ration strength, and illness, caused by lack of food, forced her to confide in a sergeant. The sergeant disapproved of the escapade and gave her away.

She was arrested and tried in four or five parts of France. In all, she was taken before six generals, including ultimately Sir Charles Monro and Lord French, and afterwards placed in a convent for a fortnight before being sent back to England.

"My adventure served a useful purpose," Miss Lawrence said, "for it opened the eyes of the authorities to the faulty system of intelligence that prevailed at that time, I demonstrated that there was little to prevent a German spy reaching the front line, and several of the officers were kind enough to thank me afterwards for what I had done.

"I did not find any experience very terrifying, although at Albert the trenches were bombarded by the Germans every night."

Miss Lawrence added that everybody treated her "absolutely splendidly," especially the private soldiers, for whom she had formed the greatest admiration.

Lure of the Country.

There are already 342 village clubs established in England, and the object of the Village Clubs' Association, the organization of which is nearing [illegible] tent throughout the country. In this object the Federation of Women's Institutes and the Soldiers' Club Association, the Workingmen's Club and Institute Union, the County Councils Association, and other bodies are co-operating.

The association regard the following points as fundamental in drawing up the constitution of any village club:

It should be the centre of all social activities, and of all forms of physical and mental recreations.

It should be self-supporting and free from the element of patronage.

All inhabitants of the village, without distinction of class or opinion, and, when practicable, of both sexes, should be eligible for membership.

The entire control should be vested in a committee elected either by (a) the members, or (b) the members and all the residents of the parish who would be eligible for membership residing within a radius of three miles.

Tungsten Ores.

Australia is second in importance among British territories producing tungsten ores. In Queensland many of the principal mines have quite recently been acquired by one of the largest of the concerns which have established tungsten-reduction plants in Great Britain since the war, and the event appears to promise a new era of progress for this branch of mining in New South Wales and Victoria, while important quantities of scheelite, another ore of tungsten, are obtained in New Zealand and in Tasmania.

Rhodes Scholarships.

It is interesting to learn of the announcement made at Oxford (England) by the trustees of the Rhodes scholarships, that those scholarships which were formerly awarded to Germans have been redistributed to the Transvaal, Orange Free State, Alberta and Saskatchewan, Kimberley and Port Elizabeth.

WILL TAKE VOTE ON EXEMPTION SCHEME

TORONTO COUNCIL FAVOR TAX RELIEF FOR HOMES OF WAGE EARNERS.

Toronto, Nov. 18.—The greater part of the time of the City Council at yesterday's session was taken up in a lively discussion on the question of granting partial exemption from taxation of dwellings of less than $4,000 assessed value. Commissioners Bradshaw and Forman objected to the proposed changes in the form provided under the amendments to the Assessment Act, and suggested that the relief should apply only to the dwellings occupied by the owners. The discussion dragged along pro and con for several hours, as to whether or not the people should be permitted to vote on the matter at the forthcoming elections. Then Ald. Ramden moved an amendment in accordance with the Commissioners' suggestion, that legislation be sought to permit of partial exemption to bona-fide owners of the dwellings occupied where the assessed value of the building, exclusive of the land, did not exceed $4,000 assessed value.

The contention of the opponents of the proposition was that it was class legislation, and would result in imposing additional burdens on the manufacturers, merchants and wealthy classes, and would drive industries from the city. The supporters on the other hand argued that it would afford some measure of relief to the working classes and the poorer people. Also that it would stimulate building of smaller homes, of which there is a great scarcity in the city. Most of the addresses were simply repititions of these arguments. A small deputation waited on the Council at the commencement of business to urge that the Controllers that the people be given an opportunity of voting on the matter. Several petitions in support of the proposition were presented.

Shortly after midnight Ald. Ramsden's motion limiting exemptions to bona-fide occupants of their own homes, carried by a vote of 16 to 9, which was changed 16 to 10 in Council. The matter will now go to a vote of the people at the forthcoming elections.

PASSENGERS ON BATTLE SHIPS

CECIL RHODES STARTLES BRITISH ADMIRALTY, WITH NOVEL INNOVATION

London, Nov. 18.—Trade, which, according to the late Mr. Cecil Rhodes, follows the flag, many soon come to be sung of as accompanying it. Mr. Walter Long, as First Lord of the British Admiralty, has given his personal assent to a proposal which to Whitehall must seem nothing short of revolutionary—a proposal that every British battleship which sails abroad shall carry British commercial travellers and other representatives of business firms. All that remains—and to the cheeriest of optimists it must seem a big all—is for Mr. Long to convert the other members of the Board of Admiralty to his own way of thinking.

The suggestion originated with Sir Hamar Greenwood, and it was he who, at the quarterly meeting of the Association of British Chambers of Commerce, announced the First Lord's agreement. The Overseas Department, he observed, fully appreciated the difficulties which were being encountered in securing passages overseas for commercial travellers and business representatives.

An executive committee of leading citizens has been chosen.

W. C. T. U. OF SARNIA SET FACES AGAINST NEW SOCIETY FAD

Sarnia, Nov. 19.—Members of the W.C.T.U. announce that in all likelihood a campaign would shortly be inaugurated to wage war on tobacco and the selling of cigarettes to the fair sex, and coupled with this statement, officers of the Liberty League stated that they would come out into the open with renewed energy and battle the W.C.T.U. and its followers.

Women members of the W.C.T.U. claim that in Western Ontario smoking among women is increasing to an alarming extent, and that at the next meeting of the association it is likely a petition will be prepared to send to Ottawa asking that a law be passed to prohibit the selling of "smokes" to the fair sex.

The Liberty League members here are calling a general meeting, and the officers state that everything possible will be accomplished to frustrate the W.C.T.U. organization in its efforts to reform Ontario.

DOWNEYVILLE RESIDENTS OPEN THEIR SPLENDID NEW PARISH HALL

Addresses by Bishop O'Brien and Other Notables, Lay and Clerical Mark Occasion—Parish Now Complete in Every Equipment.

An event of general interest to the citizens of Downeyville took place last evening in the opening of the Parish Hall. A beautiful structure with a large seating capacity, his hall is most artistically designed as regard architecture and inside decorations. The centre of the social life of the community, the citizens of Downeyville and vicinty have reason to be justly proud of their new hall.

It was a large and enthusiastic crowd that assembled there last night, among which were visitors from Lindsay, Omemee, Ennismore, Toronto and other places, and considerable anticipation was evenced at the commencement, which subsided into laughter, interested attention, and applause as the evening wore on. The visiting clergy, all of whom expressed their sentiments of pleasure in appropriate addresses, were: His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Rev. P. J. McGuire, Fr Phelan, Fr. Guiry, Fr. Costello, of Peterborough; Rt. Rev. Monsgr. Casey, Lindsay; Fr. Cote, Lakefield, and Fr. McAuley, Ennismore. Others present were: Mr. George E. Putnen, superintendent of institutes; Senator McHugh, Lindsay; Mr. F. G. Sandy, M.P.P., South Victoria; Reeve Wilson, Emily; L. V. O'Connor, Lindsay; Messrs. Wilson and Begly, of Lindsay Post; Alderman O'Rilley and Mr. O'Laughlin, of Lindsay.

Hon. Manning Doherty, new minister of agriculture, regretted very much that he was unable to be present on the occasion owing to unforeseen occurrences and sent Mr Geo. E. Putnen [illegible] to convey his expression of good will to the citizens of Downeyville.

His Lordship Bishop O'Brien addressed the gathering in his usual pleasing manner, touching on subjects of general interest. After commenting on the beauty of the new hall, His Lordship addressed the rural parishioners in particular, speaking of the immense value of their work at the present time and exhorting them to "carry on."

Rev. P. J. McGuire, chairman of the evening, opened the program by an address which did justice to his reputation as a clever humorist and speaker of no small ability.

Mr George E. Putnen addressed the audience briefly, conveying the message of the minster of agriculture and expressing his own well wishes.

The Downeyville orchestra was present on the occasion and rendered an excellent program, as were the Downeyville choir, ably assisted by Mr. Allin, and accompanied by Miss Allin, of Lindsay, who contributed largely to the entertainment of the evening by their excellent rendering of solos.

Little Miss Regina Coctello delighted the gathering with her songs recitations and violin recitals. His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, Mr. Sandy, M. P. P. and Rev. P. J. McGuire, were the recipients of beautiful bouquets as an expression of the pleasure of the citizens of Ennismore at their presence on this occasion. Rev. Father Galvin, parish priest, closed the evening in an address of marked eloquence, thanking the visiting clergy and all those who by their presence had shown a spirit of good fellowship and co-operation which was very gratifying.

Last, but not least, by any means was the excellent supper provided by Rev. Father Galvin, a demonstration of unstinted hospitality, with no regard for high cost of living. There was turkey, duck and good things galore. This delightful function closed with the singing of "God Save the King."

SEIZED WINE STOCK OF COUNTRY CLUB

SUPPLY WAS BEING SHIPPED THROUGH ONTARIO TO POINT IN QUEBEC

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Thirty-five cases of champagne and sauterne, consigned to the Country Club, an exclusive institution on the Aylmer road, Quebec, were seized by License Inspector J. C. Enright at the Central Station, Ottawa, on Saturday last. On instructions today, the inspector ascertained from Miss Lynch, who was in charge at the club, that the liquor had been ordered from the Boivin-Wilson Company of Montreal, but it had been expected the shipment would have been made via Dominion Express through the Province of Quebec, instead of via Canadian Express to Ottawa, as had occurred.

Mr. Enright returned the liquor to the Express Company this afternoon, and it was immediately seized again by Inspector Thomas McLaughlin of the Ottawa Police Force under the order in Council of February 24, 1919, which provides that no liquor shall be transported in a prohibition Province.

It having been claimed that liquor could be transported through Quebec, Inland Revenue Inspector Laflamme of Hull communicated with Quebec to-day and ascertained that this was not the case, especially as the county of Hull, in which the club is located, is under local option.

An action will be taken in the Police Court to-morrow against the Canadian Express Company under the Dominion order in Council.

CELEBRATED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

MR AND MRS. SAMUEL EDWARDS ENTERTAIN ON FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Edwards, of this city, surrounded by all their children, five of their fifteen grandchildren and many relatives and friends, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

After a dainty luncheon had been served Mr. Crawford read the following address:

1869-1919.
Peterborough, Ont.,
Nov. 18th, 1919.
Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Edwards.

Dear Father and Mother,—Fifty eventful though happy years have passed away since you were wedded—the earlier years fraught with anxiety toil, but ever brightened by mutual love that cheered and gladened your home through each successive year.

Your children remember that affection and pride—the parental care and loving guidance—that ever sought to keep their childish footsteps in the path of virtue and to instruct in things that should mould their characters aright and make them children worthy of their parents and respected in the community. Your sons and daughters greet you on this happy occasion, honoring the grey hair that testify to a golden old age, claiming the reverence worthily due. They felicitate you on the arrival of a jubilee year of your wedded life. Long may the golden chain remain unsevered that binds you together.

Your grandchildren add their congratulations. To them you have ever been the kind and thoughtful, the generous and sympathetic older father and mother. They earnestly pray that you may long be spared to welcome at your door your sons and daughters' sons and daughters.

Together, we ask you to accept these small gifts as an earnest token of our appreciation and love. May they cheer and add to the comfort of your declining years and assure you of our continued honor and affection. We wish you many years of life untouched by sorrow and replete with joy and comfort.

Your Children and Grandchildren.

Mrs. Edwards was then presented with a beautiful cameo brooch set with pearls and Mr Edwards with a gold-headed cane and a gold watch chain. To the address and presentation Mr. Edwards made a suitable and graceful reply. The bride and groom of fifty years ago were at home to their friends during the afternoon and evening and received the hearty congratulations of all and many beautiful gifts and bouquets of flowers.

Born in Warsaw.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Edwards were born in Warsaw, Mrs. Edwards' maiden name being Mary Ann Grand. From the time of their wedding in 1869 until seventeen years ago when they removed to Peterborough to reside, they lived in the same house in Dummer. A strange coincidence of the celebration is the fact that Mr. Edwards' father and mother celebrated a similar event twenty seven years ago in the same house.

Presented With Cheque.

In remembrance of the happy occasion they celebrated yesterday Mr and Mrs. Edwards presented each of his daughters, Mrs George Garbutt, Lakefield; Mrs. A. C. Hawthorne, Mrs. William Crawford and Mrs. Taylor, of Medicine, with a cheque.

LOWER PRCIES TODAY ON WALL STREET

LOSSES IN STOCKS RANGED FROM FIVE TO THIRTY-THREE POINTS

(Cnaadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 19.—Wall street 1:30 p.m.—Still lower prices attended further outpourings at midday, losses in stocks recently favored by bull pools ranging from five to thirty-three points.

Temporary rallies of two to ten points followed decision of the Federal Reserve Bank not to increase present re-discount rates. Sterling broke to four nought three and one one-eigth to the pound, and German marks to two decimal twelve cents.

HON. W. L. M. KING BACK

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Hon. W. J. Mackenzie King, Liberal Leader, has returned to the Capital from Washington, where he has been attending the World's Labor Congress since the close of Parliament. Mr. King expects to remain in the Capital for the next few weeks.

Fred Hambly, Chairman of the Toronto Board of Education said that more than $2,000,000 would be required by the board next year.

WOULD RATHER RIVALS WON OUT

HAMILTON TIGERS SCORE TEAMS THAT DECLINE BATTLING TO DECISION.

Hamilton, Nov. 19. — Hamilton Rugby fans were pulling hard this fall for McGill to win the Intercollegiate union because Frank Shaughnessy, who managed the Hamilton baseball club in the Michigan-Ontario League last summer, was piloting the Montreal students. And when Tigers were unable to win the Big Four, local enthusiasts were tickled that Montreal won out.

But it's dollars to doughnuts that neither McGill nor Montreal will have the sympathy of Hamiltonians again. Both clubs have refused to take part in the Canadian finals, and no person wants to see a team win that has no intention of battling to a decision. McGill has offended more than once.

Hamilton and Toronto are such bitter rivals in every line of sport that neither city likes the other to win, but we'd rather see Toronto teams win than those that will not play off for the Dominion championship. Argos and Varsity would have done that gladly.

BRINTON CARPET WON TWO FROM THE CLERKS

Last night in a five-pin league game the Briton Carpets won two from the Clerks out of three games. The Clerks lost the second game by one pin and came back strong and won the last game. FEARS FOR THE LIVES OF FIELD MARSHALS

LUDENDORFF AND HINDENBURG GUARDED NIGHT AND DAY AGAINST ATTACK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

Berlin, Nov. 19.—The German Government fears for the lives of Field Marshal Hindenburg and Ludendorff, who are testifying in regard to responsibility for the recent war. They are surrounded by armed guards and escorts night and day, and guns and rifles bristle from all nearby windows.

The former Kaiser in his visits to the capital was never guarded so thoroughly as these two war lords are today.

CANADIAN PLANT ASKS EMBARGO ON EXPORT OF SCREENINGS TO U. S.

Contends That Pool Exists to Control Eighty or Ninety Percent of all Screenings

Toronto, Nov. 19.—The Board of Commerce yesterday dealt with the application of the Canada Feed Co. of Fort William, asking for a temporary embargo on "screenings" to permit of this firm being able to run its big plant. Before adjournment Judge Robson pointed out that it was his opinion that the terminal Elevator interests might easily hand over sufficient raw material at a proper price to the applicants. The case was continued yesterday afternoon.

Statement From C.M.A.

When the session opened the Canadian Manufacturers' Association (incorporated), made the following submissions to the Board of Commerce:

"The Canadian Feed Manufacturing Co., Fort William, with a capitalisation of some $300,000, was promoted for the purpose of manufacturing stock food out of the screenings of Canadian grain cleaned at the Lake Head Terminal Elevators. This industry is not protected in any way.

"Under the law, screenings cannot be shipped in their manufactured state from point to point in any province, nor from one part of Canada to another, but can only be exported. But when ground, and germination killed, they can be manufactured into stock food and supplied as feed for Canadian stock.

Pool or Combine.

"Owing to a pool or combine operated by the Terminal Elevator Interests, all screenings are exported to Minneapolis, and the Canadian Feed Manufacturing Co. cannot get screenings to keep going. This industry is being starved for raw material, while thousands of tons of Canadian screenings are being exported to build up the stock food industry in the United States.

"The fact that a pool exists was disclosed by the Government's (Price-Waterhouse audit), the report of which was laid on the table of the House of Commons last session. The pool was known as the Grain Products Co., Fort William, and the Terminal Elevators controlling 80 to 90 per cent. of all screenings, were, it is believed, the shareholders.

"Each terminal company sold screenings to the pool at an agreed-on price, and the company exported the screenings to the United States. They declined to make a price to the Canadian feed manufacturers at all.

"When the audit disclosed that the pool existed, it was dissolved and a new pool formed across the line in Minneapolis under the name of the Superior Feed Co. The officers and shareholders of this company are, it is understood, the heads of the same Canadian Terminal Elevators.

"All screenings are sold and exported to this concern, and the Canadian Feed Manufacturing Co. is discriminated against and cannot get supplies to keep it running, thus enhancing the price and preventing or lessening competition in, or substantially controlling manufacture and sale in stock feed in this country, contrary to the provisions of the Combines and Fair Prices Act, 1919.

"Canadian feed manufacturers and farming interests in the East complained to the Board of Commerce that the dearth of stock food was causing decrease in dairy production and increase in price of products. At a recent sitting of the Board of Commerce at Winnipeg to consider the matter of an embargo against the export of screenings, a joint conference of all interests concerned was proposed. The terminal interests then represented that only 'refuse screenings' were exported. These are the most worthless class, dirt and weed seeds cleaned from the better class of screenings.

"The representation that only refuse is exported is incorrect, as is disclosed by the official inspection of cargoes, showing that better grades, known as elevator screenings and scalpings, were exported. It is denied that only 'refuse' screenings are exported.

Urges Embargo.

"The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, as representing the Canadian Feed Manufacturing Co., urge that an embargo against the export of the stock screenings to the United States be imposed and respectfully request your honorable board to take such action as may appear necessary to investigate the pool revealed by the Price-Waterhouse audit and to protect an important Canadian industry."

Judge Robson asked Mr. McDonald if he had compiled the statement. Mr. McDonald acknowledged this and the chief commissioner said it was "well put."

The Evidence.

C. R. Martin a grain broker of Minneapolis, who deals in Canadian screenings, said he had 4,500 tons of screenings on hand at various points.

Judge Robson wondered if the American market should be open to Canadian shippers for their surplus and called on the head of the Canadian Feed Co. for his opinion.

Nature of Business.

Geo. G. Reigger, vice-president of the Candaian Feed Manufacturing Co., Ltd., of Fort William and Minneapolis, said that across the line he was broken on grains and screenings. He wished to place before the board the nature of the business and the capacity of his plant. The C. F. M. Co. made a well balanced feed for stock. The full capacity was seven tons per hour. That meant an output of manufactured feed. This would mean that the plant would use four tons of screenings per hour in making this concentrated feed. There would be three tons of other materials. The cost of the plant was $387,000. For a period this summer he was not directly connected with the company owing to a disagreement. This had been smoothed out. There were six or seven other plants in Canada making concentrates. The output of the plant for this year, September, 1918, until the end of May, 1919, was about four hundred cars of feed, 25 tons to the car. For over a month the plant had been idle owing to the inability to secure screenings.

"Our salesmen say there is a big demand for our product, which the mill cannot supply."

"The ten thousand tons made were sold principally in the Maritime Provinces," added Mr. Reigger. "Refuse screenings are used in the manufacture of the feed."

A Shortage.

To Mr. Whitta Mr. Reigger replied that there is a vital shortage of feed in Canada and of screenings in the United States, and gave evidence in support of this, and also in support of the claim that his firm's operations are starved by the existence of a combine.

MENTAL WORK NEEDS A STOMACH

Great Mistake to Imagine You Can Work Better and Faster in the Starvation Plan. Eat What You Like But Follow With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Mental work uses up energy fast. And energy comes from food. To eat little or nothing in order to do more work is a fallacy that has created an army of dyspeptics. A better plan is to eat the regular portions of food such as make up the average meal and follow each meal with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

You will then get a double benefit, energy from food and sociability with meals, for as a rule, the light eater, or those who skip meals, get into a bad habit, a rut, of hermit like isolation. Do not be afraid of gassiness, sour stomach, heartburn, heavy feeling or coated tongue after meals. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets arouse the stomach to secrete the juices necessary to relieve these troubles that so frequently distress the mental worker. They contain harmless ingredients which act with an alkaline effect, so you may eat the rich things of the banquet or the savory sausage for breakfast with utmost freedom.

Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store. Eat freely of what you like and you will do more and better work than on a skimpy diet. Try this plan.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

ADVISES SENATORS

Make a Show Down.

The conference between the two leaders brought no final decision as to the language of a compromise ratification, but it did develop an agreement that the Democrats would have the opportunity for which they have fought to secure a show-down vote on the question of unreserved ratification. This vote, Mr. Lodge said, would be permitted before the roll call on the committee resolution. Another result of the conference was submission to Mr. Lodge last night of a group of proposed compromise reservations with a view to making enough modification in committee program already approved by the Senate majority to enable the Democrats to support the committee resolution on ratification. On this point Senator Lodge was said to be insistent, as he desired all compromise efforts to be made before the vote came on the committee measure.

Reported to Senate.

At 9 o'clock last night, after the Senate had been in continuous session for eleven hours, consideration of amendments in Committee of the Whole was completed and the treaty was formally reported to the Senate.

The question of approving the fifteen reservations adopted in committee of the Whole was then taken up, each reservation being considered separately. An effort by Senator Hitchcock to strike out the preamble requirement for acceptance by other nations was voted down 45 to 36, the Republicans opposing it solidly except for Senator McCumber of North Dakota.

The Senate without a roll call then agreed to all of the fifteen reservations, except those relating to mandatory domestic questions and the economic boycott. Separate votes were taken on these three reservations.

FASCINATING DANCES SEEN IN EXPERIENCE

AT THE GRAND THEATRE THURSDAY EVENING ONLY—DON'T MISS IT.

The latest of modern dances are shown in the Golden Cabaret scene on the Primrose Path of Pleasure in "Experience," which F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will present at the Grand Thursday evening only.

Seated at the various tables in the cabaret, dining and chatting, are such fascinating ladies as Fashion, Beauty, Excitement, Song, Frivolity, Pleasure, Slander and Pride. With their escorts they sit intent simply on dining and chatting, but as soon as the music strikes up a dance step, everything is changed, and the Golden Cabaret becomes a whirl of merry dancers, whose greatest ambition in life seems to be keep dancing all night.

One can very easily realize the impression that this scene makes upon Youth on his first visit to the cabaret, as he turns to Pleasure and says: "Pleasure, let me thank you. It's glorious! The music and the laughter; the air is sweet with the far faint odor of dying roses. Everywhere there are women's eyes that sparkle like the moonlight on a silver river. Everywhere there are white arms that beckon me. Oh, Pleasure, how wonderful you are to grant me all this!" In his fascination with the scene of revelry, Youth turns to Experience and asks him if Pleasure isn't wonderful. And Experience answers: "Wonderful indeed, in that she has no knowledge of the pain that follows ever in her footsteps."

Youth's enthusiasm, however, is not dampened, and he says to Pleasure: "I think you are the end of the rainbow, and all the treasures of the world are in your keeping. I think you are the sunshine of a cloudless day and all the flowers of the earth look up to you."

Experience has a different point of view. He says: "I think Pleasure is but the stain of last night's wine, spilled upon the tablecloth. She is but a snowflake fallen into the ocean. Pleasure, my boy, is the last crimson flood that the setting sun has left to die in a cold gray sky."

"GLORIANNA"

A REAL MUSICAL COMEDY PLAYING TO CROWDED HOUSES.

Six plays, all successful in one year is the astounding record of Catherine Chisholm Cushing, who wrote the book and lyrics for John Cort's great New York musical comedy success, "Glorianna," which opens at the Grand on Saturday, matinee and evening. Before appearing on the threatrical field as a playwright Mrs. Cushing was well known throughout the land as an authoress.

Her first play was written from one of her short stories at the suggestion of the editor of a magazine. Mrs. Cushing's mother was a writer and she was reared in an atmosphere of books and their makers. Her plays are "The Real Thing, "A Widow by Proxy," "Kitty McKay," "Jerry" and "Pollyanna.

After a play is produced she seldom sees it as she is devoted to her writing desk and is always concerned with "the play in the cradle rather than its older brother or sister."

Mrs. Cushing has furnished "Glorianna," which broke all records for attendance in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston, with a story that is entertainingly funny. Her sense of humor is that which makes the musical comedy the diversifying vehicle that it is.

The story concerns Glorianna Gray, a society girl, who is obliged by financial reverses to earn her own living as a singing and dancing teacher. Under stress of circumstances she assumes the name of a timid friend who is too bashful to claim the fortune of a supposedly dead husband, because she is unknown to his folks, thereby precipitating a situation that results in more than two hours of lively and diverting entertainment.

The sale of seats has already opened and indications point to a capacity audience as the tickets are being rapidly disposed of.

LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD IS COMING

WILL BE PRESENTED AT GRAND THEATRE DECEMBER 1 AND 2.

"Little Red Riding Hood," F. Stuart-Whyte's fourth annual English pantomine, will be the offering at the Grand for Monday and Tuesday, December 1 and 2.

Produced as it has been upon a scale of grandeur never before attempted outside of Drury Lane, "Little Red Riding Hood," promises to prove the one biggest spectacular success of Canadian theatrical history, and its coming to this city may be regarded as an unparalelled event.

The action of the piece is divided into fourteen gorgeous scenes, each on a masterpiece of lights and color, presenting a kalidoscopic panorama of Fairyland and the tales of Mother Goose.

While the thrilling story of Little Red Riding Hood forms the central theme of the plot, the other favorites of childhood days have not been overlooked, and the long cast of characters includes Little Boy Blue, Little BoPeep, Little Jack Horner, Little Tommy Tucker, Jack and Jill, Margery Daw, Peter Piper, Old Mother Hubbard and her Dog, Old King Cole a wonderful Fairy Queen, who rules over them all, and last, but not least the naughty Wolf, who nearly turns it all into a tragedy instead of a joyous comedy.

There are twenty new song successes, which have been written especially for Mr. Whyte's production among them being. "The Village Blacgsmith Rag," "Love Me Just the Same," "When I Paint Your Pretty Face," "If I Could Care For You," "In Lovers' Lane," "Songs of Yesteryear," "There's a Wild Wolf Waiting For Every Good Little Girl," "The Officers' Mess" and a timely novelty number, "On Strike."

The company includes Miss Zara Clinton, who was principal "boy" of "Aladdin," "Robinson Crusoe" and "Cinderella."; Miss Dorothy Mackay a dainty little Scotch lassie of eleven years, who plays the name part; Mr Johnny Osborne, of the London Hippodrome and "Zig-Zag," fame; Mr. Will Hallet, the famous animal impersonator from the Drury Lane, and Mr. John V. Barrett-Lennard, who is always a favorite in Mr. Whyte's productions.

The supporting company has been chosen from the foremost pantomine artists in England and the big beauty chorus is of Mr. Whyte's picking Which means living dreams of glorious girlhood, dressed in the most wonderful costume creations that the world's greatest modistes can conceive.

To miss seeing "Little Red Riding Hood" would be doing yourself a personal injustice.

"PROFITEERS" PORTRAYS WOMAN'S DEVOTION—FANNIE WARD IN APPEALING ROLE

"The Profiteers," the latest of Pathe's Extra Selected Star Photoplays, featuring that wonderful mistress of emotion, Fannie Ward, will be offered by Manager Charles Porter, as his feature attraction at the Empire Theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"The Profiteers" is a page taken almost exactly from the history of our national life—the woman in it seems but a helpless mite between two giant contending forces — the forces of ruthless ambition as opposed to the forces of right—affording an intimate view of the inner workings of a heartless food trust, and we are shown how a woman's devotion, courage and desperation carried frail little creature, when driven to bay, safely through the devilish machinations of the sinister system.

"THE TRAP" BY RICHARD HARDING DAVIS

COMING TO EMPIRE THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Jean Carson, a New York school teacher, left the comforts of her home city and went to the Klondike, there with her father, to cajole the pitiless Harpy, Gold. Two men came into her life. One was a man in every fibre of his being. The other was his brother—a blackguard.

Both professed to love the girl. The decision between them was an ordeal. Then her father and Ned Fallon, the real man, went away on a prospecting trip, and Steve Fallon, the brother, frightened the girl into marrying him secretly.

A few days after the marriage Steve came home and in a drunken rage told the girl that he had a wife [illegible] ther's cabin to wait for his return Dad came back, empty handed. She was afraid to tell him of her trouble. Ned returned triumphant, with a fortune in his mine.

But the girl met him with downcast eyes. She evaded him. She waved aside his efforts to plead his love. Then she went away to New York, married the man she loved Happiness was hers for six years. Then came the man who witnessed her marriage. With slander and insinuation he tried to run a course of blackmailing.

The story of "The Trap," which embodies the situations enumerated, was written by Richard Harding Davis and Jules Eckert Goodman, put into scenario by Eve Unsell, and produced for the Universal Company under the direction of Frank Reicher. The picture is booked for the Empire Theatre Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

FALL STABLE CLEAN-UP

The Health and Comfort of Live Stock Demand It.

Need of Ventilation, Light and Cleanliness to Avoid Tuberculosis and Other Diseases—Use Whitewash, Whether Sprayed or Brush-handled, and Brighten Interior.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

THE observance of the laws of health, so vital to the well-being of man, is regarded even in this enlightened age, with considerable indifference in the treatment of animals upon whose good health that of man himself depends to a considerable degree. That animals are not more affected by disease, of some form or another, to a greater extent, is purely providential, for the sanitary conditions under which they are often reared is of the worst. Why this apathy concerning the state of the stables, in which frequently valuable animals are housed, is difficult to understand, since cattle, any more than man, cannot maintain their health and vigor for long in such unfavorable conditions; yet the stockman who keeps cattle for profit must know that to gain maximum returns for his investments and trouble, and to guard against loss from disease and death reasonable care and comfort and sanitary conditions are necessary.

The first considerations to this end are ventilation, light and cleanliness. These essential elements of sanitation should be attended to at least once every year. This may be most conveniently done during the early fall before the cattle are housed for the winter. Effective ventilation is required to carry away the foul air and maintain constant and adequate supply of fresh air. The window space should be ample so that every corner of the interior may be flooded with light and sunshine, the source of health and destroyer of germs. Dirt and filth make productive breeding places for insects and bacteria. Cleanliness gets rid of conditions which produce them and prevents the possibility of infection and contagion, reducing possible loss from disease to a minimum. That much-dreaded disease, tuberculosis, is in a measure the product of dark, dirty, ill-ventilated stables. It is caused by organism or germs gaining entrance into the animal's system with the food. It is not easy to detect, and usually when symptoms become evident it is too late to apply any remedy, hence the necessity of making every effort to secure and maintain sanitary conditions in the stable. Every fall, then, the stable should be systematically cleaned; cobwebs swept from wall and ceilings; accumulated dirt and debris cleared from manger trough, window-sills and all recesses in walls; the fresh air intakes and foul air outlets put in order; fill all cracks and holes in floor and walls with cement; replace all broken glass in windows and clean them; disinfect the whole stable thoroughly with some good disinfectant, such as chloride of lime, crude carbolic acid, or zenoleum, which can be easily applied with a scrap pump or a watering can with a fine nozzle. Give particular attention to pens or stalls which have been occupied by stock suffering from contagious disease or have been used by animals during parturition.

Then prepare your whitewash and don't postpone it because you do not possess a barrel spraying outfit. The whitewash brush is an effective and efficient tool—use it. Small brushes are best and may take you a little longer time to do. There are many good whitewash recipes. President Grant used the following to whitewash the White House in Washington: Take a bushel of unslaked lime, slake with warm water, cover it during the process to retain the steam, strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer; add a peck of salt, the same previously well dissolved in warm water, add three pounds of ground rice boiled to a thin paste and stir in boiling hot, add one-half pound of glue which has been previously dissolved over a slow fire and add five gallons of hot water to the mixture; stir well and let it stand for a few days, covering it up to keep out dirt. It should be put on hot One pint of the mixture, properly applied will cover a square yard. There is nothing can compare with it for outside or inside work and it retains its brilliancy for many years. Disinfectant may be added or coloring matter may be put in and made to any hue desired.—Prof. J. Evans. O. A. College, Guelph.

Live Stock Scarce in Europe.

France has 2,366,000 fewer cattle than in 1914; Italy, 996,000; Denmark, 345,000; Sweden, 599,000; Germany, 2,200,000; and Austria Hungary, considerable. These figures alone show a decrease of 6,306,000 head of cattle and many countries which have suffered are not named. The sheep decrease in France, Italy, Denmark, and Holland alone is over two and one-half millions. and in pigs there has been a wholesale decrease to the number of 24,952,000 in France, Italy, Denmark Sweden, Holland and Germany. Denmark, Canada's strongest competitor on the British bacon market is 1,873,000 short of a normal supply of pigs. Germany is 19,396,000 short of her 1914 hog population.

These figures should prove interesting to the Ontario live stock breeder. Reserves of food material in the world are very low. Stock with which to increase these reserves is not up to normal numerically. Indications are that a good demand must continue for the finished product of the farm.

Windsor car men have asked the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board to investigate the discharge of four men by Supt. Hayes without just cause.

AMERICAN GOLFERS WILL INVADE ENGLAND IN QUEST OF BRITISH TITLES

(New York Herald.)

After the tremendous strain and drain of four and a half years of war it is not to be wondered at that Great Britain should have decided to take a year or so to reconstruct the shatered fabric of her golfing life and to get back as close as she possibly can with so many of her old champions killed or maimed for life to the plane which she occupied in ante-bellum days before reviving the old programme of championships abandoned so unceremoniously in 1914 when the linksmen of the Kingdom dropped the club and the rubber-core for the rifle and the hand-grenade. During these four and a half years British golfing suffered grievously not only through shot and shell, but also on account of the fact that those who were spared were unable to keep in practice both for the lack of time and opportunity; since most of the courses hitherto famous throughout the world were either being cultivated to eke out the [illegible] of the country or else neglected and overgrown to an extent that precluded all possibility of play or practice.

But in a country so strong in a golfing way as Britain it will not be long before the traces of war have in large measure been effaced. By next season wonders will have been worked on the war-torn courses and the golfers themselves back almost to the old stride. For them it will be just as well, too, if they are all dressed up and ready to receive company, for ever since Walter J. Travis showed how it was possible to go over and deprive the Britons of their amateur title, Americans have been coveting all that the tight little isle offers in honors, and now that the world has returned to a state of peace, or virtually so, another concerted attack is to be made on the crowns of the British links next year.

Among the invaders will be women as well as men and amateurs as well as professionals. Walter Hagen of Detroit, who holds the national and metropolitan open championships, was the one to set the ball rolling. Walter has twice won the blue ribbon of the United States links, and he is ambitious to be the first American to win the open championship of Britain. Miss Alexander Stirling, the title holder among the women, has also announced that she will go over next year and find out how it feels to play in a British women's titular event. M. J. Brady, the Boston professional, who was over trying for the British championship when last the American professionals made their attack in force, has assured Hagen that he will have company on his trip abroad, and it is not unlikely that other women will join Miss Stirling in her venture.

For years students of form have lamented the fact that the women of the United States did not appear to show the same aptitude for the game of golf as that displayed by their cousins on the other side of the "herring pond." Many of the Americans were good up to a certain point. Some of them could drive splendidly, a lot of them were deadly putters, but not many of them were in possession of a sound game all the way from tee to green. Where they fell down invariably was in the use of the approaching irons. The trouble was that almost until the advent of Miss Stirling the game was over-developed in some respects and underdeveloped in other and vital branches.

Miss Stirling is the nearest approach to the natural type of woman golfer so common in Great Britain that the United States has produced. This statement is really doing the Atlanta lass an injustice, for she is exactly what one would have aimed for who had for his task the moulding of the perfect woman golfer and the material with which to work. She is not perfection, of course, but all that is required to make her as near to perfection as it is possible to find in practice, for her game is sound from tee to green. Having won the American championship twice in succession and having held the honor since 1916, Miss Stirling should not lack for confidence. She will find in Britain more golfers of her own calibre than she finds at home, but if she plays up to form which she displayed in winning the national championship for the second time at Shawnee, it is difficult to see how any one is going to prove greatly superior to her.

WHY FELTON TURNED PRO.

FAVORABLE CRITICISM TOWARD HIMSELF DECIDED HIM TO ATTEMPT WHAT HE DID.

(Ottawa Citizen)

The recent victory of Alfred Felton, the Australian, over Ernest Barry, the Englishman, for the professional sculling championship of the world was more the result of an accident that any deliberate aspiration of the Antipodean to secure the much coveted title, so it must be one more item added to the long list of strange happenings in the world of sport.

The event responsible for precipitating Felton into the professional ranks occurred at the Inter-Allied regatta on the Seine, at Paris, and held in connection with the American athletic carnival. Felton, who was a member of the Australian Imperial entries for the single sculls, and owing chiefly to his powerful build and smooth, yet effective, style, attracted a lot of attention along the Seine. Old watermen, especially those of the professional school of [illegible] opinion of the man from the Southern Cross and more than one thought, if properly coached, he could show a clear stern to the best on earth. With the general run of the army men Felton was very popular on account of his genial manners and he had a sort of hail-fellow well met make up that was very taking.

Among the men who were mostly impressed with the sculling prowess of the Australian was Clarence Buxton, of Cambridge University, the amateur sculler champion of England and a shrewd student of everything regarding the work of the knights of the ashen blade, professional and otherwise. In a nonchalant sort of manner he remarked one day to a few who were watching Felton that the Australian could beat Ernest Barry, the professional, the best day he ever saw. The remark was reported to Felton, and he then and there formed the plan to invade the ranks of cash seekers. He kept the matter to himself and in the meantime the date of the regatta arrived.

The climax in the singles occurred when Felton met a compatriot opponent in the person of D. C. Hadfield, a New Zealander, and also a member of the Australian army. The pair had the hottest sort of tilt in the early part of the race and Felton was leading about half way when he struck one of the boundary stakes of the course and it bored a hole in his shell. The mishap put Felton out of the running and Hadfield went ahead and won easily from Marechal de Logis Giran, of France with Paul Worthington, of Harvard University, third. Whether or not Felton would have outrowed Hadfield is a question, as the latter finished like a lion and subsequently demonstrated that he is the best amateur now on the other side in winning the Kingscote Sculls, the substitute for the Diamond Sculls, at the Henley Regatta.

The evening of the regatta Felton unfolded his intentions of turning "pro" to his opponents, Worthington and Giran, and in the crowd were Buxton, Capt. C. Winan, of Yale, and Major S. Middleton, a member of the Australian eight-oared crew. They all approved the step and wished him luck, and that they were right has been proved by Felton's successful effort in taking the world's title back to Australia. Nobody will begrudge the honor the Kangaroo land, which has produced such wonders as Harry Searle, the conqueror of Ed. Hanlan, and that gave such as F. S. Kelly, of Oxford, and McVilly, both winners of the Diamonds, to the amateur world. It is worth while to remember that both the amateur and professional sculling titles now belong to Australia.

CANADIAN HORSES WIN IN N. Y. SHOW

PRIZE FOR OFFICERS CLASS GOES TO COL. COX, OF OAKVILLE.

New York, Nov. 19. — The Horse Show here is opened with a strong representation from Canada in its entry list. Considerable attention has been centred on the creditable performances of Canadian jumpers, a well schooled and admirably ridden bunch of horses.

The feature was the class of jumpers for officers only, which was open to all nations, the horses to be ridden by officers in uniform. There were twenty-five entries. First in this class was captured by Lieut.-Col. Herbert C. Cox, of Oakville, Ontario, with his bay gelding Ridgefield. He cleared all the obstacles faultlessly and made his jumps boldly and at good speed. The Strand, also owned and ridden by Col. Cox, was second, and Capt. John K. Brown, of West Point, won third with a chesnut gelding, Stone Wall.

The blue in the hunters and jumpers was awarded to Miss Lida L. Fleitman's Golden Duck, a thoroughbred by Golden Maxim, ridden by Miss Fleitman on a side saddle. Shot, a Canadian hunter owned by Lieut.-Col. Herbert C. Cox, was second, while third went to Ondremon, also a Canadian hunter, owned by Miss Carol Smith, of Oakville. Golden Duck is one of the best-known jumpers in the east, and won the blue last year.

Walter Law, a rider for the Cox stable, was kicked by a horse leaving the ring and painfully injured.

Ames-Holden Co., has purchased the Kitchener Orphanage on which to erect their office building.

ENGLAND HAS A TERRIFIC FIGHTER IN THEIR CHAMPION JOE BECKETT

His Fight With Mr. Goorty Showed He Was Clever, Strong and Could Stand Punishment.

Through the courtesy of William J. Freihofer, who has just returned from London, the writer is able to give American fans an insight of Joe Beckett, the British heavyweight, from the pen of an able London critic. As Beckett is to meet Carpentier early in December, and the winner will likely be matched with Dempsey for the world's title, the following abstract will doubtless prove of interest:

"No greater heavyweight boxing contest has been seen in England since Peter Jackson fought Frank Slavin, now very many years ago, at the National Sporting Club, than that at Olympia, when Joe Beckett, our champion, beat Eddie McGoorty, one of the cleverest fighters sent to us by America, in the seventeenth round. Seldom have I seen such a gruelling tussle between men, and none has been waged with a closer regard for chivalry and the highest traditions of the ring. Fourteen thousand people were keyed up to a high pitch of excitement; the vigor and the strength of Beckett, the craftiness and the cunning of McGoorty, the blind refusal of each man to surrender, gripped by the throat a multitude of folk. Now there was almost perfect silence, again a roar, then a yell. It was all wonderful and thrilling.

"Beckett from first to last fought in a manner worthy of a champion. He was often hit hard: in some rounds it was McGoorty who was the master boxer, but always I thought was Beckett the better, the uncompromising, the relentless, the most powerful fighter. His victory was as well deserved as it was complete, and we may say of him that we have at last a heavyweight champion qualified to meet the best man in all the countries. Last night he was an inspired Beckett compared to what he was before he pummelled the easily scared Bombardier Wells into defeat and poked fun at the notion that Frank Goddard had a jaw of granite. Beckett has proved beyond all question that he has the temperament of the real fighting man, and he, together with his supporters, may await the coming of Georges Carpentier from France with high hopes of success.

In all the early rounds it was a great battle. The fourteenth round was a terrific one; none could have been more exciting. Each man took punches that would have laid any ordinary mortal low. How McGoorty stood up under the punishment he received was astonishing. But not only did he do this, but he had, too, a clear brain. For all that, had Beckett not developed impetuosity, he might have finished the fight in this round: instead, in the next one he only just escaped serious trouble from a terrific right uppercut.

"McGoorty was now chancing everything. Conscious that he was far behind on points, he used up every ounce of strength that was in him; but there was no hurtling Beckett, apparently. And the end came in this way: Beckett, getting McGoorty onto the ropes landed with the full weight of his mighty body behind his left on the chin, and then followed, as quick as lightning with his right on the same spot. People screamed and shouted and roared 'Beckett!' but at the count of nine McGoorty reeling, his eyes glazed, too, but Beckett flew at him and knocked the American clean through the ropes. And the fight that was a classic in its hardness and cleanness finished with Beckett the winner.

"The English champion won his greatest triumph. He beat the greatest pugilist he had ever met, and for whom, as he was led out of the ring, there were many loud and long cheers."

Now American fans will ask the question: How long would it take Dempsey to send McGoorty to dreamland?

HOW, BARRY LOST THE SCULLING TITLE

SIX TIMES WORLD'S CHAMPION HE SHOWED BAD JUDGMENT.

The following description of the recent Felton-Barry Sculling race on the Thames appears in the London Express:—

Ernest Barry, six times sculling champion, tempted fortune once too often yesterday. He tried to give eight yards and two stone in weight over the championship course on the Thames to that hefty Australian sculler, Alfred Felton, but failed. The weather beat him. Six lengths divided the boats as the Australian passed the winning post a comfortable victor and the new holder of the world's sculling championship.

Whether Barry was wise in taking up the challenge of the Australian after being out of the game owing to the war since September 5, 1914—when he beat James Paddon— is a debatable point.

Barry lost when he lost the toss for choice of station.

Worse conditions for a match of such importance could scarcely have been possible. A strong and cold northwesterly wind blew, and the water up to Hammersmith was very bad. In these circumstances the man who chose the Middlesex station had great advantages, and Felton was not slow to seize them. He rowed with admirable judgement, and getting away with a lead practically from the start he had the race to all intents and purposes won at Hammersmith Bridge.

Felton swung to the Middlesex shore and shelter, but Barry stuck to mid-stream unaccountably and he had not gone fifty yards before he was drenched with water, which washed up almost to his armpits. While he was struggling here, the Australian was making the most of his opportunity, and by the time Felton came across to go under Barnes Bridge he had secured a lead which, barring accidents, was bound to give him victory.

Barry never lost his form, and when the smooth water was reached after passing Chiswick he was sculling beautifully, but he could make no impression on his opponent. Whether he would have won had he closed Felton over to the Middlesex shore will, of course, never be known, but at any rate he would have prevented the Australian from getting such a lead, and might have pushed him sufficiently to make a close struggle of it.

BISHOP SWEENEY ADDRESSES MEETING AT ST. LUKE'S ON FORWARD MOVEMENT

Wonderful Appeal for People to Move Forward to Work of Reconstruction.

Rt. Rev. J. Sweeney, Bishop of Toronto, addressed a public meeting at St. Luke's Anglican Church last night on the Great Forward Movement. The Bishop spoke with an eloquent flow of language and a deep spiritual feeling, to which no pen could do justice. In his address he urged the people to go forward lest they should retard, and he appealed to them with an irresistable earnestness and zeal.

He took for his text Exodus the 14th chapter and 15th verse, "Speak unto the children of Israel that they may go forward."

The difference between the forward movement of the church today and the order received and carried out by Moses is that we are following upon peace while the children of Israel were heading into an unknown and hazardess enterprise full of danger and suffering. Throughout our forward movement campaign we should always have a feeling of thankfulness toward God for peace.

Reconstruction Work.

During the war a great many things were standing still and even going back. But, upon the signing of the armistice, an instinct possessed us to build up, to move forward to great achievement. It is the natural instinct of the animal or he spider that God has made inherant in man God has given into our hearts an instinct to repair that which has broken down. This has been clearly shown in the marvellous work of reconstruction in the battle-stricken countries and a striking example is seen at Halifax. When we give full play to this instinct in the opportunity run and wreckage bands out to us we will go forward.

The slogan of a great many of the large conventions being held now is "all forward, all together." And the supremist of all forward movements is the one in connection with the missionary department of the Canadian church.

And during this campaign let us think as individuals. Too often sermons are preached to congregations as a whole and do not reach the individual. The people should realize that every message from every pulpit is a direct message to themselves. The challenge of the hour is to every individual as to his own circumstances and calling. The Governor-General, the Duke of Devonshire stated very recently that in spite of the great unrest throughout the country he could not feel pessimistic when he thinks of the great future ahead of Canada. It is a challenge to every man, woman and child to go forward. Old things have passed away and new things are coming upon us. Some of the old conditions have gone and, let us hope, gone forever. They can only return if you open your doors and allow them to return to the old homes from where they were driven by the war. Let us preserve our ideals and not slip back into the many reprehensible conditions of pre-war days.

The Bishop expressed himself as sorry people regarded this forward movement as a rise to obtain money for the work of the church of God. The idea is to get people to kneel down and pray an then use and study the conditions in the new world. "We believe," he declared, "that when the people feel the spirit of sympathy, knowledge and prayer, they will not be able to restrain their gifts, but will pour them forth on the altar of the Lord."

And do not let us go about with a poor mouth. When $2,353,624,050 has been subscribed by the Canadian people to the various Government loans, do not let us talk poverty. "I sometimes feel ashamed when I see what this war has brought forth," he declared. It has displayed the untold riches of the people of Canada. Under these conditions how can the church cry poverty. "Be not deceived God is not mocked," quoted the Bishop. Canadian people have been cheating and robbing and God and may He grant those days may never return.

The whole Church of God must move forward. It is a challenge from God to the private, the bishop, the deacon and all.

We are retarding the coming of the Lord Jesus Christ if we do not go forward. This is a pet phrase, "Make the world safe for democracy." But there is an ideal above that one God's ideal is to make it a world that is a fit place for Christ our Lord to visibly, morally and splendidly to reign in our midst.

Mrs. Stevenson's Appeal.

After this inspirational address Mrs. Arthur Stevenson appealed to the church to take a more active interest in social service. It is a call on the church to promote good citizenship. The object of social service is to better the conditions of every person. The church has been forgetting that the whole world is Christ's kingdom. The church should take a leading part in moulding public opinion. The church should get behind all institutions for bettering social conditions and get behind such movements as having Bible lessons taught in the public schools. There are a great many ways the church can help in social service work if they will only take the step.

The Money Question.

Mr. W. R. Allin, of Toronto, made a very clear explanation of how the money side of the forward movement was to be dealt with. He believed that if we did not have a financial objective it would be an insult to Jesus Christ. But what we must be of is that we are putting it to a wise use. He then went on to explain at length what good and wise use the money is going to be put to.

These are the missions for the Indians and the Eskimoes to provide for. There is the great immigration problem. The church's duty is to make this large influx of immigrants a band of worthy citizens. Money must be provided for the machinery of the church that it may carry on as a united body. The retired ministers and widows must be provided for by pensions from a beneficial fund. There must be a settlers' fund. The foreign missionary field should be increased. Religious education should be encouraged. Money is needed for the great social service work. And there are diocese that cannot provide for themselves. They should be helped by the church as a whole. All these worthy endeavors require money and the more money that is provided the better the work can be carried on. In conclusion Mr Allin appealed to the people to make this a true forward movement in word and deed.

HUNTER STREET, WEST OF BRIDGE CLOSED

TEMPORARY STRUCTURE MAY BE READY IN A FEW DAYS—WILL GE A GREAT CONVENIENCE

Hunter street, west of the bridge, is closed for traffic today. It was hoped that this would not be necessary until the temporary bridge was ready for use, but this is not yet ready and it was imperative to close Hunter street to avoid delaying construction Until the temporary bridge is completed all those desiring to cross the river must drive down to the end of Simcoe street and up the tracks to the old bridge.

An unfortunate delay was caused in building the temporary pile structure on account of the depth of the water. One of the foremen on the work said today that at first the water was too low to [illegible] pile driver on the scow on the east side of the river. Then it was taken off the scow and erected on the shore. The water then rose and made this plan impractible.

It is hoped the remaining piles will all be driven in a few days and that before long the public will have the great convenience of the temporary bridge at the end of Simcoe street.

INQUEST INTO DEATH OF EMPLOYE KILLED ON THE MAN ELEVATOR

Jury Find That He Died of a Fracture at Base of Skull Peculiar Accident With Same Belt Earlier in Afternoon Jury Recommend More Minute Inspection of Belts.

The inquest into the death of Alias Kerteston, killed at the Quaker Oats some time ago, revealed only one new feature of interest to the public. That was the fact that there had been an accident with the same man elevator during the afternoon of the day that witnessed the death of Kerteston. A bag of bran fell off a truck on the third story and jammed in between a step of the elevator and the floor, smashing an iron rod of the step or bucket. This stopped the belt and it was admitted last night caused considerable strain upon it.

The Evidence

The first witness to be summoned last night was Frederick Anderson who has been employed as a sweeper at the Quaked Oats Company for about two and a half months. A few minutes to six o'clock on the night of the accident he was standing on the sixth floor and saw the deceased come down through that floor on the elevator. When Kerteston was just below that floor the belt broke.

"Were you near the elevator at the time?"

I was waiting for the step that Kerteston was on intending to use it myself."

The witness stated that the elevator jammed at the third floor where he afterwards saw Kerteston lying in an unconscious condition and bleeding.

In answer to a question from Crown Attorney Hatton, the witness said he saw the elevator had been stopped earlier in the afternoon but he did not know the reason why.

Fracture at Base of Skull.

Dr. G. S. Cameron, who was the first doctor to arrive on the scene, gave evidence to the effect that the deceased had suffered a small scalp wound above the right ear. There was no apparent fracture there. There was a decided hemorrhage from the ear and nose. This with the rapidly coming on of unconsciousness lead the surgeons to believe he was suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull. He also suffered a fracture of the left thigh and bruises of less serious character on various parts of the body. He declared that he would state the cause of death was the fracture at the base of the skull. The doctor had known the deceased previous to the accident and had considered him a man of good physical condition

Belt Struck His Hat

Mr. Harrison Rightmeyer, who has been working for the Quaker Oats Company for over a year had left his work and had gone to the man elevator with Kerteston with the intention of going down. They were on the eighth or top floor. The deceased stepped onto the belt and started to go down.

"He hollered up are you coming?" said the witness. And I answered that I would wait a minute or two."

"I saw him at the sixth floor an then the belt broke."

"How do you know the belt broke?"

"One end of it struck my hat."

"Where did it break?"

"It broke right near the top."

Heard Clatter

The next witness summoned was H. E. Elphich, the foreman of the department through which the belt operates. He stated that on the night of the accident he was on the fourth floor and heard the clatter of the belt falling. He admitted that it was his duty to look after the belt the same as any other part of the machinery in his department. There was no person detailed to especially look after the belt. He stated that it had been repaired on several occasions by millwrights. He estimated that there were forty or fifty men who use the elevator and often there would be 25 to 30 in one hour using it.

It was this witness who told of the bag of bran accident in the afternoon. He declared that the power was been shut off, the broken step repaired and the belt examined. He rode on it himself several times between the bag of bran accident and the fatal accident at six o'clock.

The Head Millwright.

Then Mr. M. Kirn, the head millwright was summoned as a witness He has been with the company for 41 years. He did not see the accident or go to the scene until the following morning, and his evidence was based upon subsequent examinations.

Takes Respite Today to Visit U. S. Military Academy at West Point—Guest of the Cadets at Luncheon

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 2.— The Prince of Wales obtained respite today from strenuous rounds of public and private functions that have marked his two-day visit to New York, by journeying to the United States Military Academy at West Point, where he will review a dress parade of cadets on the plains, before he boards his special train.

Boyish Delight.

The Prince expressed eagerness to see West Point School and took special delight in the prospect of having lunch with the cadets. He will return to New York late today and in the evening he will be given a dinner on board H. M. S. "Renown" anchored in the North River.

At the Horse Show.

The Prince drove to Madison Square Gardens, yesterday, and was the guest of the horse show of Commander Eva Booth of the Salvation Army the famous show this year being a benefit performance for the Salvation Army in recognition of its services during the war. The Royal party passed to its box through double lines of Salvation lassies who were no whit behind the more worldly spectators in the warmth of their greeting to the boyish prince. After spending a few minutes chatting with Commander Booth, the Prince left his box and entered the ring where he watched the jumping contests.

Leaving the Garden the Prince paid a brief visit to the New York Yacht Club, where he inspected the models of famous yachts including the America's cup defender and the numerous trophies which the club boasts.

Took Quiet Stroll.

On his return to the Waldorf Hotel the Prince stole a march on both the crowds who have trailed his every movement and the small army of newspaper reporters who have formed his unofficial bodyguard Slipping out of the entrance of the hotel, he went for a quiet stroll on Fifth Avenue, unattended except by a couple of secret service men. He passed practically unrecognized through the tremendous tide of traffic which swept down the Avenue in the evening homeward rush. One of a couple of girls almost gave his identity away by calling out: "Why, there's the Prince."

But her companion ridiculed her guess and before she could argue the point the Prince was swallowed up in the crowd. Tonight the Prince was the guest of honor at a banquet given by the various British societies of New York. Later in the evening he attended a ball given by Mrs. Whitelaw Reid.

ALD. McINTYRE IS ENDORSED FOR MAYORALTY BY TRADES COUNCIL

Number of Candidates Already Selected for Other Civic Positions—Proposition to Have Women Pay Poll Tax is Regarded as Premateur—Labor Paper to be Started

Alderman McIntyre was endorsed as Labor's candidate for Mayor at the meeting of the Trades Council last night, the nominating committee having reported in favor of that course. The alderman was at the meeting and thanked the delegates for the honor conferred upon him, promising, if elected, to uphold the principles set forth in the platform of the Labor party.

A number of candidates for aldermen are in prospect, but the names of these will not be announced for the present. The committee appointed to find candidates was increased by the addition to the membership of Delegates A. Mesley, T. H. Lane, James Grisdale and Fred Smith.

Alderman Crowe asked for an expression of opinion on his notice of motion in the City Council to ask the Legislature to give municipalities power to impose a poll tax on women. The alderman explained that he had no intention of making women on small earnings pay as much as men, but he believed that the new voters should bear a portion of the burden of taxation.

The delegates were opposed to the idea, being of the opinion that women should not be taxed like men until they are in receipt of equal wages. Alderman Crowe will, accordingly, drop the matter in Council. T. Tooms, M.L.A.-elect, was one of those who held that Ald. Crowe's action was premature. The alderman's move to secure the election of the police commissioners was enthusiastically endorsed. The same course was taken with regard to Ald. Gainey's plan to put an end to the granting of concessions to industries.

Delegate M. Noonan, a member of the Typographical Union, who is leaving the city to return to his home in Montreal, was elected a life member of the council. Mr. Noonan during his stay in the city has always been active in the Labor movement.

A meeting will be held in Labor Hall tonight to arrange for the publication of a Labor paper or an organ for the Independent Labor party.

The Municipal Hydro-Electric Railway Association asked for cooperation in requesting the Legislature to retain Sir Adam Beck as chairman of the Hydro Commission, and to send a delegation to Toronto for this purpose. No action was taken. It was felt that the new Government should not be embarrassed by requests of this nature until it was shown that they were committed to another policy.

M. E. Alaire of Montreal, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, was at the meeting. He has been in the city organizing the meat cutters and butchers, who have already sent delegates to the Council. Mr. Alarie in a brief address asked the delegates to patronize none but union meat dealers.

ALD. McINTYRE,
who was endorsed as Labor's choice for mayor at last night's meeting of the Trades Council.

FATE OF TREATY OF PEACE WITH GERMANY AGAIN IN HANDS OF PRESIDENT WILSON

All Efforts to Ratify Pact in United States Senate Fail—Situation is Just Where it Was Six Months Ago, and Technically Speaking Peace is no Nearer Than on Armistice Day—Great Surprise in Paris.

Washington, Nov. 20.— The fate of the treaty of peace with Germany and the League of Nations, so far as the United States is concerned today is again in the hands of President Wilson. Failure yesterday and last night of all efforts to have treaty ratified in some form by the Senate has brought the situation to just where it was six months ago when the pact was submitted to the Upper House of Congress, and technically peace is no nearer than it was on armistice day more than a year ago.

Up to the President

With this much debated and much contested, the peace document thrust back upon him, the next move is up to the President, and today there was no intimation of what course he would pursue. In any event it was not believed there would be any development December 1st in regular session.

Result is Uncertain.

Opinion as to what may be expected when Congress again convenes, is divided. Senator Lodge, the majority leader, who led the forces opposed to adoption of the treaty as presented, declared that failure of ratification last night killed the pact unless President Wilson "circumvented Senate rules by withdrawing it, and then submitting it at a new session next month.

May Re-Submit Pact.

Democratic leaders suggested that the President during recess might see fit to feel out other powers as to their attitude on reservations with a view of bringing the treaty to some sort of ratification at the December session. If re-submitted the treaty would come before the Senate practically as new business, and debate on it would not be governed by that closure rule invoked in the closing days of the session just adjourned

Surprise in Paris

Paris, Nov. 20.— Adjournment of the United States Senate for the session without ratification of the peace treaty created much surprise in Peace Conference circles as despatches from Washington had suggested that some compromise was probable. Members of the Council, after adjournment, withheld comment on the situation.

Adjourned Sine Die.

The United States Senate has rejected the peace treaty. Six months of Senate session, the President's two trips to Paris, the long negotiations over there, the President's tour of the West, culminating in his breakdown, all came to naught last night when Senator Lodge had a reconsideration motion tabled, and so killed the treaty.

The Senate adjourned sine die, after winding up some routine matters following the slaughter of the treaty six months to a day after the President had called them in special session to consider the great treaty. The United States alone among the great powers that shared in halting the Germanic dream of world dominion, has rejected the treaty that was to make it impossible for any nation again to plunge the world into war. The end came with dramatic suddenness after a session that had endured all day and far into the night. The day's incidents started with the reading of President Wilson's letter to Senator Hitchcock telling him that the Lodge reservations amounted to a nullification of the treaty and inferentially advising the treaty's friends to vote against the mutilated and distorted covenant. The treaty, as Lodge framed it, was accordingly voted down twice. The Demoirats fought to the end for an opportunity to reach a compromise and for a time at least, it looked as if a compromise would be arrived at, but Lodge administered the death blow without permitting even the change in the preamble he had prepared to meet the President's objection coming to a vote.

They Killed It.

"The treaty is dead, so far as this Senate is concerned," said Mr. Lodge tonight, after the session was adjourned sine die. "In the new session the President can withdraw the treaty from the Senate and resubmit it for ratification or rejection."

It was held by Mr. Lodge that it was not necessaray for the Senate to notify the President in any way that the Peace Treaty has been rejected. Senator Hitchcock took the contrary view, and insisted there should be a resolution adopted prior to adjournment informing the President of the action taken by the Senate.

"And they killed it," said Mr. Lodge, referring to the course pursued by the Democrats, "as I told them they would do if they voted against my resolution of ratification."

The Democrats contested the motion to adjourn sine die and force a roll call, but were voted down by the combination of Republicans and co-operating Democrats who opposed the treaty.

NEW YORK NEWSPAPERS STILL HOPE FOR RATIFICATION OF PEACE TREATY BY U.S.

Times Says America Will Not Stay Long in Her Shameful Position—Treaty Must be Ratified.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 20.— Hope that an agreement for ratification of the peace treaty will finally be reached among the warring Senate factions, is expressed by most of the newspapers here, in commenting editorially upon the abrupt adjournment of the United States Senate.

Must Be Ratified.

The Times says the treaty of Versailles still lives and will be put into effect by other signatories, "leaving the United States without its benefits, standing before the world as one nation that refuses to sanction measures for the prevention of war. We shall not long remain in that shameful position. The treaty must be called into existence."

GREAT BRITAIN REFUSES TO BE TURNED FROM POLICY IN EGYPT

Regards Herself as Trusty for Country as a Whale, and Will Resume the Course Already Mapped Out.

(Canadian Press Despatch)

London, Nov. 20.- Great Britain declines to be deflected from her Egyptian policy by demonstrations that are taking place in Egypt on the part of Nationalists, according to well-informed sources. She is absolutely determined, it is indicated, to continue in the course mapped out, as she regards herself as trustee for the whole welfare of Egypt. Therefore, despite demonstrations against it, the Commissioner appointed by Lord Milner, Secretary for the Colonies, will proceed to Cairo in due course, it is declared

One Complaint.

One of the Egyptian complaints has been that Great Britain has published its intention to maintain a protectorate, but has kept the Egyptians in the dark regarding what is meant by a protectorate, and how it is to be carried on. Great Britain's action in preventing an Egyptian Nationalist delegation from going to the Paris Conference to present grievances has been another cause for complaint

Field Marshal Viscount Allenby British High Commissioner in Egypt, has issued the following statement:

"The policy of Great Britain in Egypt is to preserve the autonomy of the country under British protection and develop a system of self-government under an Egyptian ruler. The object of Great Britain is to defend Egypt against all external dangers or the interference of any foreign power, and at the same time establish a constitutional system, in which—under British guidance so far as is necessary—the Sultan and his Ministers and the elected representatives of the people may in their several spheres increasingly co-operate in the management of Egyptian affairs.

"His Majesty's Government, has decided to send a mission to Egypt to work out the details of a constitution to carry out this object, and, in consultation with the Sultan, his Ministers and the Egyptian representatives to undertake the preliminary work requisite before the future form of Government can be settled.

"It is not the function of the Mission to impose a constitution on Egypt. Its duty is to explore the ground and discuss with the authorities on the spot the reforms necessary and propose, it is hoped, in complete agreement with the Sultan, and his Ministers, a scheme of Government which can subsequently be put into force."

"FOR A GREATER PETERBOROUGH."

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1919.

CHOOSING CIVIC CANDIDATES.

THE PETERBOROUGH Board of Trade has been organized on ideal lines. Every class in the community is given representation in the membership. It is made up of various sections composed of the different interests in the community. The aims of the Board of Trade are altruistic. The greatest good for the greatest number is the watchword. The executive officers are men who realize their opportunities for making Peterborough better and bigger, better as a place in which to earn a living and as a place in which to spend the years when life's shadows are lengthening.

The interests of all classes of humanity are inseparably interwoven. It is impossible for one to prosper if another is kept down. General welfare, not individual success, is the secret of human happiness, and the innate selfishness of mankind is the only obstacle to the achievement of this ideal.

The different sections of the Board of Trade are supposed to meet and discuss the matters which are peculiarly their concern, and then the organization in general session unifies and gives practical effect to all valuable suggestions and ideas that are brought up. There can be no class legislation in such an organization. The maojrity will prevail, and take it nine times in ten the verdict of the majority is sound on all public questions.

The constitution of the Board of Trade makes it clear that it is not a political organization. As such, it does not aim to take part in any election, federal, legislative or municipal. This, however, does not deny political interest and activity to the individual member, but if one of these takes up the cause of a municipal candidate he does so on his own responsibility and gains no prestige from his membership in the Board of Trade.

Different classes in the community may deem it advisable to select candidates for office from among their own numbers. If this course is not in the public interest it is at least chraacteristic of mankind, so many of whom in all sincerity regard their own interests as paramount, as the basic fabric in the economic structure. It is the plan of nomination that is the real weakness in the political system of Canada. Any man can be put in the running for a municipal office by the support of two of his friends. The way in this regard is too easy. The primary election is the true idea. Nominations rather than elections are the important procedure. There can be no good men elected to office unless men of that class are nominated. Citizens whose public service would be invaluable to any community fortunate enough to secure them, object to either a field which is open to practically all comers, many of whom in the ensuing race cannot hope to do more than clutter up the track.

Why should not the voters in the city assemble in a mass meeting for the purpose of selecting candidates for civic office? Let the choice of men be made by ballot. Let only those who make a certain showing of strength be allowed to run. The gravest part of the issue could thus be decided before the election.

Municipal elections in Ontario are supposed to be conducted on non-partisan lines. But why not realize the fact that in every such contest there are almost invariably differences of opinion and issues that divide the voters as clearly as any political question ever did? They have bi-party municipal elections in the United States, and under that system the good men stand at least an equal chance with those held in different popular estimation. The Americans are at least honest in their methods, making no attempt to deceive themselves. Any one who is familiar with municipal politics in the United States knows that the elections there develop an interest that it is impossible to create under a system that lacks the first element of either excitement or organized effort.

THE FUTURE OF THE RURAL SCHOOLS.

IF HON. DR. CODY, during the term of his office as Minister of Education, had done nothing outside of his routine duties except making effective legislation providing for the consolidation of rural schools, he would have amply justified his appointment. That work will always remain as an honorable memorial to his public career, a career all too brief when the interest of the Province in educational affairs is concerned.

The amendment to the school law was brought in after careful investigation of the plans worked out in other places, and experts have pronounced it as nearly perfect as it is possible to make a human enactment. One of its most commendable features is the provision that in the event of a number of sections agreeing to consolidate, any of the parties to the contract, after the consolidation has been in force for three years, may withdraw and resume their former status. The lack of such a provision has been responsible for hesitancy on the part of school sections in the past to become parties to an agreement that is binding for all time.

The only exception taken to the amendment is the lack of authority given two struggling sections to combine their resources. There may be nothing in the present law to prevent such a union, but no special grant is made to help out such cases.

How long will it be before the residents of the rural districts wake up to the fact that opportunity is knocking at the doors of their educational institutions? Farmers' Clubs have been formed all over the Province. Co-operation is the watchword of these organizations. The farmers have banded together for the purpose of buying their supplies and disposing of their live stock and other produce. Co-operative political action has placed them in control of the Provincial Legislature. Why not, then co-operation in education, the most important problem which confronts the farmers today? The training of their children is certainly of as much importance as saving methods in buying or selling.

The children in the country are entitled to an equal educational chance with those in the city and on exactly the same terms. Formerly the graduates of the rural schools in Peterborough county attended the Collegiate Institute in the city. Now even that privilege is denied them and is likely to be for years to come. What, then, has the farmer to expect in the way of giving his children the advantages of higher education, unless he avails himself of the provisions that are made by the school law and gets busy in his own interests? The Government has opened the way for the parent in the country. It cannot, however, force him to follow the road laid out. Self-determination has been vouchsafed him in this regard.

Even when the children from the rural sections were permitted to attend the Collegiate in this city, the system was not desirable. No child of High school age should be compelled to leave home at the most impressionable period of his existence and make his temporary abode among strangers while fitting himself for the university or for the teaching profession. Home ties should not be broken, children should not be removed from parental control even for such a worthy purpose as fitting themselves in the higher branches of learning. The class that can capture the legislative control of a province are certainly able to deal with their educational problems.

A QUESTION OF INTELLIGENCE.

OCCASIONALLY these days it is possible to meet a man who deplores the fact that women have been given the provincial franchise on the same terms as men. Such a man, when pressed for a reason, never fails to declare that the average woman does not possess sufficient native intelligence to understand public questions. It is the good fortune of men of this class that they themselves are not required to submit to an examination on what they know of political history as a condition to the exercise of the ballot.

Alas, for the personal vanity of self-satisfied man posing as a Solomon. The cold fact is that these men would rank as sorry seconds to their own mothers either in the matter of natural intellectual endowment or business ability. Otherwise many of them would have perished in their youth, the question of eking out an existence for them having proved too much for the one charged with the responsibility of his upbringing. There are mothers who have been left widows with large families of small children and with limited means. They have managed to feed, clothe and educate their offspring and establish them in life. How they do this in the face of their difficulties, heaven and themselves only know. But surely such women know enough to vote in the same election as the average man.

WOMEN AND CIGARETS.

MEMBERS OF THE W. C. T. U. at Sarnia take note of the fact that the smoking of cigarets is becoming a habit with certain women and have decided to take steps to have these women put on the tobacco black list. This is something that may be accomplished with the employment of legislative weapons.

The use of tobacco in any form by women is a silly social fad rather than an attempt to satisfy a natural or acquired appetite. Some women's ambition is to acquire masculine traits, to assume to an extent the garb of man and to otherwise encroach upon his prerogatives. If, they argue, it is proper for men to smoke, they see no reason why they should not do likewise.

Women can regulate the fashions by deciding for or against certain styles. They can make social established customs or innovations unpopular by setting their faces against them. They can bring any of their sisters to time by simply reading them out of their social set. If there is to be an uprising against the use of tobacco by the females of the species, the revolution is likely to be confined to society circles instead of the war being carried into the legislative arena. A woman can vote and still maintain her feminine charm. But when she takes up smoking or dons masculine garb, then may mere man be pardoned if he howls in protest.

BLUE DAYS FOR ONTARIO.

(Detroit Free Press.)

ONTARIO IS threatened with an even more rigid enforcement of its blue laws than ever before. W. E. Raney, who has been taken into the Farmer overnment as Attorney-General, and whose duty it will be to see that the laws are enforced, is a member of the Dominion Alliance, an organization strongly opposed to betting, and of the Lord's Day Alliance, which insists on the strict observance of Sunday, besides being an ardent prohibitionist. Race-track gambling, which has been a legalized business of Windsor for many years, may find itself seriously checked if not altogether abolished when he gets down to work. License inspectors who wink at the violation of the laws they are paid to enforce may find themselves out of a job.

But it may tax even Mr. Raney to draw the Sunday laws any tighter than they have been. American travellers who have had to stay in Toronto over Sunday have been horrified to find that they could not go to a movie, buy a newspaper or a book, or even have a smoke unless they have brought the materials with them. Nor, if they were in a country district, could they go out fishing or shooting, for that meant the confiscation of rod or gun and an early appearance in the nearest police court. Even Detroit fishermen who have unwittingly crossed the imaginary line that runs through the middle of the river to separate Canada from the United States, have been arrested for a violation of the Lord's Day Act because they were technically in Ontario.

All this, and even more, is threatened in the future, for Ontario is a believer in the dictum of the Shorter Catechism, that "the whole day must be given up to the public and private exercise of God's worship," and Mr. Raney is just the man to enforce that view. Farmers are more insistent upon a quiet and orderly Sunday, and they are in the saddle in Ontario just now. They may be expected to support Mr. Raney in his enforcement of the law, no matter how far he may go.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

UNDER THE NEW legislative order Toronto will now take what is offered and be duly grateful.

HENRY FORD TALKS ON LABOR QUESTION

Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturing prince, published a weekly newspaper called The Dearborn Independent. In this paper Mr. Ford conducts a department, over his own signature, in which he discusses labor and other industrial problems. From the issue of the Independent for November 22nd, the following articles are taken:

When two unreasonable parties refuse to reach an agreement, their quarrel should be confined to themselves alone; it should be prevented from doing harm to others. But when two reasonable parties cannot come to agreement, it is time to look behind the scenes for a third party whose interest is to keep them quarrelling. This applies to labor disputes as well as other disputes. Sometimes both employer and employe are unreasonable and do not seek agreement but conquest; in which case their unreasonableness ought not to be permitted to cause inconvenience or loss to the public. But there have been occasions when both employers and employes were reasonable enough to be able to reach an agreement, and were prevented by hidden influences.

It should not be forgotten for a single minute that though a strike may mean loss of money, time and peace of mind to all directly concerned — to workingman, manufacturer and public—it does not necessarily mean the same loss to everyone.

There are interests that make money out of certain kinds of strikes. If these strikes did not pay somebody, there would be fewer of them.

An analysis of the matter shows that there are three kinds of industrial disputes.

Justifiable Strikes.

First, there is the justifiable strike —the strike for those proper conditions and just rewards to which the workingman is in all fairness entitled.

The pity is that men should be compelled to use the strike to get what is theirs by right. No American ought to be compelled to strike for his rights. He ought to receive them naturally, easily, as a matter of course.

These justifiable strikes are usually the employer's fault. Some employers are not fit for their job. Employment of men, direction of their energies, arranging that their reward shall be in honest ratio to their production and to the prosperity of the business—that is no small job.

An employer may be unfit for his job, just as a man at the lathe may be incompetent. The lathe man gets into trouble with his work, and so does the incompetent employer with his. Justifiable strikes are a sign that the boss needs another job— one that he can handle.

The unfit employer causes more trouble than the unfit employe. You can change the latter to a more suitable job. But the former must usually be left to the law of compensation.

The justified strike, then, is one that need never have been called if the employer had done his work as he ought.

Concealed Design.

But there is a second kind of strike — the strike which may be named The Strike With a Concealed Design. In this kind of strike the workingmen are made the tools of some hidden manipulator who seeks his own ends through them. Whoever this manipulator may be, his designs will not stand the light.

To illustrate this kind of strike: Here is a great industry whose success is due to having met a public need, to its efficient and skilful methods of production, and to its known record for just treatment of its workingmen. Such an industry presents a great temptation to speculators. If they can only gain control of it they can reap rich benefit from all the honest effort that has been put into it. They can destroy its beneficiary wage and profit-sharing, squeeze every last dollar out of the public, the product and the workingmen, and reduce it to the plight of other business concerns which are run on these low principles.

Their motive may be the personal greed of the speculator, or they may wish to change the policy of a business whose example is embarrassing to employers who do not want to do what is right by their employes.

But how gain control?—that is the speculator's problem. One of the simplest ways is The Strike With a Concealed Design.

It works this way: The industry to be attacked cannot be touched from within, because its men have no reason to strike. So another method is adopted. The business in question may keep many outside shops busy supplying it with parts or material. If these outside shops can be tied up then the great industry may be crippled, and that is what the speculators want.

So strikes are fomented in the outside industries. Every attempt is made to curtail the factory's source of supplies. It is a simple game when once understood, and the public has no idea how often it is played.

Now, if the workingmen of the outside shops knew what the game is, they would refuse to play it, but they don't know; they serve as the tools of designing capitalists without knowing it. There is one point, however, that ought to rouse the suspicions of workingmen engaged in this kind of strike. If the strike cannot get itself settled no matter what either side offers to do, it is almost positive proof that there is a third party, a hidden hand, interested in having the strike continue. That hidden influence does not want a settlement on any terms. Its whole profit is in the trouble and in the continuance of the trouble.

If such a strike is won by the strikers, is the lot of the workingmen improved? After throwing the industry into the hands of outside speculators, are the workmen given any better treatment or wages?

Who is most likely to work with the workingman along lines of progress and prosperity: the manufacturer whose home is where his plant is, whose reputation among his neighbors is dear to him, whose interest in his employes is born of acquaintance and daily fellowship? —or the outsider, the speculator, the profiteer, who does not know his men from iron spikes and whose only interest in the industry is to squeeze dollars out of it until it is dry?

That is the pity of some strikes which linger on and on after settlements are possible—the deluded strikers are fighting the battles of cunning speculators and do not know it.

The Provoked Strike.

Then there is a third kind of strike —the strike that is provoked by the Money Interests for the purpose of giving Labor a bad name. The American Workman has always had a reputation for sound judgment. He has not allowed himself to be led away by every shouter who promised to create the millennium out of thin air. He has had a mind of his own and has used it. He has always recognized the fundamental truth that the absense of reason was never made good by the presence of violence.

In this way the American Workingman has won a certain prestige with his own people and throughout the world. Public Opinion has been inclined to regard with respect his opinions and desires.

But there seems to be a determined effort now being made to fasten the Bolshevik stain on American Labor, by inciting it to such impossible attitudes and such wholly unheard of actions as shall change public sentiment from respect to criticism.

It is quite in keeping with the high disorderly elements that they should employ the lower disorderly elements for the purpose of destroying the morale and reputation of the American Workingman. All the disorder does not originate with the workingman. Much of it comes from higher up.

The American Workingman's most valued asset is his reputation for cool-headed, balanced judgment and respect for law and order. If he loses that, what does he gain?

But—and here is the point—if he does lose that, the powers that would exploit him and reduce him to the lowest form of wage-slavery, would be the gainers. Losing his good name, the American Workingman loses all; his enemies are the gainers.

It is time for us to ask some questions: If the workingman does not make money out of strikes, who does?

It is time for every striker to ask himself: Who stands to make money out of this strike? Who will get the chief benefit if we break down this industry? Whose game are we playing, anyway?

The man who makes profit out of strikes, be he billionaire manipulator or self-seeking labor leader, is a menace to the nation, a traitor to the well-being of humanity, and the personal assailant of every workingman.

In the second and third kinds of disorder which have been described here, the concealed speculator orders the strike; the dishonest labor leader plans it; the rowdy element fans it into violence—and the honest misled workingman pays for it, and continues to pay!

Anyone who knows the American Workingman as he really and naturally is, must be convinced that he does not want to be the tool of evil designers who are not his friends and who cannot build prosperity. Some people make prosperity; other people use it; the latter devitalize and destroy it.

There ought to be high wages everywhere—as high as the business will warrant; and any business that is serving the world and is efficiently managed will warrant it. There ought to be profit-sharing too, that each man may be a partner and not merely a "hand."

But it is not the boss who makes high wages; it is the men. If the boss stands in the way of men getting what they earn, he is not fit to be boss. The day has come when such a man will not be able to keep workmen in his shop.

Once the boss picked out his men. Now men are able to pick out their boss.

Big wages are not philanthropy. Big wages are plain business rights.

The speculators who are always ready to stir up labor trouble are not interested in high wages. They are usually interested in hindering the man who pays high wages. They want to hurt him, to drive him out of business. The American Workingman will not play that game, once he understands it.

WIT AND WISDOM

Real Courage

"I often think," said the modern girl, "that women are more courageous than men."

"I know they are," replied the male companion. "Where is the man who would have the courage to pull out a mirror and do himself up in a crowded restaurant?"

Sorry, Nevertheless

Edith (talking about a man she has jilted)—"And did he seem to be sorry when you said I was married?"

Ethel—"Yes, he said he was very sorry—although he didn't know the man personally."

That Went Double

His gay young wife showed him the pictured advertisement of a very short and very skimpy bathing suit. "You might let me have the money, John," she said.

"I can't consistently, my dear," said he.

"Why not?"

"I'm a man of modest means."

Not Particular

"Doctor, how can I ever repay you for your kindness to me?"

"Doesn't matter, old man. Cheque, money order, or cash."

Discriminating

Artist—Yes, I had a narrow squeak when I was painting that picture of the Sphinx. An Arab came up behind me and nearly stabbed me in the back.

Friend—What! Are there art critics in Egypt, too, then?"

CO-OPERATION IN PEACE THE OBJECT

HARD TIMES DON'T KILL AND ALLIES ARE GOING AHEAD

Boston, Nov. 21.—At a dinner tendered members of the International Trade Commission Wednesday night, Sir Arthur Shirley Benn, of Great Britain, said:

"Hard times don't kill. We're going ahead. If the allies who fought together can stick togethur, I hope to see civilization go forward by leaps and bounds and the Caucasian race will supreme."

The dinner closed the first of a two days' visit to this city by industrial leaders of Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy, who are seeking to obtain co-operation in solving reconstruction problems in Europe. They will go to New York from here.

"We are relying on our will for this work," said M. Eugene Schneider, of France, "but also on our friends. What we have done in war we must do in peace."

Gov. Collidge and Mayor Peters oficially welcomed the commissioners.

SLANDER ACTION AMONG FARMERS

SUIT BROUGHT AGAINST SECRETARY OF UNITED FARMER'S CLUB

Troonto, Nov. 21.— Claiming $5,000 damages, and an equally public retraction, together with costs, the slander case of Phillips v. Carruthers opened at the Assizes yesterday.

The plaintiff, Reuben Phillips, an elderly farmer, residing at Downsview, alleged that the defendant, Bert Carruthers, clandered him by stating that he made a profit of $9.00 a ton on 25 tons of feed; that he had been profiteering and making hundreds of dollars out of the farmers, and that plaintiff is guilty of an indictable offense.

Both are members of the United Farmers' Club, No. 287, Downsview, of which defendant, Carruthers is secretary. Plaintiff had been appointed business agent on a committee for the purchase of feed in car lots from the Canadian Starch Works, Port Credit and Fort William.

A similar civil case is also set down for the Assizes against James Heslop, president of the same Farmers' Club by Phillips. J. P. McGregor is acting for plaintiff and T. Herbert Lennox, K. C. for defendant.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS THE ONLY ALTERNATIVE FOR ANOTHER WAR

Dr. Symonds of Montreal Delivers Eloquent and Thoughtful Address Before Local Canadian Club—Canada Should Foster a Spirit of Broad Internationalism.

Dr. Symonds delivered an eloquent and thoughtful address last night in the Empress Hotel. His subject was "The League of Nations vs. World Power," and his audience was composed of members of the local Canadian Club, who entertained the distinguished visitor at dinner, preceding his discourse. Mr. W. H. Munro made a very acceptable chairman of the proceedings.

Dr. Symonds prefaced his subject proper with reference to his nine happy years of residence in this community, as rector of St. Luke's Church, prior to accepting the charge of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, where he still ministers. All through the war, he said, he had kept an eye on the casualty lists, and noted with sorrow names included therein of many Peterborough boys with whom he had been acquainted. No town in Canada, he declared, had done more for the Allies' righteous cause than the city of Peterborough.

The League of Nations, he went on to say, is a subject still largely obscure, and yet it is of intense importance. In Canada he was afraid there is far from sufficient interest manifested in this League, the only alternative before the world for another war eventually by some nation or nations seeking world domination. Although after the Battle of Waterloo some thought of a League of Nations was entertained, still the idea is practically new today, and born out of the horrors of war, out of a conviction that the glory of war is altogether a misconception, and that whatever glory there may at one time have been in war has now passed away. So much sheer destruction was resorted to in the late struggle that men have concluded war is a thing their best energies should be directed against. But to this end, the speaker could not see any hope but in the League of Nations. World-reconstruction seems almost a can't word, he said; nevertheless it is the key-note of the age, and connected with re-construction there is no ideal more noble and promising than the League of Nations.

World Power.

This is an old idea, for the consummation of which various attempts have been made by different nations since the era of civilization. But from the earliest dawn of civilized history the aim of kings and nations to establish world denomination has always failed. Tyranny and bloodshed unspeakable has been resorted to by nations ambitious for world power, but to no enduring avail. The Assyrians and Babylonians, Dr. Symonds said, inflicted brutality and horrors on weaker races in their wars for domination, but as nations, they passed away. And so we can read history until we come to Alexander the Great, who, however, with his temporary world power attained introduced a new idea of civilization and culture. The speaker did not think Alexander had any thought of actual domination. On the contrary, he was sufficiently magnanimous to look upon conquered races as big and as important a people in the world as his own, even encouraging his subjects to mix with them. And so we go on down in history until we come to Napoleon, and finally the ex-Kaiser, both of whose dreams of world domination were shattered.

Natural Ambition.

The reverend gentleman concluded that it is somewhat natural for a great nation to conceive of world domination, and when one remembers Germany's great preminence in science, industry, trade, education and the arts, together with ever-increasing wealth, it is not surprising that she should have thought of world power. This thought was fostered by the ex-Emperor, a man in whose character, pride holds a very important place, and the speaker contended, more trouble and horrors originate in the world from pride than from any other sin. The root underlying the past war was "selfish pride," which gave birth to Germany's mad desire to dominate other nations and to force on them her own idea of civilization and culture. If we cannot divert the minds of men from pride into a channel of unselfishness, our children will have to go through all the horrors of the past war in another struggle against the ambition of some nation or nations for world domination. And he could see no other counter-action to such a danger but the formation of a League of Nations, which would have a practical influence over the affairs of mankind.

Unlimited Nationalism.

Sounding a note of warning against the evils of unlimited nationalism, Dr. Symonds pointed out that Germany was a state in which nationalism prevailed to the exclusion of all international considerations. She maintained no moral relations with other nations, and was dominated by self-interest alone. We Canadians, he said, shrink from unlimited nationalism, and yet entertain, he feared, too much thought for self-interest. The thought with us today should be, are we going to grow more concerned for our own interests to the exclusion of all consideration for the welfare of others; or are we going to temper our natural spirit of patriotism with the realization that other nations are composed of men and women like ourselves and initigate our nationalistic spirit with the broad principle of internationalism? It would indeed be unfortunate, he continued, were it impossible for we Canadians to recognize the needs of humanity in general, even should we have to so at some loss to our own personal interests and individualism.

Retain Some Barriers.

Continuing, the speaker opined that the League of Nations does not point in the direction of cosmopolitanship, for that means a breaking down of the barriers of nationalism. There must always be nations, and never an elimenation of national distinctiveness. He illustrated this fact by referring to Canada as a new country, in which there is growing up a new nation—an admixture of Scotch, English and Irish—but for all that one can pinch out, the Scotchman say, every time. Steam, electricity and other modern agencies are drawing the nations of the world closer together, and fostering a spirit of internationalism, but the barriers of nationalism, in his opinion, would never be destroyed. And the League of Nations does not aim at such destruction, but to bring nations together in international unity in each race's protection and national progress.

Regretting lack of desired sympathy in Canada with the League of Nations project, Dr. Symonds reminded his audience that Lord Robt. Cecil, a man who enjoys the sincere respect and admiration of thoughtful Britishers, is an enthusiast on this subject, while in England many societies exist in support of the plan; and he (the speaker) sincerely hoped to see Canadian societies organized to promulgate the principles of this League.

Relations to Religion.

In this connection, the reverend doctor turned to the Bible, the first chapters of which deal almost exclusively with the first families in the world, passing on to the career of one family which grows into a nation, and then teaching the great principles of national righteousness and justice. In the New Testament we find that same race which sprang from the first families delegated to carry into the world that spirit of righteousness and justice, but the Bible does not speak of breaking down national barriers. No, it is important that families should be retained, it is important for the world's welfare that nations continue. Nations themselves are families of God, differing in mental and business capacities, and this is not an era for the strong exploiting the weak; but every member of each nation should entertain an interest in the welfare of others. Mere contact with individual members of other races tends to the breaking down of prejudices against their nation. Foster a spirit of international consideration, the speaker concluded; look not on the interests of other races with jealousy, and refrain from striving to gain advantage over them at their expense. Encourage that higher spirit of fellowship embodied in the principles of the League of Nations; have fath that it is a good thing, and we shall head for that goal which will in the course of time result in the extending of that peace on earth and good will to all men, of which the angels sang.

Exceeded Expectations.

Chairman Munro extended the thanks of the club to Dr. Symonds for his forcible and instructive address.

Sheriff Hall, in extending greetings to an old friend, said he had expected nothing but something very good from Dr. Symonds, who, however, had exceeded his expectations by his brilliant address.

Mr. Dumble, in congratulating Dr. Symonds for his well-known broad-minded views, was pleased to see a change in the world, when five churches unite in a forward enterprise, and he hoped for a removal of the barbed wire denomination barriers between them. He wished the distinguished visitor great happiness in his chosen calling.

The gathering then dispersed after singing the National Anthem.

A Weak Argument

Mr. Taber was telling his daughter the reasons why she should not marry young carpenter.

"Why, hang it all, Sue," said the father, "that fellow earns only eighteen dollars a week."

"I know, father," said Sue, pleadingly, "but a week passes so quickly when you're fond of each other."

Nothing New in His Life.

Coney as a Venice.

Coming up toward Sandy Hook on a perfectly placid sea we were blessed with just that amount of haze which turned Coney island into Venice, Arthur E. Shipley writes in Scribner's Magazine. The sea was an Adriatic lagoon; we might have left Trieste overnight! The same merciful mist changed the clear-cut outlines of the skyscrapers into Turner's pictures and the Boy and the Poet became ecstatic with the ecstasy of youth.

CAVALRY MAN WINS V.C.

Lieut. Harvey Was First Canadian To Do So.

For most conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty. During an attack by his regiment on a village a party of the enemy ran forward to a wired trench just in front of the village, and opened rapid rifle and machine gun fire, first at a very close range, causing heavy casualties in the leading troop.

At the critical moment when the enemy showed no intention whatever of retiring, and fire was still intense, Lieut. Harvey, who was in command of the leading troop, ran forward well ahead of his men, and dashed at the trench, still fully manned, jumped the wire, shot the machine gunner, and captured his gun.

His most courageous act undoubtedly had a decisive effect on the success of the operation. — Official Record.

In the general retreat of the Germans in the spring of 1917 the Canadian cavalry brigade was used to harass them in their departure from the Somme area. The Germans were fighting a rear defence action. The now famous Hindenburg line was their objective and in order to give themselves time to gain this position and consolidate themselves therein they maintained a strong outpost action in the rear. Villages were fortified and many of the best troops were left for their defence. The enemy seemed sometimes to lose his usual strategical balance and to change his mind peevishly. Several times after abandoning positions he would re-attack, the fortunes of war going usually to the British who were following on the heels of the unwelcome visitor who was making haste to leave the territory which he had held for the last two years.

In March the brigade was ordered near Peronne, north of the Somme river. So rapid was the retreat that the infantry were put to it to keep up with the Germans as they left their trenches and strong points, destroying everything as they went. Peronne was laid waste. Civilians were turned out of their homes in villages and the houses blown up. And yet the retreat continued. Only the cavalry could overtake the enemy with speed enough to hurry him as he left. In this the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery did splendid work. When the cavalry had driven the Hun out of a position it handed it over to the infantry and continued the chase over hills and through woods, where frequently strong machine gun posts had to be dislodged.

March 27 saw the cavalry still in pursuit of the enemy. In the early part of the day several village and fortified woods were reclaimed from [illegible] attack driven off. Then a snowstorm stopped proceedings for several hours. It was 5.15 o'clock in the afternoon before the air was clear enough for the horsemen to start out again.

The daylight was failing when the Lord Strathcona Horse reached the top of the hill overlooking Guyencourt. They found themselves faced by strongly held machine gun posts, and wheeling they galloped around to the northwest corner of the town.

Lieut. Harvey was in command of the leading troop. Riding ahead of his men he was first to reach the outskirts of the town and found again that the Germans had entrenched a machine gun in front of the town and protected it with wire entanglements. Springing from his saddle, he ran at the post, firing his revolver at the same time. He leapt over the wire, shot the gunner and jumped on the gun. When his men came up he was in possession of the post. The troop entered the town. For clearing the way for his men the troop leader was awarded the Victoria Cross.

Lieut. Harvey was the first Canadian cavalry man to win the Victoria Cross in this war. Besides this, the highest award a soldier can win, Lieut. Harvey wears two other decorations, the Military Cross and the French Croix de Guerre. The French decoration was conferred on him for being the first to enter the village of Fontain, March 28, 1918, where he effected a connection with the French cavalry. It was at this time that the French, mistaking Harvey and his men for German spies dressed in British uniforms, had them arrested and held for several hours, releasing them with many apologies on identification by other British officers.

The Military Cross was won a few days later when by sheer gallantry the Canadian cavalry stemmed the advance of the Germans on Amiens.

Lieut. Harvey was farming and ranching near Macleod, Alta, when war broke out. In the spring of 1915 he joined the 13th Canadian Mounted Rifles as a private, receiving his commission before going overseas. He was with his unit at the time of signing the armistice and just before going into Germany with the army of occupation went to England one day in a fog in an airplane to get the colors for his regiment, under which to march into the conquered country. The colors were presented by Lady Strathcona.

Frederic Maurice Watson Harvey was born in County Meath, Ireland. —Carolyn Cornell in the Toronto Star Weekly.

Bluejay Helps Sunday School.

The superintendent of the Sunday school at Plainville, Kan., took charge of a sickly bluejay and nursed it to health, says the New York World. He has tamed it and trained it to do tricks and it follows him around his home like a dog. The last two Sundays the bird has gone with him to Sunday school, where it has done all the stunts it has learned before the class. Whenever there are others near the bird keeps close to its master. There is so much interest in the bird among the Plainville boys that Sunday school attendance is increasing.

FRIENDSHIP HARD TO EXPLAIN

Scientists Unable to Account for Companionship of Australian Death Adder and the Rat.

Though scientifically regarded as "the most dangerous and probably the most deadly" of Australian snakes, the death adder has to its credit many everyday proofs to the contrary; so many, indeed, that some are inclined to class it as comparatively harmless, the reasons for such opinion being: (1) the small size of the creature, reducing the risks of its being interfered with inadvertently; (2) its amiability; (3) the fact that unless the sensitive membrane at the end of the tail, to which the curved spine is the culminating point, is trodden on or otherwise insulted, the chances are that there will be no active resentment.

Many years ago a locality in Australia suffered from a raid by bush rats, which congregated in great numbers. Similar plagues have often been recorded from the western downs; but the coastal visitation was singular, for it was associated with death adders, which seemed to be on good terms with the rats. One of the settlers was growing sweet potatoes on a fairly large scale for pig food, the plow being used for the harvesting of the crop. Seldom was a furrow run for the full length of the field without turning both adders and rats.

Suddenly the rats migrated, and then the death adders disappeared, few of either being seen for a decade, when the association between them was again sensationally illustrated. The daughter of a settler rose at dawn, and with others ran off to the vegetable garden for salads for breakfast. While she was looking for a seemly cucumber, a rat was disturbed, and almost immediately after she was bitten by a death adder which had lain inert at the very spot whence the rat had fled. The child recovered, while the deceptive snake, which will not submit to have its tail sainted even by the airiest of treads, was killed. This illustrates afresh the singular association between an adder and a rat. Why and for what purpose does this apparent amicability exist?

Some Odds And Ends

There is such widespread interest in the public activities of the Prince of Wales that there is timely importance in an article in an English magazine on the work of His Royal Highness as a business man in the management of his great estates of the Duchy of Cornwall, his Dartmoor Reclamation Scheme, and the latest plan for the improvement of mean streets in London.

The published statements and reports of the Duchy of Cornwall tell an extremely interesting story. Among other things they inform His Royal Highness of the progress of the oyster industry which he has established, and also what his estate derives from the sale of the practically wild ponies which he breeds on Dartmoor and 'crosses' with a famous Arabian stock.

These balance sheets and statements also inform His Royal Highness how much has come to him through 'post groats' which are rental fees, and also through 'white' rents. He also learns what he has made through the sale of any unclaimed wrecks that may have been cast upon the Cornish coast, for the proceeds from all such belong to him as Duke of Cornwall, as do also those from any starnded whales or sturgeons and from any gold or silver discovered in the duchy.

The extent of the Duchy of Cornwall is upwards of 124,00 acres; but of this the greater part is only rough moorland. It includes, however, valuable house property in London, and tin and coal mines in Cornwall and Somersetshire.

Once Powerful Empire.

No country, not even Egypt, made a deeper mark in the history of the ancient world than Mesopotamia. For thousands of years it was the seat of the Assyrian and Babylonian empires. To the bountiful resources of nature its peoples added those of art and science, and the country during the centuries waxed not only in material wealth and military power, but also in culture. The ancient glory of Mesopotamia has passed, but the [illegible]

Gluten.

Gluten is the main nutritive element in all flour made from grain, though it exists in larger proportion in some varieties of wheat than in others, and in hard wheat more than in soft. Gluten flour is flour from which the starch element has been wholly or partly removed, thereby bettering it for the use of diabetic patients.

SIR ADAM BECK AS A HYPNOTIST

(Hamilton Herald)

If Carlyle were alive and were to add a chapter to his famous work on Heroes and Hero-Worship, he could find excellent material to hand in the devotion of the disciples of Sir Adam Beck to their master. Seldom has there been a more remarkable example of hero-worship than theirs. Their attitude towards the electric knight is identical with that which in olden times caused the elevation of noted men to divine honors even during their lives.

It would almost seem a case of hypnotism. Has Sir Adam cultivated the occult sciences and acquired the magic art of bewitching folks? Has he the power to give what the Christian Scientists call "absent treatment" to his followers?

Consider what the Hamilton Board of Control did yesterday. It adopted a resolution prepared by the union of Hydro municipalities, to the effect that one of the members of the Ontario Hydro Commission should be a representative of the municipalities, and that he should be a man acceptable to the chairman, Sir Adam Beck. Our Board of Control passed this resolution, and saw nothing the matter with it.

There are three members of the provincial commission. There is Sir Adam, and there are two others, one of whom is a member of the Government. The third member is supposed to represent the public. It is fitting that he should be chosen by the municipalities directly interested in the Hydro power system. But why, in the name of common sense and ordinary prudence, should the representative of the municipalities be necessarily a man acceptable to the chairman? Was such a condition of appointment ever heard of before? If this condition were to be observed, why appoint a representative of the public or the municipalities at all? Why not entrust the whole thing to Sir Adam? That would be less expensive than to appoint at a big salary a creature of Sir Adam—for we may be sure that the chairman would not accept anyone of whose devoted allegiance he was not certain. One of the controllers made the inane remark that "Sir Adam could be safely entrusted with the interests of the municipalities." Very well — why then go to the expense of appointing a commissioner to specially represent the municipalities? Why pay a big salary to a mere echo?

What is needed is a third commissioner who is not subservient to the chairman — a man of independent mind and character. This system of putting arbitratry power in one man's hands — enthroning an autocrat and surrounding him with a crowd of slavish henchmen tremulously eager to do his will what ever it may be, is bad business and will result sooner or later in disaster. Hamilton is suffering from it now. The local Hydro commission is composed of three men who are slavish adherents of Sir Adam Beck, men who would almost as soon think of committing hari-kari as to question any decision of the master. As a result, Hamilton continues to pay more than this city should pay for its electric power, in comparison with the price charged Toronto.

AMERICAN DELAY IS UNFORTUNATE

GERMANS ENCOURAGED TO RESIST PROVISIONS OF TREATY WITH ALLIES

Paris, Nov. 21. No formal meeting has yet been held between the German delegates, who arrived yesterday morning, and the representatives of the allied powers concerning the proposed protocol of the German peace treaty. It now seems unlikely that the protocol will be signed before the end of November, as the Germans have shown a disposition to resist the provision requiring them to replace the warships sunk, when their fleet was scuttled at Scapa Flow, and they have manifested a desire to argue the question. The failure of the allied and associated powers to reach an agreement on the treaty is reported here to have greatly encouraged thte Germans in their position.

As the protocol must be arranged before the formal announcement of ratification of the treaty by the three powers required to make it effective the date of putting the treaty into effect seems uncertain.

Spectacles.

The word is derived from the Latin "spectaculum," which means show, exhibition, display for the gratification of the eye. The word easily accommodated itself to describe the glasses invented in the thirteenth century, some say by a Florentine monk named Alessandro di Spina, and others by Roger Bacon. They surely created a spectacle for persons long inflicted with defective sight.

By-products are substances or results obtained collaterally or incidentally in the operation of a specific process or manufacture of something else. HER DAUGHTER WAS SAVED FROM OPERATION

Mrs. Wells of Petersburg Tells How.

Petersburg, Va.—"For two years my daughter suffered from a weakness and pains in her right side; at times she was so bad she could not do any work. For two years she was attended by the best physicians here, and both agreed that she would have to be operated on. I suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and at first she refused to take it, but finally consented. From the very beginning it helped her, and now she is entirely well, and telling everybody how much good it has done her."—Mrs. W. D. WELLS, 226 North Adams Street, Petersburg, Va.

If every girl who suffers as Miss Wells did, or from irregularities, painful periods, backache, sideache, dragging down pains, inflammation or ulceration would only give this famous root and herb remedy a trial they would soon find relief from such suffering.

TO ANTARCTIC BY AIR.

John L. Cope Tells How He Will Utilize Airplane.

To the South Pole by air is the present aim of British Antarctic explorers. John L. Cope, who was a member of the Imperial Trans-Antarctic expedition to the Ross Sea in 1914-17, is to lead the new venture, which expects to start for the South Pole next June. He plans a five-year stay, and the equipment of the expedition will include an airplane and wireless to keep the explorers in touch with civilization. The general objects of the expedition are:

To carry on the work already done by other explorers.

To obtain further information of a scientific and economic value.

Generally to extend our knowledge of the Antarctic continent, and thus to endeavor to complete the map.

In an interview with the London Daily News Mr. Cope said:

"We propose to leave England next June and sail for Wellington (New Zealand); thence we proceed to Macquaire Island, where a geological survey is to be made. Then we proceed to Scott Island, and establish wireless and meteorological stations, and thence we go to New Harbor, where headquarters will be established.

"Thus, with our boat and airplane carrying wireless equipment, and these stations established, we shall always be in wireless touch with civilization wherever we go."

By using the airplane it is hoped in a flight of 20 or 25 hours to avoid a tortuous journey lasting many months.

"The distance of the Pole from the base from which the airplane will start," said Mr. Cope, "is about 750 miles. We shall, of course, be compelled to take a sledge and extra provisions, etc., to enable us to get back in the event of the airplane breaking down; and with the weight of all these things it will be necessary to cut down our fuel to the minimum or taking off will be very difficult, and lifting the plane for crossing the mountain ranges impossible. We propose to set off with as much petrol as we can, and then, halfway on the outward journey, just before we get to a range of mountains that we have to cross, to dump half of it and pick it up again coming back."

It is hoped to use directional wireless from the base, which will be the ship, and so obtain "tail bearing."

Dealing with the advantages to be gained, Mr. Cope referred to the value of information regarding the development of the whale industry and the probability of mineral wealth, including, possibly, gold.

"As regards the scientific knowledge to be gained," said Mr. Cope, "a great many of the sciences might be supplied with useful data; but it is in the domain of meteorology, in its relation to agriculture in southern continents, that the most economic prospects are promised. It is generally admitted by meteorologists that great droughts, excessive rains, heat waves, and unusual frosts are intimately related, not only to simultaneous, but also to antecedent meteorological conditions, in places far removed from the regions affected.

"Antarctic data are absolutely necessary if the physical processes involved are to be understood and accurate long-range weather forecasts made for the benefit of agriculture. Scanty though our information about the Antarctic areas has been, it has formed the ground work and starting point of useful research.

"The growing science of aerial navigation is greatly dependent on meteorological forecasts and if long-range weather time-tables are to be constructed they must doubtless be based on Antarctic information."

New Title Is Suggested By a Writer in England For Head of Our Empire

THE New Europe, the excellent British organ of international politics, makes the suggestion that King George V. should assume the title "King of All the Britains," in order to express the world-wide character of his dominions. The innovation would not be altogether novel, inasmuch as since the accession of the present King's father, Edward VII., every coin of the British realm has borne the device "Brit. Omn. Rex.," an abbreviation standing for "Britanniarum Omnum Rex," of which the title now proposed would be merely the English translation.

It is suggested that the visit of the Prince of Wales to the overseas dominions would furnish a fitting occasion for the change. The argument is that the designation King of England is, in spite of its proud associations, both inadequate and inaccurate. It gives rise to implications not altogether pleasing to the political sensibility of the overseas Britisher, who, although intensely proud of being a member of the British Empire, hardly cherishes a nomenclature conveying the impression that he is being ruled from Westminster. Ian Hay has called attention to the misunderstandings arising from the unjustified, though pardonable, substitution of the term English not only for British, but even for Scotch, Australian and Canadian.

The New Europe's suggestion recalls another proposal, made in several instances during the last two decades, notably at the accession of both Edward VII and George V., to the effect that by way of symbolizing the greatness and unity of the British Empire the title of the sovereign should be changed to Emperor—"Emperor of Britain" or "Emperor of the Britons." The idea aroused vehement opposition, chiefly on the ground that historically the title and office of Emperor carries, in Europe at least, reminiscences of militarism and usurpation, of supreme power seized and held by violent means, whereby that of the King embodies, in England, at any rate, the continuity of law and constitutional development.

First Steam Engine.

It is a popular idea that we owe the steam engine entirely to the inventive genius of James Watt, the centenary of whose death occurred on August 25.

The idea, however, is quite erroneous, says Tit-Bits, for steam was in use as a motive power before he came on the scene. Several types of steam engine were in use, notably Savory's and Newcomen's.

But they were cumbersome, extravagant, and of small power, and it was while repairing a model of a Newcomen engine that Watt, who was working as a mathematical instrument make at the time, evolved various improvements, notably the separate condenser.

Meeting Matthew Boulton, a manufacturer of metal goods, he entered into partnership and they produced engines, which at once established Watt's reputation. Improvements and inventions followed quickly one after the other, and the present-day advance in motive power is due to the pioneer work of Watt. Even today the steam engine remains the same in principle as Watt evolved it.

It is an interesting fact, by the way, that Watt's workshop, exactly as he left it, still exists at Heathfield Hall, Handsworth, where the engineer genius spent the last nineteen years of his life carrying on scientific investigations.

A Roman Bloomery.

A woman member of the Cumberland and Westmoreland Antiquarian Society of England has had the good fortune to discover what is believed to be a Roman bloomery, or ancient smelting furnace, says the Emporia Gazette. Her attention was drawn to the place by the work of moles, which recently exposed some of the remains, and again later by the burning of the whins formerly concealing the hearth and other features of the bloomrey, near Forest How.

By some exploration with a spade she traced the foundation of a large hearth, 12 yards in diameter, and a number of heaps of cinders, slag and ore, and she also turned up specimens of Roman tiles, with pottery, slag and hematite. The size of the hearth of the Forest How bloomery marks it as quite different from the ordinary North Country mediaeval iron furnaces, which run from 7 to 9 or 10 feet in diameter, for the one just found is 12 yards across. This appears to be worth further exploration, and probably money for that purpose will be found.

THE CANADIAN BANKS

RAPID GROWTH OF SO-CALLED "MONEY TRUST."

Since the End of the War 731 New Branches Have Been Opened In Different Parts of the Dominion and Returns Show a Great Increase In the Savings of the People of This Country.

SINCE Sir Thomas White, then Minister of Finance, lifted the ban on the opening of new branches shortly after the signing of the armistice, there has been an unprecedented scramble on the part of all Canadian banks to open up new offices all over Canada. From the signing of the armistice to the end of July, 731 new branches were opened in Canada, and as only 20 were closed, there is a net gain of 711, more than the total number of branches of all Canadian banks eighteen years ago, and an average of two a day.

Now there are over four thousand branches of Canadian banks in Canada, or one for every 2,500 people. In the United States with its national banking system, there is one bank for every 3,600 people, and in England, there is only one branch for every 4,800 people.

What is the meaning of this great expansion in the number of Canadian banks? Some experts deplore it; they say that it is a "mushroom" growth; that Canada has not enough business to keep 4,000 bank branches busy. Yet an analysis of the clearing house reports and monthly bank statements does not tend to this view. Clearings have increased an average of 25 per cent. all over Canada in comparison with last year's figures. In some cities, Windsor, for instance, they have gone up as much as 100 per cent. Savings deposits have shown the most remarkable increase. The lessons of thrift, inculcated in the people of Canada by the war and the Victory Loan campaigns, are not the kind that will easily be forgotten.

There are others who say that the vast numbers of new branches being opened in the smaller centres of Canada will not add much to the prosperity of the towns and villages they are located in.

They claim that the banks open these branches merely to increase [illegible] ing back this money to the local industries, they collect large reserves in the important cities, such as Toronto and Montreal, and loan the money to large corporations. These people who make this complaint allege that there is a "money trust" in Canada and they see no good in the amalgamation of Canadian banks. It is a question that is agitating England to some extent now, but it is probable that competition between Canadian banks has prevented the formation of "money trusts."

Another answer to this argument is seen in instructions issued by the head offices of two of the largest banks to their local managers, in which it is pointed out that branch managers must "know" their communities, that they must be "community builders" and do everything to boost local industry.

This summer several of the banks have held conventions of their various managers. Bankers from all over the country met and discussed better banking, local and national problems, etc. This bringing together of men who have an intimate knowledge of the commercial and financial problems of every one of the great geographical divisions of Canada is bound to have a good effect in helping the East to know the West, Quebec to understand Ontario, and in lessening misunderstandings. In fact, one New York writer sees in this feature of Canada's banking system—each bank controlling branches in every province—the greatest asset for the future welfare of the country.

Canada's banks have good connections with the outer world. The Union Bank, in connection with the National Park Bank of New York, has recently established the Park-Union Foreign Banking Corporation with branches in Yokohama and Shanghai, to aid in the development of a larger Canadian trade with the Orient. The same corporation is also opening branches at Tokio and Kobe, which is becoming Japan's greatest industrial and shipping city. Other branches of Canadian banks outside Canada are as follows: Newfoundland, 38; West Indies and Central America, 45; United States, 16; Cuba, 31; Great Britain, 8; France, 3; Mexico, 1; Siberia and Spain, 1.

How Canadian banks are distributed over Canada is shown by the following table showing the number of branches in each province:

Ontario	1,388
Quebec	1,011
Saskatchewan	562
Manitoba	278
British Columbia	193
Nova Scotia	143
New Brunswick	103
Yukon	3
Total	4,056

Adding to this total the 143 branches located outside the Dominion of Canada, the banks have a total of 4,199 branches. How does this compare with the total of about 100 we had at the time of Confederation, or the total of about 500 branches we had twenty years ago?

Khaki Settlers In Quebec.

Very encouraging results from soldier settlement work in the Province of Quebec are reported by Col. Bruce Campbell, provincial superintendent of the Soldiers Settlement Board. The board has been brought to a high plane of organization, the province having been divided into three separate areas, all of which report good progress. The headquarters of the three areas are at Montreal, Sherbrooke and Quebec.

The soldier is required to pay down only 10 per cent. of the actual purchase price of the farm. This payment is required mainly to give the soldier-farmer a more vital interest in his venture. In certain cases the payment of this 10 per cent. is waived. The money paid down is to apply solely on the purchase price of the farm itself; thus $5,000 may be paid for the farm, the soldier's 10 per cent. making up the cost with the Government loan of $4,500. This is loaned for 25 years at 5 per cent. In addition the Government will buy live stock and farm equipment up to the sum of $2,000, upon which no interest is due for two years. The third year the soldier-farmer starts paying 5 per cent. on this $2,000. A further loan of $1,000 is made for building repairs, making the grand total of $7,500.

In a visit through St. John's and Huntingdon counties, Col. Campbell and Major W. R. Stevens came in personal contact with many of the soldier settlers. In almost every case favorable progress was noted.

Gets V. C. After Five Years.

The gallant behaviour which cost the late Lieut. William Archer McCrae Bruce his life nearly five years ago has just been rewarded with the bestowal of the Victoria Cross. Bruce was a young officer of the regular Indian army, 59th Scinde Rifles, which was formerly commanded by his father, and was a nephew of Edward Hay, former general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada. The young soldier displayed great bravery at Givenchy on the night of December 19, 1914, leading a party against a German trench, and afterwards, though severely wounded, walking up and down encouraging his men to hold out against the overwhelming masses of the enemy. The onrush of the field grey hordes later swept over this little oupost of the "Old Contemptibles," and most of those not among the slain were taken prisoner. Consequently it was only lately that the story of Lieut. Bruce's gallantry became known.

The "Pretended" Bank.

In 1819 the people of the town of York (now Toronto) asked for the incorporation of the Upper Canada Banking Company, which was granted, but reserved for royal assent, which, however, was not proclaimed until April 5, 1821. But previous to that date a private bank was established in Kingston under the name of the Bank of Upper Canada. The business of this institution was not taken over by the chartered bank and the Kingston bank has for this reason, been called the "pretended" Bank of Upper Canada. The chartered Bank of Upper Canada failed in 1866.

Over two thousand years ago the ancient Gauls made good soap from beech ashes and the fat of goats.

The Blarney Stone.

The "Blarney stone" is a stone on the northeast angle of Blarney Castle, which was erected in the fifteenth century, at the village of Blarney, four miles northeast of Cork, Ireland. On the stone is a Latin inscription recording the date of erection of the castle. To this stone tradition ascribes the faculty of communicating to all who kiss it that persuasive fluency of speech which has come to be known as "blarney." The stone can be kissed only with great difficulty by leaning over the parapet, and one must have assistance to perform the feat.

A RECORD OF SERVICE.

Splendid Work Done by Gen. Ross In the War.

Brig.-Gen. Arthur E. Ross, of Kingston, is a soldier and a citizen of national reputation. By his eminent services and self-sacrificing devotion he has earned and receives the enthusiastic admiration of practically every Canadian soldier who went overseas. Dr. Ross is a native of Ontario, now in his 49th year. During the South African war, while still a young man, he enlisted and fought as a private, and later on gave noteworthy service as a surgeon. Dr. Ross was the representative of Kingston in the Ontario Legislature when the great war broke out. Recognized as a man clear and strong in his convictions by all his associates, and yet a moderate thinker, he was perhaps keener for action than for debate. His contributions to the deliberations of the House were characterized by sound, practical common sense, by independence of judgment and an accurate knowledge of the subject in hand. From the moment war was declared Dr. Ross realised, as few men did, the importance of medical and surgical attention to the men at the front. Therefore he offered himself to his country, and he was privileged to render such service as seldom falls to the lot of any man.

A few days ago, speaking in Toronto, Sir Arthur Currie declared:—"It was largely due to Gen. Ross that the wastage in the Canadian Corps was lower than in any other unit of the British army." To those who know the man and who have observed his career this was no surprise. Day in and day out, year after year, from almost the beginning of the war until the guns were silenced, Dr. Ross labored with his abounding enthusiasm and his great talent, close up to the firing line, sparing no effort and avoiding no danger, in order that he might save Canadian lives. It is well known that he was several times offered work of a less hazardous and less exacting nature, outside of the danger zone, but he sought neither safety nor comfort while Canadians were in action. Even the flattering offer of an appoinment as Director of Medical Services with the Fifth British Army could not induce him to leave his own Canadian countrymen, and even when he suffered the greatest loss that can befall any man in the illness and death of his life's partner, he remained at his post. He learned from actual experience probably more about the hardships and the suffering of our army than any other man in the service, and he labored as earnestly for the welfare of Canadians as it would be possible for any man to do.

Mayfair Hotel In New Hands.

The London Globe reports that Buckland's Hotel, Mayfair, has been sold to the Guards' Club, which also has purchased the entire furniture, contents and equipment.

The hotel contains about 70 bedrooms, 30 bathrooms, 15 reception rooms, and, says the London Times, is in every way up to date, having recently been the subject of a large expenditure on improvements and redecoration.

It has been established for over 160 years. In the early days it was called Lillyman's, and later it became Pattison's.

Johnnie Was Literal.

Little Johnnie was discovered in the library, busily snipping away at the open dictionary.

"Johnnie," asked his father, "what in the world are you doing?"

"You see, father," answered the bright and shining light of the household, "to-day at school the teacher said there was no such word as 'fail,' and so I'm cutting it out of the dictionary."

VON HINDENBURG LEADING WITNESS

SHOWS DISPOSITION TO MAKE BERNSTORFF SCAPEGOAT OF GERMAN WAR PARTY

Berlin, Nov. 20.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg was the leading witness at the hearing of the commission on responsibility for the war, but his testimony was scarcely more interesting than that of Gen. Ludendorff, and seemed even less important than the reading of reports to Berlin by Dr Heinrich F. Albert, Under Secretary of State and former commercial attache at the German Embassy in Washington.

A report which Dr. Albert made in 1916 to the German Government, read to-day, gave clear warning of the feeling in the U.S. of America's efficiency, of her financial powers and of her intense leanings toward the Entente, and declared that, in case of U.S. participation, "neutral nations would side with America; the psychological effect would be felt at once; it would be a national misfortune and Germany would be defeated."

What She Could Do.

Dr. Albert asserted then that the U.S could raise several army corps and that she would energetically support the allies with huge loans.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg declared to-day that Germany did not desire war, and entered the struggle with her defensive strength impaired. He charged there was a lack of co-operation between the army and "interests at home," and asserted this had a vital effect upon the final issue of the conflict. Relations between the German high command and Count von Bernstorff, former German ambassador to the U.S., were not cordial, it was developed, and it seemed an effort was made to treat him as a scapegoat by von Hindenburg and Ludendorff, who bitterly attacked him while giving their evidence.

TILL OF DRUG STORE ROBBED

STORY OF "RAID" IN AURORA CENSURED FOR NOT PREVENTING CRIME

Toronto, Nov 19.—Charges against Frank Granger and Frank Machell of breaking into Russell Johnston's drug store in Aurora and removing $17.50 from his till, were dismissed at the County Police Court. Jack Egan failing to appear, a warrant was issued for his arrest.

It appeared that Egan, being "pretty well stewed," told Granger he "felt like a raid." He left Granger and returned in about ten minutes later, saying he had got "some dough." Next morning he told Granger that they both had been accused of breaking into the drug store.

Granger and Egan then visited Johnston, the former to disclaim any part in the offence, the latter to pay back the money he had commandeered and to apologize. Egan offered also to pay any damage that he had done but Johnston [illegible] there had been none.

Magistrate Brunton censured Granger severely for not preventing Egan from committing the crime. Machell was not connected in any way with the matter, excepting by police summons.

RALLIES IN NEW YORK STOCKS TODAY

ADVANCES OF ONE TO THIRTEEN POINTS OVER YESTERDAY'S U. S. STEEL

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 20.—Regardless of greater weakness of foreign exchange, which was also ascribed to the defeat of the peace treaty, and further unfavorable industrial conditions arising from the coal situation, the market soon strengthened in all quarters today. Rallies showed advances of one to thirteen points over yesterday's close. U. S. Steel and affiliated issues also recovered easily. Call loans opened at 10 per cent., the lowest initial rate of the week.

EXCHANGE DROPS

RATES ON FOREIGN MONEY REACH NEW LOW LEVELS IN NEW YORK

(Canadian Press Despatch)

New York, Nov. 20.—Rates of foreign exchange again dropped to new low levels in the local market today. The pound sterling brought only $3.99½, which is 1¼ cents below yesterday's lowest quotation. Franc checks were quoted at 9.79 for the dollar, five centimes below yesterday's prices.

The Neat Explanations of Train Schedules That Are About the Best of Their Kind.

Railways have had their troubles during these amazing years of world war and continental congestion; so, consequently, have passengers. On a rickety-rackety, half-forgotten little branch line to nowhere in particular, not long ago, a long, lank, lazy Yankee station master, with an Uncle Sam goatee, mentioned those mighty and historic obstacles in excuse for the lateness of a certain two-car train, for which an impatient salesman of agricultural implements was waiting. But although he offered an excuse, he did not enjoy doing so, and concluded his remarks by announcing resentfully:

"She'll be in before long, and before long oughter be soon enough for reasonable folks. Ef she's in 'at' nowadays she'd oughter be cheered, and no feller with a grain of common sense nor patience has any call to growl ef she's 'thereabouts.'"

In the amiable South a world war is not necessary to evoke an even greater superiority to petty uncertainties of time. The colored man in charge of a southern waiting room, in a place by no means a village, was heard explaining the local electric car connections with the nearest city.

"Cars run on de hour, gen'lemen," he told two inquirers, with a beaming smile; and added confidentially, "Co'se dey's times 'tain't on de hour jes' perzackly to de minute. Sometimes dey starts a li'l' bit after, and sometimes, w'en dey's a hot box, dey's so much after dey's de same as a li'l' bit befo'; but mos' ginerally, gen'lemen, dey gits away jes' about."—Youth's Companion.

MORE LIKE GODS THAN TREES

Impressive Tribute Paid by English Poet to the Giant Redwoods of California.

John Masefield, the English poet, contributed the following impression of the giant trees of California to the Reveille, a new paper devoted to disabled sailors and soldiers: "They are not like trees; they are like spirits. The glens in which they grow are not like places; they are like haunts of centaurs or of the gods. The trees rise up with dignity, power and majesty, as though they had been there forever. They are the oldest living things. Even the young ones were two thousand or three thousand years old, and many of these grew from the visible ruins of others, which may have been saplings seven thousand years ago. Sometimes in cathedrals one feels the awe and the majesty of columns. These columns were more impressive than anything of stone; these columns were alive. They were more like gods than anything I have ever seen. They seemed to be thinking. One felt that presently they would march to wipe out everything mean or base or petty here on earth. The stars shone about their heads like chaplets."

Kisses and Beards.

It is so easy to understand what the Americans say, because they talk so loud. It is not the same loudness as of the French, and one day I have laughed to hear in a 'bus how girls of the Y. M. C. A. have talked. There was one who was not at all pretty, except to be young, who has regarded a French gentleman who wore his beard long. "Look," she said, "what a horrible beard. Imagine to be kissed by any one like that. Then they have both laughed.

The other one has said then: "I suppose his grandfather wore his beard long, so he does the same," and the first one has replied: "Yes, it is always like that. What was good enough for your grandfather in France is good enough for you."

I was not angry to hear them speak so, because, you know, they were very ignorant. For me, I do not think that they have known very much the emotion of to be kissed, or they would have understood that it is not whether or not one has a beard that makes the difference.—London Bystander's Paris Letter.

Why He Doesn't Hear It.

"This is the fourth morning you've been late, Rufus," said the man to his colored chauffeur.

"Yes, sah," replied Rufus, "I did ovahsleep myself, sah."

"Where's that clock I gave you?"

"In m' room, sah."

"Don't you wind it up?"

"Oh, yes sah. I winds it up, sah."

"And do you set the alarm?"

"Ev'ry night, sah, I set de alarm, sah."

"But don't you hear the alarm in the morning, Rufus?"

"No, sah. Dere's de trouble, sah. Yer see, de blame thing goes off while I'm asleep, sah."—Yonkers Statesman.

Hard Luck for Some One.

The monthly assizes were in progress at the mining camp of Howling Wolf, and the courthouse was crowded with a motley throng, who took a deep, if somewhat noisy, interest in all the proceedings.

The uproar got worse and worse, and at last the judge could bear it no longer.

An imposing figure, in a moth-eaten white wig, he rose to his feet and bellowed out:

"Gentlemen, and also prisoner, I must insist on order in the court house. Here I've tried four cases already, and haven't been able to hear a single word of the evidence."—Pearson's Weekly, London.

A taxi owned by John Leach was badly smashed when it was struck by a street car in St. Thomas.

ON PATROL WORK

Description of Hot Corner in Argonne Forest.

Fierce Fighting for Victory Over a Most Difficult Terrain—How One Bunch of the Enemy Was Wiped Out.

The tricky nature of the fierce fighting in the Argonne forest is vividly described in Collier's Weekly by Arthur Ruhl, who shared the dangers to which the heroic American divisions were exposed in the taking of that difficult terrain. In the article from which the following is an extract Mr. Ruhl's viewpoint was that of a certain regiment which had two badly decimated battalions on patrol work in an exposed position. He writes:

"Tricky valleys were almost always overlooked by some unexpected hilltop, from which any advance could be enfiladed. Pending another general attack, for which everybody was waiting, the duty of the regiment was to 'keep in contact' with the enemy, push forward when not too costly to do so, and to find out all that could be found out about the positions in front of them and what was needed to take them.

"The young majors were up there now with the remnants of two battalions. Raked by machine gun fire whenever a head showed, pounded by artillery if they showed themselves or not, they had been at it now for forty-eight hours almost without rest. Half of their men were gone, the rest were hungry and tired, some of their wounded had been waiting for the stretcher bearers for the two whole days. From the army's point of view, the little fight was a mere drop in the bucket—a 'minor operation between attacks.' The battalions were but part of a regiment, the regiment part of a brigade, but half a division, and there were half a dozen or more divisions on this particular sector.

"But for the patrols themselves—the steel point of the division's spear—the clump of bushes across the way that zirp-zirped every time a head showed, that devilish high velocity Austrian .38 which whipped in without a moment's warning, the wounded moaning before their eyes, water they couldn't get, the 'chow' that was late—all these little things were every- [illegible] was. And it is the sum of scores of little white hot spots like this which makes up a front, and the gameness of the men in them which makes it possible for some staff man sitting comfortably in his quiet office, miles away, to write: 'Nothing unusual to report.'

"Just after I arrived the major telephoned that they had caught, with their machine guns, a bunch of Germans marching across a clearing in 'columns of squads.' 'Columns of squads,' the colonel shouted, 'and full belts in their machine guns!' The ones not mowed down or able to escape—some thirty or forty—held up their hands in token of surrender. No men could be spared from the harassed patrol to handle any such number and get them back to the rear—the machine guns kept working.

"The woods were full of obstacles, 'pill boxes' or merely positions in rocks or behind embankments, with convenient shafts running thirty or forty feet down into the ground, into which the crew might retire during artillery fire. Sometimes during an advance in fog or thick brush they would let the infantry filter through without firing and then turn on them after they had passed. The few men left behind to hold such a position sold their lives dearly, generally, and when our men had paid the price, in casualties and time, they would not even have the satisfaction of capturing something. The enemy artillery would be far away, of course; the bulk of the infantry withdrawn to new positions similarly strong. There would be nothing to show for the work done but two or three dead Germans and an abandoned machine gun. It was an economical bargain for one side and an extremely expensive one for the other—most of this Argonne-Meuse fighting was that."

Natural Resources of China.

One reads in Chinese history that several centuries before the beginning of the Christian era the banners of China were carried to the Caspian sea, there to meet the banners of Rome, and that the way was thus paved for China's silks and iron in European markets. The Shansi iron industry is claimed by a Chinese writer to be the oldest in the world. Like many others of the great resources of China, the country's deposits of iron ore have been but little developed. Dr. H. Foster Bain, assistant director of the United States Bureau of Mines, who spent some time in China investigating its mineral resources, estimates that China has 400,000,000 tons of iron ore available and suitable for modern furnace reaction and an additional 300,000,000 tons that might be treated by native methods.

Doubly Commemorative.

The most cherished possession of a certain Frenchman is a beautiful model in gold of a field gun such as was used in the Franco-German war. Its history is curious. After that conflict the present owner's father bought for a song immense quantities of discarded war material, including many field guns, and the transactions were so profitable that he was able to retire with a large fortune.

Stratford Finance Committee will recommend that a by-law be submitted to spend $35,000 in improving the park.

Tobacco Habit Dangerous

says Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital. Thousands of men suffering from fatal disease would be in perfect health to-day were it not for the deadly drug, Nicotine. Stop the habit now before it's too late. It's a simple process to rid yourself of the tobacco habit in any form. Just go to any up-to-date drug store and get some Nicotol tablets; take them as directed, and lo! the pernicious habit quickly vanishes. Druggists refund the money if they fail. Be sure to read large and interesting announcement by Doctor Connor soon to appear in this paper. It tells of the danger of nicotine poisoning and how to avoid it. In the meantime try Nicotol tablets; you will be surprised at the result. (6)

A TEN DOLLAR BILL FOR TEN CENT FARE

LADY IS DESPOILED OF LAST CENT BY STREET CAR COMPANY

The wife of a workingman yesterday left her home, accompanied by her little daughter, and started for town on a George street car to do some shopping. All the money she had with her was a ten-dollar bill. This she tendered the conductor in payment of the fare of herself and daughter. The conductor pocketed the bill and gave the lady a ticket, asking her to call at the company's office on George street to receive the proper change.

The lady found herself without money. She was unable to purchase a single article, and she vainly begged the conductor to even give her a small amount of change on account. He did, however, permit her a return trip on his car, and would probably have allowed her to ride out the entire amount of her money which he held in his possession.

The lady finally reached home, richer in nothing save a novel experience. Her husband called today at the company's office and received the change. All that he was able to obtain in the way of an explanation was that the official on the car had simply carried out the rules of the company.

DOES NOT OPPOSE HYDRO RADIAL

C. P. R. WELCOMES PROJECT AS A FEEDER TO ITS SYSTEM

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Speaking before the Empire Club today, President E. W. Beatty of the C.P.R., said that he did not oppose the proposed Ontario Hydro radial system, but intimated that he rather welcomed it as a feeder for the C.P.R. He also declared that the C.P.R. proposed to do more for Ontario than was being done at present. He predicted success of the Canadian National Railway system, and in regard to the high cost of living, urged economy and efficiency on the part of all.

The city directory just issued places the combined population of Windsor, Walkerville, Sandwich and Ojibway at 49,994.

A Pealing Anthem Swells the Note of Praise

From Music Dealers, and from hundreds of people who have bought Curtiss Aeronolas since we placed them on the market a few weeks ago, there has come to us a spontaneous note of praise for its musical quality and artistic beauty. The is a fine talking machine. When you see and hear it you will agree with us. We can best express it, perhaps, by saying that every refinement in the talking machine art has been successfully incorporated into the design and manufacture of the Curtiss Aeronola.

The Reproducer, the Tone Arm, the Tone Chamber, the specially designed Horn and the motor are the finest that money can buy. And they have been so blended with perfect cabinet-making as to insure a musical instrument that is truly "The Last Word in Talking Machines."

But there is nothing that can be said about any musical instrument that can do justice to its qualities or defects. It must be seen and heard to be appreciated.

We urge you, therefore, to go to the music dealer you ordinarily patronize and ask him to demonstrate the Curtiss Aeronola to you. Don't be put off with any other machine. Insist on seeing and hearing the Aeronola.

If it so happens that he hasn't any in stock, tell him for us that we will ship all four models to him on the day his order is received at the factory.

OSHAWA PAVING CASE.

Case of Interest to All Municipalities Before Court.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—The Supreme Court yesterday heard the case of the Ontario Asphalt Co. versus the Town of Oshawa. The appellants were to construct an asphalt sidewalk for the town, being obliged to keep it in repair for five years. At the end of the period the town brought action and recovered $11,000 for faulty construction and lack of repair. On this appeal, appellants claim that the town, not having expended money, could not recover, and that the town, having accepted the work when finished, could only recover what it might have to expend, which its engineer has fixed at $2200.

INQUEST INTO DEATH

The belt broke where a bucket (step) is attached or bolted to the belt. He declared that there was no way of ascertaining whether this was the same step as had been broken in the afternoon or not. The belt had been in use for about two years.

One Other Broke

On one occasion in May or June of this year, he had come to work in the morning and found a similar belt to this one broken and lying on the florr. As far as he knew no one knew how or when it broke.

One in Use for 14 Years

He asserted that the company had used a belt exactly similar to that one in the old mill from 1902 to the time the mill burnt down in 1916. There was never an accident on this former belt which was made of the same material as this one.

Still in Use

He stated that the belt had been firmly patched and thoroughly inspected by himself and was still in use. He considered it to be perfectly safe now though he could not advance any theory why the belt broke on that evening or why the other belt broke last June.

He admitted that the casual inspection of the foreman might not reveal a very small crack in the [illegible] This was the only inspection the belts received except in the case of an accident.

Inspected Belt.

Mr. James Packenham gave evidence to the effect that he had repaired the broken bucket after the bag of bran accident and had very carefully inspected each step in the belt before allowing anyone to use it.

Last Witness

The final witness of the inquest was Mr. H. Forsythe whose duty it is to look after the motors of the plant. He was present when the bag of bran fell and it took him about two and half minutes to go from the third to the eighth floor and shut off the power. He thought there would be some strain on both belts but the smaller drive belt would receive the severest strain. This one did not break.

Jury's Verdict

The Jury were out for just forty minutes when they brought in the following verdict: "We the jury empannelled to enquire into the death of Alias Kerteston find the deceased came to his death on November 10, 1919, in the city of Peterborough, from fracture at the base of the skull caused by a belt breaking while riding on a one man elevator and falling from the sixth to the third floor while in the employ of the Quaker Oats Company.

"We would recommend a more minfurther recommend that the proper ute inspection of these elevators. We official of the Quaker Oats Company take the matter up with the manufacturers of these belts and if reinforcements where the buckets are attached will afford more protection, that same be done at once.
